THE STUDENTS SPEAK

'Hate Sheet' Just a Symptom of Poly's Underlying Troubles

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the first in a two-part series attempting to reveal the "student side" of a melee that wracked Poly High School on May 28.

Today and Monday a group of six Polyites — representing a wide range of opinion — discuss for readers of The Independent, Press-Telegram some of the events preceding and during the disturbances. Although they hold no pat answers, the youngsters speculate widely on the future, propose ideas that, if adopted, might alter and influence life at Poly in coming years.

Panelists who talked for nearly three hours into a tape recorder are:

Michael Bernstein, 17, newly-elected Poly student body president for autumn 1969;

Thurmal Strickland, 17, new graduate.

Dell Hutchinson, 16, senior;

Don Wallace Jr., 16, a senior who narrowly was defeated recently for the student presidency;

Gordon Hartstein, 17, new graduate and spring student body prexy;

Greg Burden, 17, senior.

I, P-T Editor William W. Broom and Ralph Hinman Jr. education editor, moderated the discussion.

DELL HUTCHINSON: O. K., I'll start. The way I see the problem is that not all students are seeing eye-to-eye. There's national trouble everybody knows about . . . Of course, everything that goes on at Poly is reflected from what happens around the nation.

Now the thing that makes it worse (there) are the outside influences trying to rile kids up. I don't see there would be any problems at all at Poly if it weren't for the outside influences.

It's not really our thing at all; we are pawns in a whole big plot . . . (Broom asked for identification of outside influences.)

DELL: Well, I think there is influence on both sides. There are militant blacks, Black Panthers; there are militant whites, Students for a Democratic Society.

Of course, everyone is saying that one hate sheet (in circulation just prior to the May 28 disturbances) started it off . . . that since it riled up the blacks then the whites must have written it. But it also could have been written by the blacks.

The way I see it, anybody that wanted to rile up Poly could have written that paper . . .

(Broom asked about Poly's "total environment," in which "one piece of paper could cause so much reaction." Student response indicated "It wasn't just one piece of paper . . . it was the match that touched off this sort of thing . . .")

GORDON HARTSTEIN: (continues on the theme of "influences.") It's the people who go to Poly who are the ones influenced . . . They decide which way they want to go. The thing is, we've talked about this in student government; we've had all these discussions; we had that black cultural assembly; we've talked about it several times — and we've found the basic problem is that we just don't understand each other.

We go to the same school—not always together — and then we march off. We go to our separate homes, our separate communities. That's the main problem: we have different lives; we go to school, then we part.

That's really the problem; that's how it is in the nation and that's how it is at Poly. We don't mingle really at Poly, not enough, not everybody.

DON WALLACE: After we had that black cultural assembly (earlier this year) a lot of people misunderstood or took it the wrong way, and pretty soon people just started hassling. That is when the first real irritation started, and then . . . following that, there was a black boycott, and then the white meetings started (because it was) thought the people in the boycott weren't being punished . . .

THURMAL STRICKLAND: I think we are all steering the wrong way, that the problem at Poly is more an attitude thing, like certain things arising (racially). Like they said, it stemmed from so-called "hate meetings" and then someone said something about the paper.

I don't think it was that (hate sheet) at all . . . I think the problem probably started when Poly was first built, and there were blacks and whites going there then. I think as long as white people keep their

Q. Who was the first woman jockey, and where did she race? Who are some of the women who have succeeded her? S. K., Huntington Beach.

A. Diane Crump broke the sex barrier in thoroughbred horse racing last Feb. 7, riding a horse to a 10th place finish at Florida's Hialeah Park. There are now approximately a dozen women jockeys racing throughout the country. Penny Ann Early and Sandra Schleiffers are currently racing locally at Hollywood Park. Miss Schleiffers has finished in the money with second and third places. She is also the first woman jockey to be thrown from her horse during a race. Barbara Jo Rubin of Miami Beach, Fla., has won more races than any other jockette. Other women jockeys are Tuesdee Testa of Ohio and Robin Smith of Northern California.

Q. How long have the Gallup, Harris and some other polls been in existence? Who pays for the polls? Has a pollster ever been convicted of giving false information in his poll? K. D., Bellflower.

A. The most famous, the American Institute of Public Opinion, was founded by George Gallup in 1935. It is supported by 140 newspapers that subscribe to its service. Elmo Roper of Roper Research Associates started out in market research in 1933. Most of its business still is in market research for commercial firms but it also does polls for magazines and private polls for political candidates. Louis Harris and Associates was started in 1956, does both market research and public opinion polls. Opinion Research of California was founded 20 years ago by Don M. Muchmore, does about 40 per cent market research and the rest public opinion polling in the state. Western to Reduce L.B. Flight Service

By HERB SHANNON
Aerospace Editor

In spite of a 200 per cent increase in passenger traffic over last year on new schedules from Long Beach Airport, Western Air Lines will cut service by 20 per cent July 1.

Mike Simpson, the airline's station manager, blamed cancellation of four daily flights on lack of civic support and the failure of the City Council to provide promised terminal facilities. Simpson also pointed out that daily Long Beach-Honolulu service, proposed by Western and approved in Civil Aeronautics Board actions, has been canceled for the same reasons. The Hawaiian flights, scheduled to start July 1 pending final CAB approval, will be diverted to San Diego.

"It would be impossible to maintain a service of this scope with the present limited ticketing, air freight and passenger convenience facilities," the station manager said.

Since the first of the year, Western has more than doubled Long Beach service to an all-time high of 10 inbound and 10 outbound flights serving San Diego, San Francisco, Oakland, Las Vegas and Salt Lake City.

* * * *

"DUE TO the absence of civic support and the new nonconstructive policy of the City Council, we are canceling the only service to Oakland and cutting back Las Vegas service by a third," Simpson said.

The flights to be discontinued are the 2 p.m. departure to Oakland, the 10 a.m. Las Vegas flight and the return trips from each. Still to be maintained, Simpson said, are three daily round trips to San Francisco, three to San Diego and two to Las Vegas, one of which continues to Salt Lake City and back.

Simpson said Western's increases of Long Beach service this year were predicated on airport improvements proposed earlier by the city. Since inauguration of the new schedules, the City Council, in a sudden reversal of policy, voted down a plan to build a modern terminal building, placed an embargo on any expansion of the present terminal and withdrew its support of increased airline service.

Probe Antitrust Laws in Interest-Rate Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department disclosed Saturday it is investigating the recent increase in the prime interest rate to see whether banks acted in violation of the antitrust laws.

Richard W. McLaren, an assistant attorney general and head of the department's antitrust division, said information gathered so far indicates no illegal action by the banks. But is too early to make a final judgment, he told the House Banking and Currency Committee.

At the same time, the White House rejected a request by the committee chairman, Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., that it force a rollback of the June 9 increase from 7½ to 8½ per cent in the interest rate banks charge their prime customers.

That is the highest the prime rate ever has been and the one per cent boost is the largest single increase in history.

McLaren said the antitrust division began a fact-finding investigation of the rate increase as soon as it was announced. But the inquiry will also cover four previous increases in the rate which have occurred since December, he said.

TWO PLANE CRASHES KILL 9

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Nine persons were killed and one was severely injured Saturday in two private plane crashes 30 miles apart.

A single-engine plane carrying six engineers to Santa Barbara smashed into a hillside in the Santa Susana Mountains near Chatsworth, northwest of Los Angeles. All died.

Another light plane struck a mountaintop near La Crescenta, above the Los Angeles suburb of Glendale. Two men and a young woman were killed. A man survived.

A spokesman for Sky Cruisers, Inc., said the six engineers had commuted together to Santa Barbara in the same Piper Cherokee six days a week for the last several weeks, weather permitting. Sky Cruisers owned the plane.

The pilot was identified as Wiley Gilreath, 35, of Granada Hills in the San Fernando Valley.

The others were identified as Tom Cummings, Leonard Cummings, Kenneth Smith, John Wood and Peter Plechota.

CALLED PEACE MOVE

Harriman Urges Defensive Troop Use in Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former peace negotiator W. Averell Harriman says the United States "should take a more defensive military position in Vietnam," shifting its forces to the cities as President Nixon withdraws American troops. "This course would cut the casualties," Harriman said, "and there's a reasonable prospect the other side would respond and de-escalate."

Harriman, who was President Lyndon B. Johnson's ambassador in the Paris peace talks, said a reduction in the fighting is vital to getting progress in the talks now.

He also connected his ideas on how to de-escalate the war with the proposal of former Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford earlier this week that Nixon withdraw 100,000 troops from Vietnam by the end of this year and remove all remaining ground combat forces next year. Nixon said in a news conference Thursday night that he hopes to improve on the Clifford timetable.

* * * *

NIXON HAS ordered withdrawal of 25,000 troops by the end of August and has said that at that time he will consider further recalls.

Nixon's expressions of hope that he could improve on the Clifford timetable prompted efforts by some Democratic Senate doves to have him expand this into a firm commitment on a timetable for full withdrawal.

But the Senate Democratic Leader, Mike Mansfield of Montana, said Saturday he feels Nixon "overreacted" in his comment on Clifford's proposal. Mansfield implied in an interview that it would not be realistic to expect such swift withdrawal.

For its part, the White House has been trying to play down Nixon's remark as only an expression of hope.

Harriman praised the President's statement in a basic policy speech on Vietnam May 14 that he had ruled out a military solution of the war and wanted a negotiated settlement. Harriman has said repeatedly that as a result of his experience in dealing with the Commun-

'Screeching Halt' of Airlines Hinted

BOSTON (UPI) — The counsel for the nation's air-traffic controllers said Saturday "there is a distinct possibility that air traffic in the United States may come to a screeching halt" Monday.

F. Lee Bailey, counsel for the Professional Air-Traffic Controllers Organization said since the air-traffic slowdown last week "investigators have appeared in radar facilities where traffic is actually being controlled, have pulled controllers from their radar positions in order to advise them of their legal rights, to threaten them with federal indictment and to require them to sign involuntary statements else they be discharged."

"As a result of these tactics, on Monday — unless they are eliminated — the air-traffic controllers of the United States intend and have every right to seek legal counsel to find out what their position is, and then to undergo complete medical examinations," he said.

Large numbers of air-traffic controllers in New York City called in sick Thursday, causing delays or cancellation of many flights to and from the world's busiest air center. They complained of high-pressure working conditions with low pay.

"On Monday, June 23, there is a distinct possibility that air traffic in the United States may come to a screeching halt," Bailey said.

Officials said the fire, in the Valyermo ranger district of the forest near Pearblossom in the northeastern part of the county, spread quickly over several acres.

'HAPPY ANNIVERSARY'

Throng Sings Greeting to Nixon at Church

Combined News Services. Hudreds of waving, cheering people greeted President and Mrs. Nixon and sang "Happy Anniversary to you" outside Towson (Md.) Presbyterian Church, where the Nixons went to attend the wedding Saturday of Vice President Agnew's daughter.

The President and his wife went over to greet the crowd, held back by police behind ropes and wooden barriers. There was an excited greeting from youngsters and old alike.

The Nixons were observing their 29th wedding anniversary Saturday as they came to see another young couple, Pamela Agnew and Robert DeHaven of White Marsh, Md., both 25 and school sweethearts, begin their married life.

Before Nixon's motorcade arrived, about 20 Vietnam war protesters were hustled away by police as they attempted to demonstrate in front of the church.

The demonstrators' signs were confiscated, and they were rushed away by a chain of Baltimore County policemen.

They chanted, "End the war," "End Fascism," as they marched away. But their chants were drowned out by shouts from the crowd of about 1,000 persons who yelled, "Go away."

President Nixon arrived minutes later to a thunderous cheer from the crowd. The cheering grew louder when Nixon alighted from his limousine and crossed the street to shake hands with dozens of onlookers.

Outside the stone church, Nixon was asked if he remembered his own wedding day. "Wow," said the President, indicating he surely did.

The vice president gave his oldest daughter in marriage in the private 4 p.m. wedding at Towson Presbyterian church attended by about 350 relatives and close friends.

DeHaven, who last year taught emotionally disturbed children at a Towson mental hopsital, recently accepted a post as a special education curriculum specialist for public schools in four counties on Maryland's eastern shore.

The Nixons' daughters, Tricia and Julie Eisenhower, and their son-in-law, David Eisenhower, also were guests. The first family flew from Washington by helicopter.

The Nixons skipped the reception at the Baltimore Country Club and instead went by helicopter to Camp David, the presidential mountain retreat near Thurmont, Md., to celebrate their anniversary.

The bride has continued to work as a social worker in the Baltimore County Department of Social Services since her father became vice president. She has not participated in Washington's social life.

ROYAL BRIDE

A once-penniless refugee who made a fortune in real estate married the blonde daughter of Italy's last king Saturday in his own chapel on the French Riviera, at Eze.

The Roman Catholic rite was the second wedding ceremony for millionaire Robert de Balkany and Princess Marie-Gabrielle de Savy, willowy daughter of ex-King Umberto II. They were married in a Paris civil ceremony last Monday.

The Italian royal family and Prince Rainier and Princess Grace of Monaco were among the 200 guests at this Mediterranean playground's most security-conscious wedding in years. Nobility, royalty and international jet setters had to wear plastic badges with their photographs pasted over De Balkany's official colors — black and light blue.

BIRTHDAY

Patrick Lyndon Nugent, former President Lyndon B. Johnson's first grandchild, was 2 years old Saturday. His parents, Luci and Patrick J. Nugent, celebrated at their home in Austin.

Nugent missed his son's first birthday because he was serving with the Air Force in South Vietnam. He returned from his one-year hitch overseas in April and now works at the Johnson family's radio-television station.

OPINION

Trial lawyer Melvin Belli says he doesn't think Sirhan Bishara Sirhan, convicted assassin of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, will ever be executed.

But Belli said in Denver he doesn't think Sirhan will ever be freed, either. Sirhan is on death row in California's San Quentin Prison.

Belli said it is still undetermined whether he will appear as counsel for Sirhan, but he said he will visit Sirhan today or next Sunday and file a legal brief on his behalf.

FATAL FIRE

Fire swept the San Francisco apartment of television personality Pat Montandon Saturday. Killing her private secretary, Mary Louise Ward.

Mrs. Ward, 45, was found dead in bed as firemen fought the two-alarm blaze which caused an estimated $25,000 damage to the six-room, second floor dwelling.

PRINCE HOST

Prince Charles, heir to the British throne, gave an informal cocktail party Saturday for the faculty of the University College of Wales, where he is studying Welsh history and language. About 60 persons attended.

NEW LOSS

George Hope, younger brother of comedian Bob Hope, died Saturday at St. Joseph Hospital, Burbank, after a long illness. He was 58.

Less than a week ago, the eldest of the Hope Brothers, Ivor, died at his home in Cleveland, Ohio. In addition to Bob, two other brothers survive, Fred and Jim.

George, a native of Cleveland, followed Bob, who is 65, into vaudeville and once had his own song and dance act. Later he became a radio writer. In recent years he was production coordinator for the Bob Hope Chrysler specials on the NBC-TV network.

NUPTIALS

In Birmingham, Mich., Miss Kristina Knudsen, daughter of the president of Ford Motor Co., was married to Army Lt. Stephen Allen Gregg Saturday. The ceremony in Christ Church Cranbrook was followed by a garden reception for 400 guests at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Simon E. Knudsen of Birmingham.

The bride's grandfather, the late Lt. Gen William S. Knudsen, was president of General Motors Corp. from 1937 to 1940 and served as director of production for the War Department during World War II.

Police on Alert at Rock Festival

NORTHRIDGE (CNS) — Police reinforcements were called to Devonshire Downs in Northridge Saturday as 50,000 young persons crammed into the facility to attend a three-day rock music festival.

Eight Los Angeles police divisions were placed on tactical alert to cope with the huge crowds that surged into the suburban college community.

Youths at three points tried to uproot a recently installed chain and barbed-wire fence in an effort to crash the Newport '69 festival, police said.

Authorities said teen-agers were arriving at Devonshire Downs at the rate of about 20,000 an hour.

Streets were jammed with cars, impeding the movement of emergency vehicles, police said.

There were scattered reports of vandalism from residents in the area after the festival closed.

Many teens slept last night in fields owned by San Fernando Valley State College that adjoin Devonshire Downs.

The festival, which will last until today, features 31 bands and vocalists.

PARENTS GET TERSE LETTER FROM POW

LANCASTER, Calif. (AP) — After 30 months without a word from their son, captured Dec. 2, 1966, in North Vietnam, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Rehmann received a terse four-sentence letter this week.

Lt (j.g.) David Rehmann, a Navy radar interceptor officer captured when his F4C Phantom bomber was shot down, wrote:

"I would like to see Don finish with a degree in accounting.

Hope that Jim has selected the school, taken the entrance exam and registered where he is going to start premedical training. Hope John and Tom also finish their education. I pray for you all."

The parents said the letter, while apparently censored, was "definitely in his handwriting." The references were to his brothers, at home.

Their son had been spotlighted twice in photographs released by the North Vietnam in 1967—being paraded through Hanoi streets and at a Hanoi hotel — but the letter was their first since shortly after his capture, the parents said.

Facts You Should Know About Jade

by
Arch Shinder

Downtown Long Beach Only

Last week we learned that green jade, the most expensive of all jade, is jadeite and is found in Burma. The Chinese were the first to appreciate the new gem (about 500 years old) and they cut, polished, and carved it.

White, pink or purple jade does not have the same character as green jade as a precious stone for jewelry. As the color green comes in many shades, so does good Burmese jadeite. It is this beautiful, lustrous, translucency of the color green that makes this stone so precious and so perfect for personal adornment as jewelry.

We must remember to segregate jade used as carvings for a statue, vase, or flowers from jade used in jewelry. The finest jade is used in jewelry and is green jadeite from Burma.

There are other forms of green-colored stones that are sometimes confused with jadeite. Taiwan Jade is found in Formosa, now known as Taiwan. It has a very dark-green color, bordering on black-green. It has a thin veneer of a coating to give the stone luster. Taiwan jade is relatively inexpensive and very attractive in jewelry.

Then there are all shades of Nephrite — another green-colored stone, usually speckled with white amongst the green, or black specks. This stone is found in Africa and even our own country, Wyoming. Jade is mined in the U.S. and is a form of Nephrite. Nephrite is, like Taiwan Jade, relatively inexpensive and also pleasing in jewelry.

We stock green jadeite, Taiwan Jade, Nephrite and also Queensland Jade. See next week's article. Lawson's Jewelers, 210 Pine Ave., Downtown Long Beach only.

'HAPPY ANNIVERSARY'

Throng Sings Greeting to Nixon at Church

Combined News Services.

Hudreds of waving, cheering people greeted President and Mrs. Nixon and sang "Happy Anniversary to you" outside Towson (Md.) Presbyterian Church, where the Nixons went to attend the wedding Saturday of Vice President Agnew's daughter.

The President and his wife went over to greet the crowd, held back by police behind ropes and wooden barriers. There was an excited greeting from youngsters and old alike.

The Nixons were observing their 29th wedding anniversary Saturday as they came to see another young couple, Pamela Agnew and Robert DeHaven of White Marsh, Md., both 25 and school sweethearts, begin their married life.

Before Nixon's motorcade arrived, about 20 Vietnam war protesters were hustled away by police as they attempted to demonstrate in front of the church.

The demonstrators' signs were confiscated, and they were rushed away by a chain of Baltimore County policemen.

They chanted, "End the war," "End Fascism," as they marched away. But their chants were drowned out by shouts from the crowd of about 1,000 persons who yelled, "Go away."

President Nixon arrived minutes later to a thunderous cheer from the crowd. The cheering grew louder when Nixon alighted from his limousine and crossed the street to shake hands with dozens of onlookers.

Outside the stone church, Nixon was asked if he remembered his own wedding day. "Wow," said the President, indicating he surely did.

The vice president gave his oldest daughter in marriage in the private 4 p.m. wedding at Towson Presbyterian church attended by about 350 relatives and close friends.

DeHaven, who last year taught emotionally disturbed children at a Towson mental hopsital, recently accepted a post as a special education curriculum specialist for public schools in four counties on Maryland's eastern shore.

The Nixons' daughters, Tricia and Julie Eisenhower, and their son-in-law, David Eisenhower, also were guests. The first family flew from Washington by helicopter.

The Nixons skipped the reception at the Baltimore Country Club and instead went by helicopter to Camp David, the presidential mountain retreat near Thurmont, Md., to celebrate their anniversary.

The bride has continued to work as a social worker in the Baltimore County Department of Social Services since her father became vice president. She has not participated in Washington's social life.

5 New Ships Based in L. B., Two Retired

Five newly constructed amphibious ships have been assigned to Long Beach, Vice Adm. J. Victor Smith, Commander of the Pacific Amphibious Force, told the I, P-T Saturday.

"Your actual gain will be three," Adm. Smith said, "since the attack transport Bayfield and attack cargo ship Merrick have been deactivated."

The new vessels are the amphibious transport docks USS Durham and Juneau and the new class of tank landing ships St. Louis, Frederick and Manitowoc.

"These five ships are capable of at least 20 knots, a must for today's amphibious operations," Adm. Smith said from his Cornoado headquarters.

Long Beach will gain nearly 800 new families when the new ships arrive later this year and early next.

In another transfer, the attack carrier USS Ticonderoga has been assigned Long Beach as her new home port from San Diego.

The "Mighty Ti" will be converted this fall into an anti-submarine carrier at Long Beach Naval Shipyard in a multimillion-dollar program.

She will replace the USS Hornet, scheduled to be deactivated next March. The Hornet has been assigned the pickup role for Apollo 11 astronauts.

The USS Denver, one of the fist amphibious transport docks, arrived in Long Beach on Jan. 15.

KEEPS ON TEACHING

Jr. High Principal Retires--Partially

Robert J. Fenn, who began his teaching career 39 years ago in a Colorado country school, has retired as principal of Marshall Junior High School in Long Beach.

But he won't be disappearing from Public education.

Fenn will continue teaching education courses part-time at California State College at Long Beach.

He'll be back at Marshall at least once a year to present the Robert J. Fenn Scholarship Award to a deserving 9th grader.

AND MOST important of all, he'll remain in the memory of students, teachers and administrators who studied or worked under him since he came to Long Beach in 1940.

Fenn, who served as principal and teacher in Colorado and the Compton area before coming here, has taught at Franklin, Jefferson, Lindbergh and Marshall junior high schools.

He has been dean of evening services at the Liberal Arts Campus of Long Beach City College.

During his long teaching career he's taught scores of subjects.

Last Week, he presented the first scholarship award in his name to Marcia Johnson, 15, student body president. She was president of the Scholarship Society and a society member for six semesters. Marcia was also on the principal's honor roll and in the school orchestra.

Youths to Help Police Correct Causes of Crime

The Long Beach Police Department will try a new approach this summer to negate crime-breeding conditions in the Central and West Side areas of the city.

Police Chief William J. Mooney said four students from Long Beach high schools and California State College at Long Beach will be trained and employed as community service aides.

They will work in the community relations division, headed by Lt. John Cowan and under supervision of Sgt. Charles B. Ussery, a 1969 recipient of the Liberty Bell Award for outstanding community service.

The four — John Edwards, a Poly High graduate; Herman Long, a California State College at Long Beach student; Monty Jackson, a Boyd High student, and Frank Lopez of Poly — will report for training Monday.

They will work in parks, recreation buildings and on the streets in the areas where they live.

Each will make lists of problems such as abandoned and stripped autos, broken benches and curbs, holes in the streets and alleys, abandoned and unsafe buildings, fire hazards and defective equipment on playgrounds.

"Their most important job," Lt. Cowan said "will be to maintain their close relationship with the youths in their areas and spot potential crime-breeding conditions."

They will not attempt to arrest anyone, he added.

Problems found by the youths will be reported to Sgt. Ussery and it will be his responsibility to see they are resolved, Cowan said.

"I hope the pilot program will assist our community in meeting its needs and at the same time give the community a better understanding of the police department," Chief Mooney said.

The youths will be paid $1.70 an hour and work 30 hours a week for 12 weeks. The jobs are part of the city's summer youth program, which hires trainees to work in city departments.

L.B. Coed Dies in Hawaiian Surf

By WALT MURRAY
Staff Writer

An 18-year-old Long Beach coed was swept to sea by heavy surf on a remote shore of the Hawaiian island of Kauai, police reported Saturday.

Ellen Kennedy, daughter of John B. Kennedy, of 1837 E. Ocean Blvd., was drowned while wading in the surf on the sparsely inhabited Napali Coast of the island Friday morning.

One of the two students she was wading with, Rick Ridgeway of Oahu, ran several miles through wild country to reach a telephone to summon police, authorities said.

Ridgeway and another man were slammed against a cliff by the wave that swept Miss Kennedy to sea.

Sgt. Springwater Kaulili of the Kauai Island police said Miss Kennedy, her sister and two girl friends hiked into the Napali Coast area Thursday.

Miss Kennedy, reportedly a good swimmer, had been a student at Kauai Community College.

Her body was recovered by a Navy helicopter several hours later.

Uruguay Students Riot over Rocky

MONTEVIDEO (AP) — Shielded by guard dogs and hundreds of troops and police, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller met with Uruguayan leaders at isolated Punta del Este Saturday while students rampaged in Montevideo in protest against his fact-finding visit.

Avoiding direct clashes with police and army patrols, bands of students staged hit-and-run strikes. They smashed windows of cars, stores and homes and threw firebombs at a Mormon church, a bank and a small factory.

Rockefeller told a news conference his presidential mission to Latin America, nearing the end of its third, trouble-plagued leg, had reached a turning point.

* * * *

"WE ARE OVER the hump," he said. "People are beginning to recognize the real potential of this mission." He added that a basis for new U.S. Latin-American policy is emerging.

Rockefeller spent two hours conferring with Uruguayan President Jorge Pacheco Areco at Punta del Este. The governor was to leave for the United States Sunday and begin the fourth leg of his mission, to Argentina and Caribbean countries in the coming week.

Punta del Este, a beach resort 90 miles east of Montevideo and birthplace of the Alliance for Progress' was like an armed camp. Troops were deployed through the city and on highways nearby. Civilian vehicles were searched before being allowed to enter. Three naval vessels patrolled offshore and armed guards with dogs were stationed at the small naval air station where Rockefeller arrived.

POLICE and troops also were out in force at Montevideo, where no injuries were reported in the daytime disorders. The previous night two youths were reported wounded when police clashed with demonstrators at the U.S.-owned First National City Bank of New York. Two others were arrested and charged with trying to bomb Pacheco's home.

Small groups of students barricaded themselves inside 31 university and high school buildings, defying government orders closing the schools until the end of the month. Slogans painted on the school buildings and many other buildings in the capital denounced Rockefeller and "U.S. imperialism."

Mansfield Says Nothing New in Tour's Findings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana said Saturday New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller is "not finding out anything we didn't already know" in his demonstration - plagued presidential mission to Latin America.

"He is only producing bad publicity, an increase in anti-American feeling and the burning down of U.S. industrial plants," the Senate Democratic leader said in an interview.

"In my opinion, Rockefeller, with his large staff, is not finding out anything that isn't already known.

"The net result of his trips will be to emphasize what should have been known about our relations with Latin American nations. The response is not impressive and for us this hemisphere is the most important in the world."

HE'S OPTIMISTIC

Uruguay Students Riot over Rocky

MONTEVIDEO (AP) — Shielded by guard dogs and hundreds of troops and police, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller met with Uruguayan leaders at isolated Punta del Este Saturday while students rampaged in Montevideo in protest against his fact-finding visit.

Avoiding direct clashes with police and army patrols, bands of students staged hit-and-run strikes. They smashed windows of cars, stores and homes and threw firebombs at a Mormon church, a bank and a small factory.

Rockefeller told a news conference his presidential mission to Latin America, nearing the end of its third trouble-plagued leg, had reached a turning point.

* * * *

"WE ARE OVER the hump," he said. "People are beginning to recognize the real potential of this mission." He added that a basis for new U.S. Latin-American policy is emerging.

Rockefeller spent two hours conferring with Uruguayan President Jorge Pacheco Areco at Punta del Este. The governor was to leave for the United States Sunday and begin the fourth leg of his mission, to Argentina and Caribbean countries in the coming week.

Punta del Este, a beach resort 90 miles east of Montevideo and birthplace of the Alliance for Progress' was like an armed camp. Troops were deployed through the city and on highways nearby. Civilian vehicles were searched before being allowed to enter. Three naval vessels patrolled offshore and armed guards with dogs were stationed at the small naval air station where Rockefeller arrived.

* * * *

POLICE and troops also were out in force at Montevideo, where no injuries were reported in the daytime disorders. The previous night two youths were reported wounded when police clashed with demonstrators at the U.S.-owned First National City Bank of New York. Two others were arrested and charged with trying to bomb Pacheco's home.

Small groups of students barricaded themselves inside 31 university and high school buildings, defying government orders closing the schools until the end of the month. Slogans painted on the school buildings and many other buildings in the capital denounced Rockefeller and "U.S. imperialism."

Mansfield Says Nothing New in Tour's Findings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana said Saturday New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller is "not finding out anything we didn't already know" in his demonstration - plagued presidential mission to Latin America.

"He is only producing bad publicity, an increase in anti-American feeling and the burning down of U.S. industrial plants," the Senate Democratic leader said in an interview.

"In my opinion, Rockefeller, with his large staff, is not finding out anything that isn't already known.

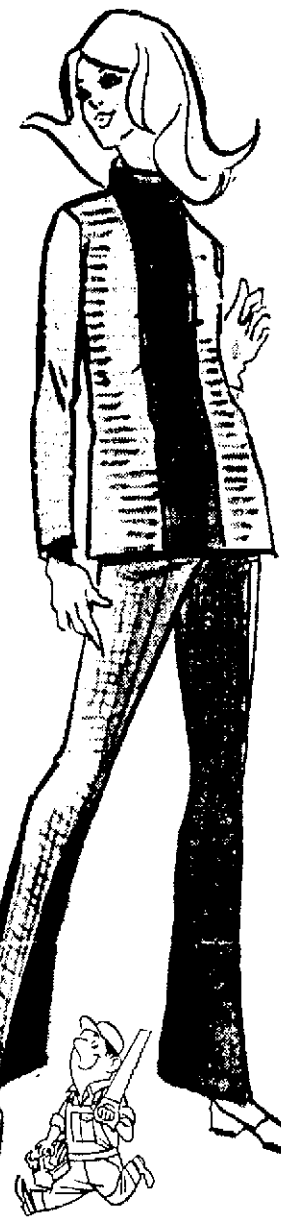

"The net result of his trips will be to emphasize what should have been known about our relations with Latin American nations. The response is not impressive and for us this hemisphere is the most important in the world."

new lights installed. Scheduled for completion next year there are two more courts, grandstands and locker room facilities.

No Sur

Q. I will be getting married soon. Is there a chapel in the Big Sur area? E. H., Long Beach.

A. The closest ACTION LINE could come is the Highlands Inn, four miles south of Carmel on the Pacific Coast Highway and 30 miles north of Big Sur State Park. The inn has a wedding chapel which it rents for $50. Jean O'Brien, the inn's wedding consultant, can arrange for a minister or Justice of the Peace to officiate at the ceremony. For more information, write to her in care of the Highlands Inn, P.O. Box 1700, Carmel, Calif.

Mobile Deal

Q. We bought a Pacesetter mobile home from the Mobile Home Show, a dealer in Corona. We paid $189 for an air cooler, and were told that $200 of the purchase price would cover service calls for one year. After a month of letters and phone calls, we still do not have the cooler and have been unable to get important repair work done. D. K., Huntington Beach.

A. You should receive your cooler in a few days. Mrs. Mickey Bonnet, assistant manager for the Corona firm, said that due to an error, the service department was unaware that a cooler was to be delivered to you. Concerning repair work, Mrs. Bonnet said the company made a service call on May 14 and fixed most of the problems. Service personnel returned during the first week of June, but found no one home, according to Mrs. Bonnet. "We intend to repair all of the items covered in the warranty," she added. For another appointment, contact Don Weinburg, service manager, Mobile Home Show, 14650 E. Sixth St., Corona, ACTION LINE as well as the Long Beach Better Business Bureau receives frequent complaints about the business practices of some mobile home dealers. A BBB spokesman suggests that prospective buyers first check their local BBB office which can tell them if complaints have been received against a specific mobile home dealer and whether they have been satisfactorily adjusted. "Buyers also should scrutinize the contract carefully and accept no verbal agreements," the spokesman added.

SOUND OFF!

We live in a mobile home park and, despite rules and regulations you wouldn't believe, we have adjusted. Recently a family here was told by the owners they must move when school is out because of their son. Before buying their mobile home, they brought their son to meet the owners. He was accepted so they moved in. The boy is 8 now and they have lived here nearly two years. They are a well-liked family and are nice, quiet people. Do we have no protection at all? It's almost impossible to find spaces in mobile home parks. It's also very expensive to move. We are all worried about our security. We all gave up houses for a carefree, friendly, easy life in a mobile home, but what have we got ourselves into? There are rumors of hanky-panky between dealers and park owners but what of the people who are involved in the middle of all this? A. R., Los Angeles.

Western to Cut Back L.B. Flight Schedules comply with the earlier city requests for more frequent schedules to more varied points have resulted in a current monthly deficit of $125,000 at Long Beach, Simpson said.

* * * *

THE AIRLINE anticipated losses while establishing the new regional routes, but expected to make up the difference with the more profitable long-haul schedule to Hawaii, he explained.

Even without official city endorsement, the new Western service has shown a 200 per cent increase over traffic levels last year, according to the station manager's records.

"Traffic has shown a steady improvement since February," Simpson said. "The thousands of passengers who have flown the new routes are spreading the word, and I believe we would be out of the red inside of a year, even without the Hawaiian run.

"But then we would still be faced with the terminal congestion problem."

The station manager warned that further revisions of Western's Long Beach schedules may be in order, but said he was hopeful the present trend could be reversed by appropriate civic response.

Western Air Lines now is the only major trunk carrier serving Long Beach Airport.

Education Bill Includes Expulsion

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — Gov. Robert D. Ray signed Saturday a $91.4-million-a-year education bill, which includes a mandate for the board of regents to expel college students convicted of taking part in destructive riots.

He issued a statement on the regents bill defending the anti-riot section. He said the provision does not infringe on the "rights or responsibilities" of college administrators or students at the three state universities.

Harriman Asks Shift of Troops

ists he believes a negotiated settlement can eventually be achieved.

HE REITERATED in an interview that he still feels this but that the United States as the great power should take the lead in creating the right conditions for negotiation.

Harriman said that in order to start serious negotiations in the Paris talks "the first thing we've got to come to is de-escalation" of the war. He praised Nixon's statement on the Clifford timetable. He had himself endorsed Clifford's proposal earlier. He said he thought the North Vietnamese might respond by pulling out some of their troops.

"I wouldn't rule it out," he said. "It all depends on what happens in the private talks.

"I think that the President's move to start withdrawal and his remark that he hoped to meet Clifford's timetable are both very encouraging developments."

But Harriman said he believes "we will not come to a political settlement until we abandon our attempt to improve our military position" and "the first order of business" should be to seek what he calls a "mutual reduction in the fighting."

ASKED TO DEFINE what he means by adopting a more defensive military position, Harriman described an "intermediate strategy" between carrying on the present pattern of military operations over South Vietnam and a total removal of U.S. troops.

"I'm not suggesting the old enclave theory," he said. "I'm suggesting a little bit of what Clifford suggests. We would take our ground combat troops out and leave only supporting forces in South Vietnam" — which is the Clifford proposal.

"Those remaining forces would give full air and artillery and logistic support to the South Vietnamese. They could even go out and help a South Vietnamese unit which was attacked.

"The U.S. troops that remained in Vietnam would be in the larger cities and bases. They wouldn't be out in the mountains.

"This course would cut the casualties and there is a reasonable prospect the other side would respond and de-escalate."

The United States has about 538,000 troops in Vietnam. The number considered to be ground combat forces is around 250,000.

Leave to Delay Stock Sale Enriches Hickel

By JEAN HELLER

WASHINGTON (AP) — One day after Secretary of Interior Walter J. Hickel received permission to delay sale of stock he owns in a mineral exploartion company, the price of the stock soared and the volume of sales increased more than 60-fold.

Within two days after a Senate committee granted the delay, Alaska Interstate Co. had announced the acquisition of two companies and the price of the stock on the American Stock Exchange stood within 25 cents of its high for the year.

A brokerage firm official in New York said the delay by Hickel in selling his stock, plus the announcement of the two acquisitions, were responsible, at least in part, for the surge in the price and volume of sales in Alaska Interstate.

During his confirmation hearings last January, Hickel told the Senate Interior Committee that he held 32,316 shares of Alaska Interstate and promised to sell it off "within a reasonable time and not later than six months after taking office."

He took office on Jan. 21 — five months ago this weekend — and as of the beginning of June had not begun to sell the stock, according to Hickel's brother.

Vernon Hickel, president of the Hickel Investment Co., told the Associated Press in a telephone interview from Anchorage that the stock now was in the hands of a broker who had instructions to sell it "at an opportune time." The stock was turned over to the broker he said, at the beginning of June. Asked how much of the stock had been sold at that time, the secretary's brother replied: "None of it." Asked if any had been sold since, he said, "I really don't know. It's in the broker's hands."

Attempts to reach Walter Hickel for comment were unsuccessful. The first spurt in both price and volume of Alaska Interstate came Thursday, the day after the Senate Interior Committee granted Hickel a six-month extension of the deadline for sale of his stock. The request was made in a June 2 letter to the committee from Vernon Hickel.

Also on Thursday it was announced in Houston that Alaska Interstate had acquired Burgess International, Inc., a Fairbanks construction firm. On Thursday, Alaska Interstate closed at 29¼, up 3⅜ on a volume of 30,600 share traded.

If Hickel still held all his stock at the end of that trading session, his paper profit for the day would have been more than $109,000.

On Friday, trading volume rose again, to 38,900 shares. The price fell an eighth of a point and closed at 29.

The closing price both Thursday and Friday was close to the recorded high for the year of 29¼. Earlier in the year, the stock had been as low as 19⅜.

Viet Rockets Hit 25 Allied Bases

SAIGON Sunday (UPI) — Communists bombarded 25 Allied military bases and towns with rocket and mortar fire early today, hitting a residential section here with three rockets.

Government military spokesmen said two women and three children were wounded when the rockets hit six miles northwest of the center of the capital. They said the Communists apparently were aiming for a South Vietnamese troop training center nearby.

Government and U.S. spokesmen said the attacks on the bases and other towns caused damage and casualties varying from negligible to light. American B52 bombers flew four raids over South Vietnam Saturday night and early today, dropping explosives on suspected troop concentrations 26 and 27 miles east of here near the Bien Hoa airbase and other targets in the central highlands near Kontum.

Earlier Saturday, U.S. aircraft and artillery struck regions inside and below the Demilitarized Zone in attacks spearheaded by waves of B52s that hit two Communist camps just below the buffer strip between North and South Vietnam.

Spacecraft Launched Despite Power Failure

VANDENBERG AFB (API) — Explorer 41, the seventh spacecraft in a scientific program called Interplanetary Monitoring Platform, was launched into polar orbit Saturday.

The 174-pound spacecraft, boosted into orbit by a Delta DSZ 3E rocket at 1:48 a.m., carried equipment for 12 separate experiments including measurement of radiation between the earth and the moon and monitoring of solar flares.

Officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the launch was carried out under difficult conditions. This coastal base was largely blacked out because of power failure.

The inn has a wedding chapel which it rents for $50. Jean O'Brien, the inn's wedding consultant, can arrange for a minister or Justice of the Peace to officiate at the ceremony. For more information, write to her in care of the Highlands Inn, P. O. Box 1700, Carmel, Calif.

Mobile Deal

Q. We bought a Pacesetter mobile home from the Mobile Home Show, a dealer in Corona. We paid $189 for an air cooler, and were told that $200 of the purchase price would cover service calls for one year. After a month of letters and phone calls, we still do not have the cooler and have been unable to get important repair work done. D. K., Huntington Beach.

A. You should receive your cooler in a few days. Mrs. Mickey Bonnet, assistant manager for the Corona firm, said that due to an error, the service department was unaware that a cooler was to be delivered to you. Concerning repair work, Mrs. Bonnet said the company made a service call on May 14 and fixed most of the problems. Service personnel returned during the first week of June, but found no one home, according to Mrs. Bonnet. "We intend to repair all of the items covered in the warranty," she added. For another appointment, contact Don Weinburg, service manager, Mobile Home Show, 14650 E. Sixth St., Corona. ON THEIR WAY TO COURT HEARING

Charleston Strike Becomes Violent, Curfew Is Imposed

New York Times Service

CHARLESTON, S.C. — A marathon strike by 400 Negro hospital workers has taken on new dimensions, including violence, with the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy back in jail and this troubled old city under another curfew.

A 9 p.m.-to 5 a.m. curfew was imposed Saturday by Gov. Robert E. McNair after police, National Guard troops and newsmen were struck by bricks, bottles and boards Friday night in a confrontation near a Negro church that was climaxed with the arrest of Abernathy and another veteran civil rights campaigner, the Rev. Hosea Williams, on charges of inciting to riot, a felony.

Although Abernathy has been arrested 25 times in his career as a civil rights leader, these charges are the most serious ever brought against him.

* * * *

BOND HAS been set at $50,000 for each man. Staff members of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, the organization founded by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and led now by Abernathy, said both he and Williams will probably spend the weekend in jail.

Six persons were injured, none seriously, in the Friday night fracas outside the Memorial Baptist Church, where for three hours Williams and Abernathy had spoken of their determination to "march or die."

Charleston's chief of police, John M. Conroy, told the Negroes when they gathered outside the church at approximately 11:45 p.m. that no night demonstrations would be permitted. When they sat down in the street and Abernathy began a prayer, the police and guardsmen moved in and carried Abernathy and Williams away to a waiting van.

Four young Negroes attacked the officers carrying the two men. Police and National Guard troops then moved in, as bricks and other missiles began flying from the back of the crowd. One reporter was struck in the face by a brick and several policemen were hit.

* * * *

IN THE early morning hours, there were sounds of scattered gunfire around the city.

The first curfew was declared on April 25 after Abernathy was arrested at one of two hospitals being struck by Local 1199B of the Hospital and Nursing Home Workers. That curfew was lifted June 2 when the strike moved into its third month and demonstrations organized and led by a coalition of labor and civil rights leaders had decreased. Saturday's action by the governor was described by a spokesman as the result of conferences with Mayor J. Palmer Gaillard of Charleston.

Two Negroes were arrested early Saturday morning for possession of fire bombs and a car belonging to a Charleston television newsman was overturned in a Negro residential section. Several windows in shops and stores were broken during the darkness and at least 300 National Guardsmen are now on duty here.

* * * *

WHEN approximately 80 young Negroes refused to leave a shopping area in the downtown section Saturday, at least 60 were arrested by police who used night sticks as they hustled them to police vans. Several were injured and some of those arrested were bleeding as the trucks drove toward the jail.

The union, whose members are all Negroes and nearly all women, is demanding a pay increase, recognition in some form and the reinstatement of 12 workers whose dismissal precipitated the strike on March 20. Since then, more than 800 persons have been jailed.

The U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare has recommended that the South Carolina Medical College Hospital rehire the workers as the first step in a plan to improve its compliance with civil rights statutes — but the hospital's president, Dr. William M. McCord, has refused to do so.

'Medicine' Conference Hits Nixon's Failure With Poor

PORTSMOUTH, N.H. (AP) — A national conference on "Medicine in the Ghettoes" Saturday sent a telegram to President Nixon declaring it is "distressed by the failure of your Administration to attack the health problems of the poor."

The conference is jointly sponsored by Harvard Medical School, the National Institutes of Health and the Boston Globe newspaper.

Attendance at the meeting includes 200 representatives of the medical profession, government, private foundations, labor, industry, education and community service.

The telegram said "a massive effort is needed now to rectify the injustices of the past and the present.

"We call on you, Mr. President, to enunciate immediately and clearly your policy in the health sphere . . ."

Charleston Strike Becomes Violent, Curfew Is Imposed

New York Times Service

CHARLESTON, S.C. — A marathon strike by 400 Negro hospital workers has taken on new dimensions, including violence, with the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy back in jail and this troubled old city under another curfew.

A 9 p.m.-to-5 a.m. curfew was imposed Saturday by Gov. Robert E. McNair after police, National Guard troops and newsmen were struck by bricks, bottles and boards Friday night in a confrontation near a Negro church that was climaxed with the arrest of Abernathy and another veteran civil rights campaigner, the Rev. Hosea Williams, on charges of inciting to riot, a felony.

Although Abernathy has been arrested 25 times in his career as a civil rights leader, these charges are the most serious ever brought against him.

* * * *

BOND HAS been set at $50,000 for each man. Staff members of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, the organization founded by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and led now by Abernathy, said both he and Williams will probably spend the weekend in jail.

Six persons were injured, none seriously, in the Friday night fracas outside the Memorial Baptist Church, where for three hours Williams and Abernathy had spoken of their determination to "march or die."

Charleston's chief of police, John M. Conroy, told the Negroes when they gathered outside the church at approximately 11:45 p.m. that no night demonstrations would be permitted. When they sat down in the street and Abernathy began a prayer, the police and guardsmen moved in and carried Abernathy and Williams away to a waiting van.

Four young Negroes attacked the officers carrying the two men. Police and National Guard troops then moved in, as bricks and other missiles began flying from the back of the crowd. One reporter was struck in the face by a brick and several policemen were hit.

* * * *

IN THE early morning hours, there were sounds of scattered gunfire around the city.

The first curfew was declared on April 25 after Abernathy was arrested at one of two hospitals being struck by Local 1199B of the Hospital and Nursing Home Workers. That curfew was lifted June 2 when the strike moved into its third month and demonstrations organized and led by a coalition of labor and civil rights leaders had decreased. Saturday's action by the governor was described by a spokesman as the result of conferences with Mayor J. Palmer Gaillard of Charleston.

Two Negroes were arrested early Saturday morning for possession of fire bombs and a car belonging to a Charleston television newsman was overturned in a Negro residential section. Several windows in shops and stores were broken during the darkness and at least 300 National Guardsmen are now on duty here.

* * * *

WHEN approximately 80 young Negroes refused to leave a shopping area in the downtown section Saturday, at least 60 were arrested by police who used night sticks as they hustled them to police vans. Several were injured and some of those arrested were bleeding as the trucks drove toward the jail.

The union, whose members are all Negroes and nearly all women, is demanding a pay increase, recognition in some form and the reinstatement of 12 workers whose dismissal precipitated the strike on March 20. Since then, more than 800 persons have been jailed.

The U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare has recommended that the South Carolina Medical College Hospital rehire the workers as the first step in a plan to improve its compliance with civil rights statutes — but the hospital's president, Dr. William M. McCord, has refused to do so.

'Medicine' Conference Hits Nixon's Failure With Poor

PORTSMOUTH, N.H. (AP) — A national conference on "Medicine in the Ghettoes" Saturday sent a telegram to President Nixon declaring it is "distressed by the failure of your Administration to attack the health problems of the poor."

The conference is jointly sponsored by Harvard Medical School, the National Institutes of Health and the Boston Globe newspaper.

Attendance at the meeting includes 200 representatives of the medical profession, government, private foundations, labor, industry, education and community service.

The telegram said "a massive effort is needed now to rectify the injustices of the past and the present.

"We call on you, Mr. President, to enunciate immediately and clearly your policy in the health sphere . . ."

Murder of Coeds Confessed

NASHVILLE, Tenn. Sunday (AP) — An inmate at the Metropolitan Nashville jail admitted two of the six Michigan "Coed murders" and the slaying of a cab driver in Oklahoma, police said early today.

Homicide Sgt. Doug Dennis identified the man as Ernest Paul Sims, 26, of Nashville, a former student at Eastern Michigan University.

Dennis said he and two other homicide investigators obtained an oral admission of the three slayings and that a written confession was bing dictated by Sims.

* * * *

THE BODIES of the six Michigan coeds were found within a 20-mile radius of the Ann Arbor, Mich., area since August 1967.

In a copyrighted story for Sunday editions, the Nashville Tennessean quoted police as saying authorities in Michigan and Oklahoma had confirmed details of Sims statement.

When contacted, Ann Arbor Police Chief Walter E. Krasny said he had no information on the man being held in Nashville.

ITALIANS EXPEL FILM DIRECTOR

ROME (AP) — Because he opposed the new wave of erotic Italian films, Italian director Franco Zeffirelli has been expelled from Italy's major movie authors and directors association.

It was the first time in the history of the Italian Association of Cinema Authors that a member had been expelled.

A resolution voted Friday night by members condemned Zeffirelli, who recently directed "Romeo and Juliet," for undertaking a campaign against pornography in films. It said "any pornography or morbidity is preferrable to repression," which claimed Zeffirelli had advocated.

Police Strike Hinted

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — An official Vatican spokesman said Saturday rumors that the 150-man Vatican police force might strike to back demands for higher pay were "without foundation."

Alioto to Speak at Luncheon

San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto will speak at Thursday's general luncheon meeting of the Town Hall of California Orange County Forum at noon at the Disneyland Hotel, Anaheim.

Subject of the mayor's speech will be "Violence, No; Dissent, Yes."

NEW ORGANIZATION

Faculty Council Opposes Violence

STANFORD (AP)—A statewide organization designed "to create, foster and defend an academic atmosphere on campuses" was established Saturday by faculty representatives from 10 universities and junior colleges in California.

They formed the California Council for the Academic Community with a pledge "to work for positive change through rational discussion, persuasion and presentation of facts and to work against the use of intimidation and violence in settling campus affairs."

Campuses represented at the founding session included City College of San Francisco, Claremont Men's College, College of San Mateo, Merritt College of Oakland, Scripps College, Stanford, UC Berkeley, UCLA, University of San Francisco and University of Santa Clara.

* * * *

MEMBERSHIP is open to any regular faculty member from any two-or four-year college in the state.

Elected president Saturday was Prof. Stephen J. Kline of Stanford. Vice President is Prof. Jack Hirshleifer of UCLA.

The CCAC charter says "an academic atmosphere must support and include the following elements:

"1. Freedom to teach, freedom to learn, and freedom to choose scholarly and research topics subject only to individual conscience and professional standards.

"2. Impartial, open discussion of local and wider issues by voice and in campus publications including thorough attempts to present and disseminate the facts and all shades of opinion.

"3. Decisions on campus issues based on open, full discussions and expression of opinion by all groups concerned.

"4. Freedom from intimidation and violence by any faction in all campus affairs."

The charter said campuses should be open daily only to individuals who acknowledge the need for an academic atmosphere on campuses, accept the special responsibilities this entails, and conduct themselves accordingly.

Colleges and universities, it said, "contribute best to society by fulfilling their own central purposes of education, scholarship and research. They must preserve an open competition for all ideas on the campus, free from internal or external intimidation. Therefore, colleges and universities must refrain from commitments to any political position."

Judge Weeps in Passing Sentence on Young Killer

SEATTLE (AP) — Superior Court Judge Charles Smith broke down and wept Friday when he found 14-year-old Shane White guilty of first-degree murder in the shooting last March of grocer Harvey Avery, 64.

The youth also was found guilty of five counts of robbery and one of attempted robbery.

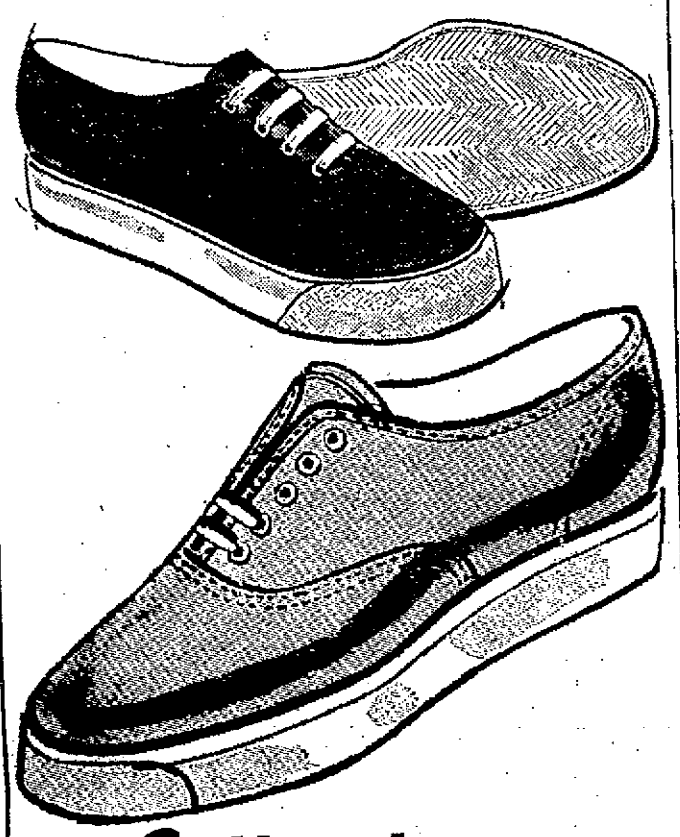

White was committed to the State Department of Institutions' juvenile division for six years and three months — until he is 21. His case will be reviewed then, the judge said.

Smith said there was "no question that the acts Shane committed were done willfully and deliberately."

"He is a product, not merely of his own doing, but a product of our society and of his family," the judge said.

LIFE OR DEATH?

New Penalty Trial —Ordeal for Killer of Young Officer

By BILL HOMER
Staff Writer

JERRY LEE O'BRIEN
Awaits Another Verdict

Jerry Lee O'Brien, a 35-year-old prison camp escapee and onetime narcotics user, knows how it feels to deal death from a .45-caliber pistol.

He also knows the haunting terror of waiting day by day for that "last walk" down San Quentin's death row.

O'Brien, sentenced to death for the 1967 slaying of a Torrance policeman during a $15,000 market robbery, has been waiting since 1968 for that final order, that final walk, those final, gasping breaths of cyanide poison — for death in the gas chamber.

* * * *

BUT FRIDAY, the State Supreme Court ruled O'Brien must undergo a second penalty trial. With Justice Marshall McComb dissenting, the court decided 6-1 the jury received improper instructions when dispatched to decide the killer's sentence following his conviction.

The high court did not reverse the conviction. (All capital cases are automatically reviewed by the high court when the death sentence is imposed.)

For O'Brien, the Supreme Court decision means a second chance to live. His fate now rests with the jury.

But for the jury itself, deciding whether O'Brien will live or die will be a difficult decision to make.

* * * *

THE TRIAL transcript they'll have to ponder and the testimony they'll hear will deal with a case right out of the pages of a crime novel — only this time the principals were real.

O'Brien escaped from a Tulare County prison camp June 25, 1967.

On Aug. 10, 1967, Torrance patrolman David N. Seibert, 25, a two-year veteran of the force and a police science graduate of California State College at Long Beach, responded to a robbery call at the Foods Co. Market, 17500 Crenshaw Blvd.

He was the first officer on the scene, and he had a life-or-death decision to make. Should he wait for help from fellow officers, or attempt to capture the armed holdupman before anyone inside the market got hurt?

Seibert chose to enter the market alone, and, unknowingly, he walked into the hands of death. From his "ambush" position behind a display case, O'Brien opened fire with his .45.

* * * *

THREE PISTOL blasts were heard, and O'Brien, cash in hand, fled the store. Officer Seibert lay mortally wounded on the market floor. A team of 15 physicians at Harbor General Hospital labored for 21 hours in attempts to save his life.

Market manager Bruce Jessel, 30, identified O'Brien as the killer fron a police photograph, and lawmen throughout the western states embarked on a massive manhunt for the fugitive.

He slipped through their grasp, however, and it wasn't until Aug. 26, 1967, on a lonely stretch of desert road in Utah, that O'Brien was found.

O'Brien, unconscious and suffering massive injuries, lay in the wreckage of his car some 27 miles from Salt Lake City. A short time earlier, at a service station stop called Lowe, he had threatened a child who found him injecting narcotics in a rest room.

O'BRIEN threatened the child with a .32-caliber pistol, and the station attendant, alerted by the youngster's screams, armed himself and attempted to capture O'Brien, who managed to escape.

After the accident O'Brien was returned to the Southland, tried by jury in Torrance Superior Court and sentenced March 29, 1968, by Judge Burch Donahue.

O'Brien's mother, Mrs. Bettye Lee O'Brien, 68, then a North Hollywood resident, was tried, convicted and sentenced for hiding her son from authorities.

Officer Seibert, whose death came at the hands of a prison camp escapee who fled from an eight-month sentence for narcotics possession, is survived by his widow and daughter.

And O'Brien, whose relatively brief jail term would have been over long ago, waits in his cell for a chance he never gave Officer Seibert — a chance for life or death.

Rhodesia May Cut Last British Links

LONDON (AP) — Britain faced final and total break with Rhodesia Saturday after voters in the rebellious African colony overwhelmingly endorsed Prime Minister Ian Smith's plans for a segregationist republic.

Government officials reported plans for withdrawal of the British governor, Sir Humphrey Gibbs, and the British diplomatic mission from Salisbury. At the same time, the served notice of the likely expulsion of Rhodesia's diplomatic mission from London.

About the only thing that could head off these developments, informants said, would be some late signal either from Smith himself or from other influential Rhodesians that yet another bid for compromise with Britain is possible before the Salisbury regime proclaims Rhodesia a republic.

As the British see it, the outcome of the referendum does more than clear the way for severance of Rhodesia's last constitutional links with this country. Gibbs had stayed at his post as a symbol of Queen Elizabeth II's claimed sovereignty over the central African territory.

Outcome of the vote gave a decisive go-ahead to Smith for his plans to break all ties with Btitain and proclaim a republic. It also authorized him to push ahead with his plans for the buildup of an apartheid racial system in which rule by the 237,000 whites over the 4.4 million Negro majority would be established.

Ex-Cons to Honeymoon at Prison

By TONY CILLO
Staff Writer

"That's going to be our honeymoon," said the bride, her eyes excitedly radiant. He repreated the plans.

The honeymoon will be a trip to prison.

The couple making the trip will be Carol and Joe Cox, married Saturday evening in the quarters of the Long Beach Chapter of the Seventh Step Foundation.

Both have served time in prison. Both are on parole.

SEVEN MONTHS ago — just fresh out of prison — they came, individually, to the Seventh Step quarters.

They worked to help themselves and now work to help others, because, they say, they know what it's like to be an "ex-con."

And that's why they have been spending many hours — hours aside from their full-time jobs each holds — with Seventh Step activities, helping at the local offices, going here and there to talk to kids.

That's why they're going back to prison — to help those who are still there.

In July, Joe Cox and his bride wil journey back to the California Medical Facility at Vacaville, where he served two years.

There, they'll talk to prerelease classes "on the inside." They'll tell about the foundation, started by ex-convict Bill Sands with inspiration from San Quentin Prison Warden Clinton Duffey.

The Seventh Step Foundation, simply, conducts a program of ex-convicts helping inmates get ready for parole, helping them "stay out" and of working with young people who may be headed for trouble.

A NEW LIFE begins for Carol Beck and Joe Cox, center, as Brother Michael Black, of the Assembly of God, marries them in Seventh Step Foundation's Long Beach Chapter quarters, where they met and where they have worked to help others help themselves.

Those who take part follow a seven-point motto, with concepts so organized that the initial letters of the first words form the word, "freedom."

* * * *

THE SEVENTH concept is: "Maintaining our own freedom, we pledge ourselves to help others as we have been helped."

On Saturday evening, Brother Michael Black, of the Assembly of God Church in South Gate, pointed to the Seventh Step motto as he spoke:

"When you're free from yourself . . . your own cares . . . your own wants . . . then you're free to help someone else."

Earlier, he told the small group of family and friends gathered in the spruced-up East Seventh Street quarters, "Some people think marriage should be solemnized in a church . . . but a church is only a building . . .

"Aknowledge that God is everywhere. . . ."

The men and women who beamed back at the happily smiling newlyweds — starting a new life in more ways than one — knew what he meant.

Coins, Shotgun Gone

Ralph Clark, 2400 Stanley Ave., told Long Beach police Saturday a prowler who crawled through a bedroom window stole a coin collection and shotgun worth $775.

SDS Still Wrangling on Ideals

Two Factions Caucus Apart

CHICAGO (UPI) — The ideologically tattered Students for a Democratic Society wrangled throughout the day Saturday over procedural matters, failing to come up with any agreement on how the revolution should be run.

The four-day-old SDS convention remained divided into two main groups, meeting in separate parts of the tawdry old Chicago Coliseum.

The Progressive Labor Party, which seeks to channel SDS into an alliance with working-class revolutionaries, remained firmly in control in the main aduitorium of the Coliseum. In another room, the Revolutionary Youth Movement and SDS' national officers, who walked out on the Progressive Labor Party Friday night, were caucusing. The revolutionary youth seek closer ties with black organizations.

Friday's walkout came during debate over charges North Vietnam's Ho Chi Minh was a "bourgeois revisionist."

Jeff Gordon, representing the Worker-student Alliance, told Saturday's Progressive Labor controlled session the walkout was "unfortunate and reactionary.

"It was an anti-Communist act. We can't allow anti-Communism to take over the organization," Gordon said, adding that the U.S. press was "gloating" over the split in SDS.

Egypt Claims 3 Israeli Jets Down

United Press International

Egypt said it shot down three Israeli spotter planes Saturday during an 11-hour artillery duel across the Suez Canal, one of several battles that raged the length of the waterway. Egyptian officers described the shelling as the heaviest since the 1967 war.

An Egyptian military spokesman in Cairo said the planes were downed near Deversoir, 12 miles south of Ismailia in the central sector of the 103-mile waterway.

Fighting in that sector alone continued 11 hours Saturday, they said, and was an extension of battles in the northern and southern sectors provoked by an alleged Israeli troop buildup on the east bank.

(In Tel Aviv, an Israeli army spokesman reported intermittent artillery and mortar exchanges across the canal Saturday for more than 10 hours. He said there were no Israeli casualties and mentioned no aircraft losses.)

All early information of the fighting came from Cairo, where military sources claimed Egyptian shells had torn up sections of Israel's "Bar-Lev" defense line, knocked down an Israeli helicopter, and destroyed several tanks and observation posts.

These sources said tank, rocket and mortar fire erupted at the northern end of the canal just before midnight Friday and continued for two and a half hours.

Wealth Confiscated

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — The Senate passed Saturday a bill confiscating the property of Iran's former security chief, Gen. Teymour Bakhtiar, because of his alleged "crimes and traitorous acts." Bakhtiar reportedly too Iraqi citizenship after Lebanon refused to extradite him to Iran to stand trial on criminal charges.

Light Plane Falls

TOKYO (UPI) — A single-engine American private plane crashed into a hillside 10 miles north of Atsugi naval air base Saturday night, killing one of the two occupants, and injuring the second, U.S. military authorities reported.

Pistol Show Will Be Held at Weekend

You might say the boys in the California Arms Collectors' Association came out with their dueling pistols cocked Saturday.

The word got out that the organization was having a show of choice firearms at Anaheim's Disneyland Hotel this week end, and that 260 members would show their finest collections.

The only thing is — it's next week end instead.

Nobody knows just how the date got fouled on the publicity releases, but everybody got caught short — except the exhibitors. They'll show their weapons next week end. Beginning at 8 p.m. Friday, to be exact.

Japan Keeps Ships

TOKYO (AP) — The United States has extended until 1975 the leases on two U.S. Navy destroyers being used by the Japanese self-defense force as training ships. The vessels, now named the Ariake and the Yugure, were to have reverted to the United States in March. Japan has five other ships on lease from the United States.

YACHT CIRCLES GLOBE 1½ TIMES

PAPEETE, Tahiti (AP) — French yachtsman Bernard Moitessier arrived in Papeete harbor Saturday after sailing alone one-and-a-half times around the world without stopping.

The voyage took 10 months.

Moitessier dropped out of a globe-circling nonstop yacht race earlier this year in an attempt to go double the distance.

That race began and was to have ended for him in Plymouth, England. He was in a commanding lead when he dropped out. He appeared cheerful and in good health when he sailed into Papeete harbor.

Man Who Isn't Publishes 'Millionaire'

By BOB GEIVET
Staff Writer

Edward H. Kelly has got to be the only man in the world trying not to make a fortune by doing too much work himself.

Not that he has anything against money; it's just that his clients have most of it. They're all millionaires.

Kelly is a printer, a writer, a raconteur, an epicurean, a world traveler — and a bachelor.

He publishes Millionaire magazine, which nobody can buy. It's strictly limited in its circulation; it goes only to a selected list of 5,1000 bonafide millionaires.

They don't pay for it, either. It's free to them — because they have so much money.

Kelly, who likes to do things he can't do, started in the printing business in Long Beach in 1953.

"I wasn't a printer, either, but I finally had the biggest print shop in Long Beach," he recalled.

Now he has a plant at 471 N. Anaheim Blvd., Orange, which he calls Prince Kelly. He does printing and lithography, and there he publishes the Millionaire magazine.

It's slick-paper product with lots of color. It has stories with a touch of nostalgia — because he found that millionaires are a bit nostalgic about "the old days" just like all of us.

He writes many of the articles himself.

No, he said, he's not a writer, but "sometimes circumstances dictate what you do."

EDWARD H. KELLY AND FRIEND OF UNKNOWN NET WORTH
They Sample the Nostalgic Wares of Millionaire Magazine

He doesn't go for the "heavy" articles on finance; that's a field for other magazines beamed for the big-money market. He offers no ideas on tax shelters, high financing or how to make investments in foreign markets.

"I'm not a business expert," Kelly explained. "I keep my magazine sort of social, but have a few business stories. I have a "millionaires of the month," and a feature or two about men who have hobbies — besides making money."

But Kelly said he found that millionaires "like to make money; they really don't think there's anything wrong with that."

About a year after he started his printing business in Long Beach, he met some men of means who were interested in investing. It gave him the idea of the Millionaire magazine, and for several years he had it on the news stands. It never hit more than 150,000 copies per month, and in Kelly's words "was a constant headache."

It became a private-circulation publication two years ago and "is going great," he insisted.

There may be up to 40,000 millionaires in the United States, Kelly said, "but some of them are paper millionaires without much cash money."

"They've got to be in the seven-figure class to rate my magazine." And 5,100 of them do — as of now.

Pompidou Suffers Setback

New York Times Service

PARIS — President Georges Pompidou suffered his first setback in office Saturday morning when Antoine Pinay, on whom he had counted to lend his prestige to the government's financial policies, categorically declined to become his finance minister.

The president had wanted Pinay's collaboration so badly that he would not accept a first refusal Friday night and asked the 77-year-old financial expert to reconsider.

Valery Giscard d'Estaing, another financial conservative, now is believed to be the leading candidate for the finance ministry.

Pinay's refusal may well dent the nation's initial confidence in Pompidou's ability to restore the health of the franc and achieve financial stability.

No Word on Captured San Pedro Boat

A San Pedro-based tuna ship remained in Ecuadorian custody Saturday while international implications of the seizure of American fishing craft continued to be assessed.

Mrs. Frank Gargas, wife of the skipper of the tuna ship Caribbean, said Saturday she had received no word of the vessel, her husband or 16-year-old son, Steven, who had gone to sea with his father.

"The big question in my mind," she said, "is why they were held and the others released."

American Tunaboat Aossciation spokesmen could not be reached Saturday.

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador (AP) — Official silence and embarrassment surrounds the capture and relase Friday by Ecuadorean warships of several American fishing vessles.

Unofficial reports here said Edcuador backed down following seizure of four or more California fishing boats about 20 miles offshore in the Gulf of Guayaquil, in the face of a stern message from President Nixon.

The American vessels were released apparently on orders from the Foreign Ministry before the navy escort could reach port with the captives.

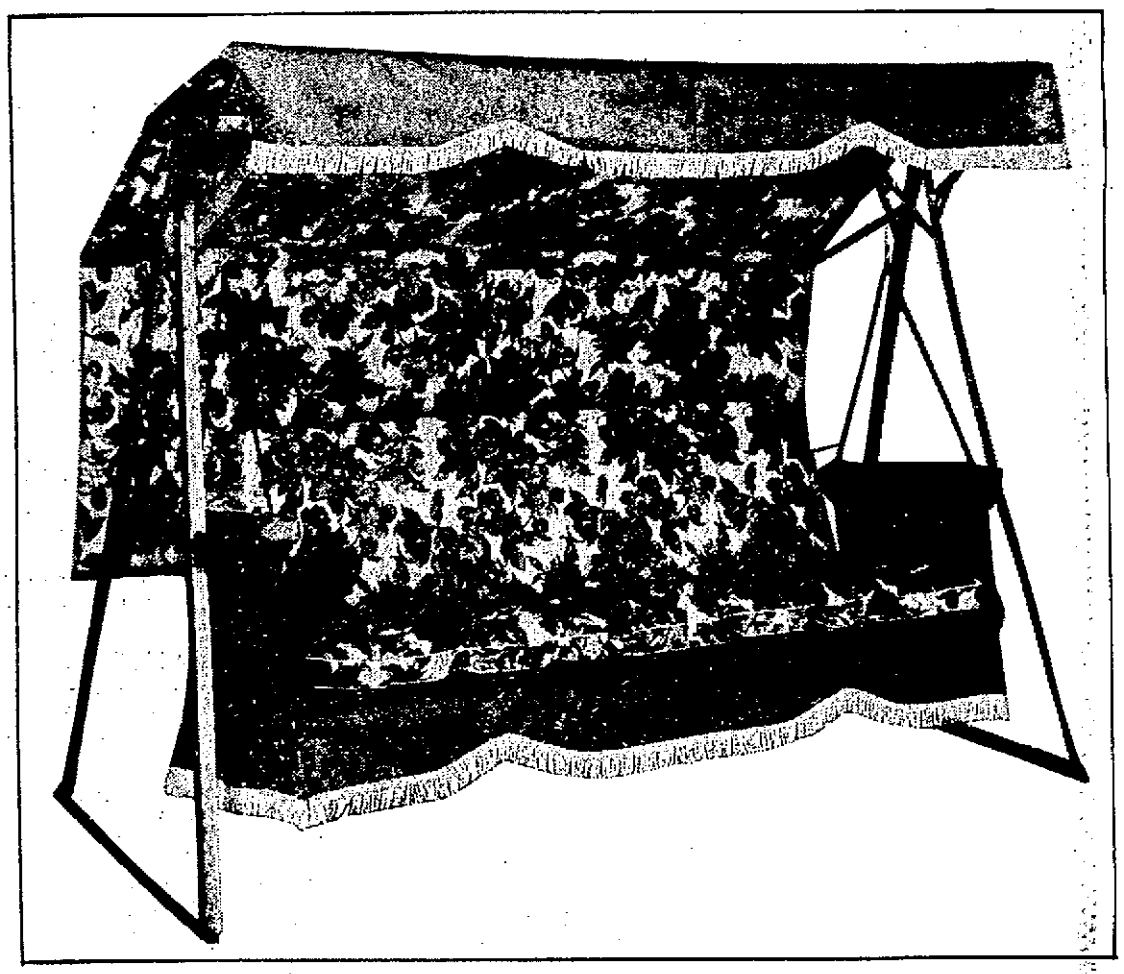

The Ecuadorean patrol units came upon a group of 20 American fishing craft in what Ecuador regards as its territorial waters — up to 200 miles. The United State recognizes a 12-mile territorial limit.

Ecuadorean officials were pressing Saturday, however, for legal action against three Japanese fishing ships under detention in the Galapagos Islands.

"The big question in my mind," she said, "is why they were held and the others released."

American Tunaboat Aossciation spokesmen could not be reached Saturday.

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador (AP) — Official silence and embarrassment surrounds the capture and relase Friday by Ecuadorean warships of several American fishing vessles.

Unofficial reports here said Edcuador backed down following seizure of four or more California fishing boats about 20 miles offshore in the Gulf of Guayaquil, in the face of a stern message from President Nixon.

The American vessels were released apparently on orders from the Foreign Ministry before the navy escort could reach port with the captives.

The Ecuadorean patrol units came upon a group of 20 American fishing craft in what Ecuador regards as its territorial waters — up to 200 miles. The United State recognizes a 12-mile territorial limit.

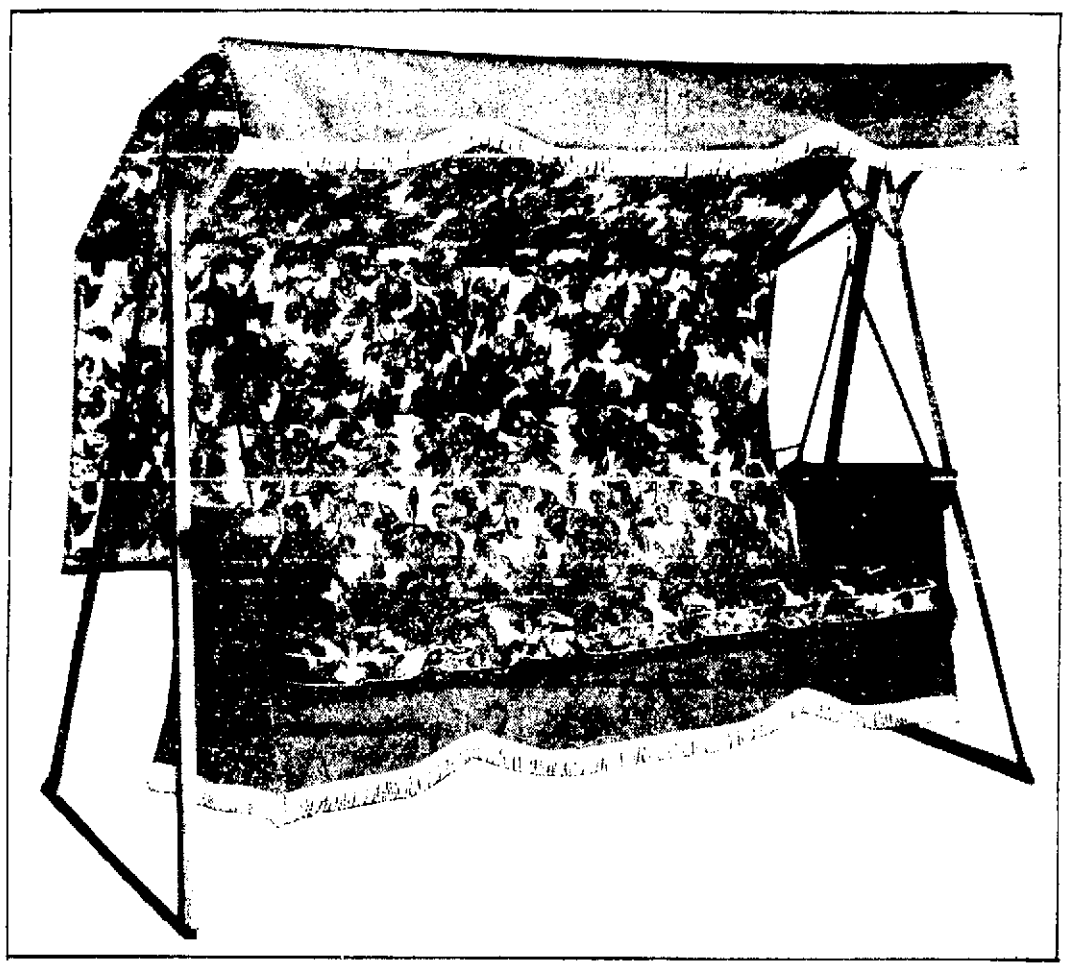

Ecuadorean officials were pressing Saturday, however, for legal action against three Japanese fishing ships under detention in the Galapagos Islands.

Maj. Kenneth C. Griffith, combat infantry officer currently stationed at Fort Ord, will speak to members of the Long Beach Chapter, Military Order of the World Wars, at a dinner meeting Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in Allen Center at the Long Beach Naval Station.

Maj. Griffith returned from his second tour of duty in Vietnam last December and has been active in the Army's national speaking program which is designed to establish communication between the public and the men serving in Veitnam.

The Army officer speaks Vietnamese and served as an infantry advisor to a South Vietnamese regional force. On his last tour of duty there he served as combat operations officer with units of the 9th Infantry Division.

A social hour for members will precede the meeting. Lt. Cdr. Floud E. Webster, USCGR will preside.

R. K. Peterson Heads JOBS

The National Alliance of Businessmen has announced the appointment of Russell K. Peterson, a Douglas Aircraft Co. official, as head of its JOBS campaign in the city of Long Beach.

JOBS stands for Job Opportunities in the Business Sector. The program was launched two years ago at the urging of then President Johnson, who had asked the business community to assist the government in finding jobs for the hard-core unemployed.

The alliance's Long Beach metropolitan division also announced the appointment of Earle Beebe, a Signal Hill realtor, to direct the JOBS program in Signal Hill.

The division, which covers 25 communities in this area, has been responsible so far this year for placing 3,000 disadvantaged men and women in private jobs throughout the area, alliance officials said.

Peterson, employment manager for Douglas, will be assisted by Frank Stewart of the Bank of America's main office here, and by Don Olson of Southern California Edison's Long Beach district.

'GI Bill'—25 Years A Good Investment

By STAN BENJAMIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Just 25 years ago, June 22, 1944, the Servicemen's Readjustment Act, better known as the "GI Bill," was signed by then President Franklin D. Roosevelt. Its impact on the college campuses has been tremendous. It was a boon to home buyers and sellers.

Since then more than five million ex-servicemen have gone to college at the expense of Uncle Sam. That is almost half of all male college students over the years.

It brought a new maturity to the halls of learning although changing the campus atmosphere had not been the aim of the GI Bill.

When it was signed the allied forces were only 16 days into their bloody invasion of Hitler's "Fortress Europe." In the Pacific, invasion after invasion of Japan's island stepping stones lay ahead and the public had yet to know Iwo Jima as a household name.

* * * *

BUT CONGRESS was looking toward the day — it would come in 1945 — when World War II would end and the nation would start demobilizing the giant army into an economy in turmoil.

Congress decided to ease the transition in three main ways: provide financial support for the education of exservicemen who were returning to civilian life after an average absence of 30 months; help them make up for lost time by making it easier to afford homes of their own; provide support for those the economy could not immediately absorb.

Remember the 52-20 Club.

Returning servicemen who could not find employment — and in the peak year of 1947 they were returning at the rate of one million a month — were entitled to $20 a week for up to 52 weeks.

Almost nine million veterans collected such unemployment allowances, but it was hardly a free-loading crowd. Only 10 per cent exhausted their full rights to this benefit and in fact the average veteran drew unemployment compensation for only 19 weeks.

In all, the 52-20 Clubbers collected some $3.2 billion, about one-third of their full entitlement.

* * * *

THE ORIGINAL bill permitted the Veteran Administration to guarantee home loans up to $2,000. Today the maximum loan guarantee is $12,500 and direct home loans may be made up to $21,000.

Over the 25 years more than 7.3 million home loans totalling more than $73.6 billion have been guaranteed under the GI Bill and have been a major factor in the construction boom.

The education benefits have reached even larger numbers. Altogether more than 11 million veterans have received some form of training under the GI Bill, including some 4.8 million in below - college on - the - job training and 785,000 in farm training.

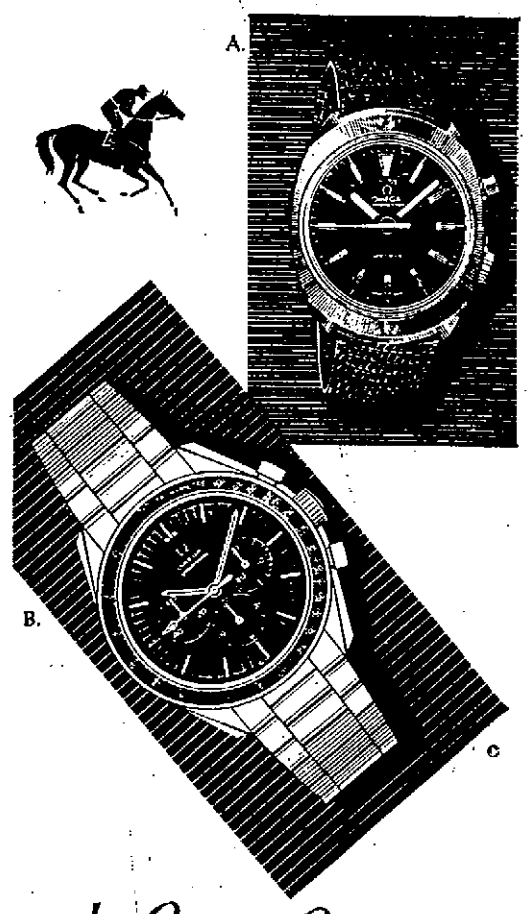

The rest, more than 5.1 million, attended college. And when they hit the campus in 1945 and 1946 and 1947 the Joe College days were over. Students were no longer the young innocents of a privileged class.

* * * *

THEY WERE MEN who had seen war; often married men raising families; often, too, men who would not have been able to afford collge without the GI Bill and who were determined to make the most of it.

They were, in the words of Harvard University President Nathan M. Pusey, "an able, mature, energetic, determined student body.

CAPT. HOLM AND PAL WOODY

DOUBLE CAREER

Happiness–Woody and a Jet Plane

By HERB SHANNON
Aerospace Editor

Happiness comes in panels for Capt. John Holm, who pilots jets for United Air Lines on West Coast routes out of Los Angeles.

When he's not checking the instrument panel on a flight to Seattle or Reno, he's on the ground filling in his successful cartoon panel, "Woody's World," syndicated in more than 60 newspapers, including the Independent, Press-Telegram.

Each of his careers complements the other, Holm is the first to point out.

"The two lives are pretty well separated," he says. "I enjoy both of them, and each is a great change of pace from the other."

In the cockpit, Holm's attention is 100 per cent occupied with flying an airplane full of fragile people, including himself. Things like flap settings, air speed, altitude and glide slope readings are of complete concern.

BUT ALL THIS is blotted out when he is seated at the drawing board in his den at home near Seattle. What matters then is an idea for the daily cartoon, a recurring problem since Holm inaugurated the published panel in 1962.

"If someone had told me then that I would have to come up with 1,900 ideas in the next seven years, I might have been tempted to throw in the sponge," he admits. "But every time I mail in a batch of 'Woody's World' cartoons, I feel they are better than the group before."

Desperation is often upon him, Holm confesses. But he has worked out a system of backing into a solution to the problem.

"There are days when I can't get an idea to save my soul. The only answer is to tie myself to the drawing board until I have something on paper.

"Generally, I work in reverse. Most cartoonists come up with the gag line and then draw the cartoon. I sketch a situation and keep wrestling with it until I think it looks funny and then add an appropriate caption."

HOLM STARTED the cartoon for the same reason that many airline pilots have side occupations. Besides the spare time provided by the limited number of hours monthly that a commercial pilot is allowed to fly, there is the constant spectre of sudden unemployment in his chosen profession.

"It's in the back of every pilot's mind," Holm says. "You can wake up one morning in excellent health, and still not be able to meet the strict physical standards for airline operations."

Some of Holm's crew members have gone into real estate and other side businesses. But he chose the cartooning field because of his love of the beauty of nature as seen through the picture windows of his home in a wooded area near Seattle.

The human characters in the cartoon are Woody, a kind of alter ego of Holm, Woody's wife, Madge, the Indian guide Turkey Feather and a friend named Hank. But it is the animal populace of "Woody's World" which gives the cartoon its original flavor — the faithful dog, Scout; Otis, the horse, and assorted bears, raccoons and squirrels.

LIKE MANY United pilots, Holm's training came in military service. After Navy aviation training in 1942, he was commissioned in the Marine Corps and saw action in the Pacific as a night fighter pilot. A brief career with United was interrupted by recall to service in Korea, after which he rejoined the airline.

Will success in the cartoon business turn John Holm away from flying? Not likely.

"It's not like having two careers," he maintains. "It's more like getting paid for doing the two things I like to do most."

CAPT. HOLM AND PAL WOODY

DOUBLE CAREER

Happiness—Woody and a Jet Plane

By HERB SHANNON
Aerospace Editor

Happiness comes in panels for Capt. John Holm, who pilots jets for United Air Lines on West Coast routes out of Los Angeles.

When he's not checking the instrument panel on a flight to Seattle or Reno, he's on the ground filling in his successful cartoon panel, "Woody's World," syndicated in more than 60 newspapers, including the Independent Press-Telegram.

Each of his careers complements the other, Holm is the first to point out.

"The two lives are pretty well separated," he says. "I enjoy both of them, and each is a great change of pace from the other."

In the cockpit, Holm's attention is 100 per cent occupied with flying an airplane full of fragile people, including himself. Things like flap settings, air speed, altitude and glide slope readings are of complete concern.

BUT ALL THIS is blotted out when he is seated at the drawing board in his den at home near Seattle. What matters then is an idea for the daily cartoon, a recurring problem since Holm inaugurated the published panel in 1962.

"If someone had told me then that I would have to come up with 1,900 ideas in the next seven years, I might have been tempted to throw in the sponge," he admits. "But every time I mail in a batch of 'Woody's World' cartoons, I feel they are better than the group before."

Desperation is often upon him, Holm confesses. But he has worked out a system of backing into a solution to the problem.

"There are days when I can't get an idea to save my soul. The only answer is to tie myself to the drawing board until I have something on paper.

"Generally, I work in reverse. Most cartoonists come up with the gag line and then draw the cartoon. I sketch a situation and keep wrestling with it until I think it looks funny and then add an appropriate caption."

Audit Ordered After College President Quits

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A full audit of Sacramento State College finances under the adminstration of former President Robert S. Johns is under way, State Colleges Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke has disclosed.

The probe was ordered when Johns resigned last month after three years on the job. He came to Sacramento from the University of Montana.

The announcement came Friday a day after the state Auditor Geneal, William H. Merrifield, said the college overpaid a food services firm by $98,000.

The firm, although not mentioned in Merrifield's report, is Servomation, which hired Johns after he quit the college in a dispute with faculty members.

Johns was not immediately available for comment on either report.

DEMKE'S OFFICE said Friday, "Upon President Johns' resignation, the chancellor requested a full audit covering all campus fiscal operations, including those related to auxiliary organization funds. This audit was contracted for with the State Department of Finance and is continuing today."

The statement said it was "unfortunate" that Merrifield's report was made public Thursday without Dumke's knowledge and at a time another investigation was under way.

"In the meantime, however, it should be pointed out that initial studies by the chancellor's office did not reveal findings which at the time could have been labeled 'misuse of state funds,'" the statement said.

"Nor did preliminary findings indicate any evidence that any of the administrators remaining at the college were involved in any malfeasance or misuse of funds," it added.

Johns was in a dispute with the Academic Senate over travel spending at the time he resigned from the school, which has about 10,000 students.

HIS REIGN at Sacramento State started somewhat in controversy when he boosted emphasis on intercollegiate athletics at the outset.

Merrifield said the fee paid to the food service company to manage the sale of food on the campus "appears to be in excess of the amount provided for in the contract."

The money, estimated at $98,000, should be returned, he said.

Sacramento State officials said Merrifield misinterpreted the contract and said there was no overpayment.

Merrifield also reported on Johns' travel, saying he made 22 out-of-state trips in 1967 and 1968 to recruit personnel. The trips cost $11,664.

Machinists End GE Strike

CINCINNATI (UPI) — A four-day strike of 1,400 machinists at the General Electric Co. jet engine plant in suburban Evendale ended Saturday at the request of the Defense Department.

Arnold Tucker, business agent for Lodge 912 of the International Association of Machinist, said the union might stage future walkouts if the company does not take action to prevent an accumulation of unresolved grievances.

The plant, with a work force of 15,000, has several Defense Department contracts.

ON SPEED OF COMMUNICATION

U.S., Aussie Pride Flares Over Evans

SUBIC BAY, Philippins (UPI) — A clash of U.S. and Australian naval pride Saturday dominated the inquiry into the collision of the carrier Melbourne and the destroyer Frank E. Evans, with an American admiral challenging Australian testimony unflattering to the U.S. Navy.

The Australian witness, Lt. Cmdr. R.A.J.T. Arundel, fleet communications officer aboard the Australian carrier, was telling the joint naval board communications failure could not have been a factor in the collision.

But he added he thought the Evans was "a little slow in reacting" to the Melbourne's radio warnings. He then added the comment that drew immediate reaction form U.S. Rear Admiral Jerome H. King, Jr., the senior American member of the board.

In general, Arundel said, "American ships are a little slower to react than Commonwealth ships."

"Commander Arundel," King said, looking straight at the witness, "are you intimately familiar with the training of tactical (communications) operators in the Commonwealth navies?"

"Yes sir," snapped Arundel, looking straight back.

"Are you intimately familiar with the training of officers of the deck in the U.S. Navy?"

The Australian hesitated and lowered his eyes. "No sir," he said.

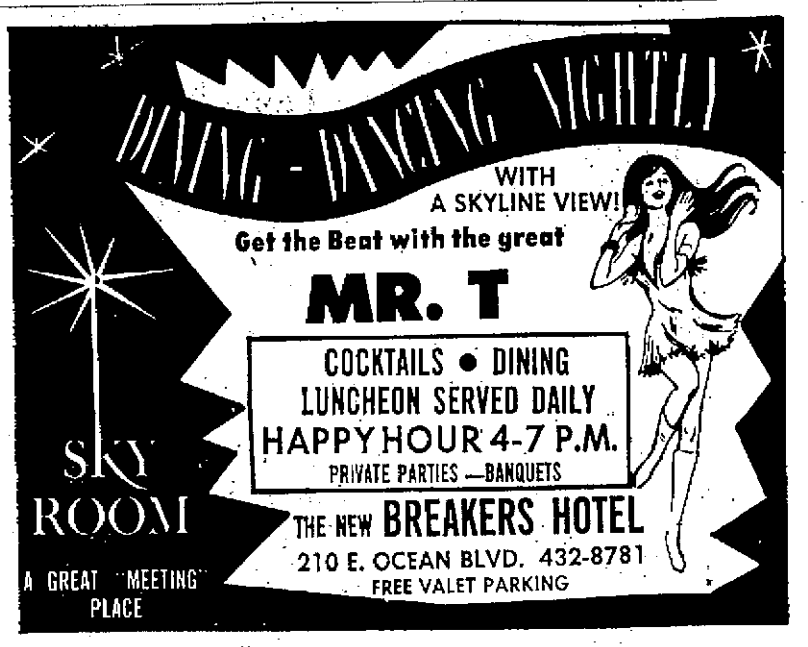

The handsome, self-assured Australian officer from Sydney said he had not meant his comment on relative speed of communications and response as a criticism, but merely as a notation of differing procedures in the two navies.

He had noted that in the Australian navy, enlisted communications specialists handle all ship-to-ship messages, including encoding and decoding, for the officers. He said it was his "understanding" that U.S. bridge officers handled all voice communications themselves, in addition to their other duties.

The clash with King overshadowed Arundel's most important substantive testimony, that communication between ships in the task force were at "a very high standard" and were not a factor in the collision.

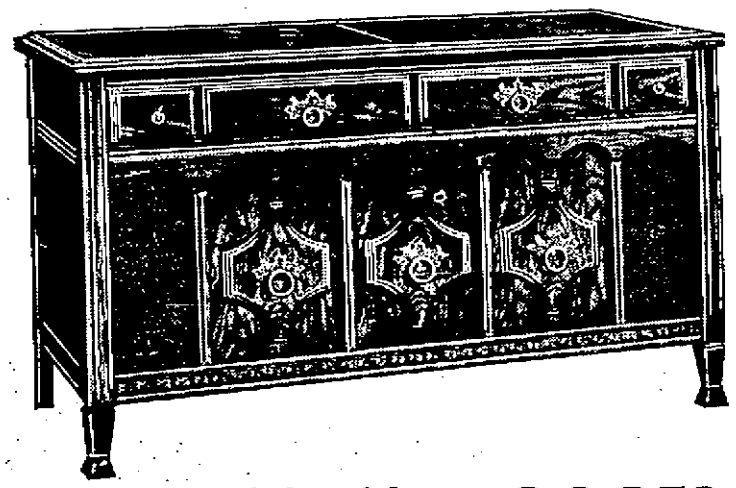

He complimented the U.S. destroyer, which lost 74 men in the collision, saying it was "a very fine radio communications ship."

Earlier witnesses testified difficulties could have contributed to the collision.

China Renews Romanian Ties

New York Times Service

VIENNA — A Chinese ambassador Chian Hai-feng, arrived in Bucharest last night as Romania became the second Eastern European Communist country with which Communist China has resumed full diplomatic relations.

The Romanians maintain a posture of neutrality in the Communist feud between China and the Soviet Union and its allies. At the Moscow conference of world Communist parties concluded this week, it was Romania's president, Nicolae Ceausescu, who rose to protest attacks on the absent Chinese party and fought against Soviet attempts to condemn it officially.

Since almost all the Chinese ambassadors were recalled during the "cultural revolution" which started three years ago, China had only been represented in Romania by charge d'affaires.

The first Chinese ambassador to be assigned overseas following the ninth congress of the Chinese Communist Party in April was Keng Piao, the envoy to Albania. The small country in southeastern Europe is China's only European ally.

Jurist Denies Bid to Halt Burger's Court Appointment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice Potter Stewart turned down Saturday a request that Warren E. Burger be prevented from taking office as the nation's 15th chief justice.

Stewart's decision, following a similar action in the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals by less than three hours, apparently cleared the way for Burger to succeed Earl Warren when the current court session ends Monday morning.

The rapid-fire court tests of Burger's appointment, which began in district court Friday, were an unpredicted challenge to the Senate's quick confirmation of Burger.

* * * *

THE CASE was brought by Randolph Phillips, a New York financial consultant and chairman of a committee opposed to Burger.

Before taking his plea to Stewart, Phillips argued his own case before three of Burger's colleagues on the appeals court — J. Skelly Wright, Carl McGowan and Edward A. Tamm. He had intended to appeal directly to Warren, but the chief justice was unavailable and Stewart took the case instead.

PHILLIPS contended he and his committee had been prevented from testifying against Burger when the Senate Judiciary Committee recommended his confirmation. He said he was physically barred from the hearing room — along with other members of the public — despite a promise from the office of Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield that he could appear.

In addition, Phillips said, the committee's chief counsel, John M. Holloman III, did not respond to a telegram urging that the hearing be delayed.

At the hearing, he said, "no opponents were physically admitted nor were their views admitted into the record."

Man Guilty of Wife's Fire Death

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — Sylvester Azbill, twice an unsuccessful candidate for Nevada Secretary of State, faces sentencing for burning his wife to death by pouring lighter fluid on her bed and setting it afire.

The jury of eight men and four women, which heard five weeks of testimony, deliberated 10 hours before returning the verdict of first degree murder and first degree arson Friday. The jury recommended Azbill be sentenced to life in prison without possibility of parole.

The charred body of Rose Mapel Azbill, 61, was found in the fire-swept bedroom of the couple's plush Rancho Circle home Dec. 27, 1967. The couple had been married three months.

The jury returned to the courtroom during its deliberations to hear again the testimony of Azbill's 13-year-old son, Brad. He had testified he saw his father beat the woman and pour lighter fluid on her bed.

Minorities Aid Program Slashed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — San Francisco State College has been forced to cut its educational opportunity program to 150 students because of lack of state funds.

Four hundred students were registered under the special admissions program for minorities last year, and director Reginald Major had proposed an increase to more than 500 students.

But Gov. Ronald Reagan did not approve the budget allocation needed for this increased enrollment, and went on to cut by more than half the budget granted last year.

China Renews Romanian Ties

New York Times Service

VIENNA — A Chinese ambassador Chian Hai-feng, arrived in Bucharest last night as Romania became the second Eastern European Communist country with which Communist China has resumed full diplomatic relations.

The Romanians maintain a posture of neutrality in the Communist feud between China and the Soviet Union and its allies. At the Moscow conference of world Communist parties concluded this week, it was Romania's president, Nicolae Ceausescu, who rose to protest attacks on the absent Chinese party and fought against Soviet attempts to condemn it officially.

Since almost all the Chinese ambassadors were recalled during the "cultural revolution" which started three years ago, China had only been represented in Romania by charge d'affaires.

The first Chinese ambassador to be assigned overseas following the ninth congress of the Chinese Communist Party in April was Keng Piao, the envoy to Albania. The small country in southeastern Europe is China's only European ally.

Unruh Urges Party Reform, Hits Favorite Son 'Sham'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — California's State Assembly Democratic leader urged Saturday the overhaul of the Democratic National Committee and the calling of a national party convention every two years, starting in 1970.

Jess M. Unruh, one of the state's most influential Democrats, told a national party reform group, "If the Democratic party is to regain the confidence and the support of the general public, it must first begin to regain the confidence and support of the individual Democrat."

* * * *

IN REMARKS to the Commission on Democratic Party Reform, headed by Sen. George McGovern, S.D., Unruh supported open primaries and added: "Primary elections should be restricted to persons who are willing to register in that party.

"Where there is an open primary, I would recommend that the phony sham of favorite son candidates be eliminated even though it sometimes saves the party embarrassment."

In reply to questions, he said he would favor national primary elections "if you could find some . . . way to finance it."

* * * *

A WAY MUST be found, he said, to broaden campaign contributions. Until then, he added, he would oppose a national primary.

At a national convention in 1970, Unruh said the first order of business should be the adoption of new rules to ensure "that every delegate sent to the 1972 presidential nominating convention is selected under totally democratic procedures."

"I also recommend that this convention undertake the responsibility of writing a new party platform — one which reflects the party's views on foreign policy and domestic affairs for the benefit of the candidates at the midterm congressional elections," he said.

* * * *

THOMAS Bradley, a Negro City Councilman who lost a bitterly contested election to Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty in May, told the commission:

"Smoke filled rooms and behind-the-scenes manipulations are unfortunately still very much a part of the political process." The party, he added, "Should change its ways at once."

Bradley urged abolition of the unit rule, binding delegates to vote in blocs at national conventions; lowering the voting age to 18, and conducting vigorous voter registration drives in minority group areas.

Police Quit Over Rome Scandals

ROME (AP) — The police chiefs of Rome and Reggio Calabria resigned Saturday night in the wake of separate scandals involving an illegal gambling network and the smuggling of art works abroad.

Rosario Molfi, a 37-year police veteran and chief of the Rome force, submitted his resignation to Interior Minister Franco Restivo after more than 22 persons — including the deputy police chief — were jailed in a gambling scandal.

Reggio Calabria's police chief, Emilio Santillo, resigned after his name was linked with an art smuggling ring which shipped Italian masterpieces abroad from Florence.

* * * *

ON JUNE 1, deputy Rome police chief Nicola Scire, the forces' crack investigator and most famous law officer in the country, was accused of accepting payoffs from gambling dens. Scire and five other police officers were jailed on charges of corruption, abetting gambling and disclosing public office secrets.

Scire denied the charges, saying he made contact with the gamblers so he could later arrest the ring leaders.

The Rome press reported that Scire had kept Police Chief Melfi informed of his contacts with the gambling ring. Melfi later denied this and said Scire never told him anything about the case.

Circus Performs in San Quentin

SAN QUENTIN (AP) — A circus in a prison.

It happened Friday at San Quentin.

Clowns danced and inmates laughed in an event unique in the prison's 117-year history.

With 2,500 convicts in specially built bleacher seats, lions and tigers performed behind their own bars.

Rudy Jacobs, general manager of the circus, said the prison show resulted from months of correspondence from Vic Curcio, 48, of San Diego, a convicted burglar who had the idea.

ARSENAL IN HOUSE

Fired Teacher Arms Self, Holds off Police

ABINGDON, Ill. (UPI) — A former high school teacher, armed with a rifle, kept Rock Island county authorities and state police at bay for four hours Saturday before he was captured.

Bruce Whitsett, 31, a teacher and counselor at Riverdale High School in Port Byron, Ill., whose contract was not renewed, was finally seized at the home of his mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Miller.

A search of the house produced 61 high powered rifles, 72 handguns, one antitank bazooka, mortars, a live hand grenade and according to authorities, "hundreds of thousands of rounds of ammunition."

* * * *

POLICE TOOK him into custody after a two-block section of Abingdon was barricaded to traffic by police and firemen. Residents of the area evacuated their homes.

Whitsett, who was wanted by police on a warrant charging intimidation, was captured by Rock Island County Sheriff William Boyle and chief investigator Jack White when the 6-foot-5-inch, 279 pound teacher came to the door to discuss charges against him.

Earlier in the week, police said, Whitsett had threatened the high school principal and his family.

Boyle said he held at least six telephone conversations with the embattled Whitsett before he persuaded him to come to the front door of the house.

When he emerged he wore a German World War I helmet and carried a rifle, Boyle said.

Art Stolen from Queen Found at London Auction

LONDON (AP) — Paintings belonging to Queen Elizabeth II turned up at a London auction house Saturday and Buckingham Palace said they may have been stolen.

Four works, valued at $240 each, intrigued an art expert at Christie's Auction House last week because each carried an impressive-looking label on the back.

His research showed they, and another two later discovered, belonged to the Queen.

A palace spokesman explained the paintings were put into storage a year ago in a cupboard at St. James' Palace.

"They are quite small and might easily have been smuggled out underneath somebody's coat or in large pockets," he said.

World Bankers See Inflation as Prime Economic Problem

By CLYDE H. FARNSWORTH
New York Times Service

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, — After a singularly pessimistic monetary conference of the American Bankers Association, bankers around the world have become well aware of the possibilities of a general economic slowdown.

For the first time in the postwar period the economies of the United States and Western Europe are on the same course. Everywhere inflation is the top problem, and the money managers are moving in for the kill —or what they concede could be the overkill—to snuff it out.

"We have been told that the world has accepted inflation as a way of life," said William McChesney Martin, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board. "I don't believe it. There will be a good deal of pain and suffering before we resolve this thing. It won't be resolved with gadgets."

THE BANKERS spoke of the ravages of inflation and the evils of excessive government spending. The high interest rates plaguing Europe are simply the "thermometer measuring the heat in the kitchen," said Walter B. Wriston, president of the First National City Bank.

University of Chicago economist Milton Friedman told the more than 150 conferees that the growth of the money supply in the U.S. of 2 to 3 per cent since December 'is somewhat too low, but I'd rather have it this way than the other."

Though there was little cheer in the working sessions, the bankers didn't let this spoil their enjoyment of Copenhagen.

They fraternized with chilled tuborg and akva vit, foxtrotted into the night, rode the roller coaster in Tivoli and joked about the populist head of the House Banking and Currency Committee.

RERERRING to the congressional hearings on the latest prime rate boost, Martin said, "I'm here by courtesy of (Rep.) Wright Patman (of Texas). He called me the costliest public servant in the world. If he had limited it to the United States I might have been offended."

Erik Hoffmeyer, a governor of the Danish Central Bank, whose foreign exchange reserves were depleted during the monetary crisis in May, anticipated another round of currency speculation.

"I think we're all in trouble in the western world," Martin said.

The Bank of England has already warned of recession in Britain, even before new curbs are imposed as the conditions for another British loan from the International Monetary Fund.

France, under President Georges Pompidou, faces further fiscal as well as monetary restrictions if the sorely pressed franc is to be defended.

A CONFLICT over the severity of new measures was seen to lie behind the refusal of Antoine Pinay to take the job of finance minister. He presumably wanted tougher measures than Pompidou, fearing "overkill," was willing to accept.

The brakes are on in Germany and the Benelux countries, while from the U.S. Martin was warned that formal curbs on bank lending were being considered.

What all this means is that there are strong prospects of business turning down over the next few months and into 1970 on both sides of the Atlantic.

World trade has flourished in the postwar period, having grown at an average 10 per cent over the last five years. The worry is that a turning point is being reached, where trade will grow more slowly or perhaps decline.

THE FEARS are compounded by increasing sentiment for protectionism on both sides of the Atlantic and proliferating foreign exchange controls as countries protect their gold and dollar reserves.

Only 10 countries have "comfortable" foreign exchange reserves, said Milton Gilbert, economist for the Bank for International Settlements.

The bankers laid the blame for monetary woes on the politicians — those in West Germany who refused to upvalue the exchange rate of the mark, and those in the U.S. who fought and delayed the tax surcharge and who are fighting it again.

It takes a long time to turn an economy around. As Wriston of the First National City Bank put it, "when you turn off the garden hose, the water continues to run for a few minutes." If this is true when the battle is against inflation, it is equally true when the conditions are reversed.

Charlie Chaplin's Daughter, 20, Weds Wealthy Greek Fur Dealer

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — Charlie Chaplin's second daughter, Josephine, and a wealthy Greek fur dealer, Nicholas Sistovaris, were married in a religious ceremony in Lausanne's Greek Orthodox Church Saturday night.

About 100 friends and members of the two families attended the wedding in the picturesque, tiny hillside church in the heart of Lausanne. There was no room for more.

A white-haired octogenarian who no longer has any resemblance to the jaunty chap with the bowler hat, walking stick and baggy pants he played in his younger days, Chaplin gave his radiant 20-year-old daughter away.

Josephine, a breath-taking beauty, wore a white veil and white dress with a long train held by her two younger sisters, Jane and Anne, dressed in long white robes.

The handsome 31-year-old groom, in black with a white carnation, arrived with his father half an hour early.

Josephine's mother Oona, daughter of playwright Eugene O'Neill led eight Chaplin children into the church, among them Josephine's sister Geraldine, 24, and Sydney Chaplin, Chaplin's son by a previous marriage.

Archimandrite Zachary Xintaras conducted the rites.

After the ceremony the party returned to Chaplin's 37-acre estate near Vevey for a wedding feast in a huge tent Chaplin had set up for the occasion.

Montana Congress Vote Due Tuesday

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — Voters in Montana's sprawling, 32-county 2nd Congressional District go to the polls Tuesday to choose a successor to former Rep. James F. Battin, R-Mont., who resigned to become a federal judge.

The battle appears between John Melcher, the Democratic nominee, of Forsyth, and Republican W. S. "Bill" Mather, a Billings attorney. Both men are members of the Montana House and Mather was the floor leader of the 1969 session. A third candidate is Derby C. Whitmer of Bloomfield, who is running as the American Party candidate.

52 Killed in Indian Rail Crash

NEW DELHI (UPI) — At least 52 persons were killed and 141 injured when an express passenger train was derailed early Saturday near Benares in India's Uttar Pradesh State, railway officials said.

Sixty of the injured were reported in serious condition and officials said the death toll might rise. Forty six bodies have been recovered from the wreckage of the coaches and six others pulled out alive died later, officials said.

The disaster occurred at the approach to a bridge on the Maghai River in the eastern part of the state. A relief train with rescue crews and medical supplies was rushed to the scene.

Rival Lines Drawn in Philippines Vote

MANILA (UPI) — President Ferdinand E. Marcos was formally proclaimed candidate of the governing Nationalist Party Saturday for the Nov. 11 Philippine elections.

Marcos will meet the opposition Liberal Party candidate, Sen. Sergio Osmena Jr., in the presidential election. No incumbent president has ever won reelection in the 23-year history of the Philippine Republic.

Reds Return Trio

MUNICH, Germany (UPI) — Three young West German men who two months ago staggered across the border into Czechoslovakia in a drunken state were returned to West Germany Friday, Bavarian border police said Saturday.

U.S. Pares Military Bases in Spain; Still Under Fire

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department Saturday announced a cutback in U.S. military operations in Spain in the wake of a compromise agreement merely postponing until next year a decision on continuing American bases on Spanish soil.

The Pentagon said commencing in December the U.S. air base at Moron will be reduced to a caretaker status, leaving the Torrejon air base near Madrid and the Polaris submarine base at Rota the only one at operational level. The U.S. base Zaragoza already is on caretaker status.

* * * *

"WHEN THE action is completed, approximately 1,600 U.S. military personnel and 2,100 civilian employes and military dependents will be removed form Spain," the Pentagon said. The United States now has 15,000 military personnel, their dependents and civil employes in Spain.

The compromise agreement, reached Friday with the Spanish government and already under attack from two sources, extends for 15 months the agreement first reached in 1953 which allows the U.S. to maintain the bases. Through last July 1, Spain had received $552.4 million in military aid from the United States as a result.

The new pact, a compromise on a proposed five-year agreement, gives Spain $50 million in military equipment and up to $35 million in export-import bank loans during the next 15 monnths.

* * * *

SPANISH Foreign Minister Fernando Maria Castiella Maiz made clear immediately following announcement of the extension it is far from satisfactory to the Spanish goverment.

He said Spain "must become an active participant on an absolutely equal footing" in a new agreement covering "economic, technical, scientific and cultural aspects." "The era of foreign military bases has ended," he said.

Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, announced his opposition to the $50-million appropriation necessary to pay what he called "rent" for the U.S. bases between now and Sept. 26, 1970. "I feel bound to oppose it," Fulbright said. "I asked the secretary of state, both in person and in writing, to put the agreement in the form of a treaty or a convention which could be studied and voted on by the Senate. He refused to accept the suggestion."

$1,370 Home Theft

More than $1,370 in loot was stolen from the home and garage of Arthur L. Gilberd, 3041 Kallin Ave., Long Beach police said Saturday. Stolen were tools, guns, a radio and a TV.

World Bankers See Inflation as Prime Economic Problem

DRUIDS PERFORM PRE-CHRISTIAN RITE AT STONEHENGE AS HIPPIES JEER

BASH AT STONEHENGE

Hippies Disrupt Ancient Druid Rite

STONEHENGE, England (AP) — England's Druids held their pre-Christian summer solstice rites within a ring of barbed wire and police dogs at ancient Stonehenge Saturday, while outside thousands had a hippies' holiday.

The hippies came from all over England, some from Europe and America. They arrived hitchhiking, by bus, in old jalopies, and on foot across Salisbury Plain. All night they camped, strumming guitars and singing, while awaiting the service the Druids hold each year at dawn on summer's longest day.

When the white-sheeted Druids moved in solemn procession around Stonehenge, they were greeted with bawdy jokes and songs. Once the crowd set off a great red flare and shouted: "Out, demons, out."

Then they broke through part of the barbed wire fence despite the efforts of police to stop them. They rushed to the inner circle of giant rocks, causing bearded Chief Druid Thomas L. Maughan to shout the warning: "Unless you clear a space there will be no ceremony."

* * * *

ONE YOUTH clambered up one of the huge trilothon stones and stripped. No one could reach him to get him down. When attention shifted elsewhere, he recovered his clothes and vanished in the shifting crowd.

A black-bearded hippie ran with a broomstick between his legs, trying to take off in witch-like flight. He failed.

Amid the pandemonium and with the crowd pressing in from all sides, the Druids tried to carry out their observances, which are based on what little is known about the ancient religion of the Celts.

A blood-red rose, a silver vessel, a wooden dish with what looked like tiny cakes, were carefully laid on a spotless white cloth. Purifying water was sprinkled on the Druid ring and incense was wafted to them. An eight-foot horn was blown at each point of the compass.

The chief Druid raised his crook and hailed "the unconquerable sun of suns." But the sun was tardy this day. There were clouds in the sky and somehow daylight had come without being noticed. When the chief Druid cried: "Arise O Sun," a battery of photo lights was switched on. The crowd roared approval. Maughan said the ceremony had to be shortened for the first time in history because of obstruction from the crowd.

* * * *

"NEVER HAS an audience sunk to so low a level," he told the hippies.

"Do you speak Druid?" someone shouted. Someone else: "Bring on the lions. We want a human sacrifice."

English Druids of the Universal Bond operate from a house called the Mother Grove in the south London suburb of Dulwich. They came down to Stonehenge in a chartered bus, with their own supply of rough cider and the ancient English drink called mead.

Maughan, a retired Glasgow oil man, was chosen chief Druid for life in 1964. A gnome-like man with jutting white beard and twinkling eyes like the late George Bernard Shaw, he says Druidism isn't really a religion.

"It's the art and science of living," he asserted. "It's not restricted to any civilization, any race of people, or any period in time."

Exchange Student Killed in Collision

OAKLAND (AP)—An Ethiopian exchange student was killed early Saturday in a two car accident here.

Police said a car driven by the victim, Samson Shifferaw, 22, went through a red light and was hit by another car. Shifferaw had been living in Oakland.

GE Space Project Cancelled

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. (AP) — Layoff notices have been sent 237 employes at General Electric's Space Technology Center following cancellation by the Defense Department of a multi-million dollar space project.

The notices affect engineers, scientists, salaried workers and production, secretarial and clerical workers.

A company spokesman said Saturday some notices become effective immediately while others will take some weeks to materialize.

* * * *

EARLIER this month the Defense Department announced cancellation of the Manned Orbiting Laboratory for economy reasons. The department disclosed that $1.3 billion has already been spent on the program.

GE has been working on the space program since 1963 and has received $110 million in federal contracts.

Vatican Reaffirms Women Still Must Wear Chapel Veils

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The secretary of the Vatican Congregation for Divine Worship said Saturday women still must cover their heads in church.

Msgr. Annibale Bugnini said reports on May 2 that the Vatican had ended the 1,900-year-old rule were "false, a terrible mistake."

Msgr. Bugnini said the rule for covered heads was in the canon law codes and had not been changed.

On May 2 the Vatican issued a decree of Pope Paul VI, titled "Missale Romanum" (Roman missal) which listed all the many changes in the Mass instituted since the Vatican Ecumenical Council.

The missal replaced one issued in 1570 by Pope Pius V.

Pope Paul's decree did not mention covering heads during Mass. Vatican experts said at the time such an omission amounted to repeal of the rule. Msgr. Bugnini had been among those quoted as saying so.

"This is absolutely untrue," Msgr. Bugnini said Saturday. "The decree did not mention head covers because it had nothing to do with them. They are included in the cannon law codes."

Canon No. 1262 of the code says: "Men in church or outside when attending a holy rite must be with their heads uncovered unless local traditions of the peoples prescribe differently or particular circumstances suggest they be covered.

"The women must have their heads covered and be dressed modestly, particularly when receiving the Holy Communion."

"This law has never been changed," Msgr. Bugnini said. "One can see that exceptions are mentioned only for the men, following local traditions. In a broader view, the exceptions can be extended to the women, but the rule remains."

Msgr. Bugnini said reports the rule had been eliminated derived from misunderstandings.

The Vatican press spokesman, Msgr. Fausto Vallainc, said the canon law codes now are being revised by a special commission.

"We cannot know whether the problem of head coverings in church is among the items being revised," he added.

Transport, Poverty Seen Equal Crises

DETROIT (AP) — U.S. Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe Friday declared the public transit crisis equals the nation's poverty problem, and ever-increasing numbers of passenger cars ultimately will choke the cities.

He told the nation's auto industry leaders meeting in Detroit they must crank up their efforts in public transit or face a "major slowdown of the economy's mobility."

The Automobile Manufacturers Association audience was told that transportation is a top priority item of the Nixon Administration.

CIVIL SERVICE APPRAISER PLAN HIT BY LAWYER

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The head of the California State Bar has sharply opposed State Controller Houston I. Flournoy's plan to place inheritance tax appraisers under civil service.

Samuel O. Pruitt Jr. said Flournoy's plan would have "an adverse impact on the court system and the administration of estates."

Pruitt, Los Angeles attorney and president of the bar's board of governors, said Flournoy's proposal to abolish independent local appraisers, now appointed by the controller, would require creation of 277 civil service positions in state government.

DRUIDS PERFORM PRE-CHRISTIAN RITE AT STONEHENGE AS HIPPIES JEER

BASH AT STONEHENGE

Hippies Disrupt Ancient Druid Rite

STONEHENGE, England (AP) — England's Druids held their pre-Christian summer solstice rites within a ring of barbed wire and police dogs at ancient Stonehenge Saturday, while outside thousands had a hippies' holiday.

The hippies came from all over England, some from Europe and America. They arrived hitchhiking, by bus, in old jalopies, and on foot across Salisbury Plain. All night they camped, strumming guitars and singing, while awaiting the service the Druids hold each year at dawn on summer's longest day.

When the white-sheeted Druids moved in solemn procession around Stonehenge, they were greeted with bawdy jokes and songs. Once the crowd set off a great red flare and shouted: "Out, demons, out."

Then they broke through part of the barbed wire fence despite the efforts of police to stop them. They rushed to the inner circle of giant rocks, causing bearded Chief Druid Thomas L. Maughan to shout the warning: "Unless you clear a space there will be no ceremony."

• • • •

ONE YOUTH clambered up one of the huge trilothon stones and stripped. No one could reach him to get him down. When attention shifted elsewhere, he recovered his clothes and vanished in the shifting crowd.

A black-bearded hippie ran with a broomstick between his legs, trying to take off in witch-like flight. He failed.

Amid the pandemonium and with the crowd pressing in from all sides, the Druids tried to carry out their observances, which are based on what little is known about the ancient religion of the Celts.

A blood-red rose, a silver vessel, a wooden dish with what looked like tiny cakes, were carefully laid on a spotless white cloth. Purifying water was sprinkled on the Druid ring and incense was wafted to them. An eight-foot horn was blown at each point of the compass.

The chief Druid raised his crook and hailed "the unconquerable sun of suns." But the sun was tardy this day. There were clouds in the sky and somehow daylight had come without being noticed. When the chief Druid cried: "Arise O Sun," a battery of photo lights was switched on. The crowd roared approval. Maughan said the ceremony had to be shortened for the first time in history because of obstruction from the crowd.

• • • •

"NEVER HAS an audience sunk to so low a level," he told the hippies.

"Do you speak Druid?" someone shouted. Someone else: "Bring on the lions. We want a human sacrifice."

English Druids of the Universal Bond operate from a house called the Mother Grove in the south London suburb of Dulwich. They came down to Stonehenge in a chartered bus, with their own supply of rough cider and the ancient English drink called mead.

Maughan, a retired Glasgow oil man, was chosen chief Druid for life in 1964. A gnome-like man with jutting white beard and twinkling eyes like the late George Bernard Shaw, he says Druidism isn't really a religion.

"It's the art and science of living," he asserted. "It's not restricted to any civilization, any race of people, or any period in time."

Exchange Student Killed in Collision

OAKLAND (AP)—An Ethiopian exchange student was killed early Saturday in a two car accident here.

Police said a car driven by the victim, Samson Shifferaw, 22, went through a red light and was hit by another car. Shifferaw had been living in Oakland.

Vatican Reaffirms Women Still Must Wear Chapel Veils

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The secretary of the Vatican Congregation for Divine Worship said Saturday women still must cover their heads in church.

Msgr. Annibale Bugnini said reports on May 2 that the Vatican had ended the 1,900-year-old rule were "false, a terrible mistake."

Msgr. Bugnini said the rule for covered heads was in the canon law codes and had not been changed.

On May 2 the Vatican issued a decree of Pope Paul VI, titled "Missale Romanum" (Roman missal) which listed all the many changes in the Mass instituted since the Vatican Ecumenical Council.

The missal replaced one issued in 1570 by Pope Pius V.

Pope Paul's decree did not mention covering heads during Mass. Vatican experts said at the time such an omission amounted to repeal of the rule. Msgr. Bugnini had been among those quoted as saying so.

"This is absolutely untrue," Msgr. Bugnini said Saturday. "The decree did not mention head covers because it had nothing to do with them. They are included in the cannon law codes."

Canon No. 1262 of the code says: "Men in church or outside when attending a holy rite must be with their heads uncovered unless local traditions of the peoples prescribe differently or particular circumstances suggest they be covered.

"The women must have their heads covered and be dressed modestly, particularly when receiving the Holy Communion."

"This law has never been changed," Msgr. Bugnini said. "One can see that exceptions are mentioned only for the men, following local traditions. In a broader view, the exceptions can be extended to the women, but the rule remains."

Msgr. Bugnini said reports the rule had been eliminated derived from misunderstandings.

The Vatican press spokesman, Msgr. Fausto Vallainc, said the canon law codes now are being revised by a special commission.

"We cannot know whether the problem of head coverings in church is among the items being revised," he added.

Transport, Poverty Seen Equal Crises

DETROIT (AP) — U.S. Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe Friday declared the public transit crisis equals the nation's poverty problem, and ever-increasing numbers of passenger cars ultimately will choke the cities.

He told the nation's auto industry leaders meeting in Detroit they must crank up their efforts in public transit or face a "major slowdown of the economy's mobility."

The Automobile Manufacturers Association audience was told that transportation is a top priority item of the Nixon Administration.

CIVIL SERVICE APPRAISER PLAN HIT BY LAWYER

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The head of the California State Bar has sharply opposed State Controller Houston I. Flournoy's plan to place inheritance tax appraisers under civil service.

Samuel O. Pruitt Jr. said Flournoy's plan would have "an adverse impact on the court system and the administration of estates."

Pruitt, Los Angeles attorney and president of the bar's board of governors, said Flournoy's proposal to abolish independent local appraisers, now appointed by the controller, would require creation of 277 civil service positions in state government.

GE Space Project Cancelled

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. (AP) — Layoff notices have been sent 237 employees at General Electric's Space Technology Center following cancellation by the Defense Department of a multi-million dollar space project.

The notices affect engineers, scientists, salaried workers and production, secretarial and clerical workers.

A company spokesman said Saturday some notices become effective immediately while others will take some weeks to materialize.

EARLIER this month the Defense Department announced cancellation of the Manned Orbiting Laboratory for economy reasons. The department disclosed that $1.3 billion has already been spent on the program.

GE has been working on the space program since 1963 and has received $110 million in federal contracts.

Warren Court Legacy: Charter of Legal Rights

By CHARLOTTE MOULTON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Earl Warren's legacy to the nation on leaving the Supreme Court is a charter of legal rights for the Negro, the voter and the impoverished criminal suspect — and the wrath of critics who opposed him for 16 years.

By any ordinary yardstick, the Warren court probably will be deemed to have lasted from October 1953, when he took the post, until the end of the 1968-69 term in June.

Yet the currents set in motion during the tenure of the affable but controversial former governer of California are too powerful to eddy quickly. President Nixon's appointment of Warren E. Burger as Warren's successor may have impact on the course of the court, but the clock will never be turned back to the pre-Warren era of American life.

At virtually every level, the opinions of the Warren court put new life into the ideal of equality, which the Constitution expresses in the phrase "equal protection of the laws." During Warren's tenure, the court sought equal justice for all Americans — rich or poor, white or Negro, educated or illiterate — wherever they happen to live in the United States.

* * * * *

DURING THOSE turbulent years, the court was accused of coddling Communists and criminals and removing God from public life. Congress was frequently outraged. Some of the angrier critics demanded Warren's impeachment by billboard advertising and car bumper sticker.

But there is no arguing that new legal foundations were laid for the Negro, for the criminal suspect — particularly if he had no money — and for the voter.

In 1962 and 1963, the court made it clear that the government may not dictate prayers to be said by children in public schools.

In the late 1960s, new ground was broken for the poor. New rights were carved out for juveniles and restrictions were placed on government eavesdropping.

Serious questions were raised against capital punishment.

None of these subjects is closed. When the new term opens in October, with Burger in the chief juctice's chair, variations of all these problems will be there, too. But the "Burger court" will be working on a ready-made framework.

* * * *

WITH THE influence of Burger and whoever succeeds former Justice Abe Fortas, who on May 15 resigned under public criticism, the pace may slow down. But the trend is not likely to be reversed.

On racial matters, one thinks first of the famous 1954 school desegregation decision (written by Warren before his first term was out) which sparked the civil rights movement.

For all the court's statement that "separate educational facilities are inherently unequal," inequality still persists in many southern areas. Only since the passage of the 1964 Civil Rights Act, under which non-complying school districts may be denied federal funds, has the pace of integration increased.

At the start of the 1968-69 school year, about 20 per cent or 519,000 of the 2.5 million black children in the 11-state southern tier were attending schools with white children. Meantime the court vetoed "freedom of choice" plans which are not furthering pupil desegregation appreciably, and also has given a boost to teacher desegregation.

* * * *

NEGRO ATTORNEYS hope for a doubling of the current figures when schools start next fall. And now most black students are free to enroll in college and graduate schools as they wish.

These achievements did not come without cost. President Eisenhower was obliged to send U.S. Army troops to Little Rock, Ark., in 1957 to enforce court-ordered integration of Central High School; and riots occurred in Oxford, Miss., when the first Negro was admitted to the state university.

Because of rulings that followed the school cases, Negroes have access to parks and playgrounds, hotels and restaurants, beaches, swimming pools and other public places

EARL WARREN
Set Currents in Motion

which previously had been barred to them.

As a result of the Voting Rights Act of 1965, upheld by the Warren court, federal registrars registered 150,000 Negro voters in five Southern states and 550,000 more registered by themselves.

* * * *

THE COURT'S decisions in criminal law have drawn the most heated recent criticism. Any penniless person accused of a serious crime must now be provided with an attorney at the state's expense. Police who have a suspect in custody cannot use his confession unless they have warned him of his right to be silent and to have a lawyer.

Police have deplored the ruling on confessions but other top law enforcement figures, such as former U.S. Attys. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach and Ramsey Clark, disagree.

According to Katzenbach, the controversial Miranda vs. Arizona decision "has little relevance to the amount of crime we face today."

"Miranda will result in letting some who are guilty go free," he said, "but probably it affects less than one per cent of the serious crimes in the United States."

Justice Hugo L. Black, the court's senior member, was asked in a rare television interview if the decisions did not make it more difficult for police to combat crime. He replied, "certainly" then noted: "The court didn't do it, the constitution-makers did it."

* * * *

AS FOR EVESDROPPING, a law enforcement officer now must get authority from a judge for electronic surveillance, which is otherwise forbidden as an "unreasonable search." A criminal defendant whose conversations have been overheard without a permit may demand the records in court to determine whether any evidence against him was tainted by the illegal conduct.

The status of eavesdropping by the federal government in national security matters has not been fully determined.

The court in 1962 opened the doors of federal tribunals to complaints from city dwellers about rural control of state legislatures. Since the sequel to that "one man, one vote" decision, the legislatures of all 50 states have been reapportioned, all except in Maine under the pressure of citizen lawsuits.

Legislatures have reapportioned themselves in 33 states, the courts have done the job in eight states, and the others have come about through boards or commissions or some combination of the various methods.

* * * *

IN RULING OUT officially composed prayers, the Lord's Prayer and devotional Bible readings from public schools, the court said, "In the relationship between man and religion, the state is firmly committed to a position of neutrality."

Nevertheless the subject keeps flaring up. Only recently the towns of Brockton, Lowell and Leyden, Mass., were talking about restoring prayers in their schools.

Those living at the poverty level now are finding recourse in court mostly because of community legal services arranged through the Office of Economic Opportunity. Under a decision in the term now ending, if a welfare recipient wishes to set up housekeeping in another state, she no longer may be required to wait a year before receiving benefits in the new community. This rule applies to aid to dependent children, the aged, disabled and blind.

* * * *

IN DECLARING this, the court said the Constitution lets all citizens travel freely from one state to another without unreasonable burdens.

Another noteworthy Warren court decision dealt with rights of youngsters in trouble with the law. Juvenile courts, crowded and understaffed, may be a long way from enforcing the decision. But a youth charged with an offense is entitled to timely notice of the charges, the right to confront and cross-examine those who complained against him, and to protection against self-incrimination.

Capital punishment, which appears headed for eventual extinction (there have been no executions since June 2, 1967) received a blow when the court ruled that persons with scruples against it may not be kept off juries automatically.

* * * *

ALSO, BECAUSE of the Warren court, a man charged under the Lindbergh kidnap law may choose to be tried either by a judge or jury in the knowledge that the death penalty is no more likely in one choice than in the other. Previous to the court's 1968 action, if a defendant chose trial by jury he could be condemned to death, whereas a judge could impose a life sentence at the most.

The Warren court has been hopelessly divided on obscenity and its definition. In one case, the justices fashioned a standard for lower courts but only three of the nine would adhere to all of it.

When U.S. Solicitor General Erwin N. Griswold was dean of Harvard Law School he once criticized Warren for taking a view of Supreme Court cases more appropriate for a California governor than for a chief justice.

The words of one of Warren's opinions contains an answer. He said the provisions of the Bill of Rights were adopted as "restraints upon action by the government which trespass upon personal liberties reserved to the individual in our society."

$1 Million Granted for Black Study

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Ford Foundation, contending that black studies too long have been neglected in American colleges, Saturday announced a series of grants totaling $1 million to advance and improve Afro-American courses.

Afro-American studies at six institutions — Yale, Morgan State, Lincoln, Rutgers, Princeton and Howard — will be assisted. In addition, the foundation's funds will be used to help support 15 summer institutes on Negro history and culture to be attended by college faculty members; to provide paperback books on Afro-American history for 85 Negro colleges; and to assist Atlanta and Fisk universities and Tuskegee Institute in cataloging and restoring materials now in their library connections.

* * * *

"SUCH STUDIES have long been neglected, to the detriment of our understanding of important aspects of the nation's history and of the origins and experience of America's largest minority," F. Champion Ward, foundation vice president for education and research, said.

Ward said it was the Ford Foundation's belief that Afro-American studies should not be "fenced off."

"We are persuaded that these subjects will not achieve the place in the college curriculum which they deserve unless they are designed and taught in accordance with regular standards of learning and scholarship," Ward said. "To accomplish this, trained faculty and new course materials must be developed vigorously in the years ahead."

Warren Court Legacy: Charter of Legal Rights

For all the court's statement that "separate educational facilities are inherently unequal," inequality still persists in many southern areas. Only since the passage of the 1964 Civil Rights Act, under which non-complying school districts may be denied federal funds, has the pace of integration increased.

At the start of the 1968-69 school year, about 20 per cent or 519,000 of the 2.5 million black children in the 11-state southern tier were attending schools with white children. Meantime the court vetoed "freedom of choice" plans which are not furthering papil desegregation appreciably, and also has given a boost to teacher desegregation.

* * * *

NEGRO ATTORNEYS hope for a doubling of the current figures when schools start next fall. And now most black students are free to enroll in college and graduate schools as they wish.

These achievements did not come without cost. President Eisenhower was obliged to send U.S. Army troops to Little Rock, Ark., in 1957 to enforce court-ordered integration of Central High School; and riots occurred in Oxford, Miss., when the first Negro was admitted to the state university.

Because of rulings that followed the school cases, Negroes have access to parks and playgrounds, hotels and restaurants, beaches, swimming pools and other public places

EARL WARREN
Set Currents In Motion

which previously had been barred to them.

As a result of the Voting Rights Act of 1965, upheld by the Warren court, federal registrars registered 150,000 Negro voters in five Southern states and 550,000 more registered by themselves.

* * * *

THE COURT'S decisions in criminal law have drawn the most heated recent criticism. Any penniless person accused of a serious crime must now be provided with an attorney at the state's expense. Police who have a suspect in custody cannot use his confession unless they have warned him of his right to be silent and to have a lawyer.

Police have deplored the ruling on confessions but other top law enforcement figures, such as former U.S. Attys. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach and Ramsey Clark, disagree.

According to Katzenbach, the controversial Miranda vs. Arizona decision "has little relevance to the amount of crime we face today."

"Miranda will result in letting some who are guilty go free," he said, "but probably it affects less than one per cent of the serious crimes in the United States."

Justice Hugo L. Black, the court's senior member, was asked in a rare television interview if the decisions did not make it more difficult for police to combat crime. He replied, "certainly" then noted: "The court didn't do it, the constitution-makers did it."

* * * *

AS FOR EVESDROPPING, a law enforcement officer now must get authority from a judge for electronic surveillance, which is otherwise forbidden as an "unreasonable search." A criminal defendant whose conversations have been overheard without a permit may demand the records in court to determine whether any evidence against him was tainted by the illegal conduct.

The status of eavesdropping by the federal government in national security matters has not been fully determined.

The court in 1962 opened the doors of federal tribunals to complaints from city dwellers about rural control of state legislatures. Since the sequel to that "one man, one vote" decision, the legislatures of all 50 states have been reapportioned, all except in Maine under the pressure of citizen lawsuits.

Legislatures have reapportioned themselves in 33 states, the courts have done the job in eight states, and the others have come about through boards or commissions or some combination of the various methods.

* * * *

IN RULING OUT officially composed prayers, the Lord's Prayer and devotional Bible readings from public schools, the court said, "In the relationship between man and religion, the state is firmly committed to a position of neutrality."

Nevertheless the subject keeps flaring up. Only recently the towns of Brockton, Lowell and Leyden, Mass., were talking about restoring prayers in their schools.

Those living at the poverty level now are finding recourse in court mostly because of community legal services arranged through the Office of Economic Opportunity. Under a decision in the term now ending, if a welfare recipient wishes to set up housekeeping in another state, she no longer may be required to wait a year before receiving benefits in the new community. This rule applies to aid to dependent children, the aged, disabled and blind.

* * * *

IN DECLARING this, the court said the Constitution lets all citizens travel freely from one state to another without unreasonable burdens.

Another noteworthy Warren court decision dealt with rights of youngsters in trouble with the law. Juvenile courts, crowded and understaffed, may be a long way from enforcing the decision. But a youth charged with an offense is entitled to timely notice of the charges, the right to confront and cross-examine those who complained against him, and to protection against self-incrimination.

Capital punishment, which appears headed for eventual extinction (there have been no executions since June 2, 1967) received a blow when the court ruled that persons with scruples against it may not be kept off juries automatically.

* * * *

ALSO, BECAUSE of the Warren court, a man charged under the Lindbergh kidnap law may choose to be tried either by a judge or jury in the knowledge that the death penalty is no more likely in one choice than in the other. Previnus to the court's 1968 action, if a defendant chose trial by jury he could be condemned to death, whereas a judge could impose a life sentence at the most.

The Warren court has been hopelessly divided on obscenity and its definition. In one case, the justices fashioned a standard for lower courts but only three of the nine would adhere to all of it.

When U.S. Solicitor General Erwin N. Griswold was dean of Harvard Law School he once criticized Warren for taking a view of Supreme Court cases more appropriate for a California governor than for a chief justice.

The words of one of Warren's opinions contains an answer. He said the provisions of the Bill of Rights were adopted as "restraints upon action by the government which trespass upon personal liberties reserved to the individual in our society."

$1 Million Granted for Black Study

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Ford Foundation, contending that black studies too long have been neglected in American colleges, Saturday announced a series of grants totaling $1 million to advance and improve Afro-American courses.

Afro-American studies at six institutions — Yale, Morgan State, Lincoln, Rutgers, Princeton and Howard — will be assisted. In addition, the foundation's funds will be used to help support 15 summer institutes on Negro history and culture to be attended by college faculty members; to provide paperback books on Afro-American history for 85 Negro colleges; and to assist Atlanta and Fisk universities and Tuskegee Institute in cataloging and restoring materials now in their library connections.

* * * *

"SUCH STUDIES have long been neglected, to the detriment of our understanding of important aspects of the nation's history and of the origins and experience of America's largest minority," F. Champion Ward, foundation vice president for education and research, said.

Ward said it was the Ford Foundation's belief that Afro-American studies should not be "fenced off."

"We are persuaded that these subjects will not achieve the place in the college curriculum which they deserve unless they are designed and taught in accordance with regular standards of learning and scholarship," Ward said. "To accomplish this, trained faculty and new course materials must be developed vigorously in the years ahead."

Young Priests Oppose Pope on Birth Control

NEW YORK (UPI) — Five out of every seven Roman Catholic priests under 40 who responded to a McCall's magazine survey disagreed with Pope Paul's pronouncement on birth control.

In its current issue, McCall's said priests under 40 "differed so inordinately" from older priests who replied to the same survey "as to constitute almost a new species."

Nearly 700 priests throughout the United States replied to the lengthy quasetionnaire asking their opinions on a variety of topics. McCall's said the answers reveal "a diversity of opinion, a range of thought the average non-Catholic might never have suspected. But its most obvious and central theme was the generation gap."

Although five out of seven priests under the age of 40 disagreed with the pope's encyclical on birth control, only one in eight of those over 50 objected.

Younger priests also wanted to see church doctrine changed so priests could decide for themselves whether to marry or stay single.

The article said almost a third of the priests under 40 indicated they expect to see, in their lifetimes, a change in doctrine so priests will have a choice about whether or not to marry.

Other changes younger priests felt should be made are non-geographical parishes, with church members deciding for themselves which parish they will join; changes in canon law to permit some divorces and remarriages; multiple forms of worship and liturgy; and informal dialogue confessions and communal confessions.

Pair Filling In for Strikers Killed

MILWAUKEE, (AP) — Two supervisory employes, filling in for striking electrical workers, were killed Saturday when high voltage equipment at a substation in suburban Wauwatosa exploded.

The Wisconsin Electric Power Co. spokesman said the men who normally man the substation are members of Local 2150 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, who are on strike.

MALCOLM EPLEY

CLARK CLIFFORD, who as defense secretary had a big hand in running the Viet war for a while, says we ought to quit and get out. Now all we need is for Lyndon Johnson and Dean Rusk to denounce the war, and Dick Nixon will be left in charge of a big mistake which its chief perpetrators disown.

Clifford's words add weight to this conclusion: Whatever kind of a war it has been, it's not the kind that can be successfully pursued by a country like the United States.

The open forum in this country makes it impossible.

You can't fight a militarily limited "war of nerves" against an enemy that is constantly encouraged by a raging dispute in your country about the war's merits and with even some factions carrying the enemy's flag on the street.

If there had ever been any sustained solid backing at home for Lyndon Johnson he might have brought off the reasonable victory he sought. Even a quieting of the voices of dissent for a while for the sake of the country's objectives might have done it, updating peace by years.

But as long as the yowling continued and mounted it was out of the question to win without opening up, as could have been done, with blockade and invasion of North Vietnam.

YOU HEAR people ask how a big country like the U. S. could fail to overcome a dinky nation like North Vietnam.

Here's a better question: How could Hanoi lose with its opponents' staying their hand, militarily, and bungling their psychological aims by openly and bitterly arguing among themselves?

WHAT'S MORE, these same factors undermine our diplomatic efforts at the so-called peace table.

With their country showing mounting evidences of disagreement and irresolution, our emissaries are at a devastating disadvantage against the solidarity of the other side.

In the 1968 presidential campaign, Nixon noted that with our people in negotiation it was unwise for him to keep talking about the Viet war. Perhaps it was to some extent a convenient excuse for avoiding a touchy subject, but even so it had merit.

If everybody else on this side had kept their lips buttoned for a while, our negotiators might have at least made their voices heard.

But the raucous babble continued, with some of the nation's leading politicians going about the country bad-mouthing the war and in effect sabotaging the attempts of our peace table agents to bring it to a successful close.

BUT SOME voices will say that this is a democracy and that you've got to let things be argued openly. You've got to honor the right to dissent even to the point of permitting open sympathy and wild demonstrations on behalf of forces that are at the moment fighting and killing our countrymen.

O.K. If that's it, this country can't fight that kind of a war. It is, in fact, the price of probable defeat in that kind of a war.

Add to that price the blood of tens of thousands of America's young men. It will take a lot of rationalization to argue that we did not let them down. Never have so many given so much for so undeserving.

KAYAKS LOADED ON TRUCK FOR COLORADO RIVER TRIP

BY KAYAK ON THE COLORADO

Lakewood Scouts Plan Cruise

By DONNELL CULPEPPER
Outdoor Editor

A Lakewood Explorer Scout kayak odyssey is taking place on the Colorado River this week, with 17 boys and eight adults in the group.

River rats along the Colorado from Davis Dam to Blythe probably are going to think that the Indians and Eskimos are whooping it up again.

It all started last September when Explorer Post No. 242, Somerset District, Long Beach Area Council, was having a meeting and the post leader, Jeff Fawson, a McDonnell Douglas draftsman, mentioned kayaks and what fun they could be.

ANYBODY KNOWS THAT WHEN you mention fun to 14-to-18-year-old boys, things will start happening. And they did.

Post No. 242 is sponsored by the Mormon Church at 17650 Carpintero Ave., Lakewood.

Fawson borrowed molds from a friend in Orange County and the boys went to work laying and curing their own fiberglass halves, which later had to be bolted together, then glassed over to make each one waterproof—that is, as waterproof as any kayak can be.

The job took money and the boys worked at that, too.

They collected pottery and had a sale, staged a fish fry, put on a church breakfast and finally collected bottles to get enough funds for the kayaks.

It took four months to construct 26 kayaks, which are 13 feet, 8 inches long, 24 inches wide and 12 inches deep.

Each boy had a different idea as to color and there might have been mistakes, but one would never know it when the caravan took off late Friday from the church, carrying their kayaks on a truck and trailer.

New Poverty Chief Vows War on Waste

By GEORGE LAINE
Staff Writer

The newly elected chairman of the Long Beach Commission on Economic Opportunities believes there are "too many chiefs and not enough Indians" in the battlelines of the city's poverty war.

"If I don't do another thing in the year I'm chairman of this board," Mrs. Elizabeth Moore pledged during an interview with these newspapers, "I'm going to see to it they change that."

MRS. ELIZABETH MOORE

Mrs. Moore isn't new to the battle against substandard living conditions in the Long Beach area. A 21-year resident of the city — she lives on the westernmost street in the area abutting Wilmington — she was active as long ago as 1950 in fighting for housing in the Cabrillo area of San Pedro.

"Then, we were labeled," she said. "Now, we've got a lot of company. And we've got a lot of money. Most of both—the talent and the money—are wasted. It just makes me sick."

The advent of the poverty war brought new enthusiasm to Mrs. Moore's life and even the series of what she calls "disappointments with the way certain programs have been conducted" didn't dull that excitement.

"I'm certainly bothered by certain parts of the program in Long Beach," she said, "but I'm confident that the board will be able to produce a new and more meaningful direction for it all.

"I really dislike waste—any kind of waste. When I see that we're not using the talent we have on board in a way that would really make the poverty war in Long Beach successful, I almost want to cry."

WHAT MRS. MOORE plans to propose to her board of directors—a 45-member organization that represents poor, city and community in equal percentages—is a thorough reorganization of the Community Action Project (CAP) with a re-evaluation of all existing programs and a re-establishment of priorities.

"We're going to find out where the money goes, what it accomplishes and who it helps," she said. "If we feel the programs are good, they'll be continued. If not . . ."

She said she regretted the pitting "of north side versus east side and west side versus both" in the current tenor of poverty war activity in Long Beach.

"What we intend to do is change that to where we all want to fight for one side—the poor side—of Long Beach," she said.

"So far," she said, "the poverty war here has helped the rich get richer; the poor stay poor. Money has been poured into this city to aid those poor but only a really small number have been actually aided.

"We want to know how many people have been placed in jobs outside of the poverty agencies by CAP. We can't

Pastor Sees End of L.B. Ghetto Within Ten Years

By BILL HOMER
Staff Writer

The founder of the Opportunities Industrialization Center program Saturday termed the effort vital for Long Beach and said that within 10 years it could eliminate the city's "ghetto."

Rev. Leon Sullivan, of Philadelphia, a Baptist minister whose economic and educational program has spread to more than 75 cities since starting in an abandoned jailhouse five years ago, also lauded local OIC leaders and praised the city's government.

"The reception from the local governing body — Mayor (Edwin W.) Wade and the rest of the City Council — we received today was just fantastic," said Rev. Sullivan in an interview after receiving a clock-and-barometer "key" to the city from the mayor.

"Mayor Wade indicated to me that the city will give us its whole-hearted support in our effort to bring education and job skills to the disadvantaged people of this community."

The minister, who spoke on "The YOU in Human Relations" at Poly High Saturday night, praised the efforts of Percy Anderson, Long Beach OIC executive director, the Rev. L. Russell Morrison, chairman of its board of directors, and others currently active in the program.

He said Long Beach OIC could develop a substantial program within a year with a budget of several hundred thousand dollars. Rev. Sullivan said once well-developed, the program could train 300 persons at a time, and

County Eyes Work Camp in San Juan

If the federal government closes the Los Pinos Job Corps camp in the Santa Ana Mountains above San Juan Capistrano, Orange County may take it over.

County Administrator R. E. Thomas said Friday he "has no specific use" for the camp "but could invent one in a heck of a hurry."

He said it might become a rehabilitation camp for girls, just as Joplin Ranch in Trabuco Canyon is for boys. Or it might become a mountain retreat with its facilities leased occasionally as a summer camp for underprivileged children, a seminar headquarters for teacher-study groups or a county park.

Thomas said he will suggest to supervisors next Tuesday that the county apply for possession of the camp.

It consists of 480 acres a short distance off Ortega Highway in San Juan Canyon, not far from the El Cariso Guard Station of the U.S. Forest Service.

Facilities include seven dormitories, a mess hall for 250 persons, a gymnasium, classrooms, laundry, auto shop, woodshop, administration headquarters and service buildings.

A half mile above it is a meadow known as Los Pinos Potrero, improved with 51 family-camping sites and other facilities.

Boys assigned by the Job Corps to Los Pinos Camp laid a water line into the Potrero area and did other improvements.

Santa Ana Judge Will Quit Bench

Santa Ana Municipal Court Judge Leonard McBride disclosed Saturday he will resign from the bench July 1 to re-enter private law practice.

His announcement followed by a day selection of Orange County District Attorney Cecil M. Hicks as president of the Orange County Criminal Justice Council.

Judge McBride disclosed the council will propose modernization of Criminal procedures processes and will ask the State Criminal Justice Council for matching funds at its meeting in Sacramento June 26.

The local council wants grants for computerization of a central juvenile records index, automation of court procedures and records, a film and tape library to aid in training the county's law enforcement officers, and supplemental assistance to San Clemente police, whose duty will be expanded to help protect President Nixon at his summer residence in the south county city.

L.B. Free Clinic—Bold Try at Brotherhood Advancing

A large peace symbol and a plastic bucket with the sign "Any donations welcome" catch the visitor's eye as he enters the Long Beach Free Clinic at 2060 Atlantic Ave.

The peace emblem is symbolic of the young people who operate the clinic to help their "brothers and sisters" — anyone young or old, black or white, who requires medical aid or counseling.

The plastic bucket also is symbolic — it takes money to run a medical clinic.

Thomas E. Matthews, president of the nonprofit Long Beach Free Clinic Corporation, estimates expenses will come to $75,000 for the first year.

Salaries aren't a major expense.

The clinic hopes to be able to pay Administrative Director Ron Lofstrom a salary. Ron, who may have to give up his graduate studies at CSLB because of the job, will earn $250 a month. He will be the only paid member of the staff.

Major expenses will be rent for the nine-room clinic, medical equipment and supplies and training for staff members.

Because of help from local merchants, the Free Clinic was able to open for counseling services June 4.

Donors included Werner Electrical Co., which donated electrical supplies; Art's Lighting, which supplied lighting fixtures; and Southland Janitor Supplies, which donated custodial supplies.

A complete bathroom was installed in the clinic by Advance Plumbing.

Arrowhead Puritas Waters has promised one bottle of distilled water a month to the clinic, and John's Woodruff Pharmacy and several doctors have donated nonprescription medical supplies.

The clinic needs laboratory gear, pharmacy equipment, stethoscopes and other medical equipment. Also needed are cabinets and other office furnishings and equipment. Lofstrom now uses a

CLARK CLIFFORD, who as defense secretary had a big hand in running the Viet war for a while, says we ought to quit and get out. Now all we need is for Lyndon Johnson and Dean Rusk to denounce the war, and Dick Nixon will be left in charge of a big mistake which its chief perpetrators disown.

Clifford's words add weight to this conclusion: Whatever kind of a war it has been, it's not the kind that can be successfully pursued by a country like the United States.

The open forum in this country makes it impossible.

You can't fight a militarily limited "war of nerves" against an enemy that is constantly encouraged by a raging dispute in your country about the war's merits and with even some factions carrying the enemy's flag on the street.

If there had ever been any sustained solid backing at home for Lyndon Johnson he might have brought off the reasonable victory he sought. Even a quieting of the voices of dissent for a while for the sake of the country's objectives might have done it, updating peace by years.

But as long as the yowling continued and mounted it was out of the question to win without opening up, as could have been done, with blockade and invasion of North Vietnam.

YOU HEAR people ask how a big country like the U. S. could fail to overcome a dinky nation like North Vietnam.

Here's a better question: How could Hanoi lose with its opponents' staying their hand, militarily, and bungling their psychological aims by openly and bitterly arguing among themselves?

WHAT'S MORE, these same factors undermine our diplomatic efforts at the so-called peace table.

With their country showing mounting evidences of disagreement and irresolution, our emissaries are at a devastating disadvantage against the solidarity of the other side.

In the 1968 presidential campaign, Nixon noted that with our people in negotiation it was unwise for him to keep talking about the Viet war. Perhaps it was to some extent a convenient excuse for avoiding a touchy subject, but even so it had merit.

If everybody else on this side had kept their lips buttoned for a while, our negotiators might have at least made their voices heard.

But the raucous babble continued, with some of the nation's leading politicians going about the country bad-mouthing the war and in effect sabotaging the attempts of our peace table agents to bring it to a successful close.

BUT SOME voices will say that this is a democracy and that you've got to let things be argued openly. You've got to honor the right to dissent even to the point of permitting open sympathy and wild demonstrations on behalf of forces that are at the moment fighting and killing our countrymen.

O.K. If that's it, this country can't fight that kind of a war. It is, in fact, the price of probable defeat in that kind of a war.

Add to that price the blood of tens of thousands of America's young men. It will take a lot of rationalization to argue that we did not let them down. Never have so many given so much for so undeserving.

KAYAKS LOADED ON TRUCK FOR COLORADO RIVER TRIP

Lakewood Scouts Plan Cruise

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

A Lakewood Explorer Scout kayak odyssey is taking place on the Colorado River this week, with 17 boys and eight adults in the group.

River rats along the Colorado from Davis Dam to Blythe probably are going to think that the Indians and Eskimos are whooping it up again.

It all started last September when Explorer Post No. 242, Somerset District, Long Beach Area Council, was having a meeting and the post leader, Jeff Fawson, a McDonnell Douglas draftsman, mentioned kayaks and what fun they could be.

ANYBODY KNOWS THAT WHEN you mention fun to 14-to-18-year-old boys, things will start happening. And they did.

Post No. 242 is sponsored by the Mormon Church at 17650 Carpintero Ave., Lakewood.

Fawson borrowed molds from a friend in Orange County and the boys went to work laying and curing their own fiberglass halves, which later had to be bolted together, then glassed over to make each one waterproof—that is, as waterproof as any kayak can be.

The job took money and the boys worked at that, too.

They collected pottery and had a sale, staged a fish fry, put on a church breakfast and finally collected bottles to get enough funds for the kayaks.

It took four months to construct 26 kayaks, which are 13 feet, 8 inches long, 24 inches wide and 12 inches deep.

Each boy had a different idea as to color and there might have been mistakes, but one would never know it when the caravan took off late Friday from the church, carrying their kayaks on a truck and trailer.

New Poverty Chief Vows War on Waste

By GEORGE LAINE
Staff Writer

The newly elected chairman of the Long Beach Commission on Economic Opportunities believes there are "too many chiefs and not enough Indians" in the battlelines of the city's poverty war.

"If I don't do another thing in the year I'm chairman of this board," Mrs. Elizabeth Moore pledged during an interview with these newspapers, "I'm going to see to it they change that."

MRS. ELIZABETH MOORE

Mrs. Moore isn't new to the battle against substandard living conditions in the Long Beach area. A 21-year resident of the city — she lives on the westernmost street in the area abutting Wilmington — she was active as long ago as 1950 in fighting for housing in the Cabrillo area of San Pedro.

"Then, we were labeled," she said. "Now, we've got a lot of company. And we've got a lot of money. Most of both—the talent and the money—are wasted. It just makes me sick."

The advent of the poverty war brought new enthusiasm to Mrs. Moore's life and even the series of what she calls "disappointments with the way certain programs have been conducted" didn't dull that excitement.

"I'm certainly bothered by certain parts of the program in Long Beach," she said, "but I'm confident that the board will be able to produce a new and more meaningful direction for it all.

"I really dislike waste—any kind of waste. When I see that we're not using the talent we have on board in a way that would really make the poverty war in Long Beach successful, I almost want to cry."

WHAT MRS. MOORE plans to propose to her board of directors—a 48-member organization that represents poor, city and community in equal percentages—is a thorough reorganization of the Community Action Project (CAP) with a re-evaluation of all existing programs and a re-establishment of priorities.

"We're going to find out where the money goes, what it accomplishes and who it helps," she said. "If we feel the programs are good, they'll be continued. If not . . ."

She said she regretted the pitting "of north side versus east side and west side versus both" in the current tenor of poverty war activity in Long Beach.

"What we intend to do is change that to where we all want to fight for one side—the poor side—of Long Beach," she said.

"So far," she said, "the poverty war here has helped the rich get richer, the poor stay poor. Money has been poured into this city to aid those poor but only a really small number have been actually aided.

"We want to know how many people have been placed in jobs outside of the poverty agencies by CAP. We can't

Legislature set to enter computer stage

From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — California government, probably second in complexity and size only to the federal government, is about to take a typically progressive step.

Taking the step means spending money—just how much depends on just how fast the Legislature wants to go—but the return in legislative efficiency could be great.

After several years of study, the Joint Committee on Legislative Organization has put together a California legislative information program. Two retired Torrance computer experts, Jack Ledbetter and Charles Aubrey, are consultants to the joint committee headed by Assemblyman Eugene A. Chappie, R-Cook.

HOPEFULLY, THE program will permit members of the Legislature to have solid, up-to-date, factual information before them when they are trying to answer constituents' questions, when they are putting together a bill, or when they are considering the merits and potential results of someone else's proposed legislation.

Sen. Stephen P. Teale, chairman of the joint committee's Electronic Data Processing Subcommittee, predicted that the implementation of computers to the legislative process would eventually cut costs.

BOB SCHMIDT

For instance, when legislation in a particular area is suggested, existing statutes in the general subject area could be almost instantaneously "retrieved" from the computer's memory bank, plus, some day, any existing local ordinances dealing with the subjects.

SUCH RESEARCH NOW involves time spent pouring over books, checking out cross-references, writing letters or making telephone calls to other governmental agencies.

The Legislature's bill-drafting process will probably be the first governmental function involved in the program. Ledbetter and Aubrey are helping design a system now, and hope to complete the design by next year.

Then there will be a bill-drafting pilot operation running concurrently with the process as it now exists. Then, when the kinks are ironed out, the switch to complete reliance on the computer will occur, hopefully by 1972.

Computers already owned or leased by the state could be used in the early stages of the project, necessitating relatively little new capital outlay.

LEDBETTER AND AUBREY were president and vice president respectively of Associated Aero Science Laboratories, Inc., in Torrance, and between them brought some 50 years of experience in information gathering, storing, and retrieval to the joint committee.

Ledbetter has been with the committee since January, and Aubrey since April.

Considerably more preliminary work is to be done including figuring out how to fund the project—before the initial steps are actually taken toward implementation.

BUT THE DECISION to make the initial inquiry into the field is indicative of the constant desire of the Legislature to improve itself, even if it means, gadzooks, doing something differently than it's been done before.

Maybe Chappie's own activities this session had something to do with this enthusiasm for the project. Even though he is chairman of the powerful Assembly Rules Committee, he still had time to introduce 73 different pieces of legislation this year. Maybe, just maybe, some of them duplicated other bills already introduced or touched on areas already covered by existing but obscure statutes.

Tax reform should not hurt charity

TAX REFORM is the sort of cause that most of us feel impelled to support—until the nitty-gritty of reform measures comes into focus, revealing flaws as well as urgent improvements.

A case in point is to be found in the numerous tax changes either under review or tentatively approved by the House Ways and Means Committee.

THESE ORIGINATED from a variety of sources, primarily a U. S. Treasury report shortly before the departure of the Johnson Administration and a message to the Congress from President Nixon on April 21.

Among the Treasury proposals for restrictions on individual giving, some of the more questionable are:

—A floor on deductibility. Only gifts above 3 per cent of donor's adjusted income would be deductible in tax returns. The probable effect would be to discourage giving by persons of moderate and middle income.

—Restrictions on so-called "bargain sales." Under this device, a donor sells appreciated securities, or other appreciated property, to charity for his cost. He thus gives his profit. The proposal would require a donor to pay a capital gains tax.

—Comparable limitations on other forms of giving by high-income individuals. In tax jargon some of these forms are known as charitable remainder trusts, life income contracts and gift annuities; gifts of appreciated property; short-term charitable income trusts for benefit of churches, schools and hospitals; gifts of inventory; and tax-free use of property by charity.

In every case the effect would be to curtail the incentive for giving. Hard new limits would press down on charitable deductions in computing income and capital gains taxes.

The danger in some of these measures is that, under the respectable guise of "closing loopholes," they would cripple legitimate charitable and educational activities.

President Nixon's tax proposals are directed in part at curbing inflation. A genuine reform meriting passage is the President's recommendation to exempt the poor and near-poor—a family of four, as an example, with an income of only $3,500—from all federal income taxes.

A Treasury report of 1965 could apply with equal force to individual donors and to foundations. It says in part:

"PRIVATE PHILANTHROPY plays a special and vital role in our society. Beyond providing for areas into which government cannot or should not advance (such as religion), private philanthropic organizations can be uniquely qualified to initiate thought and action, experiment with new and untried ventures, dissent from prevailing attitudes and act quickly and flexibly . . . In doing so, they enrich the pluralism of our social order."

The Congress and the President should view tax reform in that light, curbing unwarranted escape from taxation but leaving incentives strong enough to protect the flow of private resources to private benevolences.

Pomp and circumstance

From the lull a new energy called c-o-a-l

YOU MAY THINK Congress has fallen asleep this year, Rep. Craig Hosmer, R-Long Beach, writes in his June newsletter. Last week Congressman Thomas Rees, D-Los Angeles, wrote a similar observation.

BOB HOUSER

This lack of activity has had a by-product — the creative lull. Hosmer filled his in an address a few days ago to the National Coal Association. He mentioned in preface the problem of the disposition of uranium enrichment plants and then alluded to "the probable emergence of a new competing energy source."

Hosmer was first apprised of the new energy source through a technical paper which, he said, emanated from a laboratory hastily established by refugee scientists in a squash court beneath the football stands at the University of West Virginia. The paper confirmed the actual existence of a substance known as coal.

FIRST FISSION, then fusion and now the exciting new concept of oxidation, Hosmer enthused, in constructing a parallel to the dawn of the Atomic Age.

"Some day," he said, "every family may even have a small coal reactor in its backyard, generating electricity which is too cheap to meter.

"Military applications of coal will, of course, be highly classified. But you may be certain that America does not intend to be second in the coal bomb race, and that coal deterrence will become the keystone of U.S. military strategy.

"We will build a sophisticated arsenal of A-bombs (Anthracite bombs), and Bituminous bombs."

The Congressman envisions great national coal laboratories at such places as Los Coalamos, N.M. and Coke Ridge, Tenn. He details also the necessity for a Coal Energy Commission, Joint Committee on Coal and billions in government spending, along with a coal-for-peace program.

But some scientists predict, said Hosmer, that coal, burned in a reactor, may create a very valuable by-product known as fly-ash "which we must learn to recycle in coal reactors."

Coal glory won't come easy, Hosmer cautions; atomic energy people will fight it, along with "kooks incapable of viewing coal in terms other than those of mushroom clouds belching from prurient seas of coal reactors, totally lacking redeeming social value."

BUT MOST attacks will focus on coal reactor safety, says Hosmer — its unknown genetic consequences. Coal foes will invoke terror with phrases like "carbon monoxide" and "sulphur dioxide." If a coal reactor's oxygen supply goes out of control, will it melt through the earth and come out in China?

Well, the fight goes on and Hosmer makes a prediction. At some future instant, a lil-ol-lady in Coalinga will activate her electric blender and plunge the entire nation into darkness; the last final overload on generating capacity will have occurred.

In the darkened hearing room of the coal and nuclear committees, above the "gentle sobbing of the chairman and the ranking minority member" will finally occur the realization that their bickering neglected their prime obligation to the nation — providing ample energy at lowest possible cost.

On that day, Hosmer concludes, they abandon their collision course. "They coalesce into a coalition and pledge for evermore to work together in the public interest. Thus will America emerge from her Dark Age."

The toughness of a 6-year-old

THE SURVIVAL and quick recovery of Matthew J. Zimmerman, after four days of wandering through the snowy San Bernardino Mountains without food or shelter, indicate that the human race may be hardier than many of us had supposed.

Well, not exactly the human race; instead, a wiry, active six-year-old whose natural endurance has not yet been frazzled by onrushing time.

Matthew recovered from his ordeal, apparently, without marks to mind or body. An adult subjected to the same experience would either die or be scarred for the rest of his life.

Many years ago, when Mel Ott was a slugging star with the Giants, he tried as an experiment to keep up with the physical pace of a healthy, vigorous youngster in Matthew's present age bracket. Ott, in his mid-twenties and a well-conditioned professional athlete, had to fall down long before the day was over.

We would like to speculate that Matthew kept alive because he was in an untainted environment and that if he had been similarly deprived in some smoggy, polluted city he couldn't have made it. But all that is fanciful. He survived because he is a prime specimen of six-year-old vitality. When he grows up, he will marvel at the miracle that has receded suddenly, as if in moments rather than years, far beyond his capability.

Crime toughest city problem

THE toughest job in America today is that of the mayor. He is beset at every turn by urgent demands and angry voices.

Mayor after mayor tells me that, with all his concerns about housing, education, jobs, and transportation, the most serious problem of all has become public safety.

The first duty, after all, of an elected official is the protection of life. Only then can he go on to the enrichment of life.

In the meantime, violence is disrupting our cities — its chief victims are the poor and often the black. Lawlessness is speeding the flight of talent and resources to the suburbs. Concern over crime is reflected in city election after city election.

CRIME IS often said to be a symptom of underlying social problems. It is that. But if crime cannot be brought under control, it will be difficult to make any improvement in social conditions. Therefore, the mayor who wants to improve the quality of life of his community is faced with the stark necessity of first providing security to all his citizens.

HUBERT HUMPHREY

When I was elected mayor of Minneapolis 25 years ago, my first job was to clean up the city, to drive out the racketeers and improve local law enforcement.

The problems of a mayor today are made much more difficult by racial tensions and the migration of the rural poor — black and white — into our cities. And the mayor's first contact with his new citizens is often through the police.

The modern-day policeman must be a better man than his predecessors. On the beat or in a patrol car, he is on the front line. No other public servant is asked to make such on-the-spot life or death decisions.

Yet most policemen are not well-trained and well-equipped. They are paid about two-thirds of a living wage for a family man — despite recent wage increases.

We must continue to increase salaries, fill the thousands of openings that now exist, and get our policemen out from behind desks and into the streets. The people need to feel that the police are close at hand, that the police are members of the community. Every precinct station should be a community center, not merely an arsenal.

LAW ENFORCEMENT should not be a cold-blooded use of power and authority. It is, above all, human relations. We need to humanize law enforcement.

Good law enforcement won't come cheap. The Safe Streets Act passed in 1968 provides $62 million this year to improve local law enforcement. I contend we must spend at least 10 times that amount to significantly improve our local police departments.

We must take a hard look at the fact that almost the entire increase in the crime rate since 1960 has been caused by young people.

Yet many juvenile courts remain understaffed and operate under laws passed 20 or 30 years ago. Juvenile judges either return young criminals to the streets or send them to correctional institutions for what all too often is advanced study in crime.

Desert training

EDITOR:

I just read where another child died in the desert because of lack of training and supervision. My heart aches when I read such stories because there is absolutely no need for it.

Camping is more than buying a camper, trailer or tent. This does not make an individual a camper in any sense of the word.

Many books are written on camping and anyone taking up camping should read up on the subject and train themselves and their children.

If possible no one should go out alone into the desert or mountains, but if they want to, they should follow a few simple rules. Tell someone which directions they are going (even a camping neighbor). Always take water, a map of the area, a compass, matches, a sweater, some small nourishment.

These are very simple rules that do not make you a sissy if you follow them. One of the most important rules of all, if you do get lost, SIT DOWN AND WAIT, DON'T WANDER.

Nixon has long delayed arms talks

WASHINGTON — There's a highly significant story behind President Nixon's delay in accepting Russian overtures for arms talks and the impatient pressure of his fellow Republicans in the House and Senate over his delay.

The story goes back to the winter of 1968 when President Johnson through his ambassador in Moscow, Llewellyn Thompson, made overture after overture to the Kremlin to begin missile and ABM limitation talks. Thompson is an extremely able diplomat. He got nowhere. It was reported that Chairman Brezhnev sided with the Red Army generals against any arms agreement.

But in June, 1968, just one year ago, Brezhnev apparently changed his mind. For Ambassador Thompson cabled the good news to Washington that Russia was willing to start arms talks.

These talks were to be announced on Aug. 21. Then came the invasion of Czechoslovakia on August 20.

Though the Czech invasion knocked his plans into a cocked hat, Johnson persevered.

After Nixon was elected, Johnson . . . proposed that they both go to Europe to meet the Russians. A journey by the President and president-elect, he argued, would dramatically demonstrate American political solidarity and the desire for an end of the deadly arms race.

DREW PEARSON

President-elect Nixon demurred. His advisers told him to make the Russian arms talks a Nixon project. If he acted with Johnson now, the outgoing Democrats would get the credit for peace.

So to make sure President Johnson did not go to Europe alone, Nixon specifically informed the Russians that he was opposed to starting the arms talks under Johnson's jurisdiction. That ended that.

On January 20, however, the Russians greeted Nixon's inauguration by issuing a friendly announcement that they were ready to begin arms talks immediately.

Nixon did not accept. He did, however, call in Soviet Ambassador Dobrynin to explain that he still wanted to talk missile disarmament and asked the Russians to be patient.

A reading of the Soviet press indicates that they were. Since then the Soviet press has been getting restless.

Chief reason for the Nixon delay was a plan for a package deal with Moscow. He wanted to tie the reduction of missiles and the ABM with peace in the Near East and Vietnam. Furthermore, Nixon wanted an agreement wrapped up and in the bag before he met with the Soviet leaders. He put across this type of package diplomacy — everything wrapped in a neat bundle — before he flew to Midway to confer with President Thieu, and he wants to do the same thing with the Russians.

This is not going to be easy. The problems are too big, too complex.

Tax reform should not hurt charity

TAX REFORM is the sort of cause that most of us feel impelled to support—until the nitty-gritty of reform measures comes into focus, revealing flaws as well as urgent improvements.

A case in point is to be found in the numerous tax changes either under review or tentatively approved by the House Ways and Means Committee.

THESE ORIGINATED from a variety of sources, primarily a U.S. Treasury report shortly before the departure of the Johnson Administration and a message to the Congress from President Nixon on April 21.

Among the Treasury proposals for restrictions on individual giving, some of the more questionable are:

—A floor on deductibility. Only gifts above 3 per cent of donor's adjusted income would be deductible in tax returns. The probable effect would be to discourage giving by persons of moderate and middle income.

—Restrictions on so-called "bargain sales." Under this device a donor sells appreciated securities, or other appreciated property, to charity for his cost. He thus gives his profit. The proposal would require a donor to pay a capital gains tax.

—Comparable limitations on other forms of giving by high income individuals. In tax jargon some of these forms are known as charitable remainder trusts, life income contracts and gift annuities; gifts of appreciated property; short-term charitable income trusts for benefit of churches, schools and hospitals; gifts of inventory; and tax-free use of property by charity.

In every case the effect would be to curtail the incentive for giving. Hard new limits would press down on charitable deductions in computing income and capital gains taxes.

The danger in some of these measures is that, under the respectable guise of "closing loopholes," they would cripple legitimate charitable and educational activities.

President Nixon's tax proposals are directed in part at curbing inflation. A genuine reform meriting passage is the President's recommendation to exempt the poor and near-poor—a family of four, as an example, with an income of only $3,500—from all federal income taxes.

A Treasury report of 1965 could apply with equal force to individual donors and to foundations. It says in part:

"PRIVATE PHILANTHROPY plays a special and vital role in our society. Beyond providing for areas into which government cannot or should not advance (such as religion), private philanthropic organizations can be uniquely qualified to initiate thought and action, experiment with new and untried ventures, dissent from prevailing attitudes and act quickly and flexibly . . . In doing so, they enrich the pluralism of our social order."

The Congress and the President should view tax reform in that light, curbing unwarranted escape from taxation but leaving incentives strong enough to protect the flow of private resources to private benevolences.

The toughness of a 6-year-old

THE SURVIVAL and quick recovery of Matthew J. Zimmerman, after four days of wandering through the snowy San Bernardino Mountains without food or shelter, indicate that the human race may be hardier than many of us had supposed.

Well, not exactly the human race; instead, a wiry, active six-year-old whose natural endurance has not yet been frazzled by on-rushing time.

Matthew recovered from his ordeal, apparently, without marks to mind or body. An adult subjected to the same experience would either die or be scarred for the rest of his life.

Many years ago, when Mel Ott was a slugging star with the Giants, he tried as an experiment to keep up with the physical pace of a healthy, vigorous youngster in Matthew's present age bracket. Ott, in his mid-twenties and a well-conditioned professional athlete, had to fall down long before the day was over.

We would like to speculate that Matthew kept alive because he was in an untainted environment and that if he had been similarly deprived in some smoggy, polluted city he couldn't have made it. But all that is fanciful. He survived because he is a prime specimen of six-year-old vitality. When he grows up, he will marvel at the miracle that has receded suddenly, as if in moments rather than years, far beyond his capability.

Desert training

EDITOR:

I just read where another child died in the desert because of lack of training and supervision. My heart aches when I read such stories because there is absolutely no need for it.

Camping is more than buying a camper, trailer or tent. This does not make an individual a camper in any sense of the word.

Many books are written on camping and anyone taking up camping should read up on the subject and train themselves and their children.

If possible no one should go out alone into the desert or mountains, but if they want to, they should follow a few simple rules. Tell someone which directions they are going (even a camping neighbor). Always take water, a map of the area, a compass, matches, a sweater, some small nourishment.

These are very simple rules that do not make you a sissy if you follow them. One of the most important rules of all, if you do get lost, SIT DOWN AND WAIT, DONT WANDER.

When are parents going to wake up?

Legislature set to enter computer stage

From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — California government, probably second in complexity and size only to the federal government, is about to take a typically progressive step.

Taking the step means spending money—just how much depends on just how fast the Legislature wants to go—but the return in legislative efficiency could be great.

After several years of study, the Joint Committee on Legislative Organization has put together a California legislative information program. Two retired Torrance computer experts, Jack Ledbetter and Charles Aubrey, are consultants to the joint committee headed by Assemblyman Eugene A. Chappie, R-Cook.

BOB SCHMIDT

HOPEFULLY, THE program will permit members of the Legislature to have solid, up-to-date, factual information before them when they are trying to answer constituents' questions, when they are putting together a bill, or when they are considering the merits and potential results of someone else's proposed legislation.

Sen. Stephen P. Teale, chairman of the joint committee's Electronic Data Processing Subcommittee, predicted that the implementation of computers to the legislative process would eventually cut costs.

For instance, when legislation in a particular area is suggested, existing statutes in the general subject area could be almost instantaneously "retrieved" from the computer's memory bank, plus, some day, any existing local ordinances dealing with the subjects.

SUCH RESEARCH NOW involves time spent pouring over books, checking out cross-references, writing letters or making telephone calls to other governmental agencies.

The Legislature's bill-drafting process will probably be the first governmental function involved in the program. Ledbetter and Aubrey are helping design a system now, and hope to complete the design by next year.

Then there will be a bill-drafting pilot operation running concurrently with the process as it now exists. Then, when the kinks are ironed out, the switch to complete reliance on the computer will occur, hopefully by 1972.

Computers already owned or leased by the state could be used in the early stages of the project, necessitating relatively little new capital outlay.

LEDBETTER AND AUBREY were president and vice president respectively of Associated Aero Science Laboratories, Inc., in Torrance, and between them brought some 50 years of experience in information gathering, storing, and retrieval to the joint committee.

Ledbetter has been with the committee since January, and Aubrey since April.

Considerably more preliminary work is to be done including figuring out how to fund the project—before the initial steps are actually taken toward implementation.

BUT THE DECISION to make the initial inquiry into the field is indicative of the constant desire of the Legislature to improve itself, even if it means, gadzooks, doing something differently than it's been done before.

Maybe Chappie's own activities this session had something to do with this enthusiasm for the project. Even though he is chairman of the powerful Assembly Rules Committee, he still had time to introduce 73 different pieces of legislation this year. Maybe, just maybe, some of them duplicated other bills already introduced or touched on areas already covered by existing but obscure statutes.

Crime toughest city problem

THE toughest job in America today is that of the mayor. He is beset at every turn by urgent demands and angry voices.

Mayor after mayor tells me that, with all his concerns about housing, education, jobs, and transportation, the most serious problem of all has become public safety.

The first duty, after all, of an elected official is the protection of life. Only then can he go on to the enrichment of life.

In the meantime, violence is disrupting our cities — its chief victims are the poor and often the black. Lawlessness is speeding the flight of talent and resources to the suburbs. Concern over crime is reflected in city election after city election.

CRIME IS often said to be a symptom of underlying social problems. It is that. But if crime cannot be brought under control, it will be difficult to make any improvement in social conditions. Therefore, the mayor who wants to improve the quality of life of his community is faced with the stark necessity of first providing security to all his citizens.

HUBERT HUMPHREY

When I was elected mayor of Minneapolis 25 years ago, my first job was to clean up the city, to drive out the racketeers and improve local law enforcement.

The problems of a mayor today are made much more difficult by racial tensions and the migration of the rural poor — black and white — into our cities. And the mayor's first contact with his new citizens is often through the police.

The modern-day policeman must be a better man than his predecessors. On the beat or in a patrol car, he is on the front line. No other public servant is asked to make such on-the-spot life or death decisions.

Yet most policemen are not well-trained and well-equipped. They are paid about two-thirds of a living wage for a family man — despite recent wage increases.

We must continue to increase salaries, fill the thousands of openings that now exist, and get our policemen out from behind desks and into the streets. The people need to feel that the police are close at hand, that the police are members of the community. Every precinct station should be a community center, not merely an arsenal.

LAW ENFORCEMENT should not be a cold-blooded use of power and authority. It is, above all, human relations. We need to humanize law enforcement.

Good law enforcement won't come cheap. The Safe Streets Act passed in 1968 provides $62 million this year to improve local law enforcement. I contend we must spend at least 10 times that amount to significantly improve our local police departments.

We must take a hard look at the fact that almost the entire increase in the crime rate since 1960 has been caused by young people.

Yet many juvenile courts remain understaffed and operate under laws passed 20 or 30 years ago. Juvenile judges either return young criminals to the streets or send them to correctional institutions for what all too often is advanced study in crime.

Nixon has long delayed arms talks

WASHINGTON — There's a highly significant story behind President Nixon's delay in accepting Russian overtures for arms talks and the impatient pressure of his fellow Republicans in the House and Senate over his delay.

The story goes back to the winter of 1968 when President Johnson through his ambassador in Moscow, Llewellyn Thompson, made overture after overture to the Kremlin to begin missile and ABM limitation talks. Thompson is an extremely able diplomat. He got nowhere. It was reported that Chairman Brezhnev sided with the Red Army generals against any arms agreement.

But in June, 1968, just one year ago, Brezhnev apparently changed his mind. For Ambassador Thompson cabled the good news to Washington that Russia was willing to start arms talk.

These talks were to be announced on Aug. 21. Then came the invasion of Czechoslovakia on August 20.

Though the Czech invasion knocked his plans into a cocked hat, Johnson persevered.

After Nixon was elected, Johnson . . . proposed that they both go to Europe to meet the Russians. A journey by the President and president-elect, he argued, would dramatically demonstrate American political solidarity and the desire for an end of the deadly arms race.

DREW PEARSON

President-elect Nixon demurred. His advisers told him to make the Russian arms talks a Nixon project. If he acted with Johnson now, the outgoing Democrats would get the credit for peace.

So to make sure President Johnson did not go to Europe alone Nixon specifically informed the Russians that he was opposed to starting the arms talks under Johnson's jurisdiction. That ended that.

On January 20, however, the Russians greeted Nixon's inauguration by issuing a friendly announcement that they were ready to begin arms talks immediately.

Nixon did not accept. He did, however, call in Soviet Ambassador Dobrynin to explain that he still wanted to talk missile disarmament and asked the Russians to be patient.

A reading of the Soviet press indicates that they were. Since then the Soviet press has been getting restless.

Chief reason for the Nixon delay was a plan for a package deal with Moscow. He wanted to tie the reduction of missiles and the ABM with peace in the Near East and Vietnam. Furthermore, Nixon wanted an agreement wrapped up and in the bag before he met with the Soviet leaders. He put across this type of package diplomacy — everything wrapped in a neat bundle — before he flew to Midway to confer with President Thieu, and he wants to do the same thing with the Russians.

This is not going to be easy. The problems are too big, too complex.

From the lull a new energy called c-o-a-l

YOU MAY THINK Congress has fallen asleep this year, Rep. Craig Hosmer, R-Long Beach, writes in his June newsletter. Last week Congressman Thomas Rees, D-Los Angeles, wrote a similar observation.

BOB HOUSER

This lack of activity has had a by-product — the creative lull. Hosmer filled his in an address a few days ago to the National Coal Association. He mentioned in preface the problem of the disposition of uranium enrichment plants and then alluded to "the probable emergence of a new competing energy source."

Hosmer was first apprised of the new energy source through a technical paper which, he said, emanated from a laboratory hastily established by refugee scientists in a squash court beneath the football stands at the University of West Virginia. The paper confirmed the actual existence of a substance known as coal.

FIRST FISSION, then fusion and now the exciting new concept of oxidation, Hosmer enthused, in constructing a parallel to the dawn of the Atomic Age.

"Some day," he said, "every family may even have a small coal reactor in its backyard, generating electricity which is too cheap to meter.

"Military applications of coal will, of course, be highly classified. But you may be certain that America does not intend to be second in the coal bomb race, and that coal deterrence will become the keystone of U.S. military strategy.

"We will build a sophisticated arsenal of A-bombs (Anthracite bombs), and Bituminous bombs."

The Congressman envisions great national coal laboratories at such places as Los Coalamos, N.M. and Coke Ridge, Tenn. He details also the necessity for a Coal Energy Commission, Joint Committee on Coal and billions in government spending, along with a coal-for-peace program.

But some scientists predict, said Hosmer, that coal, burned in a reactor, may create a very valuable by-product known as fly-ash "which we must learn to recycle in coal reactors."

Coal glory won't come easy, Hosmer cautions; atomic energy people will fight it, along with "kooks incapable of viewing coal in terms other than those of mushroom clouds belching from prurient seas of coal reactors, totally lacking redeeming social value."

BUT MOST attacks will focus on coal reactor safety, says Hosmer — its unknown genetic consequences. Coal foes will invoke terror with phrases like "carbon monoxide" and "sulphur dioxide." If a coal reactor's oxygen supply goes out of control, will it melt through the earth and come out in China?

Well, the fight goes on and Hosmer makes a prediction. At some future instant, a lil-ol-lady in Coalinga will activate her electric blender and plunge the entire nation into darkness; the last final overload on generating capacity will have occurred.

In the darkened hearing room of the coal and nuclear committees, above the "gentle sobbing of the chairman and the ranking minority member" will finally occur the realization that their bickering neglected their prime obligation to the nation — providing ample energy at lowest possible cost.

On that day, Hosmer concludes, they abandon their collision course. "They coalesce into a coalition and pledge for evermore to work together in the public interest. Thus will America emerge from her Dark Age."

attitudes and black people keep their attitudes, the problem is always going to be there.

(The panel was questioned about changes taking place at Poly as a result of interracial study committee recommendations adopted two years ago by the Board of Education.)

GREG BURDEN: You can have all the changes you want. You can have a black principal, you can have any color principal you want, but you're still going to have blacks and whites going to that school. You're still going to have the same black and white problems.

People just don't want to get along. Either that or they ignore it, which may be the most important problem. They just go to their own homes . . . never thinking about it, and that might be the worst thing of all . . .

("What makes Poly so different" from other U.S. high schools with large Negro minorities? was the question.)

GORDON HARTSTEIN: Because it is centered right in the black community . . . We whites come from surrounding areas into Poly, and it's set right in the middle. This may be superficial, but parking is a problem, parking in places where it's rather unsafe to walk to school (and where) things happen to your car. This has caused quite a bit of resentment among the whites, I think.

GREG BURDEN: Then you've got the other side. It's like the whites have been a ruling class at Poly; being in the majority they control student government . . . and most of the other things.

On the other hand, you've got the blacks (in a school) centered in the middle of the black community. You can see how they would feel. (Greg recalled his years in a predominately white junior high school to which people "were bussed from outside.")

You can't help resent outsiders coming in . . . I think whites for too long took it for granted that Poly was their school . . . and it's only been the last three or four years when blacks have made any real big contributions . . .

DON WALLACE: I don't think that is necessarily it, because I don't feel the whites are the ruling class at Poly. Yet, I can get plenty mad about some of the things that go on there, so I don't really think that is the problem.

That's an old attitude (that) we are talking about right now . . . you can talk about things in the past . . but the problem is here right now . . .

I think it lots of times, I know it lots of times, that the blacks feel as though the whites are getting the upper hand, and the whites feel as though the blacks are getting the upper hand. (He discussed in detail emotions felt by representatives of both races who may feel "the other guy" received, because of race, more lenient disciplinary treatment. And continues:)

That builds a lot of resentment, too, and I think that is one of our main problems. You say to an administrator that there may be favoritism . . . and they always say there is none.

The biggest thing the administration could do to begin with, is to make sure, to try at all times, to make sure all discipline is administered as fairly as it possibly can be. Before the blacks and whites can begin to feel some harmony, they have got to feel they are being treated on an equal level. As long as they feel someone is getting the upper hand, they are going to be mad.

MICHAEL BERNSTEIN: You say the administration should be made to treat everybody fairly? Now I'm not saying there aren't a lot of improvements that could be made, but I think there are a couple of people in our administration who really do a good job. That is just my opinion — but if you had an all white administration or an all black, who's to say what's fair when it concerns a black or white person?

If a black person gets suspended, that person still is going to feel he was treated unfairly. If a white person gets suspended, he's going to feel he was treated unfairly. So you've got to determine what's fair and what's not, because, I don't care if you have the perfect administration, whenever it comes up between a black and a white there is always going to be that difference.

DON WALLACE: I wasn't pointing out anything wrong with the administration, although there are some that I don't like and some that I do. You have to make a difference between right and wrong, but there is always going to be that distinction. Ever since time started there's been right and wrong. People try to make the decision . . . and they have to be consistent; they've got to really think.

MIKE BERNSTEIN: There is such a difference with some people between right and wrong, fair and unfair. Just the same, I still couldn't see your point because if the administration might think it's right, it still could reflect as unfair upon some of the students.

GORDON HARTSTEIN: Well, sure, the students would feel it's unfair, that they have been mistreated. The thing is, the administration is going to have to enforce the rule that has been broken to the letter.

I think one of our very biggest problems is (an administration) that has made more and more allowances for black students . . . who have been getting the upper hand with the administration. It has been building up and building up, starting to snowball into a problem that was more than any administration could handle. It was bound to break out in some type of violence . . .

(Hartstein suggested the administration "actually is afraid to impose a rule or penalty on a black student or some white students because of a fear of repercussions." He continues:)

They felt they could kind of give a little bit here and a little bit more there and kind of keep things quiet. But they can't do that . . . That was one of the basic problems with our administration.

(When panelists were asked to challenge this statement, Bernstein and Hartstein briefly discussed which administrator was being labelled "lenient." There was no agreement on this point and the basic allegation went unchallenged. Talk then turned to administrative action, or lack of action, on the critical morning of May 28.)

GREG BURDEN: When the thing first broke out, he (presumably Principal Genero B. Garcia) knew . . . it was going to break into riot scale, and he did not bring police on campus to stop it. . . . I remember I was standing there (by an attendance office) watching and wondering, "Where are the police, why isn't this thing stopped?"

(Police and school records indicate officers were summoned to Poly on the morning of May 28. A chronology of events compiled from the two sources indicate:

(Juvenile officers first were called to break up a fight shortly after classes began at 8:30 a.m. By 10:15 a.m. reinforcements were requested by school officials. At about 11 a.m. further strength was sought when an officer was downed.

(There was a general discussion of responsibility in which Wallace declared "The administration has a responsibility to the students . . . to protect kids that are getting hurt." And Burden averred that "the school is responsible for those who got hurt . . ."

(The question then was asked whether tensions existing at Poly this year "prevented the average student from pursuing his education.")

GREG BURDEN: I don't know if your education was disrupted, but it's always in the back of your mind —the tension. You can feel it when you go to Poly High School. If you have black friends—which I think everyone has; well, some people don't—they talk about it all the time.

. . . Let's say this year, I heard complaints (that) we have too much black entertainment (in special assemblies). That's what the whites told me, and I heard the same thing on the black side. . .

(As for off-campus clubs) They—not naming names or anything—talk with their friends and say stuff about a "Double standard." It's probably the same way on the other side, I don't know.

It's just there, the tension is always there. It's been there this year, it was there last year and it was there when I was a sophomore. It just got worse this year because it broke out in the open . . .

The problem is with the people, ourselves, not with the administration. It's not the classes or the improvements; it's just the attitude of the people. I think we are in a position right now where we can change our attitudes because we are young . . .

(Panelists were asked, "What would you do if you were principal?")

DELL HUTCHINSON: I would have a special kind of council or something to decide the kind of curriculum is needed at Poly . . . which is probably necessary at all schools whether they have black students or not. They (administration) just can't go out and say we're going to have a black history class or a white history class because in making distinctions like that, there is a resentment . . . there has to be one class.

As far as disciplinary problems, I just have to stick to the rules to the letter . . . and you've got to be sure everybody is in class at all times.

THURMAL STRICKLAND: A person should be able to take black history and not have it mixed with regular history because, right now, I don't think there would be enough qualified teachers to teach a mixed history class. I think that probably could come in the next ten years.

At the moment, I'd make it strictly black history because right now I don't think there is time to be wasted . . .

DON WALLACE: If I was principal—and I don't have any aspirations for the job—I (might) think there was too much emphasis on the black and white problem . . .

THURMAL STRICKLAND: One thing I'd do is to give all teachers the idea I believe in fair enforcement of discipline; I don't think this is an administrative problem (for) too many teachers are using their own set of standards . . . with favorites . . . who may be the troublemakers. This could be half the problem . . . (In class) there is too much emphasis on facts and not enough on people and their reaction to problems.

Like I'm saying, the whites didn't understand the blacks' feelings, they didn't understand the blacks wanted to have some of their own heritage brought into the schools.

You can call it what you want, "communication gap" or whatever, but you have to make both sides understand the position of the other.

(Miss Strickland suggested the school is "too concerned" with achievement tests when it should be looking into more humanistic aspects, working to improve relations "through such programs as the recent IRCC, Interracial Conferences." She continued:)

Keep people talking to each other and maybe even help a few understand what's going on.

GORDON HARTSTEIN: I refuse to take any part in becoming principal, but if I were, I think we should have the IRCC program. The most important thing is the system of teaching. We never talk about things in the outside world at Poly, we just go about our business.

. . . We can't talk about the Apollo shot or anything, because we've got to get the work done that a committee alloted us. I think that's just as important as the past because we are making the future.

I think there should be a course where we can have the opportunity to talk about the problems.

HARTSTEIN: We tried, I can honestly say we made an effort to stave off, at least temporarily, the problem . . . We tried to have conferences between blacks and whites.

(He was asked for recommendations to his successor, Mike Bernstein.)

HARTSTEIN: Continue IRCC for sure. Try all you can to communicate.

On Monday the student panel concludes with further suggestions on strengthening communications at Poly High School.

L. A. C. SAYS

As colleges prepare for the fall session

By L.A. COLLINS SR.

WHEN THE FALL SESSIONS open for colleges and universities across the nation students prepare for more demonstrations to enforce demands for changes — when few of them seem to know what changes are needed. A Gallup Poll taken early in May on 55 different campuses indicated most of the students agreed with many of the demands made by the militants but disagreed on how these demands were to be achieved.

Of all students interviewed 28 per cent said they had taken part in demonstrations and 72 per cent said they had not. But 75 per cent of all students said they thought they should have a greater say concerning the academic side of college courses, examinations and class requirements. This is quite a different view than that of the general public which disagrees with the students by a 75 per cent margin.

THIS IS WHERE THE generation gap shows up. The older people, many of them college graduates, can not see where domination of colleges should be by the young people who demand the changes — right now, as is the slogan of so many. But it is not so different when you find so many of the students agreeing that violence is not the way to achieve their demands.

The causes for unrest go much deeper than simple dissatisfaction with our colleges, one Yale student told the Gallup Poll. We all feel the sting of an immoral war, prejudice against Negroes and widespread poverty. We want to do something about these problems. We want our colleges as a sounding board.

That seems to sum up the attitude of the students interviewed. It is a natural attitude for the young people. But they are destroying their effectiveness by the violence and "non-negotiable" demands they are making. They are disregarding the fact that so much is being done to correct the injustices they say they are demonstrating against.

A recent week of violence on the Berkeley campus brought about over 750 arrests. The university officials say of this number 272 were UC Berkeley students. There were about 480 arrests, including 46 juveniles who were not students. It is an example of how non-students are a big factor in the riots occurring on campuses across the country.

WHEN GALLUP POLLSTERS asked "Why do you think students are demonstrating — that is, what is the biggest gripe"? The answers varied, with 42 per cent saying "not enough say in running the college, 22 per cent said current inadequacies of society, 16 per cent objected to the Vietnam war. Others want to have their voices heard, only 6 per cent were concerned over civil rights.

It is frustrating to students not to have control over all these factors. But it is more frustrating to their parents and the general public that our school systems are experiencing this terrible turmoil in view of the great efforts that have been made to correct the injustices claimed. It is the reason why it is essential that we use police and national guard units to protect the kind of education these young people sought for when they went to college. Improvements are necessary. But all the militants and their supporters are doing is to bring about a police state to protect public property and the rights of the great majority of students who seek freedom to have an education free of anarchy and of police state protection.

That's an old attitude (that) we are talking about right now . . . you can talk about things in the past . . . but the problem is here right now . . .

I think it lots of times, I know it lots of times, that the blacks feel as though the whites are getting the upper hand, and the whites feel as though the blacks are getting the upper hand. (He discussed in detail emotions felt by representatives of both races who may feel "the other guy" received, because of race, more lenient disciplinary treatment. And continues:)

That builds a lot of resentment, too, and I think that is one of our main problems. You say to an administrator that there may be favoritism . . . and they always say there is none.

The biggest thing the administration could do to begin with, is to make sure, to try at all times, to make sure all discipline is administered as fairly as it possibly can be. Before the blacks and whites can begin to feel some harmony, they have got to feel they are being treated on an equal level. As long as they feel someone is getting the upper hand, they are going to be mad.

MICHAEL BERNSTEIN: You say the administration should be made to treat everybody fairly? Now I'm not saying there aren't a lot of improvements that could be made, but I think there are a couple of people in our administration who really do a good job. That is just my opinion — but if you had an all white administration or an all black, who's to say what's fair when it concerns a black or white person?

If a black person gets suspended, that person still is going to feel he was treated unfairly. If a white person gets suspended, he's going to feel he was treated unfairly. So you've got to determine what's fair and what's not, because, I don't care if you have the perfect administration, whenever it comes up between a black and a white there is always going to be that difference.

DON WALLACE: I wasn't pointing out anything wrong with the administration, although there are some that I don't like and some that I do. You have to make a difference between right and wrong, but there is always going to be that distinction. Ever since time started there's been right and wrong. People try to make the decision . . . and they have to be consistent, they've got to really think.

MIKE BERNSTEIN: There is such a difference with some people between right and wrong, fair and unfair. Just the same, I still couldn't see your point because if the administration might think it's right, it still could reflect as unfair upon some of the students.

GORDON HARTSTEIN: Well, sure, the students would feel it's unfair, that they have been mistreated. The thing is, the administration is going to have to enforce the rule that has been broken to the letter.

I think one of our very biggest problems is (an administration) that has made more and more allowances for black students . . . who have been getting the upper hand with the administration. It has been building up and building up, starting to snowball into a problem that was more than any administration could handle. It was bound to break out in some type of violence . . .

(Hartstein suggested the administration "actually is afraid to impose a rule or penalty on a black student or some white students because of a fear of repercussions." He continues:)

They felt they could kind of give a little bit here and a little bit more there and kind of keep things quiet. But they can't do that . . . That was one of the basic problems with our administration.

(When panelists were asked to challenge this statement, Bernstein and Hartstein briefly discussed which administrator was being labelled "lenient." There was no agreement on this point and the basic allegation went unchallenged. Talk then turned to administrative action, or lack of action, on the critical morning of May 28.)

GREG BURDEN: When the thing first broke out, he (presumably Principal Genero B. Garcia) knew . . . it was going to break into riot scale, and he did not bring police on campus to stop it. . . . I remember I was standing there (by an attendance office) watching and wondering, "Where are the police, why isn't this thing stopped?"

(Police and school records indicate officers were summoned to Poly on the morning of May 28. A chronology of events compiled from the two sources indicate:

(Juvenile officers first were called to break up a fight shortly after classes began at 8:30 a.m. By 10:15 a.m. reinforcements were requested by school officials. At about 11 a.m. further strength was sought when an officer was downed.

(There was a general discussion of responsibility in which Wallace declared "The administration has a responsibility to the students . . . to protect kids that are getting hurt." And Burden averred that "the school is responsible for those who got hurt . . ."

(The question then was asked whether tensions existing at Poly this year "prevented the average student from pursuing his education.")

GREG BURDEN: I don't know if your education was disrupted, but it's always in the back of your mind —the tension. You can feel it when you go to Poly High School. If you have black friends—which I think everyone has; well, some people don't—they talk about it all the time.

. . . Let's say this year, I heard complaints (that) we have too much black entertainment (in special assemblies). That's what the whites told me, and I heard the same thing on the black side. . .

(As for off-campus clubs) They—not naming names or anything—talk with their friends and say stuff about a "Double standard." It's probably the same way on the other side, I don't know.

It's just there, the tension is always there. It's been there this year, it was there last year and it was there when I was a sophomore. It just got worse this year because it broke out in the open . . .

The problem is with the people, ourselves, not with the administration. It's not the classes or the improvements; it's just the attitude of the people. I think we are in a position right now where we can change our attitudes because we are young . . .

(Panelists were asked, "What would you do if you were principal?")

DELL HUTCHINSON: I would have a special kind of council or something to decide the kind of curriculum is needed at Poly . . . which is probably necessary at all schools whether they have black students or not. They (administration) just can't go out and say we're going to have a black history class or a white history class because in making distinctions like that, there is a resentment . . . there has to be one class.

As far as disciplinary problems, I just have to stick to the rules to the letter . . . and you've got to be sure everybody is in class at all times.

THURMAL STRICKLAND: A person should be able to take black history and not have it mixed with regular history because, right now, I don't think there would be enough qualified teachers to teach a mixed history class. I think that probably could come in the next ten years.

At the moment, I'd make it strictly black history because right now I don't think there is time to be wasted . . .

DON WALLACE: If I was principal—and I don't have any aspirations for the job—I (might) think there was too much emphasis on the black and white problem . . .

THURMAL STRICKLAND: One thing I'd do is to give all teachers the idea I believe in fair enforcement of discipline; I don't think this is an administrative problem (for) too many teachers are using their own set of standards . . . with favorites . . . who may be the troublemakers. This could be half the problem . . . (In class) there is too much emphasis on facts and not enough on people and their reaction to problems.

Like I'm saying, the whites didn't understand the blacks' feelings, they didn't understand the blacks wanted to have some of their own heritage brought into the schools.

You can call it what you want, "communication gap" or whatever, but you have to make both sides understand the position of the other.

(Miss Strickland suggested the school is "too concerned" with achievement tests when it should be looking into more humanistic aspects, working to improve relations "through such programs as the recent IRCC, Interracial Conferences." She continued:)

Keep people talking to each other and maybe even help a few understand what's going on.

GORDON HARTSTEIN: I refuse to take any part in becoming principal, but if I were, I think we should have the IRCC program. The most important thing is the system of teaching. We never talk about things in the outside world at Poly, we just go about our business.

. . . We can't talk about the Apollo shot or anything, because we've got to get the work done that a committee alloted us. I think that's just as important as the past because we are making the future.

I think there should be a course where we can have the opportunity to talk about the problems.

HARTSTEIN: We tried, I can honestly say we made an effort to stave off, at least temporarily, the problem . . . We tried to have conferences between blacks and whites.

(He was asked for recommendations to his successor, Mike Bernstein.)

HARTSTEIN: Continue IRCC for sure. Try all you can to communicate.

On Monday the student panel concludes with further suggestions on strengthening communications at Poly High School.

L. A. C. SAYS

As colleges prepare for the fall session

By L.A. COLLINS SR.

WHEN THE FALL SESSIONS open for colleges and universities across the nation students prepare for more demonstrations to enforce demands for changes — when few of them seem to know what changes are needed. A Gallup Poll taken early in May on 55 different campuses indicated most of the students agreed with many of the demands made by the militants but disagreed on how these demands were to be achieved.

Of all students interviewed 28 per cent said they had taken part in demonstrations and 72 per cent said they had not. But 75 per cent of all students said they thought they should have a greater say concerning the academic side of college courses, examinations and class requirements. This is quite a different view than that of the general public which disagrees with the students by a 75 per cent margin.

THIS IS WHERE THE generation gap shows up. The older people, many of them college graduates, can not see where domination of colleges should be by the young people who demand the changes — right now, as is the slogan of so many. But it is not so different when you find so many of the students agreeing that violence is not the way to achieve their demands.

The causes for unrest go much deeper than simple dissatisfaction with our colleges, one Yale student told the Gallup Poll. We all feel the sting of an immoral war, prejudice against Negroes and widespread poverty. We want to do something about these problems. We want our colleges as a sounding board.

That seems to sum up the attitude of the students interviewed. It is a natural attitude for the young people. But they are destroying their effectiveness by the violence and "non-negotiable" demands they are making. They are disregarding the fact that so much is being done to correct the injustices they say they are demonstrating against.

A recent week of violence on the Berkeley campus brought about over 750 arrests. The university officials say of this number 272 were UC Berkeley students. There were about 480 arrests, including 46 juveniles who were not students. It is an example of how non-students are a big factor in the riots occurring on campuses across the country.

WHEN GALLUP POLLSTERS asked "Why do you think students are demonstrating — that is, what is the biggest gripe"? The answers varied, with 42 per cent saying "not enough say in running the college, 22 per cent said current inadequacies of society, 16 per cent objected to the Vietnam war. Others want to have their voices heard, only 6 per cent were concerned over civil rights.

It is frustrating to students not to have control over all these factors. But it is more frustrating to their parents and the general public that our school systems are experiencing this terrible turmoil in view of the great efforts that have been made to correct the injustices claimed. It is the reason why it is essential that we use police and national guard units to protect the kind of education these young people sought for when they went to college. Improvements are necessary. But all the militants and their supporters are doing is to bring about a police state to protect public property and the rights of the great majority of students who seek freedom to have an education free of anarchy and of police state protection.

An amphibious operation by a Navy-Marine team is an apparent routine thing in its planning the responsibility of individuals reaches a zenith.

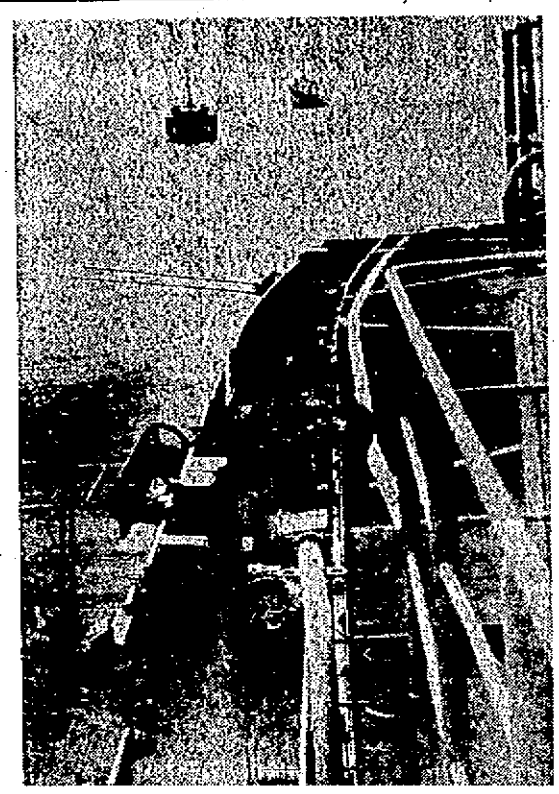

"My orders and plans are no good if all the equipment is not ready at H-Hour," RAdm. Edwin M. Rosenberg said aboard his flagship, USS Estes.

It was the day before Bell Call sent over 1,100 Marines across Camp Pendleton's white beach, supported by 35 ships and an air wing.

Rosenberg, commander of Amphibious Group 3, would have been in a bind if USS Point Defiance of EM 3.C. had failed to complete repairs on a landing craft in USS Point Defiance's engine shop.

"Less than 100 per cent is not good enough," Rosenberg said.

He said Bell Call was geared to improve combat skills and practice in the use of supporting arms and equipment.

Tested out, too, was a hookup between the Navy Tactical Data Systems and the Marine TDS plus some other classified communication and detection systems.

And BM 2.C. Jerry Diviney, 452 W. 10th St., Long Beach, loomed as an important man for the boat launch aboard the Long Beach attack transport USS Okanagon.

Flight deck firemen on the amphibious assault carrier SS Princeton could have been the most vital men in the exercise if a helicopter fire had developed prior to lift-off.

The fire truck, driven by AB 3.C. Ray White, Colfax, La., is dubbed "Volunteer."

Marine Lt. Col. John Bany with his troops aboard the amphibious transport dock USS Dubuque stayed busy with final plans. His Leathernecks would go off in roaring waves of tracked amphibious vehicles from Dubuque's well deck.

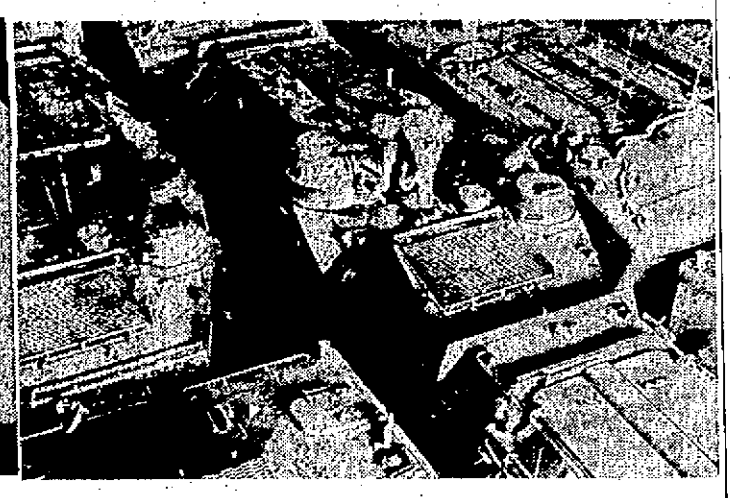

"Will all the engines start?" he mused. His mechanice could have skated their final tuneup work and three months planning and nearly a tone of paper work would have gone down the drain.

They did start.

have the program just keeping people in jobs to keep them in jobs—there has to be some better, some bigger goal."

MOST VITAL NEED at this time, she believes, is the establishment of a working line of communications between her board, CAP officials and employes and the community at large.

"We could have the best programs in the world—which we don't—and if we couldn't figure out how to tell the community about them, it wouldn't make any difference."

The current imbroglio within CAP, in which some officials are being investigated, will also be a major target for Mrs. Moore.

"We're going to look at all these things very closely," she said. "There's no one person in Long Beach who is bigger or more important than this poverty program and that includes me.

"What we're—what I'm—interested in isn't whether a thing is black or white but whether its right or wrong."

LEGAL AID FOUNDER HONORED BY PEERS

Lawyer Marvin E. Tincher, chairman of the Long Beach Legal Aid Foundation for four years, was commended by the city's Bar Association for devotion to "assuring equal justice for all citizens irrespective of their economic status."

Tincher, who worked since 1954 to establish and perfect a legal aid service here, was instrumental in getting the first federal grant for the service in 1966.

"He is a man of uncompromising integrity and a staunch advocate of the effective participation by the Long Beach Bar Association in its continued service to low-income families in this area, the resolution said.

Saturday morning they put the kayaks into the water below Davis Dam, which holds the water of Mohave Lake, and they will take the Eskimo-type boats out of the water eight days later at Blythe.

The trip by no means is just a paddling job from Davis Dam to Blythe. The boys and men plan to fish, practice water-skiing, hunt frogs and do some shooting.

They also will participate in conservation projects along the river and clean up camps that were left by untidy people. The conservation and cleanup work will give them chances to win special merit badges.

It also will afford the boys an opportunity to take pictures—it seems that every boy has a camera — and the men will make movies for showing at church and other group meetings to stimulate interest in that type of scouting.

The Ditto Division of Bell and Howell has donated a duplicating machine and an anonymous donor brought in a copy machine which Lofstrom hopes to trade for office equipment.

Since June 4, the Long Beach Free Clinic has referred 131 patients to the appropriate medical or other agencies, according to Lofstrom.

"We've got doctors and nurses and other volunteers donating their services," Lofstrom explained. "Today I got a letter from the Long Beach Medical Association saying Dr. Jerome A. Cope would represent the association on the Free Clinic Advisory Board."

While the clinic will not offer medical services until it is licensed, it now offers counseling services ranging from draft, poverty, hunger and hard times to "problem pregnancies."

Leaving the office, another sign catches the eye. It says: "Long Beach Free Clinic Loves You."

He traced development of OIC in Philadelphia from it's community-inspired beginnings to its present state.

"When we started this program, we were housed in a one-time jailhouse," he said.

"It seemed to me then, and it still does now, that the key to breaking the poverty cycle was to get the people within the community to start their own self-help program.

"That's what we did, and through a three-fold operation — improving attitudes persons had about their own value, skill training and establishing inter-community cooperation — we have developed a program that adds $20 million to the city's economy each year."

Rev. Sullivan said Philadelphia's OIC has placed more than 7,000 persons in jobs, gives classroom training to 1,500 persons daily and brings skill development to about 4,000 persons a year.

The Ditto Division of Bell and Howell has donated a duplicating machine and an anonymous donor brought in a copy machine which Lofstrom hopes to trade for office equipment.

Since June 4, the Long Beach Free Clinic has referred 131 patients to the appropriate medical or other agencies, according to Lofstrom.

"We've got doctors and nurses and other volunteers donating their services," Lofstrom explained. "Today I got a letter from the Long Beach Medical Association saying Dr. Jerome A. Cope would represent the association on the Free Clinic Advisory Board."

While the clinic will not offer medical services until it is licensed, it now offers counseling services ranging from draft, poverty, hunger and hard times to "problem pregnancies."

Leaving the office, another sign catches the eye. It says: "Long Beach Free Clinic Loves You."

promise 90 per cent placement in skilled jobs.

He traced development of OIC in Philadelphia from it's community-inspired beginnings to its present state.

"When we started this program, we were housed in a one-time jailhouse," he said.

"It seemed to me then, and it still does now, that the key to breaking the poverty cycle was to get the people within the community to start their own self-help program.

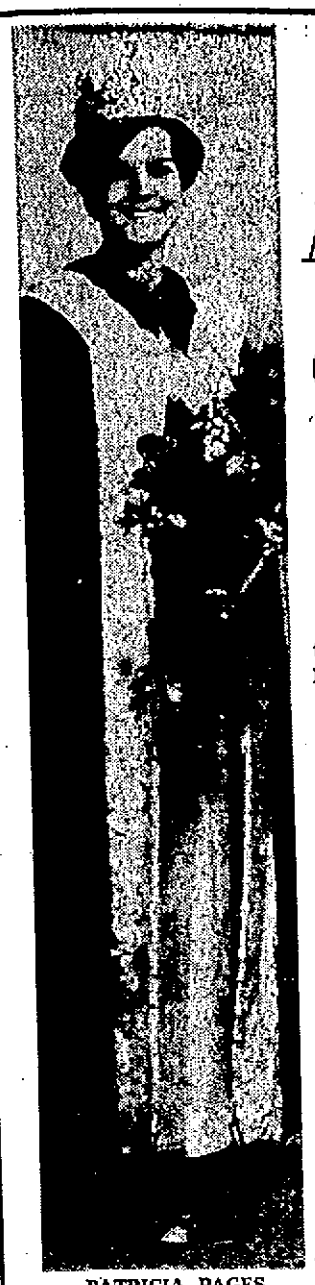

"That's what we did, and through a three-fold operation — improving attitudes persons had about their own value, skill training and establishing inter-community cooperation — we have developed a program that adds $20 million to the city's economy each year."

Rev. Sullivan said Philadelphia's OIC has placed more than 7,000 persons in jobs, gives classroom training to 1,500 persons daily and brings skill development to about 4,000 persons a year.

Midsummer Celebration

Southland Swedish-Americans and Scandinavian-Americans today continue celebration of the annual Midsummer Festival with an all-day picnic at Vasa Park in the Agours area.

The picnic follows a coronation ball for the festival queen, held Saturday at the Mayflower Ballroom in Inglewood. Patricia Pages of San Pedro is this year's festival monarch.

Today, the park, just off the Ventura Freeway, was to open at 9 a.m. Scandinavian herring breakfast or ham and eggs will be served all day.

Swedish church services are scheduled for 11 a.m., with the Swedish Hollywood Club Chorus taking part.

Children's games and contests as well as the raising of the Maypole will be held in early afternoon. The March of the Midsummer Queen and her court and a stage program begin at 3 p.m.

In the late afternoon and evening, there will be dancing.

The event is open to the public.

Vasa Park is reached by driving the Ventura Freeway to Kanan Road overpass in Agoura, following Kanan Road into the Malibu Mountains to Triunfo Canyon Road.

Landmark in Naples Park to Go

A long-time Naples landmark moved a step closer to extinction last week, but councilmen were told a more appropriate structure is to take its place.

The City Council awarded a $27,428 contract to GTS Co. for removal of the underground septic tank and its concrete-column vent in Bella Flora Park.

The cavity created by removal of the tank will be filled with sand, and the surface will be planted with lawn.

City Manager John R. Mansell told councilmen Tuesday the 1969-70 city beautification program will include installation of a Neapolitan-type fountain and completion of landscaping in the park, which is at the intersection of Ravenna Drive and The Toledo.

In another park improvement project, councilmen awarded a $7,781 contract to Norman Phillips Construction Co. for work on the overlook at Scherer Park.

Carson Puzzle: Economy Move Would Create Tax

Establishment of a municipal public works department could save the city of Carson as much as $116,000 per year, councilmen learned Saturday at a budget workshop session.

Present county contract costs are $401,280 for such functions as street maintenance and sweeping, traffic control, roadside trees and other public works functions.

City Administrator Fred Bien estimated the city could perform the same function for $286,000 per year. However, in the first year, capital outlay for equipment such as street sweepers and specialized vehicls could run as high as $190,000.

One function the council would like to take over is maintenance of sanitary sewers, which Bien estimated could be handled for $35,000 per year.

However, councilmen do not want to take over the service without obtaining the present $71,650 that pays for it from special district property taxes.

But the problem is all five councilmen pledged not to establish any city property tax when the city was incorporated.

Even though the function could be performed for half as much money under city services, councilmen are reluctant to be charged with authorizing a city property tax — even when it's the renaming of an existing tax.

Nixon Has Hopes for Viet Pullout

By DON HASTINGS

The War

President Richard Nixon told a news conference Thursday he hopes all American ground combat troops can be withdrawn from Vietnam during 1970. His statement was in reply to a proposal by Clark M. Clifford, secretary of defense at the end of the Johnson Administration, that 100,000 troops be pulled out by the end of 1969 and the rest by the end of 1970. The President said, "I hope we can beat his timetable . . ."

* * * *

OF THE 25,000 TROOPS already ordered out of Vietnam, about 8,000 will be returned to the United States. The rest will be assigned to installations within short flying range of the war zone, it was announced earlier in the week.

* * * *

The West

The dispute over fishing rights off Latin American nations flared again with the seizure by Ecuador of six California tuna boats. One, the Caribbean out of San Pedro, skippered by Frank Gargas of San Pedro, was taken into custody Thursday. It was being held at Galapagos Islands. The other five vessels, all from San Diego, were seized Friday, but released shortly after without being required to pay the usual fines.

* * * *

BERKELEY'S "PEOPLE'S PARK" was dealt a death blow Friday by the University of California Board of Regents who voted, 16-7, to build a parking lot and playing field on the property, with housing planned for the near future. The university-owned land had been turned into a park by "street people" and violent demonstrations erupted last month when UC fenced it off.

* * * *

A FORMER LIFEGUARD remembered his training last week. Gov. Ronald Reagan, a life guard during summers while attending high school and college, jumped fully-clothed into his swimming pool and rescued a 7-year-old who had tumbled in over her head. The child, Alicia Berry, doesn't swim. She is the daughter of a file clerk in the governor's office and among 200 guests at a staff party at the Reagan home in Sacramento.

FOR THE FIRST TIME since the table grape strike-boycott began more than three years ago, there appeared to be a break. Representatives of 10 major growers and the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee met with federal mediators in Los Angeles Friday.

* * * *

A SIX-YEAR-OLD BOY WANDERED lost in the snow-splotched Mt. San Gorgonio wilderness area for four days before being found by searchers Wednesday. Matthew Zimmerman of Calabasas was unconscious and near death when found lying in eight inches of snow behind a fallen tree. The child's heart and breathing stopped while he was being flown to a San Bernardino hospital in an Air Force helicopter, but he was revived with heart massage and mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. He was expected to recover.

* * * *

REPUBLICANS PICKED UP ANOTHER seat in the California Assembly Tuesday when Robert G. Wood of Salinas easily defeated Democrat Fred S. Farr in a special election. The victory gave the GOP control of the Assembly, 41-39. Republicans also control the Senate, 21-19.

* * * *

RETAIL CLERKS UNION MEMBERS voted to accept a new contract with the Food Employers Council and ended a 20-day strike-lockout that hampered supermarket operations in the Los Angeles area.

The World

The Middle East erupted. Arab artillery shelled an Israeli tourist center at the northern end of the Dead Sea at midweek, killing a 25-year-old American teacher, Shirley Anderson, of Rochester, N.Y. The Israelis retaliated with jet bombing and strafing attacks over Jordan. On Friday, three explosions near the Wailing Wall rocked Jerusalem. Four persons were injured, including two American tourists, Marianne Freulach and Adriane Black, of Pacific Palisades.

* * * *

A LANDSLIDE VICTORY was won by Gaullist Georges Pompidou over moderate Alain Poher as Frenchmen went to the polls last week to elect a president to succeed Charles de Gaulle.

IRELAND'S VOTERS also went to the polls last week and gave Prime Minster Jack Lynch an outright majority for his Fianna Fail Party in the lower house of Parliament.

WORLD COMMUNISTS CONCLUDED an 11-day summit conference in Moscow with a unity statement blasting the United States as the sworn enemy of liberation movements and called for worldwide demonstrations against the "barbarous persecution" of American Negroes.

The Nation

Members of the House violated the Constitution when they voted to exclude Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., from the 90th Congress, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled Monday. Powell was excluded on the grounds he had misused public funds and was stripped of 22 years of seniority and lost $55,000 in pay during the time he was out of office. Re-elected by his Harlem constituency, he was allowed to take his seat for the current session on the condition he pay a $25,000 fine levied by the 90th Congress.

The general feeling among congressmen was the Supreme Court had no business considering the case because the legislative branch of government has the exclusive right to judge the qualification of members.

* * * *

CONSERVATIVES LED THE FIELD in Tuesday's New York City primary elections. State Sen. John J. Marchi defeated Mayor John V. Lindsay for the Republican mayoral nomination and city Comptroller Mario A. Procaccino won the Democratic bid over former Mayor Robert F. Wagner. Lindsay, as candidate of the Liberal Party, still will appear on the general election ballot in November.

EAGER SUPERVISION

A young Vietnamese orphan watches intently as Shipfitter 2.C. Phil Jaspar of Long Beach bolts on the final support bar before erecting the swing set. Petty Officer Jaspar, a Millikan graduate, designed and built the four-seat set for the Mo Cay Orphanage in the Mekong Delta.

VIETNAM SANTA

L.B. Sailor Builds Joy for Orphans

MO CAY—A Long Beach sailor has a unique way of fighting Communist agression in South Vietnam.

He does it in his spare time from his duties with the Mobile Riverine Force in the Mekong Delta.

Shipfitter 2.C. Phil Jaspar, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Halbert L. Jaspar, 2054 Studebaker Road, is the "good humor man" for 60 homeless children in Mo Cay.

There is no white suit, musical turck or ice cream — just his green tropical uniform, and he travels by whatever means available.

His pay is friendship.

River Flotilla's Public Affairs Office presents it this way:

It all started when Jaspar first reported to the auxiliary repair ship USS Sphinx, operating with the Army-Navy Mobile Riverine Force.

JASPAR wanted to contribute more to the American effort than his primary job of repairing the flotilla's mini-gunboats. But, he was aboard ship most of the time and seldom given the opportunity of being with the Vietnamese.

After checking into the vast civic action program he found the solution.

While some Riverine sailors and soldiers had written letters to friends and organizations back home requesting clothes, medicines, toys, candy and the like, Petty Officer Jaspar decided he could make a more personal contribution.

HE UTILIZED his professional skills and spare parts from his repair shop to build playground equipment for the unfortunate children.

Jaspar, with help from Fireman Terry Tiffany, Englewood, Colo., built a swing set from spare piping, chains and wood. The assembled set was transferred to the flagship USS Benewah for Army helicopter transfer to Mo Cay.

The helo also carried 225 pounds of clothes, medicine, toys, and food others had contributed plus four willing sailor assistants.

It was with pure delight that the Vietnamese youngsters watched the sailors assemble the swing set while the other men were distributing the food, clothes and medicine.

"This type of work," Jaspar said, "gives a guy a genuine feeling of satisfaction. Just to see these kids smile in appreciation of a small gift makes it all worthwhile. I want to do more, much more."

As Jaspar left the orphanage he was heard to say: "All we need for a seesaw is one notched 3 by 12 board, some pipe . . ."

City Awards $135,725 Light Improvements

A $135,725 contract for improvement of the Third Street Lighting District has been awarded by the City Council to C.T.&F., Inc., of Bell Gardens.

The work will involve installation of 165 street lights with 175-watt mercury vapor lamps and 91 standards with 400-watt mercury vapor lamps.

The district covers the area bounded by Seventh Street, Junipero Avenue, Appleton Street and Alamitos Ave.

Annexation Opposed in Carson

Carson councilmen are so strongly opposed to Assembly Bill 125 that they wouldn't wait for a resolution to be presented at Monday's council meeting to express their objections to area legislators.

The bill, sponsored by Assemblyman Larry Townsend (D - Torrance), would permit cities to annex territory by jumping over the ½-mile wide Los Angeles strip. It allows a city to annex unincorporated territory separated from its border by a strip of another city providing the separation is 3,000 feet or less.

While an opposing resolution is being prepared by the city attorney, City Administrator Fred Bien has sent letters expressing the council's opposition to the proposal to Assemblymen Vincent Thomas and Mike Cullen and to State Sens. Ralph Dills and Joseph Kennick.

When the bill was discussed at Monday's council meeting, the first reaction was that Torrance was making an attempt to annex a section of unincorporated territory between Carson and the L.A. Strip that was eliminated from the original Carson incorporation election by action of the Local Agency Formation Commission of the county.

Unlicensed Bikes Loss for Owner

There are more unlicensed bicycles on the streets of Long Beach now than ever before in the history of the city's licensing program, police say.

As a result, police storage rooms for recovered stolen bicycles are filled, and only a small percentage of the two-wheelers will be returned to their owners.

Metal license plates may be obtained for 50 cents at most bicycle shops. The bike must be taken to the licensing agency for installation of the plate, according to Juvenile Officer Bob Brenner of the police bicycle detail.

Brenner says stolen bicycles can be recovered at the police department storeroom, 822 W. Fifth St., on Thursdays between 3:30 p.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Hong Kong Tunnel

HONG KONG (UPI) — The government is planning to build a vehicular tunnel under Hong Kong's Kaitak Airport to ease traffic in the Kwun Tong industrial area in Kowloon, a spokesman said Saturday. Construction of the half-mile long tunnel is expected to cost about $8.3 million.

RED CROSS NEEDS BLOOD

Only four per cent of the population provides all the blood the nation uses, according to the American Red Cross.

And, say Red Cross officials, during the summer this "mighty four per cent" is not always sure protection for the other 96 per cent. Some of the suppliers are away from home and the steady flow falters.

At the same time, the need is greater. Summer highway and vacation mishaps strain the Red Cross supply.

Other donors are then necessary to make sure the blood is sufficient for all needs.

The Long Beach Blood Center, 240 W. Willow, is open Monday and Tuesday, 3:30 to 7 p.m. and Wednesday and Thursday, noon to 4 p.m.

JFK Square Rites

RAMBOUILLET, France (UPI) — Mrs. Sargent Shriver, wife of the U.S. ambassador to France, inaugurated a square here Saturday in honor of her late brother, President John F. Kennedy. Mrs. Shriver made a brief speech recalling the work of her brother, particularly in dealing with youth problems.

WEEK IN REVIEW

Nixon Has Hopes for Viet Pullout

By DON HASTINGS

The War

President Richard Nixon told a news conference Thursday he hopes all American ground combat troops can be withdrawn from Vietnam during 1970. His statement was in reply to a proposal by Clark M. Clifford, secretary of defense at the end of the Johnson Administration, that 100,000 troops be pulled out by the end of 1969 and the rest by the end of 1970. The President said, "I hope we can beat his timetable . . ."

OF THE 25,000 TROOPS already ordered out of Vietnam, about 8,000 will be returned to the United States. The rest will be assigned to installations within short flying range of the war zone, it was announced earlier in the week.

AMERICAN CASUALTIES ROSE in the fighting. The U.S. Command in Saigon reported 335 men killed in action and 1,695 wounded during the week ended June 14. The death total was 83 higher than the preceding week and reflected a general increase in the fighting tempo.

The West

The dispute over fishing rights off Latin American nations flared again with the seizure by Ecuador of six California tuna boats. One, the Caribbean out of San Pedro, skippered by Frank Gargas of San Pedro, was taken into custody Thursday. It was being held at Galapagos Islands. The other five vessels, all from San Diego, were seized Friday, but released shortly after without being required to pay the usual fines.

BERKELEY'S "PEOPLE'S PARK" was dealt a death blow Friday by the University of California Board of Regents who voted, 16-7, to build a parking lot and playing field on the property, with housing planned for the near future. The university-owned land had been turned into a park by "street people" and violent demonstrations erupted last month when UC fenced it off.

* * * *

A FORMER LIFEGUARD remembered his training last week. Gov. Ronald Reagan, a life guard during summers while attending high school and college, jumped fully-clothed into his swimming pool and rescued a 7-year-old who had tumbled in over her head. The child, Alicia Berry, doesn't swim. She is the daughter of a file clerk in the governor's office and among 200 guests at a staff party at the Reagan home in Sacramento.

FOR THE FIRST TIME since the table grape strike-boycott began more than three years ago, there appeared to be a break. Representatives of 10 major growers and the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee met with federal mediators in Los Angeles Friday.

* * * *

A SIX-YEAR-OLD BOY WANDERED lost in the snow-splotched Mt. San Gorgonio wilderness area for four days before being found by searchers Wednesday. Matthew Zimmerman of Calabasas was unconscious and near death when found lying in eight inches of snow behind a fallen tree. The child's heart and breathing stopped while he was being flown to a San Bernardino hospital in an Air Force helicopter, but he was revived with heart massage and mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. He was expected to recover.

* * * *

REPUBLICANS PICKED UP ANOTHER seat in the California Assembly Tuesday when Robert G. Wood of Salinas easily defeated Democrat Fred S. Farr in a special election. The victory gave the GOP control of the Assembly, 41-39. Republicans also control the Senate, 21-19.

* * * *

RETAIL CLERKS UNION MEMBERS voted to accept a new contract with the Food Employers Council and ended a 20-day strike-lockout that hampered supermarket operations in the Los Angeles area.

The World

The Middle East erupted. Arab artillery shelled an Israeli tourist center at the northern end of the Dead Sea at midweek, killing a 25-year-old American teacher, Shirley Anderson, of Rochester, N.Y. The Israelis retaliated with jet bombing and strafing attacks over Jordan. On Friday, three explosions near the Wailing Wall rocked Jerusalem. Four persons were injured, including two American tourists, Marianne Freulach and Adriane Black, of Pacific Palisades.

* * * *

A LANDSLIDE VICTORY was won by Gaullist Georges Pompidou over moderate Alain Poher as Frenchmen went to the polls last week to elect a president to succeed Charles de Gaulle.

IRELAND'S VOTERS also went to the polls last week and gave Prime Minster Jack Lynch an outright majority for his Fianna Fail Party in the lower house of Parliament.

WORLD COMMUNISTS CONCLUDED an 11-day summit conference in Moscow with a unity statement blasting the United States as the sworn enemy of liberation movements and called for worldwide demonstrations against the "barbarous persecution" of American Negroes.

The Nation

Members of the House violated the Constitution when they voted to exclude Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., from the 90th Congress, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled Monday. Powell was excluded on the grounds he had misused public funds and was stripped of 22 years of seniority and lost $55,000 in pay during the time he was out of office. Re-elected by his Harlem constituency, he was allowed to take his seat for the current session on the condition he pay a $25,000 fine levied by the 90th Congress.

The general feeling among congressmen was the Supreme Court had no business considering the case because the legislative branch of government has the exclusive right to judge the qualifications of members.

CONSERVATIVES LED THE FIELD in Tuesday's New York City primary elections. State Sen. John J. Marchi defeated Mayor John V. Lindsay for the Republican mayoral nomination and city Comptroller Mario A. Procaccino won the Democratic bid over former Mayor Robert F. Wagner. Lindsay, as candidate of the Liberal Party, still will appear on the general election ballot in November.

EAGER SUPERVISION

A young Vietnamese orphan watches intently as Shipfitter 2.C. Phil Jaspar of Long Beach bolts on the final support bar before erecting the swing set. Petty Officer Jaspar, a Millikan graduate, designed and built the four-seat set for the Mo Cay Orphanage in the Mekong Delta.

L.B. Sailor Builds Joy for Orphans

MO CAY — A Long Beach sailor has a unique way of fighting Communist agression in South Vietnam.

He does it in his spare time from his duties with the Mobile Riverine Force in the Mekong Delta.

Shipfitter 2.C. Phil Jaspar, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Halbert L. Jaspar, 2054 Studebaker Road, is the "good humor man" for 60 homeless children in Mo Cay.

There is no white suit, musical turck or ice cream — just his green tropical uniform, and he travels by whatever means available.

His pay is friendship.

River Flotilla's Public Affairs Office presents it this way:

It all started when Jaspar first reported to the auxiliary repair ship USS Sphinx, operating with the Army-Navy Mobile Riverine Force.

JASPAR wanted to contribute more to the American effort than his primary job of repairing the flotilla's mini-gunboats. But, he was aboard ship most of the time and seldom given the opportunity of being with the Vietnamese.

After checking into the vast civic action program he found the solution.

While some Riverine sailors and soldiers had written letters to friends and organizations back home requesting clothes, medicines, toys, candy and the like, Petty Officer Jaspar decided he could make a more personal contribution.

HE UTILIZED his professional skills and spare parts from his repair shop to build playground equipment for the unfortunate children.

Jaspar, with help from Fireman Terry Tiffany, Englewood, Colo., built a swing set from spare piping, chains and wood. The assembled set was transferred to the flagship USS Benewah for Army helicopter transfer to Mo Cay.

The helo also carried 225 pounds of clothes, medicine, toys, and food others had contributed plus four willing sailor assistants.

It was with pure delight that the Vietnamese youngsters watched the sailors assemble the swing set while the other men were distributing the food, clothes and medicine.

"This type of work," Jaspar said, "gives a guy a genuine feeling of satisfaction. Just to see these kids smile in appreciation of a small gift makes it all worthwhile. I want to do more, much more."

As Jaspar left the orphanage he was heard to say: "All we need for a seesaw is one notched 3 by 12 board, some pipe . . ."

City Awards $135,725 Light Improvements

A $135,725 contract for improvement of the Third Street Lighting District has been awarded by the City Council to C.T.&F., Inc., of Bell Gardens.

The work will involve installation of 165 street lights with 175-watt mercury vapor lamps and 91 standards with 400-watt mercury vapor lamps.

The district covers the area bounded by Seventh Street, Junipero Avenue, Appleton Street and Alamitos Ave.

Annexation Opposed in Carson

Carson councilmen are so strongly opposed to Assembly Bill 125 that they wouldn't wait for a resolution to be presented at Monday's council meeting to express their objections to area legislators.

The bill, sponsored by Assemblyman Larry Townsend (D - Torrance), would permit cities to annex territory by jumping over the ½-mile wide Los Angeles strip. It allows a city to annex unincorporated territory separated from its border by a strip of another city providing the separation is 3,000 feet or less.

While an opposing resolution is being prepared by the city attorney, City Administrator Fred Bien has sent letters expressing the council's opposition to the proposal to Assemblymen Vincent Thomas and Mike Cullen and to State Sens. Ralph Dills and Joseph Kennick.

When the bill was discussed at Monday's council meeting, the first reaction was that Torrance was making an attempt to annex a section of unincorporated territory between Carson and the L.A. Strip that was eliminated from the original Carson incorporation election by action of the Local Agency Formation Commission of the county.

Unlicensed Bikes Loss for Owner

There are more unlicensed bicycles on the streets of Long Beach now than ever before in the history of the city's licensing program, police say.

As a result, police storage rooms for recovered stolen bicycles are filled, and only a small percentage of the two-wheelers will be returned to their owners.

Metal license plates may be obtained for 50 cents at most bicycle shops. The bike must be taken to the licensing agency for installation of the plate, according to Juvenile Officer Bob Brenner of the police bicycle detail.

Brenner says stolen bicycles can be recovered at the police department storeroom, 822 W. Fifth St., on Thursdays between 3:30 p.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Hong Kong Tunnel

HONG KONG (UPI) — The government is planning to build a vehicular tunnel under Hong Kong's Kaitak Airport to ease traffic in the Kwun Tong industrial area in Kowloon, a spokesman said Saturday. Construction of the half-mile long tunnel is expected to cost about $8.3 million.

RED CROSS NEEDS BLOOD

Only four per cent of the population provides all the blood the nation uses, according to the American Red Cross.

And, say Red Cross officials, during the summer this "mighty four per cent" is not always sure protection for the other 96 per cent. Some of the suppliers are away from home and the steady flow falters.

At the same time, the need is greater. Summer highway and vacation mishaps strain the Red Cross supply.

Other donors are then necessary to make sure the blood is sufficient for all needs.

The Long Beach Blood Center, 240 W. Willow, is open Monday and Tuesday, 3:30 to 7 p.m. and Wednesday and Thursday, noon to 4 p.m.

JFK Square Rites

RAMBOUILLET, France (UPI) — Mrs. Sargent Shriver, wife of the U. S. ambassador to France, inaugurated a square here Saturday in honor of her late brother, President John F. Kennedy. Mrs. Shriver made a brief speech recalling the work of her brother, particularly in dealing with youth problems.

The Darndest Things Happen to Flip!

NEW YORK — "In Baltimore I was getting ready to go to work," Flip Wilson said, "and I sneezed.

"I'd been standing in front of the mirror. When I sneezed, I felt something snap; my knees buckled, and I was on the floor for five minutes trying to get up. I'd pulled one of the muscles in my back. Just from that one sneeze, I missed four nights' work, an Ed Sullivan show and two other TV shows." (And a few thousand dollars, he didn't add).

Things like that are always happening to Flip — real first name Clerow — Wilson. "For example, this ring I just picked out today," he said.

"A man came up to me and said 'I was you in Vegas. I'd lost a lot of money. You take this napkin to a jewelry store' — it had the name of a jewelry store on it — 'and you pick out anything in the store. That's because after seeing your show I didn't mind losing my money.'

"So," continued Flip, "I took the napkin to the jewelry store. The owner said, 'You come in here with a napkin and you're not even eating!' But he gave me this ring, solid gold, onyx, about $400 worth."

* * * *

AND THOSE THINGS that are always happening have caused the former runaway New Jersey kid to want to do only one thing — "to go, go, to be a first class professional entertainer.

"Was I a bad kid back in Jersey City? How can a kid who ran away 13 times say he was not a bad kid?

"When I was 8, I was living in a foster home. The state was purchasing milk for me. I could look down through the knothole seeing the lady giving my milk to her child. That little boy was drinking my milk. I ran away.

"We were never allowed to play in the front of the house. I would run away. They would ask me why I ran away and I'd tell them and they'd put me right back the same place. I'd run away again.

"I said, 'Put me in the reform school.' My brother and sister were in it. In the reform school I had my first birthday party. I got a can of shoe polish and a box of Cracker Jacks. I was happy in the reform school.

"I HEARD Stump and Stumpy, I think it was, at the Mosque Theater in Newark. When I heard that roar of laughter, it sounded like thunder. I thought, 'People must love these men. That's what I want to be.'"

THE WEEKEND WIND-UP . . .

Lionel Bart's choice for the lead in his musical "Quasimodo" is Ron Moody (the Fagan of "Oliver!") . . . Joan Rivers was made up on her TV show (by Mark Traynor) to look like a teen-age girl, then as an old woman. Joan shrugged, "Oh, well, easy come, easy go"

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: "I just hope," writes Tony Delia, "that when we get to the moon we don't find Indians. I'd hate to see them chased off their land twice."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: A budget is a plan for pay-as-you-go, if you don't go anywhere. — Les and Liz Carpenter

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "When you are afraid, it's caution; cowardice is when the other fellow is afraid."

EARL'S PEARLS: An interviewer asked Rowan & Martin what "The Maltese Bippy" was about. "Oh," said Dick Martin, "it's about, uh, about an hour and 45 minutes."

Morey Amsterdam tells of the holdup man who said, "Give me your money or I'll blow your brains out." His victim answered, "Go ahead and shoot — nowdays you can live without brains, but you gotta have money." That's earl, brother.

TALENTED TONY

In his New York apartment singer Tony Bennett finds time to paint a city scene. The romantic style recording artist has survived the musical changes of recent years singing love songs. "I Left My Heart in San Francisco," recorded seven years ago, is still his biggest seller.

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Monday

Your birthday today: Now begins a time of distributing your energy over a wide area. Tested ideas become more put. Many old activities get squeezed. Today's natives often pursue interpersonal behavior, may care very little for public opinion of them.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Make up your mind to hold your temper today, particularly about any break in household routines. Help make peace amongst others.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your work should proceed well. Do what comes naturally, in the steady pace you are accustomed to following.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): The week begins on a very busy note. Find time to advance your pet projects — spread the word. The evening is better spent in developing your ideas further.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Home situations tend to be more important than business today. Try to maintain a fair balance between them. Remember to bring home all times which have been in short supply over the weekend.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your most likely path tends to lead you to matters you do not yet know enough to judge. Keep an open mind. There is more to it than is anticipated now.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22): Take a firm grasp and move with the confidence supplied by your intuition. Celebrate a successful day this evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): Your tact and patience continue at peak value. Peace-making actions brings results and improve your earnings as well. Go shopping. Buy in supplies and new appliances.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Nothing attempted in secrecy quite works out today. Keep your course direct and simple so the mystery-seekers will focus on some other target.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You cannot fool anybody today, so settle back and enjoy life. Your friends are in the mood to share their pastimes and parties with you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): The indirect approach is again the better course. A day of diligent, quiet action is to be followed by satisfying enjoyment of a social evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): Bring your plans to the action stage early; gain the advantage in the situation. Today begins a very active month in your vocation.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): The results of your financial choices now come to light. Join new groups volunteering to make your community a better place.

The Darndest Things Happen to Flip!

NEW YORK — "In Baltimore I was getting ready to go to work," Flip Wilson said, "and I sneezed.

"I'd been standing in front of the mirror. When I sneezed, I felt something snap, my knees buckled, and I was on the floor for five minutes trying to get up. I'd pulled one of the muscles in my back. Just from that one sneeze, I missed four nights' work, an Ed Sullivan show and two other TV shows." (And a few thousand dollars, he didn't add).

Things like that are always happening to Flip — real first name Clerow — Wilson. "For example, this ring I just picked out today," he said.

"A man came up to me and said 'I was you in Vegas. I'd lost a lot of money. You take this napkin to a jewelry store' — it had the name of a jewelry store on it — 'and you pick out anything in the store. That's because after seeing your show I didn't mind losing my money.'

"So," continued Flip, "I took the napkin to the jewelry store. The owner said, 'You come in here with a napkin and you're not even eating!' But he gave me this ring, solid gold, onyx, about $400 worth."

* * * *

AND THOSE THINGS that are always happening have caused the former runaway New Jersey kid to want to do only one thing — "to go, go, to be a first class professional entertainer.

"Was I a bad kid back in Jersey City? How can a kid who ran away 13 times say he was not a bad kid?

"When I was 8, I was living in a foster home. The state was purchasing milk for me. I could look down through the knothole seeing the lady giving my milk to her child. That little boy was drinking my milk. I ran away.

"We were never allowed to play in the front of the house. I would run away. They would ask me why I ran away and I'd tell them and they'd put me right back the same place. I'd run away again.

"I said, 'Put me in the reform school.' My brother and sister were in it. In the reform school I had my first birthday party. I got a can of shoe polish and a box of Cracker Jacks. I was happy in the reform school.

"I HEARD Stump and Stumpy, I think it was, at the Mosque Theater in Newark. When I heard that roar of laughter, it sounded like thunder. I thought, 'People must love these men. That's what I want to be.' "

THE WEEKEND WIND-UP . . .

Lionel Bart's choice for the lead in his musical "Quasimodo" is Ron Moody (the Fagan of "Oliver!") . . . Joan Rivers was made up on her TV show (by Mark Traynor) to look like a teen-age girl, then as an old woman. Joan shrugged, "Oh, well, easy come, easy go"

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: "I just hope," writes Tony Delia, "that when we get to the moon we don't find Indians. I'd hate to see them chased off their land twice."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: A budget is a plan for pay-as-you-go, if you don't go anywhere. — Les and Liz Carpenter

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "When you are afraid, it's caution; cowardice is when the other fellow is afraid."

EARL'S PEARLS: An interviewer asked Rowan & Martin what "The Maltese Bippy" was about. "Oh," said Dick Martin, "it's about, uh, about an hour and 45 minutes."

Morey Amsterdam tells of the holdup man who said, "Give me your money or I'll blow your brains out." His victim answered, "Go ahead and shoot — nowadays you can live without brains, but you gotta have money." That's earl, brother.

TALENTED TONY

In his New York apartment singer Tony Bennett finds time to paint a city scene. The romantic style recording artist has survived the musical changes of recent years singing love songs. "I Left My Heart in San Francisco," recorded seven years ago, is still his biggest seller.

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Monday

Your birthday today: Now begins a time of distributing your energy over a wide area. Tested ideas become more firm. Many old activities get squeezed out. Today's natives often pursue informal behavior, may care very little for public opinion of them.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Make up your mind to hold your temper today, particularly about any break in household routines. Help make peace amongst others.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your work should proceed well. Do what comes naturally, in the steady pace you are accustomed to following.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): The week begins on a very busy note. Find time to advance your pet projects — spread the word. The evening is better spent in developing your ideas further.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Home situations tend to be more important than business today. Try to maintain a fair balance between them. Remember to bring home all items which have been in short supply over the weekend.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your most likely path tends to lead you to matters which do not yet know enough to judge. Keep an open mind. There is more to it than is anticipated now.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22): Take a firm grasp, and move with the confidence supplied by your intuition. Celebrate a successful day this evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Your tact and patience continue at peak value. Peace-making actions brings results and improve your earnings as well. Go shopping, buy in supplies and new appliances.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Nothing anticipated in secrecy quite works out today. Keep your course direct and simple so the mystery-seekers will focus on some other target.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You cannot fool anybody today, so settle back and enjoy life. Your friends are in the mood to share their pastimes and parties with you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): The indirect approach is again the better course. A day of diligent, quiet action is to be followed by satisfying enjoyment of a social evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): Bring your plans to the action stage early; gain the advantage in the situation. Today begins a very active month in your vacation.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): The results of your financial choices now come to light. Join new groups volunteering to make your community a better place.

SPN Bank on Catalina Marks 50th Birthday

Special to the Progress Section

Fifty years ago there were plenty of clear days, but Santa Catalina Island had not yet arrived as a place to see — or be.

On June 16, 1919, when the Catalina Branch of Security Pacific National Bank was established as the island's only financial institution, there were few residents and vacationer.

Full realization of the island's potential had begun with William Wrigley Jr.'s purchase of the island for $3 million a few months earlier.

Though George R. Shatto pioneered the island's development as a resort in 1887, there was as yet no Great White Steamer or glass-bottom boat, no casino or Monterey-type architecture, no 15,000 Labor Day visitors or seaplanes to bring them, no wild hogs to hunt or buffalo to watch.

* * * *

THE ISLAND community and its bank reflect on a great deal of shared history as a Golden Anniversary is celebrated in the Security Pacific office at 523 Crescent Ave.

The week-long festivities, concluded Friday, were an introduction for the branch's new manager, Thomas A. Wiseman, as well as a commemoration of the past 50 years.

In succeeding William L. Hough (who has received a divisional assignment) and Wilfred J. Laurin (who retired as the branch manager two years ago), Wiseman inherits unusual responsibilities to a unique community.

As he sits at a desk just 18 feet from Avalon's famous surf-free beach, he will find himself an escrow officer one moment, an unofficial stockbroker the next, and a loan officer the next.

* * * *

HIS STROLL to lunch probably will be interrupted a couple of times by requests for financial advice. A request also may be telephoned to his home any evening or presented on the golf course during a weekend.

Island investors, having no resident brokerage house, will ask Wiseman to relay securities orders through his Head Office in Los Angeles. Visiting mainlanders will want to open savings accounts removed from later temptations to spend lavishly.

Island merchants will need nearly all their loans in the spring and will repay in the fall. During nearly every banking day of the summer about 100 persons never seen before by members of the branch staff will ask to cash checks (very few of which will bounce).

* * * *

HIS PEAK employment needs will be more difficult to solve.

Unlike other Security Pacific branch managers, he will not be able to borrow employes from other branches on an unusually busy day.

A summer cost-of-living allowance, sometimes referred to as "overseas pay," will help draw extra employment during summers.

In taking charge of the Catalina Branch, its new manager finds himself somewhat an astronaut and Santa Catalina his satellite. He will be apart from, yet invisibly tied to the mainland.

* * * *

CATALINA'S schools are administered by the Long Beach Unified School District. Its merchants rely on Los Angeles County health and building inspection services. Its Boy Scouts belong to the San Gabriel Valley-Pasadena scout council. Its climate, its tempo, its history . . . and its bank, however, are uniquely its own.

"Tom Wiseman will thoroughly enjoy the challenges of his new job and his new home here," said his predecessor, William Hough. "He will find Catalina's potential for future growth just as rich as its heritage.

"Tom will have an easy time finding answers to any of his questions about the island. Fifteen of our customers have been with us since the branch opened 50 years ago."

USS Mansfield Crew Boasts Custom Checks

Special to the Progress Section

It wasn't planned that way, but Bank of America is providing custom-made checks for one of the Navy's most distinguished ships.

While both the bank and the ship's officers and crew are delighted with the arrangement, it never would have happened if it hadn't been for the sea-trained eye of the ship's skipper, Commander Paul Anderson of the destroyer U. S. S. Mansfield.

Last month while the Mansfield was in San Diego on a six-week refresher training program, Commander Anderson, a BankAmericard holder, received a brochure advertising Bank of America's new California scenic checks.

One of the 10 scenes is the San Diego skyline and harbor with a ship in the foreground.

Although the photograph was only one-fourth actual check size, Commander Anderson thought he recognized the barely visible number in the ship's hull as the Mansfield's own "728."

WHEN THE VESSEL RETURNED to its Long Beach home port, Commander Anderson went to the bank's Terminal Island branch and inspected a poster-size photograph of the San Diego scene. It clearly showed the pictured ship was indeed the Mansfield.

Although the Mansfield appeared in the San Diego shot purely by chance, the bank could hardly have chosen a more deserving subject.

The Mansfield has been in continuous commission for the past 25 years, undergoing heavy combat in World War II, Korea and Vietnam, and has participated in two NASA space shot recovery operations.

Recently back from two years duty in Vietnam - and scheduled to return in September - it currently holds the record for the most rounds fired by a destroyer in Vietnam and was one of the prime reasons its squadron, Destroyer Division 92, was recently cited by the Secretary of the Navy as one of the most outstanding destroyer units of the Pacific Fleet.

WHEN the bank learned of all this, it made an enlargement of the San Diego check with a personal greeting from Board Chairman Louis B. Lundborg and formally presented it to Commander Anderson and his crew for the ship's wardroom. Plans also are being made to use the photograph on the ship's official stationery.

As things worked out, the Navy, the Mansfield and Bank of America all profited by the coincidence — and Commander Anderson's sharp eye.

The Navy can boast that thousands of Californians will be writing their personal checks over a picture of one of its proudest ships.

The 295-man Mansfield crew can enjoy the most personalized bank checks ever offered anyone.

Protective Truth-in-Lending Law Effective July 1

By ROBERT BECKMAN
Business Editor

A new customer awareness will be born July 1.

On that day you are going to be protected in your credit transactions by the new truth-in-lending law.

It won't limit the amount of interest you pay, but for the first time almost everyone who extends credit will be required to provide a complete accounting of all the charges you are expected to pay.

Not only that, they will have to express the interest in a standard "meaningful" way.

First thing you must do is to cleanse your mind of the old slogans long used to make rates seem low to borrowers.

After July 1, the key figure to watch for will be either the annual finance charge per $100 of unpaid balance, or the annual percentage rate.

Either of these, which the lender will have to disclose to the borrower, will show the real cost of the credit.

CHANGING TIMES, the Kiplinger magazine, recently stated:

"For an idea of the change involved, consider the problem of determining the cost of a $1,000 loan repayable in monthly installments of $47.50 over two years.

"The payments will total $1,140. The interest charge, therefore, comes to $140 for two years $1,140 minus $1,000), or $70 a year.

"Today, many lenders would tell you that the loan costs $7 per $100, or 7 per cent. But does it, in fact?

"The $140 interest charge is based on the entire amount borrowed, as if you were going to repay it in a lump sum at the end of two years.

"Actually, though, you have the whole $1,000 only for the month between the time the loan is opened and the first installment. Each monthly payment progressively reduces the unpaid balance.

"At the end of the first year, you have repaid $500, but continue paying interest that was figured on double that amount.

"Actually, under the truth-in-lending law, you must be told, first, that the total finance charge is $140 and, second, that it is equivalent to an annual finance charge of $12.91 per $100 or unpaid balance, or an annual percentage rate of 12.9191 per cent."

Department stores, too, must change their presentation of figures — from the usually expressed monthly service charge of 1½ per cent on the unpaid balance.

Under the new law, you must also be given the annual rates — and, in that case, a 1½ per cent charge works out to 18 per cent, or $18 per $100 of unpaid balance (12 times the monthly rate).

AMUSEMENT INDUSTRY STOCKS had the highest rate of activity on the New York Stock Exchange last year, and also showed the largest percentage gain in cash dividends, the 1969 edition of the Big Board's Fact Book discloses.

The 18 broadcasting and film companies that make up the group had a turnover of 56 per cent. Turnover is the ratio of shares traded to their total number of shares listed on the Exchange.

Merger and takeover activity in the movie industry apparently was a factor in the high activity in amusement stocks.

Furniture and office equipment manufacturers as a group had the second highest turnover in 1968 — 51 per cent, according to the Fact Book.

The average turnover for all stocks listed on the Exchange last year was 24 per cent, an increase of 2 percentage points from the 1967 figure. The utility stocks had the smallest turnover in 1968 — 9 per cent.

The cash dividends paid by the amusement stocks rose by 21 per cent in 1968, according to the Fact Book. It was the second year in a row that the group had the highest percentage gain in dividends. Overall, cash dividends paid during 1968 on stocks listed on the NYSE rose 8.2 per cent.

A RECENT STUDY FINDS that corporation presidents are leaving their companies at almost the same rate as they are moving up to the board chairman's slot.

Of 100 men giving up their presidencies with major corporations in the last quarter of 1968, 48 resigned, while 52 were made board chairmen.

Further, more than half of the men who severed ties with their companies were in the prime of their careers — between 43 and 51.

The study, conducted by Boyden Associates, an executive search firm, indicates that presidents — like all other employes — are being judged more on their own merits than by the sanctity of their positions.

"Fifteen years ago, a typical corporation president was fairly secure in the knowledge that he would hold his job until he chose to retire or was moved up to chair the board of directors," says Sid Boyden, president of Boyden Associates.

"Contrary to popular belief," Boyden maintains, "the president's chair is resting on an increasingly precarious balance in today's corporate world."

A plausible explanation for the rate of presidential departures might be the trend towards merger, acquisition and conglomeration. Another might be that todays emphasis on youth is turning chief executives out to pasture at early ages.

Protective Truth-in-Lending Law Effective July 1

By ROBERT BECKMAN
Business Editor

A new customer awareness will be born July 1.

On that day you are going to be protected in your credit transactions by the new truth-in-lending law.

It won't limit the amount of interest you pay, but for the first time almost everyone who extends credit will be required to provide a complete accounting of all the charges you are expected to pay.

Not only that, they will have to express the interest in a standard "meaningful" way.

First thing you must do is to cleanse your mind of the old slogans long used to make rates seem low to borrowers.

After July 1, the key figure to watch for will be either the annual finance charge per $100 of unpaid balance, or the annual percentage rate.

Either of these, which the lender will have to disclose to the borrower, will show the real cost of the credit.

CHANGING TIMES, the Kiplinger magazine, recently stated:

"For an idea of the change involved, consider the problem of determining the cost of a $1,000 loan repayable in monthly installments of $47.50 over two years.

"The payments will total $1,140. The interest charge, therefore, comes to $140 for two years $1,140 minus $1,000), or $70 a year.

"Today, many lenders would tell you that the loan costs $7 per $100, or 7 per cent. But does it, in fact?

"The $140 interest charge is based on the entire amount borrowed, as if you were going to repay it in a lump sum at the end of two years.

"Actually, though, you have the whole $1,000 only for the month between the time the loan is opened and the first installment. Each monthly payment progressively reduces the unpaid balance.

"At the end of the first year, you have repaid $500, but continue paying interest that was figured on double that amount.

"Actually, under the truth-in-lending law, you must be told, first, that the total finance charge is $140 and, second, that it is equivalent to an annual finance charge of $12.91 per $100 or unpaid balance, or an annual percentage rate of 12.9191 per cent."

Department stores, too, must change their presentation of figures — from the usually expressed monthly service charge of 1½ per cent on the unpaid balance.

Under the new law, you must also be given the annual rates — and, in that case, a 1½ per cent charge works out to 18 per cent, or $18 per $100 of unpaid balance (12 times the monthly rate).

PLYMOUTH VALIANT . . . Fine Lines

WORLD OF WHEELS

By ART STEPHAN
Auto Editor

Designed for just that purpose, the two-door Plymouth Valiant 100 sedan is right in the thick of the low-price, compact-import battle.

Frank Fisher, Western Area manager for Chrysler-Plymouth's 11 Western States operation has released sales figures which show a healthy gain for Valiant over a year ago.

In May 1968 Fisher's sales area sold 1067 Valiants while this year the May figure is 1479 Valiants sold for a gain of 38.6 per cent. Nationally, too, the small Plymouth is up 22 per cent in sales in May over last year.

The retail price of the two-door compact was reduced $193 in May to bring the manufacturer's suggested price to $2094. This is the biggest price reduction on the 10-year history of the Valiant car line.

Glenn E. White, Chrysler-Plymouth general manager, speaking from Detroit, noted outstanding features of the sales-spurting car.

"THE OVERALL CONCEPT for Valiant is to offer American drivers a compact car with low purchase price, economical operation and high resale value," White said.

"Valiant is acknowledged as a leader in these impotant car values. Often overlooked, however, is the fact that in driver headroom and legroom, total weight, glass area, brake size, luggage space and other features, Valiant matches and sometimes suprpasses cars which cost hundreds of dollars more."

Now in its ninth year, the 1969 Valiant has a number of new features aimed at increased economy and durability. Two-door and four-door sedans are available in both the 100 and the Signet body series, both at reduced prices over last year.

Both the standrard 170-cubic-inch and the optional 225-cubic-inch 6-cylinder engines have been improved for greater gasoline mileage. Optional fiberglass belted tires offer an increase in tire life of as much as 50 per cent and improved gasoline mileage.

VALIANT RETAINS MANY of the features which have carried it to repeated national economy victories in competition with other cars of its class.

White noted there has been a new entry in the compact car market and said his division had "observed that competition in this market is growing in its intensity. We always have felt that our Valiant represented the best buy among the compact cars. We are taking this pricing action to make Valiant an even better buy and even more competitive in its price class."

When the Valiant was first introduced in the 1960 model year, White said, there was a definite concept in mind. "It was a compact car with real value — a basic transportation car which was designed and engineered for reliable and economical operation. It still is," he added.

"WHEN YOU ALSO TAKE into account the safety and other options that have been incorporated as standard equipment, the 1969 Valiant with its new price represents a much greater value than the 1960 Valiant."

White noted that more than 30 major items of standard equipment in today's Valiant, which had been either options or were not available on the original Valiant, were totaled and the figure came to $272.05.

The inclusion of the equipment as standard actually means that a 1969 Valiant is $211.05 less than a 1960 model.

Since Valiant was introduced as a 1960 model in the fall of 1959, more than one and a quarter million Valiants have been sold in the United States and Canada.

The event, sponsored by Western Mobilhome Association, will he held at the Saddleback Inn, Santa Ana Freeway at First Street.

More than 200 park owners and operators from Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside and San Bernardino counties are expected to attend. The program begins at 9:15 a.m.

THE workshop is the third in a series of all-day sessions being held throughout the state under the guidance of Western Mobilehome Association, a state-wide organization representing California mobilehome park owners and operators, park residents and allied businesses.

Speakers, familiar with the special problems of the mobilehome park industry in Southern California, will discuss such topics as park financing, park design, current legislation, and application of park rules and regulations.

Speakers will include Orange County's Assessor Andrew J. Hinshaw, who will discuss taxation of mobilehome parks.

OTHERS on the program are J. Patrick Maginn, vice president of the State Mutual Savings & Loan Association, Los Angeles; Jim Cooper of Santa Ana, president of the California Mobilehome Dealers Association; L. D. Flickinger, head of the Los Angeles property management firm of L. D. Flickinger Company; Henry W. Hastings of Newport Beach, president of Walters & Son, Inc.

Association representatives addressing park owners and operators will include Norman L. McAdoo of Capistrano Beach, past president; Neil Y. Nordlander, executive director; and Donald D. Blazer, public relations director.

Area Credit Union Officials Conclude Meeting

Representatives of over 94,000 credit union members of the Long Beach Chapter of the California Credit Union League met at Knotts Berry Farm last week to hear speaker Mrs. Maude E. Taylor, president.

Prior to her election, Mrs. Taylor served 13 years as a director of the statewide association.

She also is a former vice president of CUES Managers Society, a national prufessional organization of credit union managers sponsored by CUNA International, Inc. (formerly Credit Union National Association).

Mrs. Taylor is manager of the Naval Air Station Alameda Federal Credit Union, which post she has held since 1944.

THE LONG BEACH Chapter, one of the largest of the League's 36 local divisions, has a membership of 103 credit unions, with assets over $156 million.

PLYMOUTH VALIANT . . . Fine Lines

WORLD OF WHEELS

By ART STEPHAN
Auto Editor

Designed for just that purpose, the two-door Plymouth Valiant 100 sedan is right in the thick of the low-price, compact-import battle.

Frank Fisher, Western Area manager for Chrysler-Plymouth's 11 Western States operation has released sales figures which show a healthy gain for Valiant over a year ago.

In May 1968 Fisher's sales area sold 1067 Valiants while this year the May figure is 1479 Valiants sold for a gain of 38.6 per cent. Nationally, too, the small Plymouth is up 22 per cent in sales in May over last year.

The retail price of the two-door compact was reduced $193 in May to bring the manufacturer's suggested price to $2094. This is the biggest price reduction on the 10-year history of the Valiant car line.

Glenn E. White, Chrysler-Plymouth general manager, speaking from Detroit, noted outstanding features of the sales-spurting car.

"THE OVERALL CONCEPT for Valiant is to offer American drivers a compact car with low purchase price, economical operation and high resale value," White said.

"Valiant is acknowledged as a leader in these important car values. Often overlooked, however, is the fact that in driver headroom and legroom, total weight, glass area, brake size, luggage space and other features, Valiant matches and sometimes surpasses cars which cost hundreds of dollars more."

Now in its ninth year, the 1969 Valiant has a number of new features aimed at increased economy and durability. Two-door and four-door sedans are available in both the 100 and the Signet body series, both at reduced prices over last year.

Both the standrard 170-cubic-inch and the optional 225-cubic-inch 6-cylinder engines have been improved for greater gasoline mileage. Optional fiberglass belted tires offer an increase in tire life of as much as 50 per cent and improved gasoline mileage.

VALIANT RETAINS MANY of the features which have carried it to repeated national economy victories in competition with other cars of its class.

White noted there has been a new entry in the compact car market and said his division had "observed that competition in this market is growing in its intensity. We always have felt that our Valiant represented the best buy among the compact cars. We are taking this pricing action to make Valiant an even better buy and even more competitive in its price class."

When the Valiant was first introduced in the 1960 model year, White said, there was a definite concept in mind. "It was a compact car with real value — a basic transportation car which was designed and engineered for reliable and economical operation. It still is," he added.

"WHEN YOU ALSO TAKE into account the safety and other options that have been incorporated as standard equipment, the 1969 Valiant with its new price represents a much greater value than the 1960 Valiant."

White noted that more than 30 major items of standard equipment in today's Valiant, which had been either options or were not available on the original Valiant, were totaled and the figure came to $272.05.

The inclusion of the equipment as standard actually means that a 1969 Valiant is $211.05 less than a 1960 model.

Since Valiant was introduced as a 1960 model in the fall of 1959, more than one and a quarter million Valiants have been sold in the United States and Canada.

Bixby Green Is Patterned After European Suburban Townhouses

In Orange County — a county known for its paradoxes — the situation of Bixby Green Apartment Village is perhaps the most unique of all.

Bixby Green is a secluded community of two-story apartments patterned after the European idea of suburban town houses.

The suites are set within six acres of attractively landscaped grounds which serve to literally insulate Bixby Green from the surrounding residential neighborhoods.

Privacy and quiet are the two words which best describe Bixby Green's way of life.

* * * *

THE PARADOX is that the quiet life of Bixby Green is right in the middle of all the excitement of Orange County living.

Three freeways — the Garden Grove, the San Diego and the Newport — are just minutes from the private entryway of Bixby Green.

Three golf courses are "just down the road," as are the cultural influences of Long Beach State College and Golden West Junior College.

The "think centers" of major aerospace and electronic companies are also within easy commute-distance of Bixby Green.

Many of the apartment village's residents are employed by these industries, and they find the serenity of Bixby Green a welcome relief after a hard day of "thinking big."

* * * *

BIXBY Green residents also enjoy "thinking fun." And it is the immediate access to Orange County's beaches, marinas and recreational areas that does so much to convince new tenants, according to Neil Crawford, vice president of the Bixby Ranch Company, owners and developers of Bixby Green.

"By and large, Bixby Green people are active people," Crawford said. "They are professional people, and can afford to enjoy the recreational opportunities which Orange County offers. Their children are grown, and they now have the time to enjoy more of life. And, of course, there are no weekend chores to do, no lawns to cut, no house to keep up. People are free to do as they please at Bixby Green."

* * * *

CRAWFORD cited the fact that Bixby Green is an adult community, or for families with children 16 years or older. "Most of our tenants have unburdened themselves of the responsibilities of home ownership. They don't need a big house anymore, and the convenience of Bixby Green suits them just fine."

Two and three-bedroom apartment-suites are on view daily at Bixby Green. Floor plans include a large master bedroom with private dressing area, step-down living room, formal dining room, an appliance-filled all-electric kitchen and a private garden patio.

Outstanding features include total sound-proofing of each suite, central air-conditioning, carpeting and drapes.

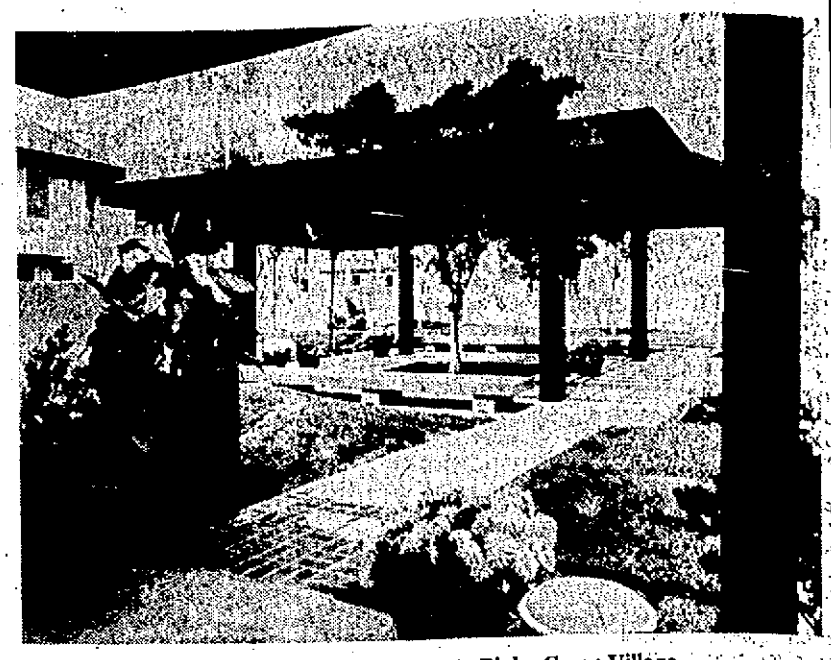

Each suite also has its own washer-dryer. Tenants have the privilege of two parking spaces, both of which will probably be in Bixby Green's underground parking area.

* * * *

TENANTS also have exclusive use of Bixby Green's own recreational facilities, which include pool and sundeck area, putting green, shuffleboard courts and the private Bixby Green village green.

Rents begin at $240 monthly for suites averaging 1400 square feet of living space.

To visit Bixby Green, take the Garden Grove Freeway to the Knott Ave. turnoff. Drive north under the freeway to Lampson Ave. Look for the large windmill, the sign that you've arrived at Bixby Green.

"The Stateliest Ship — Queen Mary" published by the Steamship Historical Society of America has landed on the desks of book reviewers.

The profusely illustrated book is the first of many which can be expected to hit the market following the purchase of the former Queen of the North Atlantic by the City of Long Beach.

Another book by Bill Duncan, former I, P-T staff writer who rode the liner during her last great voyage from Southampton to Long Beach, is due off the press in the very near future.

For Queen Mary buffs who want to read everything about the Queen Mary they can get their hands on, the Long Beach Library, Main Branch, has prepared a mimeographed list of dozens of stories which have appeared in periodicals some dating back before the stateliest ship was launched.

This column in the past has attempted to adhere to a policy of reporting on progress being made in the two local back-to-back ports.

We would be remiss, however, if we failed to comment on a set-back suffered this week by the Port of Long Beach.

W. A. HARRINGTON

We refer to the death of Harbor Commissioner William (Bill) A. Harrington, who served as president of the commission for three terms.

Bill died on Monday as he said he hoped he would — with his boots on.

He was attending a celebration aboard the Tokai Maru which had called at the Port of Long Beach on her maiden voyage. During the last minute of his life he was helping promote the City and Port of Long Beach.

He was in uniform. It consisted of a sticky-back name tag adhering to his left breast above his coat pocket. During his 13 years as a member of the commission Bill had worn that uniform literally on thousands of official functions.

It can be expected his seat at the horseshoe-shaped commissioner's table will be filled by another commissioner.

But whomever is appointed he will not be a replacement for Bill Harrington — that's impossible!

The thrust chambers used in the first stage of Project Apollo's Saturn rocket must withstand heat of 5,000 F — half the temperature on the sun's surface. The fuel is used as a coolant by circulating it through tubular thrust chamber walls made of a high-temperature nickel-chromium alloy. This cooling system lowers the thrust chamber walls to a mere 1,000 F.

Sparkless Carpet

Carpeting containing fine strands of stainless steel as part of the backing and pile does not build up static electricity that can cause dangerous or unpleasant sparking. Nickel stainless steel is used because it will not rust when carpets are cleaned.

WHAT'S YOUR PROBLEM?

Age Does Have Few Financial Compensations

By DON CAMPBELL

Although they aren't earthshaking, age does, indeed, have its compensations of a financial nature. The Internal Revenue Service, for instance, begins slowing down the intensity of its heel-snapping as soon as the taxpayer passes his 65th birthday by granting him a double exemption.

And, if the taxpayer also waits until he is over the age of 65 before selling his home, another crumb is tossed his way.

MR. CAMPBELL:

If you have the answer to this question, several of us older people would appreciate it very much. Some years ago some of us bought homes with two acres of ground and they were very badly run down and in need of repairs. Over a period of years we have remodeled and built onto these homes.

We are getting older now and are not able to care for so much ground and would like to get smaller places, or move into apartments. We paid from $7,000 to $10,000 for these homes and now they would sell for much more, probably for $17,000 to $20,000.

The question is: will we have to pay taxes on the difference between the purchasing price and the selling price? Most of us have not kept any records of what we have spent on our properties as it was done slowly over a long time. Is there any law that would help people over 65 years of age, or not? — Mrs. H. E. H.

ANSWER: Uncle Sam isn't all bad when it comes to levying taxes and, in your particular case, you have a couple of things working for you. Normally, that is, you would, indeed, pay tax on the difference between the original price, and the selling price, of the property — less selling expenses. Even so, this is taxed not as straight income but as a "capital gain," which is one-half your regular tax rate.

If, for instance, you had bought the house at $10,000 and later sold it for $20,000, this $10,000 gain — less expenses of selling it — would be taxable at one-half your regular tax rate. If, without this gain, your normal income would be taxed at the 25 per cent level, then this $1,000 profit would be taxed at the rate of 12½ per cent.

In your case, though, the fact that you are over 65 years of age means that the capital gain (profit) on the first $20,000 of the adjusted sales price (the price received for the property less selling expenses) isn't taxable. This would apparently get all of you off the tax hook.

The only stipulation is that — in addition to being over 65 — the taxpayer has been making the home his place of residence for the previous five years.

Don't concern yourself that you haven't kept records on what you have spent in remodeling and rebuilding the homes since these aren't deductible, anyway — only the last minute, paint-up, fix-up, expenses that would help you sell the property fall in this category.

So, you see, tax-wise, you are in pretty good shape for selling out and moving into smaller quarters.

MR. CAMPBELL:

We seem to be having undue difficulty getting an FHA loan and I wanted your opinion. My husband is 28 and started his own business four years ago in a one-room office.

The first year, of course, was mainly organizing and getting known. The second year the company did over $17,000 in business . . . . the third year, $49,000 . . . and 1968 closed out at $100,000. Prospects are good for this year to bring $150,000. He now occupies a large building and employs six people.

I have worked for the last 10 years, the last six where I am presently employed and make a substantial salary. We don't have many bills, nothing large, but I will admit we don't have very much of a credit rating, but we've never bought much on credit in order to build up a rating.

The loan agent has accepted us, yet, FHA has turned us down four times since last August. And each time they periodically asked for additonal information to the point it became ridiculous.

Their basis seems to be the fact we don't have much credit and they consider my husband's business too new and therefore not stable. How much more success could they ask of a "new" business?

Last November we submitted a fifth try, this time with a co-signer who has assets exceeding $100,000 to back us.

Three times since they have asked for more detailed and exhaustive information about both the business and the co-signer. We have tried to cooperate . . . we have continuously gathered and compiled the fine print, minute data they want but, yesterday, when they asked for a new list of things it was the straw that broke the camel's back. Why shouldn't a government office be more organized so they would know what they needed of you on their first inquiry rather than constantly badgering and producing such feelings of degradation?

Could our company attorney aid in any way? We are at our wits end and very tired of waiting and we need advice. MRS. D.F.

ANSWER: There has to be something grossly wrong, here. I can't, for the life of me, conceive of anyone having the sort of trouble that you are having — and situated as you are — unless you are at the mercy of a megalomaniacal FHA director, or unless you are inadvertently omitting something in your husband's background that would cast some legitimate suspicions on your credit reliability.

By all means, have your company attorney pay the local FHA a visit and find out what the burr is under its saddle. As an alternative: why bother with the FHA in the first place? It would seem to me that your husband's success — and the presence of a co-signer of such stability — would qualify you for a mortgage through virtually any conventional mortgage institution. I don't think that the advantages of an FHA loan over a conventional loan are worth all this frustration.

MR. CAMPBELL:

We own an older, two-story home, but need another bedroom, a half-bath, and an exterior that should have aluminum siding.

Our problem seemed simple — sell our home and buy a new model with needed facilities. What a nightmare when examiing model homes and their poor materials, terrible craftsmanship! Each time we returned home our house looked terrific! We looked at homes in the $25,000 to $30,500 bracket and were really appalled as this price did not include our lovely plastered walls or, in some instances, sewage.

We're now three-fourths convinced to remodel our present home and we would like some financial advice — where and how do you get money to remodel? Is there such a thing as a second mortgage etc.? Our present mortgage is $12,000. Any advice or help in his matter would be greatly appreciated. Also, whom do you get to do such a remodeling job? — Mrs. D. W. A.

ANSWER: You aren't alone in your plight in these days of exploding building costs and — all too frequently — craftsmanship that leaves a lot to be desired. Since you are obviously fond of your present home and your dissatisfaction is strictly limited to features that can be changed or expanded, remodeling seems like a most logical "out" for you.

There are a number of ways you can arrange for the financing of this sort of thing and while obtaining a second mortgage is always one approach to it, there are others that are less complicated.

Relatively simple, for instance, is the back home-improvement loan — a matter of telling your bank what you have in mind, what the total of it will be on the basis of the bids you have received, and letting them process your application just as they would for any other type of loan.

Equally as popular is the FHA's Title One loan which is handled through private lenders, is insured by the government under the National Housing Act, and provides loans up to $5,000 for five years for all types of home improvements.

Still another approach to financing is through the contractor who actually does the work. In practically every metropolitan area today most of the large contractors who deal heavily in remodeling work have arrangements through which they "carry their own paper" — in other words, extend financing, themselves, over a one, two or three year period.

As in any heavy investment, of course, choose your contractor with the deliberateness of a brain surgeon deciding where to make his entry into the skull. Check him out with your Better Business Bureau but, additionally, ask him to refer you to homeowners for whom he has done work in the past. Don't let it drop there! Follow through and ask these former customers how the job was handled and how conscientiously the contractor followed through in rectifying any dissatisfactions that popped up after the work was done. Then and only then ask him for a bid.

Bixby Green aparts

They're about as far from apartments as you can get.

You see one apartment, you've seen them all. Cubicles next to cubicles. Cubicles on top of cubicles. Little rooms. Lots of noise.

Bixby Green is apart from the ordinary.

First of all, Bixby Green is for adults only. And for families with young adults 16 years and older. It resembles a European suburb of gracious town houses sheltered by abundant landscaping. In fact, we call it an apartment village after the European models. But that's the last time we use that word "apartment."

You can't very well call a two-story suite an apartment. Not at Bixby Green, anyway. As many as three bedrooms are upstairs. One of them is a large master suite with separate bath and dressing area. Downstairs, a long entry-hallway leads to an expansive living room which, in turn, leads out to your own private garden patio. Your kitchen is all-electric. Your suite is centrally air-conditioned. Your carpeting is deeply luxurious. Your drapes are floor-to-ceiling. You have your own washer-dryer. And your suite is totally soundproofed (they could hold a football rally next door, and you'd probably never hear it).

The grounds? Six secluded acres, with pool, putting green, tree-lined walkways...and, of course, a Bixby Green village green. You'll have two parking spaces. Both will probably be in the underground parking area. (At Bixby Green, cars are out of sight. Literally.) And there are the beaches, marinas, golf courses and other fun places of Orange County just moments away.

There's everything at—and around—Bixby Green for the times of your life.

PARKLIKE COMMUNITY . . . At Huntington Villas

Huntington Villas Are 'Homes With Income'

Construction now in progress on 97 additional residential units in a parklike section of Huntington Beach, just off Beach Boulevard, dramatizes the growing popularity of a unique, new idea in home ownership, states developer George Zahler.

The development is Huntington Villas, and the idea which is spurring its rapid growth is the "homes with an income" concept.

Each home buyer takes possession of a private family villa in addition to adjoining apartment units from which he receives rental income.

* * * *

THE NEW group of owners' villas and rental units, clustered in 16 buildings, will triple the number of family accommodations provided in the community's already completed eight structures.

The expansion program originally was scheduled to begin next fall.

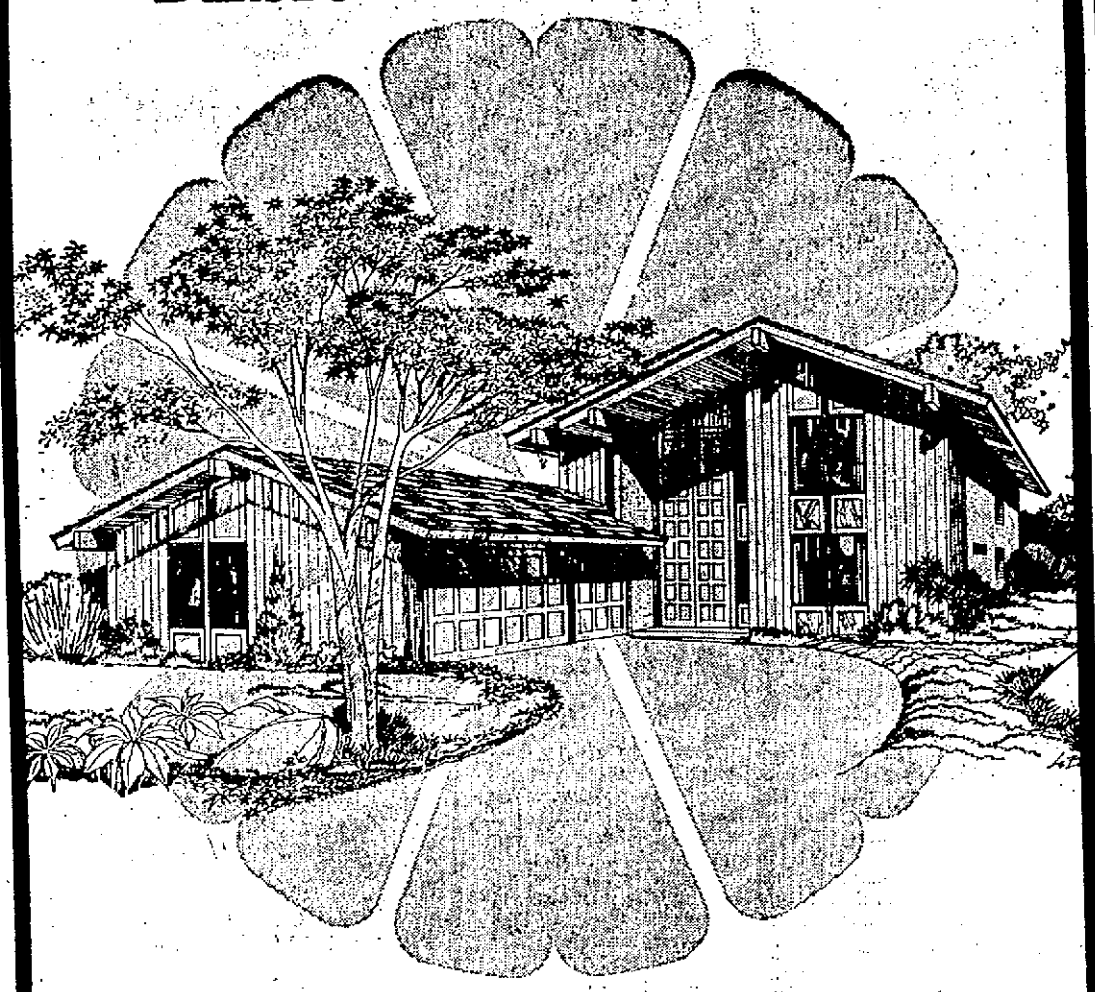

Decision to activate it earlier was prompted by faster sales than anticipated in Huntington Villas' first section, in which all but three of the structures have now been spoken for by buyers, Zahler notes.

PURCHASE price of the estates ranges from $91,500 to $105,000.

Huntington Villas centers just east of Beach Boulevard on Stark Street, two blocks south of Edinger Avenue. It is quickly reached from the Beach Boulevard exit of the San Diego Freeway.

"and you have everything you ever dreamed of for happy retirement!"

Harry goes for golf on Sun City's great 18-hole course. He is also active in the American Legion and Masonic organizations. Florence enjoys the Sun City Women's Club and they are both charter members of the United Church of Sun City.

Harry and Florence MacMurray Tell it Like it Is in Achieving Successful Retirement in Sun City.

The following is an excerpt from an article which appeared in the Sun City News, April 17, 1969, reprinted here by permission of the publisher, Maxwell Thayer.

By Charles Handley

Reams of copy have been written about the problems associated with retirement.

For some strange reason a great deal of material indicates the authors have concluded most retirees are at the end of the line.

They are described as outcasts from their families who leave them in lonely isolation to finally wither away from lack of close contact with youth and the frustrations of the current world. Rubbish!

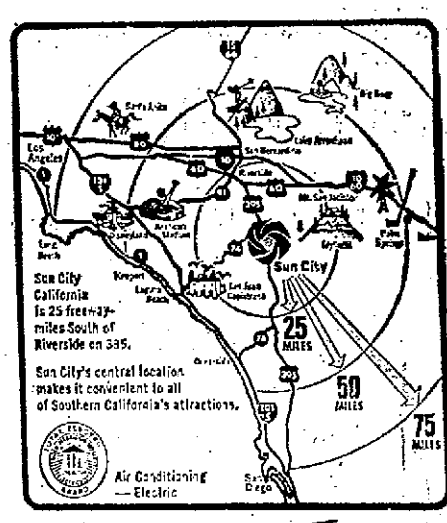

After almost five years of experience in Sun City living, we have concluded that, for people in passably good health, adjusting to retirement is an individual matter requiring at most an unbiased self-analysis and a reasonable period of trial and error.

HARRY and Florence MacMurray of Winged Foot Drive give Sun City a great credit for their successful transition to retirement. They were in the pharmacy business in Lewistown, Montana, Phoenix and Flagstaff, Arizona. Harry tells it in his own words:

"I believe most everyone who lives here is happy, content and satisfied. Where else could we settle down to retirement in such a fine place. No smog, centrally located, year around weather that can't be beat. So many activities and organizations to join one can't find time to attend them all.

"Of course, there is a little politics to sweeten the cake. And where in the world would you ever find hundreds of men and women, who have made their mark in business, law, medicine, teaching, engineering, agriculture, government and many other phases of life? These are all successful people; influential people and many very noted people.

"Now put them all together here in Sun City, anoint them with good fellowship, courtesy and mutual helpfulness, and you have everything you ever dreamed of for happy retirement. Florence and I love it!"

Seeing Is Believing! Come to Sun City. Look at Sun City's great recreational facilities . . . Sun Citizens use them all for only 5½¢ a day! Visit the golf course . . . residents can play every day for less than 50¢ a round, annual basis. A second golf course is under construction. "and you have everything you ever dreamed of for happy retirement!"

Harry goes for golf on Sun City's great 18-hole course. He is also active in the American Legion and Masonic organizations. Florence enjoys the Sun City Women's Club and they are both charter members of the United Church of Sun City.

Harry and Florence MacMurray Tell it Like it is In Achieving Successful Retirement in Sun City.

The following is an excerpt from an article which appeared in the Sun City News, April 17, 1969, reprinted here by permission of the publisher, Maxwell Thayer.

By Charles Handley

Reams of copy have been written about the problems associated with retirement.

For some strange reason a great deal of material indicates the authors have concluded most retirees are at the end of the line.

They are described as outcasts from their families who leave them in lonely isolation to finally wither away from lack of close contact with youth and the frustrations of the current world. Rubbish!

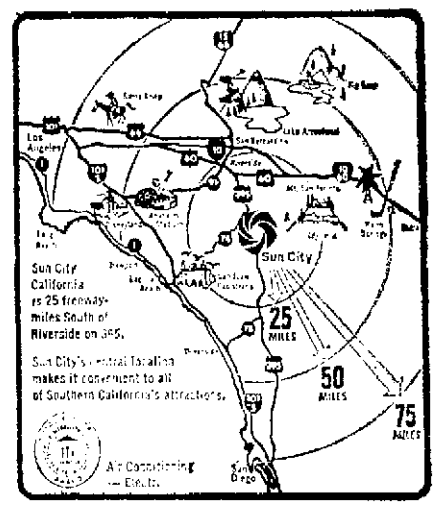

After almost five years of experience in Sun City living, we have concluded that, for people in passably good health, adjusting to retirement is an individual matter requiring at most an unbiased self-analysis and a reasonable period of trial and error.

HARRY and Florence MacMurray of Winged Foot Drive give Sun City a great credit for their successful transition to retirement. They were in the pharmacy business in Lewistown, Montana, Phoenix and Flagstaff, Arizona. Harry tells it in his own words:

"I believe most everyone who lives here is happy, content and satisfied. Where else could we settle down to retirement in such a fine place. No smog, centrally located, year around weather that can't be beat. So many activities and organizations to join one can't find time to attend them all.

"Of course, there is a little politics to sweeten the cake. And where in the world would you ever find hundreds of men and women, who have made their mark in business, law, medicine, teaching, engineering, agriculture, government and many other phases of life? These are all successful people; influential people and many very noted people.

"Now put them all together here in Sun City, anoint them with good fellowship, courtesy and mutual helpfulness, and you have everything you ever dreamed of for happy retirement. Florence and I love it!"

Seeing Is Believing! Come to Sun City. Look at Sun City's great recreational facilities . . . Sun Citizens use them all for only 5½¢ a day! Visit the golf course . . . residents can play every day for less than 50¢ a round, annual basis. A second golf course is under construction. See the 1969 Sun City homes, duplexes and apartments . . . low priced from $18,290 to $21,790, including lot and landscaping. There are over 70 clubs and organizations at Sun City.

SmYth Moving Opens Rebuilt L.B. Office-Warehouse

GEORGE PAYNE

JOSEPH WILLS

SmYth Moving & Storage, 3333 E. Willow Street, Long Beach, last week opened its completely rebuilt 40,000-square-foot warehouse and new office on the same site damaged by fire last year. Present for the formal opening ceremonies attended by 300 dignitaries and city officials were George Payne, president of SmYth Worldwide Movers, Colorado Springs, and Douglas Fairbanks Jr., currently appearing in "My Fair Lady" at the Los Angeles Music Center, who serves on the board of directors of SmYth.

HIGHLIGHT OF the afternoon was the presentation of a $500 savings bond to Thomas Ryan, an Army inspector at Fort MacArthur who, during the SmYth fire, rescued all of the vehicles by driving them through the flames and out of the parking area.

Regional Vice President Joseph T. Wills said:

"The new facility is large enough to hold the equivalent of two thousand rooms of household goods. Although only completed in recent weeks it is already one-third occupied."

SmYth Worldwide Movers, Inc., has a volume of about $20 million per year and is the largest member in the United States of Allied Van Lines, Inc., the world's largest moving company.

Your property includes 4, 5 or more adjoining apartment units. The income from these is all yours. The demand for them is enormous. In fact, we have a waiting list of renters seeking living quarters in this desirable location.
It will pay you to become their landlord. For at Huntington Villas, the whole idea is to live scot free.

Attractive Features Spark Lusk Homes-Cerritos Sales

Many attractive features in individual homes, as well as a favorable pricing structure have resulted in excellent sales progress in the first two units of Lusk Homes-Cerritos, Gary M. McDonald, general sales manager for Lusk Homes, reported.

Only 19 homes, priced from $33,950 to $36,450, remain of the 92 in the first two units.

Lusk Homes-Cerritos has excellent freeway access to both the Santa Ana and 605 Freeways, with convenient shopping and availability to schools and churches.

* * * *

HOMES in the development are carpeted and offer many unusual features including rear and side yard fencing, concrete driveways, pantries in kitchens, landscape allowance and ceramic tile splashes over bath.

Some of the remaining homes also include a bonus room for family use.

Lusk Homes-Cerritos is located on Artesia Blvd. Santa Ana and 605 Freeways.

* * * *

LUSK Homes, one of the Southland's leading home builders, has constructed more than 10,000 homes valued at more than a quarter of a billion dollars.

Other current developments, in addition to Cerritos, are Harbor View Hills, Corona Del Mar; Huntington Seacliff, Huntington Beach; Countrywood, Hacienda Heights; Country Hills, La Habra and Fullerton; and Nohl Ranch, Anaheim and Orange.

Casa de Santiago's Final Unit Going Fast in S.A.

The final unit of new homes at Casa de Santiago, featuring the "can be" room and Orange County's finest location, is going fast, according to Sales Director, Ben Hare.

Hare credited the package of extras included in the sales price, the location, the medium price range and the "can be" room as primarily responsible for the success enjoyed at the private walled community.

The three and four bedroom homes are priced from $31,300 to $37,900 and include carpeting, landscaping, fencing and sprinklers in addition to the expandable "can be" room.

* * * *

THE closeness of the homes to excellent shopping centers such as Fashion Square Town & Country and Honer Plaza and its proximity to schools, churches, freeways and recreational and employment centers, has also been a large factor in the success of the community, said Hare.

"Many professional people have already selected the homesite of their choice," said Hare, who stressed that immediate occupancy is available.

The entire community is completely enclosed by a block wall ensuring privacy, added Hare.

The model homes may be viewed and inspected at Bristol Street and Memory Lane in North Santa Ana.

Paradise Manor Has Low Down Payment

Only $500 down is required to move into Paradise Manor's two and three-bedroom, two and two-and-a-half-bath homes because closing costs and impounds are included in the financing, according to a spokesman for the trans-Robles Corp., builders and developers of the family-oriented community in Orange County.

And that is quite a bargain in this day and age, continued the building executive, when you consider that $500 is usually the amount of money asked by builders as "good faith" money from potential homebuyers and the buyer still has at least several hundred dollars more to pay before buying a house.

But that doesn't apply at Paradise Manor; $500 is the total down.

* * * *

PRICED from $23,000 to a high of just $26,950, Paradise Manor offers 1,600 square feet floor area with a finished 420 square feet bonus room.

Features include all built-ins, wall-to-wall carpeting except in utility areas, ceramic tile countertops, cultured marble pullmans, floating stairways, breakfast bars, private patios and separate service areas.

All exterior maintenance and yard work is done for the residents at Paradise Manor allowing families the opportunity to enjoy the easy way of life around two swimming pools, the completely furnished and equipped recreation hall and putting green.

Model homes are open from 10 to dusk. From the Long Beach area, take the San Diego Freeway (Interstate 405) to the Euclid Street exit. Turn left (north) on Euclid a short distance to Paradise Manor.

Firestone Announces New Tire

A new concept in automobile tires has made its debut in this area.

Firestone dealers and stores have on display the new LXX tire-wheel combination, called by an automotive observer as "the greatest tire advance in 25 years."

The LXX is dramatically different in both construction and appearance from any conventional tire. It has a cantilevered sidewall projecting out from the recessed wheel, which results in a "deep-dish" appearance.

"The Southland was selected to be the first market to receive the LXX because of the great number of automobile enthusiasts here and because of their ready acceptance of advanced ideas," Firestone said.

WORLD OF WINGS

By HERB SHANNON
Aerospace Editor

Now it's business and general aviation's turn to be penalized by official city policy at Long Beach Airport.

Commercial airlines have been getting the worst of the City Council's refusal to provide adequate facilities. They have been frustrated consistently in attempts to inaugurate new service requested by the city under an earlier policy and cutbacks even in the current level are imminent.

But now the private pilots and fixed base operators who provide the major share of business activity at the airport are also being deprived of needed improvements.

WHILE ORANGE COUNTY and Fullerton airports have cooperated with the Federal Aviation Administration by providing office space for local weather and flight plan service stations, Long Beach has not done so on the grounds that the terminal is already full to overflowing.

The new facilities at the two smaller airports will provide pilots with a more personalized weather report and flight plan service. FAA specialists assigned to the new locations will furnish the latest weather and aeronautical information pertinent to planned flights.

Each of the stations will be supplied with both FAA and U.S. Weather Bureau teletypes, and in addition will have access to weather facsimile machines which give graphic pictures of weather conditions across the country. Some of the data is supplied by weather satellites in orbit.

At Orange County and Fullerton, these invaluable services will be available at the local terminals from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday through Sunday.

LONG BEACH PILOTS are forced to continue the present inefficient method of telephoning the overloaded FAA Flight Service Station at Los Angeles International Airport for the information.

Furthermore, they do not have direct access to the scientific weather charts. They must rely on interpretations by the Los Angeles briefers.

A spokesman for the FAA points out that Long Beach was offered the new service on an equal basis with the Orange County airports, but the proposal was turned down by the city for the stated reason that no space was available in the terminal.

Office space was the only FAA requirement of the city. Communications equipment and the trained personnel to provide the service are provided without charge.

L.B. Firm to Build New AF Hangar

Tri-Cor, Inc., of Long Beach, which has constructed more than 200 hangars for the U.S. Air Force, has been awarded a subcontract by Coneen Construction Corp. of El Cajon to build a $500,000 hangar at Edwards Air Force Base.

The hangar is to be used for in-place repair and over-hauling of the fuel system in heavy bombers and transport aircraft such as the B-52, C-133 and C-124, according to Bob Slatton, president of Tri-Cor.

Tri-Cor developed the original design work on these special hangars more than seven years ago. Hangars constructed from this design are in use at many air bases in the United States.

Liquori uncorked a courageous finishing kick and whipped world record-holder Jim Ryun of Kansas by 10 yards in the mile, winning in 3:57.7.

Carlos, who won the 100 in 9.2 Friday, anchored San Jose State's winning 440-yard relay team and thundered to a 10-foot triumph in the 220, winning in 20.2.

San Jose State scored 48 points, whipping favored Kansas which had counted on Ryun for victory in the mile and for points in the three-mile where the winded senior dropped out on the fourth lap in a frustrating finish to his college career.

Kansas finished second in the team race with 45 points.

Washington State and Oregon State tied for third with 40 points, UCLA was fifth with 39, Villanova scored 35, Brigham Young 34, defending champion USC 33 and Tennessee 28.

The final event of the meet, the mile relay, produced a collegiate and American record when UCLA's John Smith, Len Van Hofwegen, Andy Young of Long Beach and Wayne Collett were clocked in 3:03.4.

The team presentation to San Jose State touched off an outburst of jubilation from Carlos and his teammates.

Carlos, booted out of the U.S. Olympic Village at Mexico City last fall, held up his fingers in a V-sign and shouted with joy with his teammates when they were awarded the team trophy.

Then, the San Jose State team — which never before had won an NCAA track crown — ran jubiliantly around the track, chanting and shouting.

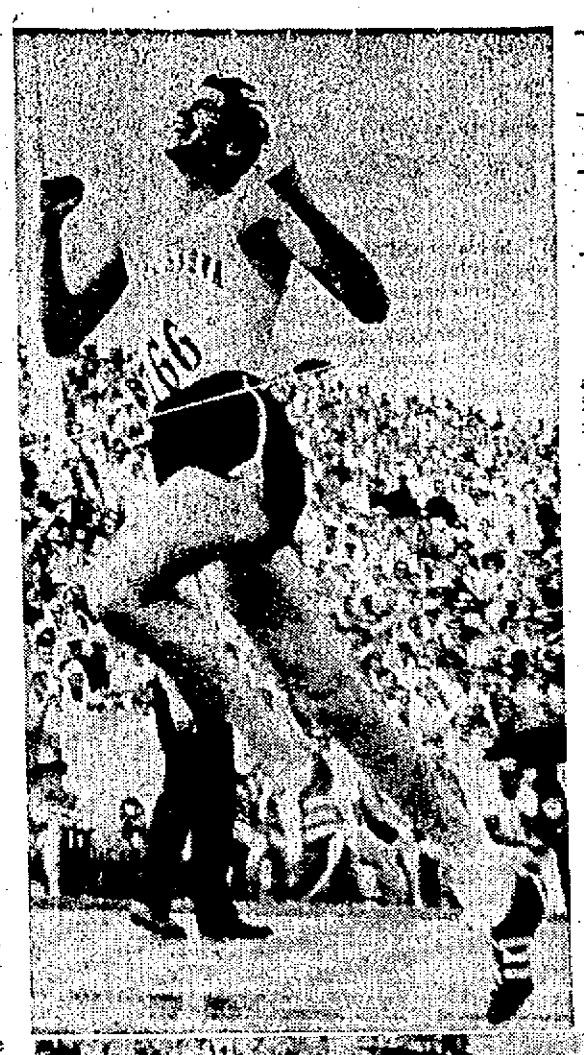

Numerous NCAA meet records toppled, including the pole vault standard boosted to 17-7½ by Olympic champion Bob Seagren of Southern Cal.

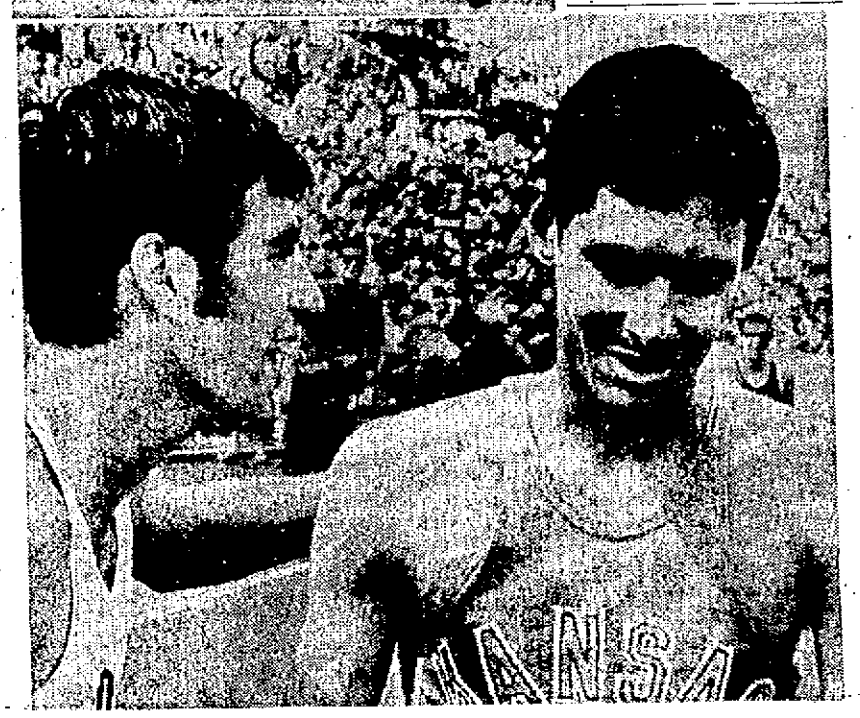

Other highlights included a 7-2½ high jump by Olympic champion Dick Fosbury of Oregon State, who repeated as champion.

So did John Van Renen of Washington State, who threw the discus 200-8, and Byron Dyce of New York University, who lowered the 880 collegiate record to 1:45.9.

Ralph Mann, formerly of Long Beach and now BYU, tied the meet record

Hey, Claude, 'New' Dodgers Have That First-Place Look

By FRED CLAIRE
Staff Writer

CINCINNATI — No one appreciates the difference in the Dodgers this season more than Claude Osteen.

And there is a difference in the Dodgers. Check the National League standings. You'll find the Dodgers tied for first place with Atlanta in the Western Division after beating the Reds, 9-0 Saturday evening.

One year ago on this date the Dodgers were in fifth place, 8½ games behind St. Louis. After that it was mostly downhill, finally hitting 10th place the last half of August before bouncing back to finish in a tie for seventh.

This is, to be sure, a different Dodger team. But it's the same old Osteen, a veteran of a dozen major league seasons at the age of 29.

Osteen pitched well enough last year to easily win 18 games. Instead he lost that many, winning only 12.

The Dodgers scored 22 runs in the 18 games Osteen lost. Osteen has lost five times this season when the Dodgers have scored 15 runs.

This is the same club which used to give Osteen one run and then say, "okay, now hold that lead."

The nine runs the Dodgers provided Osteen at Crosley Field wasn't unusual for this season in their support of the star lefthander. It's the third time the Dodgers have scored nine runs in a game Claude pitched. And once, against San Diego, there was a 14-0 laugher.

Osteen's victory was his ninth of the season and in those games the Dodgers have scored 61 runs — an average of 6.8 per game. It was his third shutout of the season.

The unusual part of Osteen's victory was the easy manner in which he blanked the Reds.

"It may have looked easy but it wasn't," said Claude.

Osteen became the first lefthander this season to pitch a complete game against the heavy-hitting Reds, loaded with right handed power. Thirteen southpaws previously had started and seven came away with losses. There were five no-decisions and one winner — the Cubs' Ken Holtzman, who lasted only five innings on June 6 while giving up 10 hits and five runs.

"I've always pitched well against this club," said Claude, originally signed by Cincinnati and a member of the Reds during part of the 1958-59-60-61 seasons, although he had only one decision — a defeat.

"This isn't any easy park to pitch in but the thing that concerned me most was the hot weather. When you're not used to it you can sometimes get lazy.

"Even though you have six runs against the Reds you can't relax. This is a small park and six runs can go real quick. When I have a man on base I concentrate on trying for a double play ball." The Dodger defense pulled off double plays to end the second and fifth innings.

"In this park and against this club that was some kind of pitching," said Dodger manager Walt Alston. "It was a perfect day for me, 9-0 win and a new shotgun (received in

Tatum Saves Win for Messersmith

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

When Andy Messersmith checked into Anaheim Stadium for the first time last year most everyone who watched him pitch agreed he had the makings to the Angels' top hurler.

And now, less than a year after his first big league start, he is No. 1.

He had a rough start this season, losing his first five games in a row. But since May 30 he's posted three consecutive victories, the latest coming Saturday night in a 4-1 nod over Chicago at Anaheim Stadium.

Andy has worked under considerable strain the last few weeks because of a pulled groin muscle. He missed three pitching turns because of it and it hampered him again Saturday night.

He had to leave after hurling seven innings, allowing the White Sox four base hits. Ken Tatum, the Angels' new relief whiz, saved the win for Messersmith and lowered his magnificent ERA another couple of notches to 0.49.

"Andy is a tremendous competitor" manager Lefty Phillips praised after the game. "The muscle bothered him but he didn't want to leave. I asked him about it and he said he could make it."

Andy was shooting for his third complete game victory in a row. In his three wins Messersmith's earned run average is 1.08.

The Angels didn't exactly jolt the White Sox' Joe Horlen with their two-run rally in the seventh. The Halos bunched together a strikeout-passed ball, a wild pitch, sacrifice fly and a single for the two runs.

In the eighth Lou Johnson eased things with a double that was good for two runs.

"Johnson is a money player," Phillips said. "He has been for years. If the guys are out there on base, he's going to get 'em home. That's the way he did it with the Dodgers.

"Lou is a heckuva baserunner, too. A lot of guys can learn from him."

Namath Hints at Leap to Canada

OCEAN SHORES, Wash. (UPI) — Although no contact has been made, Joe Namath, retired qurterback of the professional football champion New York Jets, Saturday said he would be receptive to offers from the Canadian Professional Football League.

"I do want to play football but I haven't talked with any of the owners or anyone associated with football in Canada," Namath said. "If they are interested in me, I am definitely interested in them."

Namath, a participant in the Pat Boone Celebrity Golf Tournament here, said arrangements are still pending for a meeting with pro football commissioner Pete Rozelle, whose edict that the quarterback divest himself of an interest in a New York club led to the sudden retirement June 6.

He added, "The New York Jets are my major goal — the fellows I have participated with the last four years and become very close friends with. We won the world's championship last year and I think the Jets could do it next year and I'd love to be a part of it."

IN OTHER MATTERS, the former University of Alabama star said he and retired New York Yankee baseball star Mickey Mantle will soon announce a joint business venture.

He did not reveal the nature of the partnership but said, "I think what Mickey and I are going to do in New York could be the biggest business I have been with or will be associated with."

Namath also said he will go to Los Angeles at the end of this month to begin work in his first film — "Norwood," which will star Glenn Campbell.

RUSSIANS BEAT HAWK ROOKIES

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The Russian national basketball team pushed its record to 3-1 against American opposition Saturday night with a 76-59 victory over the Atlanta Hawks rookies.

The Russians led 42-18 at halftime as a definite height advantage was too much for the Hawk youngsters.

Invading Fort Marcy Grounds Turf Rivals

New York based Fort Marcy and jockey Manuel Ycaza succeeded for the second successive year in an overnight invasion of Hollywood Park, winning the $100,000 Invitational Turf Handicap in a rousing photo finish Saturday.

Thirty hours after leaving Gotham for the flight across the country, a trip almost missed because of the air control slowdown, Fort Marcy almost missed out for the $55,000 reward as lightly regarded Poleax stirred up a storm through the stretch.

The margin was a nose, with Court Fool third and Tampa Trouble fourth in the field of 12.

Fort Marcy, a 6-5 favorite and high weight of 124 pounds, spotted his rivals from six to 16 pounds in the mile and one-half journey over his favorite grassy running surface. The time was 2:27 1/5.

Last year the 5-year-old Fort Marcy, the 1967 grass horse of the year, flew to Hollywood on the same time schedule and won the $100,000 Sunset Handicap, again in a spirited finish with Quicken Tree. His time in the Sunset, with 122 pounds aboard, was 2:26 3/5.

Performing before 47,177, Fort Marcy returned $4.40, $3.60 and $3. Poleax, 117, ridden by Don Pierce, paid $11.60 and $7.60 and Court Fool, 115, ridden by Jerry Lambert, paid $4.60.

Fort Marcy is owned and was bred by the Rokeby Stable of Paul Mellon of Upperville, Va., and is trained by Elliott Burch. Both were on hand to see the inaugural running of this stakes.

Lightweight Diego Security went out on the lead and held it until the pack went down the backstretch when Delayed Tip took the front end.

Passing the grandstand for the first time, Fort Marcy had only three horses to beat and he remained toward the rear of the bunched field going down the backstretch and into the far turn.

After that Fort Marcy began to run by horses and took the lead entering the stretch. He seemed destined for a leisurely victory until Poleax charged up to threaten seriously in the final strides.

Ycaza explained, "When they bunched up again going down the backside, I had to work my way to

RULED WOMEN'S TENNIS 3 YEARS

Li'l Mo Loses Last Set to Cancer

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Maureen (Little Mo) Connolly Brinker, who ruled the woman's tennis world from 1951-1954 before a horseback riding accident ended her career, died Saturday of cancer.

She was 34.

She had suffered from the disease since 1966 but still was active in teaching young people the fundamentals of the game she loved.

Three times she won both the Wimbledon and United States titles. In 1954, she scored an unprecedented grand slam, winning the U.S., Wimbledon, French and Australian championships.

Little Mo married businessman Norman Brinker in 1955. They had two children — Cindy, 12, and Brenda, 10.

She underwent her third operation for a stomach tumor June 4 at Baylor Hospital.

Little Mo might have been the equal to any woman tennis player in history, or she might have been better, but no one will ever know because of the freak accident that cut short her career — before she was 20 years old.

Just a few weeks after she had won her third straight Wimbledon title and was home again in San Diego, Little Mo and her roan sorrel were riding along a cinder path beside a highway when, frightened by the approach of a cement truck, Colonel Merryboy bolted. The horse slammed against the side of the truck and Mrs. Brinker was thrown into a ditch, her right leg smashed.

Although it appeared that she might be able to overcome the injuries, Mrs. Brinker's leg never did heal properly and Little Mo announced she would never play competitive tennis again.

"If I can't play the way I used to," she said, "there is no need in playing at all."

Maureen was a cold, calculating killer on the tennis court, hewn of the same stonyfaced image of Helen Wills. Although bubbly and feminine off the court, she was grim and businesslike once a racket was placed in her hand and she looked across the net at an opponent.

There was little explosiveness about her game. She didn't leap and slide, smash and swat.

Instead, there was a clinical quality in the way she sliced up her opponents, much in the fashion of a surgeon performing an operation. She was cool, meticulous and relentless.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Sophomores Curtis Mills of Texas A&M and Marty Liquori of Villanova scored stunning upsets Saturday in the NCAA track and field championships won by San Jose State behind the explosive running of John Carlos.

Mills broke the world record in the 440-yard dash, running the quarter-

RUSSIANS BEAT HAWK ROOKIES

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The Russian national basketball team pushed its record to 3-1 against American opposition Saturday night with a 76-59 victory over the Atlanta Hawks rookies.

The Russians led 42-18 at halftime as a definite height advantage was too much for the Hawk youngsters.

Invading Fort Marcy Grounds Turf Rivals

New York jockey Fort Marcy and jockey Manuel Yeaza succeeded for the second successive year in an overnight invasion of Hollywood Park, winning the $100,000 Invitational Turf Handicap in a rousing photo finish Saturday.

Thirty hours after leaving Gotham for the flight across the country, a trip almost missed because of the [illegible] Fort Marcy almost missed out for the $50,000 reward as lightly regarded Polear started up a storm through the stretch.

The margin was a nose, with Court Fool third and Tampa Trouble fourth in the field of 12.

RULED WOMEN'S TENNIS 3 YEARS

Li'l Mo Loses Last Set to Cancer

DALLAS, Tex (AP) — Maureen (Little Mo) Connolly Brinker, who ruled the woman's tennis world from 1951-1954 before a horseback riding accident ended her career, died Saturday of cancer.

She was 34.

She had suffered from the disease since 1966 but still was active in teaching young people the fundamentals of the game she loved.

Three times she won both the Wimbledon and United States titles. In 1954, she scored an unprecedented grand slam, winning the U.S., Wimbledon, French and Australian championships.

Little Mo married businessman Norman Brinker in 1955. They had two children — Cindy, 12, and Brenda, 10.

She underwent her third operation for a stomach tumor June 4 at Baylor Hospital.

Little Mo might have been the equal to any woman tennis player in history, or she might have been better, but no one will ever know because of the freak accident that cut short her career — before she was 20 years old.

Just a few weeks after she had won her third straight Wimbledon title and was home again in San Diego, Little Mo and her mum sorrel were riding along a cinder path beside a highway when, frightened by the approach of a cement truck, Colonel Merrybow bolted. The horse slammed against the side of the truck and Mrs. Brinker was thrown into a ditch, her right leg smashed.

Although it appeared that she might be able to overcome the injuries, Mrs. Brinker's leg never did heal properly and Little Mo announced she would never play competitive tennis again.

"If I can't play the way I used to," she said, "there is no need in playing at all."

Maureen was a cold, calculating killer on the tennis court, heavy of the same stonyfaced image of Helen Wills. Although nubbly and feminine off the court, she was grim and businesslike once a racket was placed in her hand and she looked across the net at an opponent.

There was little explosiveness about her game. She didn't leap and slide, smash and swat.

Instead, there was a clinical quality in the way she sliced up her opponents, much in the fashion of a surgeon performing an operation. She was cool, meticulous and relentless.

HE LOST TO BOTH OF THEM!

Buster Picks Frazier Over Quarry

Having been beaten by both men in the last few months, Buster Mathis' opinion of Monday night's Joe Frazier-Jerry Quarry "war" carries a lot of weight.

"I like Frazier," he says. "Joe punches harder. If I had to pick which one to fight again, I'd choose Quarry. He was bad the night I fought him. Only thing is, I was worse. In fact, I stunk up the place."

Mathis, who twice decisioned Frazier when they were amateurs, outpointed Joe for eight rounds of their fight last year, but tired under his opponent's withering attack and was knocked out in the 11th round.

Mathis was favored to beat Quarry in their bout earlier this year but never was in the fight after being knocked down in the second round. Buster complained of hurting his right hand in the first round as Jerry scored a lop-sided decision to get the opportunity to meet Frazier.

The oddsmakers agree with Buster's view of the fight, favoring Frazier at 12-5. And we go along with them, too. We like Joe to win. Call it by decision.

The bout is another step towards Frazier's long-range goal of making "at least a half-million dollars for myself after taxes," and then retiring to become a night club entertainer.

Joe has a hard-rock group called "The KO's" and they play club dates when he's not in training. He's already had seven records released by Capitol. And, as one wag says, "They are at least as good as Denny McLain's organ music."

Frazier's favorite record on which he sings is "If You Leave, Stay Gone!"

RETIREMENT FROM BOXING is furthest from his mind right now, what with several big money bouts ahead. If he is upset by Quarry, a rematch appears a certainty. If he wins, he'll go after Jimmy Ellis to clear up the heavyweight title.

And as he tells those close to him how he'll massacre Quarry, he admits his No. 1 ring target is a bout with Cassius Clay — a bout which undoubtedly would draw the biggest gate in history. With closed circuit TV, it would be a multi-million-dollar attraction.

That's a far cry from the way Joe came home in 1964 from Tokyo after winning the Olympic heavyweight crown. For awhile, he couldn't even get a job; finally went to work in a slaughter house for $80 a week.

As we have related before, Joe was launched on his pro career by 36 stockholders, who bought shares in his ring future for $250 each.

In four years, the ranks of shareholders in Cloverlay, a Pennsylvania Corporation, has climbed to $750 and, after five stock splits, and original $250 share now is valued at $14,400 and quite likely will double this year.

MEANWHILE, QUARRY IS supremely confident of winning Monday night's fight. At least, that's the way he talks.

"When did I know I could beat Frazier?" he asked a question himself in answering a query when he flew home to Bellflower for a couple of days for his brother's graduation. "I knew it when I lost to Ellis a year ago. That may seem strange, but I became confident then. I became a fighter. I used to fear fights — not about getting hurt, but the possibility of losing.

"Now I know there's nothing to fear. Frazier is only a mortal man. And he knows I can punch harder than he can!"

In the past Quarry has always turned in a disappointing effort wherever he reached an important step in his career — namely two draws with Tony Alongi and losses to Eddie Machen and Ellis.

Quarry reports he is in excellent condition for the fight, which should be good news to his supporters since it has been said that his family crest should be a "blue cross on a field of crutches."

The indestructible 24-year-old Irishman has had his back broken twice and has overcome four broken arms and four fractured ankles.

IN THE MEANTIME, MATHIS, whose career was sidetracked by Frazier and Mathis, is preparing to launch another campaign to move back up the ladder in the rankings and get another crack at the title.

He's due to meet Al (Blue) Lewis in Detroit on July 23 and will go into training at Rhinebeck, N.Y., next week.

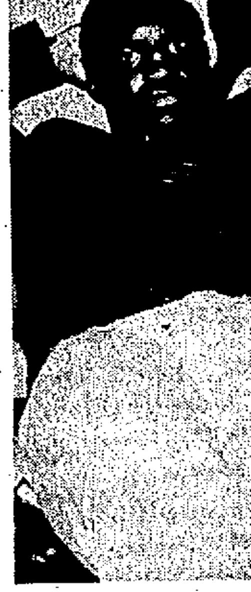

Presently, he is struggling to hold his weight at 240 before heading for camp. He once weighed 360 and fought as an amateur at 305. We hear he has taken up roller skating to augment his road work. He has been logging a couple of skating sessions each week along with his jogging, and playing basektball and handball.

The hardest part of his training regimen is pushing himself away from the table. He's known as the "weight watchers pinup boy."

"Food is my undoing," he told us when he fought out here last year. "I have to watch myself constantly. I love any kind of food you can get your mouth on — hamburgers, ice cream, candy, pie, cake, chicken, steak. You name it . . . and it will be among my favorite food."

So far, Buster has made about $150,000 for himself in 32 bouts (he's 30-2) above expenses allotted him weekly by his backers.

And that will buy a lot of food!

Mays Rips No. 596 as Giants Win

ATLANTA (UPI) — Willie Mays hit his ninth homer of the season and the 596th of his career with two on to climax a four-run seventh inning rally Saturday which carried San Francisco to a 7-1 triumph over Atlanta.

The Giants filled the bases on a single by Hal Lanier, a bloop double by Bobby Bonds and a walk to Ron Hunt before the wild pitch enabled Lanier to score the tie-breaking run.

Mays followed with his homer which left him four shy of becoming the second player in major league history to hit 600 homers during his career.

a pre-game presentation). What more can you ask for?"

Walt didn't mention it but he also received a very nice tie. The one for first place.

DODGER OF DAY

CLAUDE OSTEEN became first of 14 lefthanded pitchers to go the distance against Cincinnati this season in blanking Reds, 9-0, on six hits.

DODGER NOTES: The Dodgers will start Bill Singer (7-6) and Alan Foster (2-4) in today's doubleheader . . . Slated for the Reds are Tony Cloninger (4-8) and either Jim Maloney (3-1) or Gerry Arrigo (0-0) . . . Despite Singer's 7-6 record, he leads the major leagues with 115 strikeouts and has an earned run average of 2.33 — best among Dodger starters . . . Foster has pitched shutouts in his last two starts and is working on a streak of 21 consecutive scoreless innings . . . Maloney hasn't won a game since pitching a no-hitter against Houston April 30 and hasn't started since May 20 due to arm trouble.

The turnover on the Reds' pitching staff is fantastic, only three pitchers — Maloney, Saturday loser George Culver (4-6) and Arrigo — were with the Reds during the start of the 1968 season . . . Recent additions to the Red staff are Alvin Jackson and Pedro Ramos, a couple of 34-year-olds who were tossed into Saturday's battle after Culver was bombed . . . The earned run average of the Reds' staff is 4.30, ranking with Montreal at the bottom in the NL. The Dodgers are setting the pace with an amazing 2.74 team ERA.

Dodger pitcher Don Drysdale reports his arm feels good after Friday night's six innings of shutout work . . . Manny Mota and Maury Wills continued their phenomenal hitting with two singles each and are batting a combined .402 as Dodgers . . . The last time the Dodgers had a share of first place was May 2 . . . Andy Kosco and Wes Parker unloaded consecutive homers in the seventh inning Saturday. It was Andy's 13 and Wes' seventh. Last season Kosco had 15 and Parker three.

Orioles Keep on Win Tear

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Mike Cuellar lowered his earned-run-average to 1.92 by beating Cleveland, 3-1, on four hits Saturday to give the Baltimore Orioles their ninth victory in their last 10 games.

Cuellar, who has pitched eight complete games, retired the first 13 batters before Cap Peterson singled with one out in the fifth and Duke Sims followed with a single. The slim left hander struck out nine and walked four in winning his eighth victory against five losses.

Yankees Salvage Split With Bosox

BOSTON (UPI) — A bases-loaded triple by Roy White in the ninth inning Saturday night gave the Yankees a comeback 6-3 victory over Boston after the Red Sox scored four runs in the 11th inning to win the day game of a doubleheader, 6-5.

The Yankees jumped on reliever Al Lyle for their winning second game rally and the split as White, who had a double and two triples in the night game, cracked an 0-2 pitch to clear the bases.

In the day game, which had been postponed by rain from Friday night, the Yanks snapped a 2-2 tie with three runs in the 11th around Michael's two-run infield single.

Horton Belts Pair, Tigers Bounce Nats

DETROIT (UPI) — Slump-ridden Willie Horton drove in six runs with a pair of homers, including a grand slam, and a single to power Detroit to a 9-5 victory over Washington Saturday.

Horton, batting exactly .200 entering the game, changed the frequent home-crowd booing to lusty cheers in the fourth inning when he slammed his eighth home run and first since June 1 to lead off the inning. Horton singled in the fifth to drive in the game-tying run, then followed three consecutive singles in the seventh with his ninth homer of the season.

BANKS COLLECTS 1,538TH RBI

Fairly's Third Safety Lifts Expos Past Cubs

CHICAGO (AP) — Ron Fairly's third successive hit, a tie-breaking double in the eighth inning, lifted the Montreal Expos to a 3-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs Saturday.

With one out in the eighth, Mack Jones was hit by a Ferguson Jenkins pitch and then raced all the way home past coach Peanuts Lowery's stop signal to score the tie-breaker on Fairly's hit.

Ron Brand then came up with a two-out single that chased Fairly home with an insurance run.

The Cubs took a 1-0 lead in the first inning on Ernie Banks run-scoring single. It was his 1,538th run batted in, moving him past Joe Dimaggio into 15th place on the all-time list.

Twins Wreck A's on 11 Runs in 10th

OAKLAND (UPI) — Harmon Killebrew's three-run homer triggered a record 11-run 10th inning rally Saturday and powered Minnesota to a 14-4 victory over Oakland and to within two percentage points of the A's for first place in the American League's Western Division.

KILLEBREW

The Twins went on to score eight more runs off Krausse and Rene Lachemann on five hits, four walks, a stolen base and three Oakland errors. It was the most runs ever scored in the 10th inning in AL history and it matched the record for most runs in any extra inning set by the New York Yankees in a game against Detroit July 26, 1928.

The A's scored a run in the bottom of the 10th to help set a two-blub extra inning record of 12 runs,

Trans-Am Pole Won by Donohue

BRIDGEHAMPTON, N.Y. (UPI) — Mark Donohue, defending champion from Media, Pa., holds the pole for today's 250-mile Trans-American sedan championships at Bridgehampton's scenic 2.85-mile road course, driving a Camaro to a 100.04 mph clocking.

The Mustang vs. Camaro battle for the series championship was clearly outlined in qualifying with Parnelli Jones holding second place on the grid and George Follmer third, both Mustangs.

SUN DEVIL COACH NOT WORRIED

Pros to Raid NCAA Champs

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Bobby Winkles won't know for several weeks how deeply professional signings will cut into his NCAA championship baseball team, but those who know Winkles and Arizona State baseball say it doesn't matter a great deal.

They predict the Sun Devils will be back in Omaha next June bidding for their fourth national title in six years.

Arizona State won its third championship in five years Friday night, blasting Tulsa, 10-1, in the title game.

Five of the mainstays on Winkles' club have eligibility remaining — including what he calls his finest outfield — but have been drafted by the pros.

"I don't let that worry me too much," said Winkles. "It's part of the game today. They're fine boys and they'll make fine ballplayers."

Part of the reason Winkles doesn't get upset over the pros raiding his teams annually is the fact that a lot of good prospects who want to go to college get directed to Arizona State by pro scouts.

HE LOST TO BOTH OF THEM!

Buster Picks Frazier Over Quarry

DAVE LEWIS
Sports Editor

Having been beaten by both men in the last few months, Buster Mathis' opinion of Monday night's Joe Frazier-Jerry Quarry "war" carries a lot of weight.

"I like Frazier," he says. "Joe punches harder. If I had to pick which one to fight again, I'd choose Quarry. He was bad the night I fought him. Only thing is, I was worse. In fact, I stunk up the place."

Mathis, who twice decisioned Frazier when they were amateurs, outpointed Joe for eight rounds of their fight last year, but tired under his opponent's withering attack and was knocked out in the 11th round.

Mathis was favored to beat Quarry in their bout earlier this year but never was in the fight after being knocked down in the second round. Buster complained of hurting his right hand in the first round as Jerry scored a lop-sided decision to get the opportunity to meet Frazier.

The oddsmakers agree with Buster's view of the fight, favoring Frazier at 12-5. And we go along with them, too. We like Joe to win. Call it by decision.

The bout is another step towards Frazier's long-range goal of making "at least a half-million dollars for myself after taxes," and then retiring to become a night club entertainer.

Joe has a hard-rock group called "The KO's" and they play club dates when he's not in training. He's already had seven records released by Capitol. And, as one wag says, "They are at least as good as Denny McLain's organ music."

Frazier's favorite record on which he sings is "If You Leave, Stay Gone!"

RETIREMENT FROM BOXING is farthest from his mind right now, what with several big money bouts ahead. If he is upset by Quarry, a rematch appears a certainty. If he wins, he'll go after Jimmy Ellis to close up the heavyweight title.

And as he tells those close to him how he'll massacre Quarry, he admits his No. 1 ring target is a bout with Cassius Clay — a bout which undoubtedly would draw the biggest gate in history. With closed circuit TV, it would be a multi-million-dollar attraction.

That's a far cry from the way Joe came home in 1964 from Tokyo after winning the Olympic heavyweight crown. For awhile, he couldn't even get a job; finally went to work in a slaughter house for $80 a week.

As we have related before, Joe was launched on his pro career by 36 stockholders, who bought shares in his ring future for $250 each.

In four years, the ranks of shareholders in Cloverlay, a Pennsylvania Corporation, has climbed to $750 and, after five stock splits, and original $250 share now is valued at $14,400 and quite likely will double this year.

MEANWHILE, QUARRY IS supremely confident of winning Monday night's fight. At least, that's the way he talks.

"When did I know I could beat Frazier?" he asked a question himself in answering a query when he flew home to Bellflower for a couple of days for his brother's graduation. "I knew it when I lost to Ellis a year ago. That may seem strange, but I became confident then. I became a fighter. I used to fear fights — not about getting hurt, but the possibility of losing.

"Now I know there's nothing to fear. Frazier is only a mortal man. And he knows I can punch harder than he can!"

In the past Quarry has always turned in a disappointing effort wherever he reached an important step in his career — namely two draws with Tony Alongi and losses to Eddie Machen and Ellis.

Quarry reports he is in excellent condition for the fight, which should be good news to his supporters since it has been said that his family crest should be a "blue cross on a field of crutches."

The indestructible 24-year-old Irishman has had his back broken twice and has overcome four broken arms and four fractured ankles.

IN THE MEANTIME, MATHIS, whose career was sidetracked by Frazier and Mathis, is preparing to launch another campaign to move back up the ladder in the rankings and get another crack at the title.

He's due to meet Al (Blue) Lewis in Detroit on July 23 and will go into training at Rhinebeck, N.Y., next week.

Presently, he is struggling to hold his weight at 240 before heading for camp. He once weighed 360 and fought as an amateur at 305. We hear he has taken up roller skating to augment his road work. He has been logging a couple of skating sessions each week along with his jogging, and playing basektball and handball.

The hardest part of his training regimen is pushing himself away from the table. He's known as the "weight watchers pinup boy."

"Food is my undoing," he told us when he fought out here last year. "I have to watch myself constantly. I love any kind of food you can get your mouth on — hamburgers, ice cream, candy, pie, cake, chicken, steak. You name it . . . and it will be among my favorite food."

So far, Buster has made about $150,000 for himself in 32 bouts (he's 30-2) above expenses allotted him weekly by his backers.

And that will buy a lot of food!

Mays Rips No. 596 as Giants Win

ATLANTA (UPI) — Willie Mays hit his ninth homer of the season and the 596th of his career with two on to climax a four-run seventh inning rally Saturday which carried San Francisco to a 7-1 triumph over Atlanta.

Mays followed with his homer which left him four shy of becoming the second player in major league history to hit 600 homers during his career.

Yankees Salvage Split With Bosox

BOSTON (UPI) — A bases-loaded triple by Roy White in the ninth inning Saturday night gave the Yankees a comeback 6-3 victory over Boston after the Red Sox scored four runs in the 11th inning to win the day game of a doubleheader, 6-5.

The Yankees jumped on reliever Al Lyle for their winning second game rally and the split as White, who had a double and two triples in the night game, cracked an 0-2 pitch to clear the bases.

In the day game, which had been postponed by rain from Friday night, the Yanks snapped a 2-2 tie with three runs in the 11th around Michael's two-run infield single.

Horton Belts Pair, Tigers Bounce Nats

DETROIT (UPI) — Slump-ridden Willie Horton drove in six runs with a pair of homers, including a grand slam, and a single to power Detroit to a 9-5 victory over Washington Saturday.

Horton, batting exactly .200 entering the game, changed the frequent home-crowd booing to lusty cheers in the fourth inning when he slammed his eighth home run and first since June 1 to lead off the inning. Horton singled in the fifth to drive in the game-tying run, then followed three consecutive singles in the seventh with his ninth homer of the season.

BANKS COLLECTS 1,538TH RBI

Fairly's Third Safety Lifts Expos Past Cubs

CHICAGO (AP) — Ron Fairly's third successive hit, a tie-breaking double in the eighth inning, lifted the Montreal Expos to a 3-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs Saturday.

With one out in the eighth, Mack Jones was hit by a Ferguson Jenkins pitch and then raced all the way home past coach Peanuts Lowery's stop signal to score the tie-breaker on Fairly's hit.

Ron Brand then came up with a two-out single that chased Fairly home with an insurance run.

The Cubs took a 1-0 lead in the first inning on Ernie Banks run-scoring single. It was his 1,538th run batted in, moving him past Joe Dimaggio into 15th place on the all-time list.

Twins Wreck A's on 11 Runs in 10th

OAKLAND (UPI) — Harmon Killebrew's three-run homer triggered a record 11-run 10th inning rally Saturday and powered Minnesota to a 14-4 victory over Oakland and to within two percentage points of the A's for first place in the American League's Western Division.

KILLEBREW

The Twins went on to score eight more runs off Krausse and Rene Lachemann on five hits, four walks, a stolen base and three Oakland errors. It was the most runs ever scored in the 10th inning in AL history and it matched the record for most runs in any extra inning set by the New York Yankees in a game against Detroit July 26, 1928.

The A's scored a run in the bottom of the 10th to help set a two-blub extra inning record of 12 runs.

Trans-Am Pole Won by Donohue

The Mustang vs. Camaro battle for the series championship was clearly outlined in qualifying with Parnelli Jones holding second place on the grid and George Follmer third, both Mustangs.

SUN DEVIL COACH NOT WORRIED

Pros to Raid NCAA Champs

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Bobby Winkles won't know for several weeks how deeply professional signings will cut into his NCAA championship baseball team, but those who know Winkles and Arizona State baseball say it doesn't matter a great deal.

They predict the Sun Devils will be back in Omaha next June bidding for their fourth national title in six years.

Arizona State won its third championship in five years Friday night, blasting Tulsa, 10-1, in the title game.

Five of the mainstays on Winkles' club have eligibility remaining — including what he calls his finest outfield — but have been drafted by the pros.

"I don't let that worry me too much," said Winkles. "It's part of the game today. They're fine boys and they'll make fine ballplayers."

Part of the reason Winkles doesn't get upset over the pros raiding his teams annually is the fact that a lot of good prospects who want to go to college get directed to Arizona State by pro scouts.

Jerry 'n Joe: So Different, But So Much Alike

It's curious that when a Negro is fighting a Caucasian, television announcers will identify the opponents by the colors of their pants rather than the obvious colors of their skins.

In most cases, the announcer is simply reluctant to inject race . . . but if there is no racial issue, there is no point in avoiding the apparent distinction and therefore no harm in exploiting it as a means of identification.

Joe Frazier is black and Jerry Quarry is white, and you can't surprise them by telling them so. So here we are, awaiting Monday night's confrontation between a black champion and the legendary "great white hope," and it doesn't make any difference to either of them.

"Y'all have had so many 'great white hopes'," Frazier sighs. "I like Quarry all right. There's no racial thing. This is business. It's the fightin' game. Before the fight we're friends. After the fight we're still friends."

"People seein' it from ringside think you can do this or do that, but look here, it ain't that easy out there. When that man's facin' you and you're facin' him, it's a different situation." — Joe Frazier.

Jim Braddock would like Quarry "to win it for the Irish." Quarry has fought nothing but black men in his drive toward the title. Any title. After beating Floyd Patterson and Thad Spencer, he lost the WBA tournament final to Jimmy Ellis. Then he thrashed Buster Mathis to win a shot at Frazier's strange six-state crown.

Frazier's as black as any of them, but Jerry hardly notices. "I just climb into the ring as a man," he says.

RICH ROBERTS

"I'm not fighting for the white people. I'm fighting for Jerry Quarry."

Then he adds, "If I were black, you wouldn't be able to ask me that question."

THEIR SKIN is the only large difference between these men, whose sensible intelligence is a refreshing improvement over the general run of pre-fight baloney.

Both arose from families that literally had to scratch a living out of the ground. Both are hip to the cool modern sounds, be it soul or country, and neither is given to blowing off gas.

Frazier, enjoying recognition as the '64 Olympic champion, declined to enter the WBA tourney, choosing "to wait until they have to come to me."

Now they are starting to come, Quarry first.

Frazier insists he hasn't paid much attention to the heavyweight scene.

"I'm not a fight fan, y' know. I don't go to a fight and really watch a guy. I'd rather find somethin' else to do."

Quarry feels the same way. "I never watch an opponent work out. That's what happened to Buster Mathis. I saw him come into the gym and I played it cool for a minute, then started ripping my sparring partner's belly apart. I could hear Mathis grunt from the back row. That was it for him."

Funny things happen in gymnasiums, and you can't always believe what you hear . . . or see. A couple of years ago Quarry sparred with Frazier in L.A.'s Main Street Gym. Later the story went out that Joe had all the best of it, according to an old boxing buff named Eddie Futch.

"I read what Eddie Futch said about that workout," Quarry says, "and let me tell you one thing: Eddie Futch wasn't even present at the workout. He said he was timekeeper and ringing the bell. The Main Street Gym does not have a bell; they have a buzzer system that works electrically.

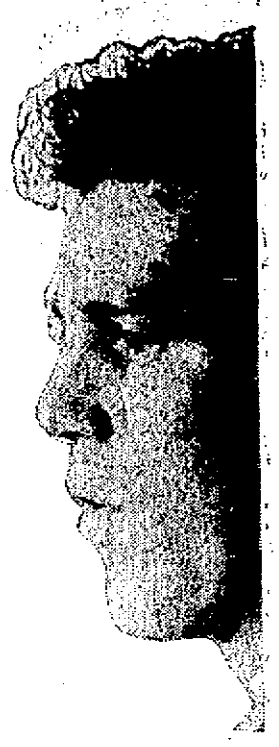

"I'm not psyching anybody out. If I'm gonna try and scare the man out of the fight, I'm not gonna accomplish anything." — Jerry Quarry.

"I thought I handled myself very capably. I very much enjoyed the fact that I was stronger than him (Frazier). And he couldn't punch that hard. I took his punch and it didn't bother me."

QUARRY MAINTAINS respect for Frazier because "he's gone through 23 fights without a loss, but I just feel it's something I can do. I have the ability, I have the strength and I have the punch to get him out of there.

"I'm not trying to be a cocky kid when I say that, because I'm no longer a kid. I'm a mature adult . . . and it takes an adult to be in there."

Frazier likes to say, "I'll come out smokin'," and on a recent telephone interview one writer stopped him cold when he asked what it meant.

Joe paused, then laughed, "How 'bout that!" But then he came back swinging.

"He's never seen me work. When I get out there and start throwing punches, that leather'll be so hot you can actually see it burn. That's 'smokin'!"

Frazier, the youngest of seven boys among 13 children, was a ninth-grade dropout, married and a father at 17 by the time his family left South Carolina for Philadelphia. But he's not dumb. He can swap repartee with the ablest journalists and doesn't hesitate to impart wisdom to those he thinks can use it.

One writer wanted to know what Joe would do if Quarry did this, and then Frazier did that and Quarry . . .

"Boy, you're fightin' the fight now, ain't ya?" Frazier laughed. "Believe me, those hands and those counterpunches and those left hooks are not as easy to throw as you seem to think."

FRAZIER AND QUARRY are least understood among their peers, who don't understand people who are firm in their beliefs, loyal to those they care about, aware of their roles.

Some found it hard to believe that Quarry interrupted training and flew across the country just to see his kid brother Mike graduate from high school.

"It's something important to me," Quarry explained. "My brother and I are very close."

Jerry, it is said, now considers himself to be a New York fighter, not a Californian. But he doesn't feel he turned his back on his Los Angeles friends; rather, they turned their backs on him, lending little importance to his successes and making too much of his failures.

No doubt Jerry is more comfortable in New York, where he doesn't have the old haysced image still held in Los Angeles. He now grooms himself well and speaks articulately.

"I'm a New York guy now," he has said. "The writers here have been fair and the fans act like I'm a native."

IN THE PHONE hookup mentioned above, Los Angeles and Washington D.C. were linked together to Frazier's training camp. The Washington writers brought a young heavyweight prospect on the line "to wish Frazier luck." The exchange, revealing much about Frazier in earnest overtones, went like this (Frazier speaks first):

"How old are you, boy?"

"Nineteen."

"Man, look here, you better leave them gloves alone."

"Yeah, well, we'll see 'bout that, y' hear? A year from now, we'll see 'bout that."

"You out of school?"

"Yeah."

"Go to college, man. Find sumpin' else to do. It's too much outta a man's life. Listen, I'm not gonna be like, say, 'Hey, be a hero, c'mon, I'll knock ya out.' I know I can whip ya. But take it from me, man. Find sumpin' else to do that, you know, you can stay with your family a little more and you can enjoy life a little more. This takes too much of your time. You might get the money behind you . . . but everybody's behind you and nobody's goin' into that ring with you, y' understand?"

"Joe?"

"Yeah?"

"Remember the name."

Frazier pauses, then bristles: "Awright, you act like a fool, then go ahead, man. I tried to talk to you like a man should. Now you're gonna talk about 'remember the name.' What is yo' name, anyway?"

FOES PREDICT EARLY FIREWORKS MONDAY

'No Way He's Gonna Go Five'—Frazier

NEW YORK (AP) — In one of the hottest fight attractions in years, unbeaten Joe Frazier defends his six-state piece of the world heavyweight title against Jerry Quarry Monday night in a 15-rounder that could finish in an explosive knockout within five rounds.

Although neither of the young fighters ever has been stopped, both have predicted early fireworks at Madison Square Garden.

"There ain't no way he's gonna go five," retorted Frazier, of Philadelphia, "He's gonna get burned earlier than that if he comes after me like he says he will. He knows that if he don't come out I'm gonna go after him. I'm comin' after him no matter what and he knows it."

The 25-year-old champion, winner of all 23 of his pro fights and 20 of them by knockouts, has been a solid favorite ever since the fight was made. He is expected to step into the Garden ring the choice at better than 2-1.

With ticket prices ranging from $10 to $100, Harry Markson, the Garden's boxing director, forecast a crowd of more than 15,000 would pay upwards of $500,000.

Markson usually is conservative in his predictions and some observers said they would not be surprised at a 19,000 sellout and a $750,000 gate. The $10 seats sold out early.

"There hasn't been such enthusiasm since the Rocky Marciano days in the fifties," said Markson. "We've got some sportswriters coming in who haven't been in since Rocky's day's."

The bout will be telecast by closed circuit to about 150 arenas and theaters in the United States and Canada. New York will be blacked out of the television.

There will be no home television or radio broadcast. The fight will be shown on tape in delayed telecasts to many countries.

About $700,000 of the television receipts may be added to the promotion. Frazier, getting 35 per cent of the net gate receipts and 40 per cent of all ancillary income, could earn from $350,000 to $500,000. Quarry, on his 25 per cent of everything, could gross from $250,000 to $350,000.

It will be largest purses for both, pros just about four years.

Frazier, the Olympic heavyweight champion of 1964, won a piece of the heavyweight crown by stopping Buster Mathis in the 11th round before a crowd of 18,096 which contributed $658,503 for a record indoor gate at the Garden, March 4, 1968.

440 RECORD FALLS

in winning the 440 intermediate hurdles in 49.6.

Mills, 20-year-old journalism student, burst past Evans at the finish and cracked the old world mark of 44.8 set three years ago by Tommie Smith of San Jose State.

Asked to describe how he would write a story about his race, the lanky Texan said, "I'd call it a helluva run."

Liquori, 19-year-old sophomore who had never before beaten Ryun, battled the Kansas favorite shoulder-to-shoulder for about 200 yards and then swept to an easy triumph against the man famed for his furious finishes.

"I kept waiting for him," the Villanova sophomore said, "but with 30 yards to go I looked back and he sort of pulled up. Then I felt I had it."

And he did, with an NCAA record time.

Ryun, who had only an hour's rest between the mile and the three-mile, dropped out of the latter and ducked into a tent almost unnoticed after completing three-quarters of a mile.

"It (the mile race) wasn't a case of me not feeling good or not 'having' it. Everybody else had it, especially Liquori. He ran a fine race. And that last 100 yards for me was rugged," Ryun said.

The temperature stood at 84 degrees most of the afternoon and the conditions became extremely muggy when the sun came out after intermittent showers sprinkled the crowd of 8,400.

CIF Track Stars Romp Over L.A.

By RICK ARTHUR

Ricco Sanchez and Reynaldo Brown emerged with top honors as the CIF track stars overwhelmed their L.A. City counterparts, 85-33, in an invitational track meet Saturday night at Cerritos College.

Sanchez was a unanimous selection as top track athlete off his impressive 1:51.4 half-mile win over Bob Langston of the CIF.

The Canoga Park High grad won by 15 yards over Langston, who graduated last week from Millikan.

Langston did come back to run a strong leg on the winning CIF mile relay team. His third leg enabled the CIF to take a lead into the final handoff to Billy Sims.

Former Olympian Brown cleared 6-10 in the high jump.

Poly's Robert Stockton got a quick start and won the 180 low hurdles over CIF teammate Mark Low from Pomona. Stockton was timed in 18.8.

Former Lakewood sprinter Steve Gibson returned to competition after a lengthy absence due to injuries and was fourth in the 220 despite having to run in the outside lane.

Record 17-10¼ Vault by Pennel

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Two-time Olympian John Pennel bettered the world pole vault record, soaring over the bar at 17 feet 10¼ inches on his third and last attempt Saturday night at the Sacramento Invitational.

Pennel, competing for the Southern California Striders, topped the outdoor mark of 17-9 held by Bob Seagren of the University of Southern California.

Pennel was the first man to vault 17 feet. Originally from Miami, Fla., he attended Northeastern Louisiana and later moved to Southern California. He competed in the 1964 and 1968 Summer Olympics.

He once held the world record. Seagren, the Olympic champion, established the current mark last year at the Olympic trials in South Lake Tahoe, Calif.

Doug Hawken of Glendale, Ariz., Junior College nosed out Eddie Hart and Andy Hopkins in a 9.2 near dead heat in the 100-yard dash.

Barbara Ferrell came within one-tenth of a second of equalling the world record in winning the women's 100-yard dash in 10.4.

Burroughs, Mantlo, Ruddell Help South Edge North, 5-4

CARSON'S BARR WINS MVP

SAN FRANCISCO (Special) — Down by four runs in the first inning, the South battled back to hand the North a 5-4 loss here Saturday in the first high school all-star game at Candlestick Park.

The South started back in the second when Wilson's Jeff Burroughs, who was used as a wild card pinch-hitter for the pitcher throughout the game, tripled down the right field line and then scored when Poly's Jerry Mantlo bounced a single into left.

Long Beach products again figured in a two-run third. After two outs, Dave Chorley of Millikan hit a fly ball to right that was dropped and put runners on second and third.

The North coaches then elected to pitch to Burroughs, the nation's No. 1 draft pick, and the Bruin star rammed Russ Dillon's first pitch into center to score both runs.

After South starter Chuck Minot left in the second, Carson's Steve Barr and Mike Ruddell from Lakewood checked the North on three hits while fanning 14.

Barr was selected player of the game after scattering two hits in four innings. Ruddell struck out seven and gave up only a bloop single in the last three innings.

Jerry 'n Joe: So Different, But So Much Alike

RICH ROBERTS

It's curious that when a Negro is fighting a Caucasian, television announcers will identify the opponents by the colors of their pants rather than the obvious colors of their skins.

In most cases, the announcer is simply reluctant to inject race . . . but if there is no racial issue, there is no point in avoiding the apparent distinction and therefore no harm in exploiting it as a means of identification.

Joe Frazier is black and Jerry Quarry is white, and you can't surprise them by telling them so. So here we are, awaiting Monday night's confrontation between a black champion and the legendary "great white hope," and it doesn't make any difference to either of them.

"Y'all have had so many 'great white hopes'," Frazier sighs, "I like Quarry all right. There's no racial thing. This is business. It's the fightin' game. Before the fight we're friends. After the fight we're still friends."

"People seein' it from ringside think you can do this or do that, but look here, it ain't that easy out there. When that man's facin' you and you're facin' him, it's a different situation." — Joe Frazier.

Jim Braddock would like Quarry "to win it for the Irish." Quarry has fought nothing but black men in his drive toward the title. Any title. After beating Floyd Patterson and Thad Spencer, he lost the WBA tournament final to Jimmy Ellis. Then he thrashed Buster Mathis to win a shot at Frazier's strange six-state crown.

Frazier's as black as any of them, but Jerry hardly notices. "I just climb into the ring as a man," he says. "I'm not fighting for the white people. I'm fighting for Jerry Quarry."

Then he adds, "If I were black, you wouldn't be able to ask me that question."

THEIR SKIN is the only large difference between these men, whose sensible intelligence is a refreshing improvement over the general run of pre-fight baloney.

Both arose from families that literally had to scratch a living out of the ground. Both are hip to the cool modern sounds, be it soul or country, and neither is given to blowing off gas.

Frazier, enjoying recognition as the '64 Olympic champion, declined to enter the WBA tourney, choosing "to wait until they have to come to me."

Now they are starting to come, Quarry first.

Frazier insists he hasn't paid much attention to the heavyweight scene.

"I'm not a fight fan, y' know. I don't go to a fight and really watch a guy. I'd rather find somethin' else to do."

Quarry feels the same way. "I never watch an opponent work out. That's what happened to Buster Mathis. I saw him come into the gym and I played it cool for a minute, then started ripping my sparring partner's belly apart. I could hear Mathis grunt from the back row. That was it for him."

Funny things happen in gymnasiums, and you can't always believe what you hear . . . or see. A couple of years ago Quarry sparred with Frazier in L.A.'s Main Street Gym. Later the story went out that Joe had all the best of it, according to an old boxing buff named Eddie Futch.

"I read what Eddie Futch said about that workout," Quarry says, "and let me tell you one thing: Eddie Futch wasn't even present at the workout. He said he was timekeeper and ringing the bell. The Main Street Gym does not have a bell; they have a buzzer system that works electrically.

"I'm not psyching anybody out. If I'm gonna try and scare the man out of the fight, I'm not gonna accomplish anything." — Jerry Quarry.

"I thought I handled myself very capably. I very much enjoyed the fact that I was stronger than him (Frazier). And he couldn't punch that hard. I took his punch and it didn't bother me."

QUARRY MAINTAINS respect for Frazier because "he's gone through 23 fights without a loss, but I just feel it's something I can do. I have the ability. I have the strength and I have the punch to get him out of there.

"I'm not trying to be a cocky kid when I say that, because I'm no longer a kid. I'm a mature adult . . . and it takes an adult to be in there."

Frazier likes to say, "I'll come out smokin'," and on a recent telephone interview one writer stopped him cold when he asked what it meant.

Joe paused, then laughed. "How 'bout that!" But then he came back swinging.

"He's never seen me work. When I get out there and start throwing punches, that leather'll be so hot you can actually see it burn. That's 'smokin'!"

Frazier, the youngest of seven boys among 13 children, was a ninth-grade dropout, married and a father at 17 by the time his family left South Carolina for Philadelphia. But he's not dumb. He can swap repartee with the ablest journalists and doesn't hesitate to impart wisdom to those he thinks can use it.

One writer wanted to know what Joe would do if Quarry did this, and then Frazier did that and Quarry . . .

"Boy, you're figurin' the fight now, ain't ya?" Frazier laughed. "Believe me, those hands and those counterpunches and those left hooks are not as easy to throw as you seem to think."

FRAZIER AND QUARRY are least understood among their peers, who don't understand people who are firm in their beliefs, loyal to those they care about, aware of their roles.

Some found it hard to believe that Quarry interrupted training and flew across the country just to see his kid brother Mike graduate from high school.

"It's something important to me," Quarry explained. "My brother and I are very close."

Jerry, it is said, now considers himself to be a New York fighter, not a Californian. But he doesn't feel he turned his back on his Los Angeles friends; rather, they turned their backs on him, lending little importance to his successes and making too much of his failures.

No doubt Jerry is more comfortable in New York, where he doesn't have the old hayseed image still held in Los Angeles. He now grooms himself well and speaks articulately.

"I'm a New York guy now," he has said. "The writers here have been fair and the fans act like I'm a native."

IN THE PHONE hookup mentioned above, Los Angeles and Washington D.C. were linked together to Frazier's training camp. The Washington writers brought a young heavyweight prospect on the line "to wish Frazier luck." The exchange, revealing much about Frazier in various settings, went like this (Frazier speaks first):

"How old are you, kid?"

"Nineteen."

"Man, look here, you better leave them gloves alone."

"You out of school?"

"Yeah."

"Go to college, man. Find somethin' else to do. It's too much outta a man's life. Listen, I'm not gonna be like, say, 'Hey, I'm Peter Piper, I'll knock ya out.' I know I can whip you. But I'm in it for fun, man. Find somethin' else to do, you know. You can stay with your family a little more and you can enjoy life a little more. This takes too much of your time. You might get the money behind you . . . but everybody's behind you and nobody's going to be with you," he understood.

"Yes."

"Yeah?"

"Remember the name."

Frazier pauses, then laughs. "Anyway, you act like a fool, then go ahead, man. I tried to talk to you like a man should. Now you're going back about 'remember the name.' What's . . . "

FOES PREDICT EARLY FIREWORKS MONDAY

'No Way He's Gonna Go Five'—Frazier

NEW YORK (AP) — In one of the hottest fight attractions in years, unbeaten Joe Frazier defends his six-state piece of the world heavyweight title against Jerry Quarry Monday night in a 15-rounder that could finish in an explosive knockout within five rounds.

Although neither of the young fighters ever has been stopped, both have predicted early fireworks at Madison Square Garden.

"There ain't no way he's gonna go five," retorted Frazier, of Philadelphia. "He's gonna get burned earlier than that if he comes after me like he says he will. He knows that if he don't come out I'm gonna go after him. I'm comin' after him no matter what and he knows it.

The 25-year-old champion, winner of all 23 of his pro fights and 20 of them by knockouts, has been a solid favorite ever since the fight was made. He is expected to step into the Garden ring the choice at better than 2-1.

With ticket prices ranging from $10 to $100, Harry Markson, the Garden's boxing director, forecast a crowd of more than 15,000 would pay upwards of $500,000.

Markson usually is conservative in his predictions and some observers said they would not be surprised at a 19,000 sellout and a $750,000 gate. The $10 seats sold out early.

"There hasn't been such enthusiasm since the Rocky Marciano days in the fifties," said Markson. "We've got some sportswriters coming in who haven't been in since Rocky's days."

The bout will be telecast by closed circuit to about 150 arenas and theaters in the United States and Canada. New York will be blacked out of the television.

There will be no home television or radio broadcast. The fight will be shown on tape in delayed telecasts to many countries.

About $700,000 of the television receipts may be added to the promotion. Frazier, getting 35 per cent of the net gate receipts and 40 per cent of all ancillary income, could earn from $350,000 to $500,000. Quarry, on his 25 per cent of everything, could gross from $250,000 to $350,000.

It will be largest purses for both, pros just about four years.

Frazier, the Olympic heavyweight champion of 1964, won a piece of the heavyweight crown by stopping Buster Mathis in the 11th round before a crowd of 18,096 which contributed $658,503 for a record indoor gate at the Garden, March 4, 1968.

440 RECORD FALLS

in winning the 440 intermediate hurdles in 49.6.

Mills, 20-year-old journalism student, burst past Evans at the finish and cracked the old world mark of 44.8 set three years ago by Tommie Smith of San Jose State.

Asked to describe how he would write a story about his race, the lanky Texan said, "I'd call it a helluva run."

Liquori, 19-year-old sophomore who had never before beaten Ryun, battled the Kansas favorite shoulder-to-shoulder for about 200 yards and then swept to an easy triumph against the man famed for his furious finishes.

"I kept waiting for him," the Villanova sophomore said, "but with 50 yards to go I looked back and he sort of pulled up. Then I felt I had it."

And he did, with an NCAA record time.

Ryun, who had only an hour's rest between the mile and the three-mile, dropped out of the latter and ducked into a tent almost unnoticed after completing three-quarters of a mile.

"It (the mile race) wasn't a case of me not feeling good or not 'having' it. Everybody else had it, especially Liquori. He ran a fine race. And that last 100 yards for me was rugged," Ryun said.

The temperature stood at 84 degrees most of the afternoon and the conditions became extremely muggy when the sun came out after intermittent showers sprinkled the crowd of 8,400.

CIF Track Stars Romp Over L.A.

By RICK ARTHUR

Ricco Sanchez and Reynaldo Brown emerged with top honors as the CIF track stars overwhelmed their L.A. City counterparts, 85-33, in an invitational track meet Saturday night at Cerritos College.

Sanchez was a unanimous selection as top track athlete off his impressive 1:51.4 half-mile win over Bob Langston of the CIF.

The Canoga Park High grad won by 15 yards over Langston, who graduated last week from Millikan.

Langston did come back to run a strong leg on the winning CIF mile relay team. His third leg enabled the CIF to take a lead into the final handoff to Billy Sims.

Former Olympian Brown cleared 6-10 in the high jump.

Poly's Robert Stockton got a quick start and won the 180 low hurdles over CIF teammate Mark Low from Pomona. Stockton was timed in 18.8.

Former Lakewood sprinter Steve Gibson returned to competition after a lengthy absence due to injuries and was fourth in the 220 despite having to run in the outside lane.

Record 17-10¼ Vault by Pennel

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Two-time Olympian John Pennel bettered the world pole vault record, soaring over the bar at 17 feet 10¼ inches on his third and last attempt Saturday night at the Sacramento Invitational.

Pennel, competing for the Southern California Striders, topped the outdoor mark of 17-9 held by Bob Seagren of the University of Southern California.

Pennel was the first man to vault 17 feet. Originally from Miami, Fla., he attended Northeastern Louisiana and later moved to Southern California. He competed in the 1964 and 1968 Summer Olympics.

He once held the world record. Seagren, the Olympic champion, established the current mark last year at the Olympic trials in South Lake Tahoe, Calif.

Doug Hawken of Glendale, Ariz., Junior College nosed out Eddie Hart and Andy Hopkins in a 9.2 near dead heat in the 100-yard dash.

Barbara Ferrell came within one-tenth of a second of equalling the world record in winning the women's 100-yard dash in 10.4.

Burroughs, Mantle, Ruddell Help South Edge North, 5-4

CARSON'S BARR WINS MVP

SAN FRANCISCO (Special) — Down by four runs in the first inning, the South battled back to hand the North a 5-4 loss here Saturday in the first high school all-star game at Candlestick Park.

The South started back in the second when Wilson's Jeff Burroughs, who was used as a wild card pinch-hitter for the pitcher throughout the game, tripled down the right field line and then scored when Poly's Jesse Mantle bounced a single into left.

Long Beach products figured in a two-run fourth inning uprising for the South. Dave Charley of Millikan hit a fly ball to right that was dropped and put runners on second and third.

The North coaches then elected to pitch to Burroughs, the nation's No. 1 draft pick, and the Bruin star rewarded Russ Dillon's first pitch into center to score both runs.

Mike Scott's sacrifice fly to Chuck Minot left in the second. Carson's Steve Barr and Mike Ruddell from Lakewood checked the North on three hits while batting 14.

Barr was selected player of the game after scattering two hits and a run in three innings. Ruddell struck out seven and gave up only a bloop single in the last three innings.

Shuvee Second Filly to Win Triple Crown

Combined News Services

Shuvee completed a sweep of the Triple Crown for fillies Saturday when the speedy daughter of Nashua won the $119,625 Coaching Club American Oaks by three lengths.

Earlier the 3-year-old filly had scored in the Acorn Stakes at one mile and the Mother Goose Stakes at 1 1/8 miles. In the 1 1/4 mile race the brilliant filly moved into command in the stretch and drew off to score easily under the guidance of Jesse Davidson.

Shuvee was a prohibitive favorite and her many backers among the crowd of 41,010 collected only $2.60 to win and $2.10 to place and show. She picked up a winner's purse of $77,756 and now has won $178,722. Hail To Patsy paid $2.20 and $2.10. Secret Verdict paid $2.10.

* * * *

ACK ACK, a 3-year-old from Cain Hoy Stable, galloped clear in the stretch to win the $111,800 Arlington Classic at one mile by 4 1/2 lengths.

Ack Ack was clocked for the distance in exactly the same time in which he won the Kentucky Derby trial at Churchill Downs when he set a couse record for the mile at 1:34 2/5.

Ack Ack, the 9-to-5 favorite in the field of 10, came out of the No. 7 post position under jockey Braulio Baeza and he never was worse than third through the chute into the main course and around the track.

Baeza moved him to the center of the track coming out of the turn into the home stretch and he drew away from the pacesetting Fast Hilarious, taking charge the rest of the way.

Ack Ack paid $5.20, $3.40 and $2.80, King of the Castle returned $8.40 and $5.20 and Fast Hilarious $4.

More Asian, the only three-year-old in the field of nine, captured the $28,975 Gettysburg Handicap at Liberty Bell Park, defeating R.W. Taylor's Irish Dude by three-quarters of a length.

North Flight broke into the lead at the starting gate and never faltered to win the $61,720 Leonard Richards Stakes at Delaware Park.

78-NIGHT SCHEDULE

Lights On Again at Alamitos Tuesday

Los Alamitos Race Course, which pioneered night racing in Southern California, opens its second such venture Tuesday night in what track officials term as the "best meeting in history."

Kaweah Bar, acclaimed as the nation's top quarter horse in 1968, a rarity for a 2-year-old, is expected to head the opening night card of nine races. The meeting runs for 78 nights.

Kaweah Bar, which won nearly $75,000 last year, picked up a record seven victories during the session last year and is coming off a triumphant campaign at Bay Meadows where he easily won that meet's championship.

The opening night feature is the Inaugural, worth $7,000, which should draw such top sprinters as Top Rockette, Go DeRussa Go, Dividend's Bar, Cinder Leo and Quincy Rocket, in addition to Kaweah Bar.

The palomino gelding will get a chance to increase his money considerably by becoming eligible for the $75,000 Los Alamitos Derby, in addition to the $100,000 Championship and the $25,000 Go Man Go Purse.

The track, which has undergone a $100,000 redecoration, will also feature 870-yard races, which will have the horses racing around a curve.

DRESSED UP, READY TO GO
Blobby Charger, groomed by Ginny Kanis and her husband John, a jockey, appears set for opening of Los Alamitos night meet Tuesday.

ANGELS WIN, 4-1—

Fregosi romped the bases, too.

Repoz made it home on Joe Azcue's short fly to right in the sixth, sliding around Duane Josephson's tag. And Fregosi scored all the way from first on Sweet Lou's double, Fregosi hot on the heels of Sandy Alomar all the way around.

ANGEL OF DAY
LOU JOHNSON slammed two-run double in Angels' 4-1 victory over Chicago.

But it's the splendid work of Messersmith that has things looking a trifle brighter around the Big A.

Andy's only 23 but already he's developed a strikeout record. In his three wins he's whiffed 26, a shade under nine a game.

Saturday he got the first nine White Sox without difficulty, then scattered five hits over the final six rounds. Carlos May gave the Sox a 1-0 lead in the fourth with a double.

The Angels inched in front in the sixth, 2-1, and the Lou's double in the seventh provided Tatum with sufficient cushion to wrap it up.

Phillips said he didn't think the muscle pull will cause Messersmith to miss another turn.

At which time Andy's roomie, Tom Murphy, chimed in, "Ah, there's nothing wrong with him. He just making excuses. Anyway, the 'room' now has seven wins so we're ahead of last year."

ANGEL ANGLES: Newsmen were in something of a fizzy Saturday night when Western Union lost its power, prompting one press boxer to comment, "It could only happen at Anaheim, since it matches the team . . ." Clyde Wright still has a week of military duty remaining before he rejoins the Angels, but he was able to work out with club prior to Saturday's game . . . Today is helmet day at the Big A. All kids, 14 and under, will be given a plastic batting helmet with the Angels' insignia . . . Monday evening is Shrine Night . . . there will be an hour-long pre-game show starting at 7.

Jim McGlothlin (5-5) starts today for the Angels, opposing Chicago's Billy Wynne (1-0), a rookie righthander . . . Minnesota arrives Monday night to open a four-game series, then Seattle comes in for the weekend to close out the homestand . . . Jim Fregosi and Aurelio Rodriguez are the only Angels to play in all 62 of the club's games so far this season . . The Angels have signed two Northern California players, outfielder Vince Bigone of Santa Clara University and shortstop Joe Muto of San Juan High in Carmichael. Bigone will go to San Jose and Muto to Idaho Falls.

HARTACK IN SITDOWN AT HOLLYPARK

Outspoken jockey Bill Hartack refused to ride Happy Dinner Saturday in the second race at Hollywood Park, claiming the horse was not fit to run.

The 3-year-old colt was examined by track veterinarians, who ordered Happy Dinner scratched although they would not say they agreed with Hartack.

A track spokesman said the stewards concurred in the order to scratch the colt because Hartack announced he would not ride him when the field reached the starting gate. The track felt it could not hold up the race by taking the horse back to the paddock to obtain another rider.

BROWN, BRADY HEROES

Salta Pontiac Sweeps Twin Bill

Ray Brown and Tim Brady went the distance Saturday to lead Salta Pontiac in a sweep of a CCBL doubleheader over San Bernardino at Long Beach City College.

Brady coasted to an 8-4 win in the seven-inning first game, but Brown had to fight his way to a 5-4 decision in the nightcap.

After San Bernardino had tied the score at 4-4 in the second game, Salta loaded the bases on Mike Davis' single and walks to Brown and Glenn Berberet. Larry O'Brien then forced loser Jim Nicholson to walk in the winning run.

Nicholson also took the loss in the first game, leaving in the third inning after Salta scored five runs. Berberet pounded a triple for two RBI in a four-run, first-inning uprising.

Salta plays a single game today at Stengel Park against Glendale. Game time is 2:30.

Farrell W. Jones and Charlie Whittingham, staging quite a duel for training honors at the meeting, see-sawed back-and-forth during the nine-race program, with the former finally holding a 24-23 edge when the smoke cleared.

Jones snapped a 22-all deadlock when he sent out Wing Commander and War Flag for a one-three finish in the six-furlong third race.

By the narrowest of margins, Whittingham moved back into a tie in the $15,000 companion feature over the grass. He also saddled an entry, Bargain Day and Deck Hand, and the former held on to shade fast-closing Miss Ribot by a nose.

In the finale, Anglican, under Wayne Harris, carried the Elmendorf colors to victory and Jones was back on top.

Ray Bianco was fined $100 for provoking an altercation and Rudy Campas $50 for engaging in the ruckus in the jockey's room.

FORT MARCY was taken in hand at the start, saved ground to the far turn, was sent up wide, responded approaching the stretch to wear down COURT FOOL while using the middle of the track and gamely withstood POLEAX in the final sixteenth. POLEAX was hard held early, found room between horses on the far turn, rallied to challenge the winner from the outside in the drive and just missed. COURT FOOL promoted the early pace, saved ground into the stretch to offer his best bid against the winner and slackened. TAMPA TROUBLE was unhurried to the half, moved nearer, cut between horses from close quarters on the stretch turn and could make little headway when clear in the drive. NIARKOS was blocked along the rail on the stretch turn. RIVET saved ground to some avail. MOST HOST was pocketed at the half. DELAYED TIP shared the early lead and tired. ATONITO took up early and offered his bid wide on the far turn and faltered. REVOLUTION was an early factor and faded. DIEGO SECURITY set the early pace and stopped.

78-NIGHT SCHEDULE

Lights On Again at Alamitos Tuesday

Los Alamitos Race Course, which pioneered night racing in Southern California, opens its second such venture Tuesday night in what track officials term as the "best meeting in history."

Kaweah Bar, acclaimed as the nation's top quarter horse in 1968, a rarity for a 2-year-old, is expected to head the opening night card of nine races. The meeting runs for 78 nights.

Kaweah Bar, which won nearly $75,000 last year, picked up a record seven victories during the session last year and is coming off a triumphant campaign at Bay Meadows where he easily won that meet's championship.

The opening night feature is the Inaugural, worth $7,000, which should draw such top sprinters as Top Rockette, Go DeRussa Go, Dividend's Bar, Cinder Leo and Quincy Rocket, in addition to Kaweah Bar.

The palomino gelding will get a chance to increase his money considerably by becoming eligible for the $75,000 Los Alamitos Derby, in addition to the $100,000 Championship and the $25,000 Go Man Go Purse.

The track, which has undergone a $100,000 redecoration, will also feature 870-yard races, which will have the horses racing around a curve.

DRESSED UP, READY TO GO

Blobby Charger, groomed by Ginny Kanis and her husband John, a jockey, appears set for opening of Los Alamitos night meet Tuesday.

Shuvee Second Filly to Win Triple Crown

Combined News Services

Shuvee completed a sweep of the Triple Crown for fillies Saturday when the speedy daughter of Nashua won the $119,625 Coaching Club American Oaks by three lengths.

Earlier the 3-year-old filly had scored in the Acorn Stakes at one mile and the Mother Goose Stakes at 1 1/8 miles. In the 1 1/4 mile race the brilliant filly moved into command in the stretch and drew off to score easily under the guidance of Jesse Davidson.

Shuvee was a prohibitive favorite and her many backers among the crowd of 41,010 collected only $2.60 to win and $2.10 to place and show. She picked up a winner's purse of $77,756 and now has won $178,722. Hail To Patsy paid $2.20 and $2.10. Secret Verdict paid $2.10.

* * * *

ACK ACK, a 3-year-old from Cain Hoy Stable, galloped clear in the stretch to win the $111,800 Arlington Classic at one mile by 4 1/2 lengths.

Ack Ack was clocked for the distance in exactly the same time in which he won the Kentucky Derby trial at Churchill Downs when he set a couse record for the mile at 1:34 2/5.

Ack Ack, the 9-to-5 favorite in the field of 10, came out of the No. 7 post position under jockey Braulio Baeza and he never was worse than third through the chute into the main course and around the track.

Baeza moved him to the center of the track coming out of the turn into the home stretch and he drew away from the pacesetting Fast Hilarious, taking charge the rest of the way.

Ack Ack paid $5.20, $3.40 and $2.80, King of the Castle returned $8.40 and $5.20 and Fast Hilarious $4.

More Asian, the only three-year-old in the field of nine, captured the $28,975 Gettysburg Handicap at Liberty Bell Park, defeating R.W. Taylor's Irish Dude by three-quarters of a length.

North Flight broke into the lead at the starting gate and never faltered to win the $61,720 Leonard Richards Stakes at Delaware Park.

Fregosi romped the bases, too.

Repoz made it home on Joe Azcue's short fly to right in the sixth, sliding around Duane Josephson's tag. And Fregosi scored all the way from first on Sweet Lou's double, Fregosi hot on the heels of Sandy Alomar all the way around.

ANGEL OF DAY

LOU JOHNSON slammed two-run double in Angels' 4-1 victory over Chicago.

But it's the splendid work of Messersmith that has things looking a trifle brighter around the Big A.

Andy's only 23 but already he's developed a strikeout record. In his three wins he's whiffed 26 a shade under nine a game.

Saturday he got the first nine White Sox without difficulty, then scattered five hits over the final six rounds. Carlos May gave the Sox a 1-0 lead in the fourth with a double.

The Angels inched in front in the sixth, 2-1, and the Lou's double in the seventh provided Tatum with sufficient cushion to wrap it up.

Phillips said he didn't think the muscle pull will cause Messersmith to miss another turn.

At which time Andy's roomie, Tom Murphy, chimed in, "Ah, there's nothing wrong with him. He just making excuses. Anyway, the 'room' now has seven wins so we're ahead of last year."

ANGEL ANGLES: Newsmen were in something of a tizzy Saturday night when Western Union lost its power, prompting one press boxer to comment, "It could only happen at Anaheim, since it matches the team . . ." Clyde Wright still has a week of military duty remaining before he rejoins the Angels, but he was able to work out with club prior to Saturday's game . . . HARTACK IN SITDOWN AT HOLLYPARK

Outspoken jockey Bill Hartack refused to ride Happy Dinner Saturday in the second race at Hollywood Park, claiming the horse was not fit to run.

The 3-year-old colt was examined by track veterinarians, who ordered Happy Dinner scratched although they would not say they agreed with Hartack.

A track spokesman said the stewards concurred in the order to scratch the colt because Hartack announced he would not ride him when the field reached the starting gate. The track felt it could not hold up the race by taking the horse back to the paddock to obtain another rider.

BROWN, BRADY HEROES

Salta Pontiac Sweeps Twin Bill

Ray Brown and Tim Brady went the distance Saturday to lead Salta Pontiac in a sweep of a CCBL doubleheader over San Bernardino at Long Beach City College.

Brady coasted to an 8-4 win in the seven-inning first game, but Brown had to fight his way to a 5-1 decision in the nightcap.

After San Bernardino had tied the score at 4-4 in the second game, Salta loaded the bases on Mike Davis' single and walks to Brown and Glenn Berberet. Larry O'Brien then forced loser Jim Nicholson to walk in the winning run.

Nicholson also took the loss in the first game, leaving in the third inning after Salta scored five runs. Berberet pounded a triple for two RBI in a four-run, first-inning uprising.

Salta plays a single game today at Stengel Park against Glendale. Game time is 2:30.

Farrell W. Jones and Charlie Whittingham, staging quite a duel for training honors at the meeting, see-sawed back-and-forth during the nine-race program, with the former finally holding a 24-23 edge when the smoke cleared.

Jones snapped a 22-all deadlock when he sent out Wing Commander and War Flag for a one-three finish in the six-furlong third race.

By the narrowest of margins, Whittingham moved back into a tie in the $15,000 companion feature over the grass. He also saddled an entry, Bargain Day and Deck Hand, and the former held on to shade fast-closing Miss Ribot by a nose.

In the finale, Anglican, under Wayne Harris, carried the Elmendorf colors to victory and Jones was back on top.

Ray Bianco was fined $100 for provoking an altercation and Rudy Campas $50 for engaging in the ruckus in the jockey's room.

ANGLICAN raced in hand to the final turn, rallied from the outside to wear down the leaders, drew clear and was all out to hold. ARIES raced close up, saved ground to the stretch, responded but was not good enough. MACHO lagged early, rallied from close quarters along the rail on the final turn and hung.

MARATHON MATCH 6-3, 22-20

Stolle Outlasts Newcombe to Win London Grass Title

LONDON (UPI) — Fred Stolle outlasted fellow Australian professional John Newcombe 6-3, 22-20 in a two-hour, 12-minute marathon Saturday for the men's singles crown in the London Grass Court tennis championships.

Ann Jones of England won the women's title, defeating amateur Winnie Shaw of England 6-0, 6-1 in 30 minutes.

Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., and Rosemary Casals of San Francisco captured the women's doubles by beating Mrs. Jones and Francoise Durr of France 8-6, 6-4.

Both Newcombe and Stolle had advanced to their showdown by upsets. Newcombe stunned the world's top-ranked player, Rod Laver, in the semi-finals, and Stolle put down Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif.

The Newcombe-Stolle battle was interrupted in the first set by rain, with Newcombe leading 1-0. After play resumed, Stolle took control and broke service in the seventh game for a 4-3 lead. He broke service again in the ninth game when Newcombe double faulted at set point.

The second set was all serve and volley. There were few ground strokes to cheer the gallery, which huddled in topcoats to keep out a chill wind.

Newcombe, champion here and at Wimbledon in 1967, put Stolle under tremendous pressure in the long second set before succumbing.

All Mayo, USC as Net Play Ends

PRINCETON, N.J. (UPI) — Joaquin Loyo Mayo, who was pushed into the top spot on Mexico's Davis Cup team early this month on the death of Rafael Osuna, blitzed Rice sophomore Mike Estep, 6-1, 6-2, 6-3, Saturday to capture the NCAA collegiate tennis singles championship.

The 23-year-old Southern California marketing major then teamed with Davis Cup teammate Marcello Lara to edge another Southern California twosome — Steve Avoyer and Bob Lutz — for the doubles title, 7-5, 6-4, 12-10.

USC dominated the six-day tournament, racking up 35 points to take its fourth consecutive national tennis championship. UCLA was second with 23 points, Trinity of Texas third with 22 and Rice fourth with 18.

Loyo Mayo teamed with Osuna to give Mexico a stunning upset over Australia only a short while before Osuna's death in a plane crash.

BILLIE JEAN HURTING

Rod, Meg Wimbledon Picks

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Australians Rod Laver and Margaret Court rate as heavy favorites to win the singles crowns of the $80,088 Wimbledon Open tennis championships beginning Monday and successfully complete the third leg of their grand slam aspirations.

Laver, the defending men's champion here, and Mrs. Court already have taken the Australian and French nationals and both are listed at 7-4 in the Wimbledon odds, the shortest prices quoted on anyone in many years for the all-England title.

If successful in the two-week grass court competition, they'll need only the United States championship to complete a sweep of the four most coveted titles in tennis.

Laver was the last man to achieve the grand slam of big four titles. He did so in 1962 and then turned professional.

If Laver is to be stopped, then the men who could do it are compatriot Ken Rosewall or U.S. Open champion Arthur Ashe of Richmond, Va.

On the distaff side, Mrs. Court, winner in 1963 and 1965, has swept all before her this year. On her last world tour, she wants to go out on a winning note and with the grand slam under her belt.

Mrs. Court, a more relaxed player this season but with the same fearsome power game, is seeded to meet Billie Jean King of Long Beach. In the final, worth $3,600 to the winner, and on the evidence of the last few weeks, Mrs. King is going to need a 25 per cent improvement in form to win for the fourth year in succession.

Billie Jean has suffered from tennis elbow and knee trouble in recent months and has struggled against lesser players. She has managed to win some, but against Mrs. Court she'll not have the luxury of being able to come from behind.

The American is a fighter, however, and Wimbledon is her favorite hunting ground. She can be relied upon to throw everything in her bid to stay champion.

SCOT STEWART WIN DUTCH GP

ZANDVOORT, Netherlands (AP) — Jackie Stewart of Scotland, in a Matra Ford, drove to an easy victory in the Dutch Grand Prix Saturday, consolidating his lead in the 1969 world drivers' championships.

Second was Joe Siffert of Switzerland in a Lotus Ford with Chris Amon of New Zealand third in the lone Ferrari.

Stewart won at a record average speed of 111.6 mph.

ARTHUR DALEY

Fans Like Sports to Stay Simple

By LEONARD KOPPET, for ARTHUR DALEY
New York Times Service

NEW YORK — Life in the real world is complex. The essence of spectator sports is simplicity.

In this contrast lies one of the fundamental reasons for the wide and deep interest sports arouse — and for the harrowing problems that have engulfed, simultaneously, the top administrators of America's three native mass-appeal games; baseball, football and basketball.

Unless there are clearly identifiable good guys and bad guys to root for (my side vs. the enemy) and unless there are fairly stable and easily understandable rules, and unless traditional formats for competition are maintained, much of the enjoyment we get from following a sport evaporates.

It's precisely because real life has so many gray areas, ambiguities, confusions and reconcilables that the clearly defined activities and myths of sport are such a relief — and so satisfying.

But now some baseball club owners are forced to divest themselves of investments that are tied to legalized gambling in Nevada. Football's biggest star, Joe Namath, threatens to quit rather than sell his interest in a bar that represents "undesirable connections."

And the National Basketball Assn. signs a player, Connie Hawkins, it spurned for seven years because of a vague link to a college scandal, settling in the process his $6 million suit against the league.

ARE THESE COMPLEXITIES, intruding so sordidly into our fun and games, inescapable? Couldn't the commissioners concerned handle these situations "better" in some way?

The answers to such questions depend on one's chosen mood: You can be cynical, starry-eyed, incensed, sarcastic, moralistic, sweetly tolerant or indifferent. But if you want to be serious in any degree, you must focus on the underlying issue and start from there.

Sports and those active in it must be "purer than Caesar's wife." That mangled cliche, accepted from the earliest days of professionalism, should be self-evident truth. But it may be more pertinent, in these times of cultural revolution and moral ferment, to alter the simile.

If Caesar's wife must always be above suspicion, what about Caesar's girl friend? What about, in other words, the more intricate and double-standard relationships that real men in the real world often confront?

These are the truly difficult questions, and Bowie Kuhn, Pete Rozelle and Walter Kennedy are earning their sumptuous salaries by wrestling with them.

They live with the knowledge that the vast enterprises they head require the general public's complete conviction that the games are played honestly. They know how vulnerable this conviction is, how much wreckage can be caused by one proven fix, and how much by even a hint of plausibility in an unproven set of rumors.

IT'S EASY, AMID today's affluence and graver issues, to sneer at such sensitivity. But it can happen; it has happened, in all three sports; it may happen again.

Only by making a public display of his concern can any commissioner hope to maintain the confidence of his sport's audience.

They know there will always be rumors. They know people, bet, lightly or heavily, and that some losers will always cry foul. They know that there are liars, imposters and misinterpreters among men, as well as crooks and fools — and that any of these can start a deadly chain reaction.

It is not, then, a question of fairness; it's a question of survival. They must, as best they can, flaunt vigilance.

But they must also deal with the complex realities within their own families, individual rights, legal procedures, financial necessities, avoidance of libel, degrees of conflict of interest, and so forth.

THEY MUST WALK tightropes, in short, that never existed in the more simplistic days of Judge Landis.

The "believable" is as important as the "pure." They may or may not be right in every particular case, but they can never let up.

All concerned, from fan through owner, should at least recognize the true stakes involved: our simple pleasures can exist only as long as complex realities are handled successfully.

Scrambling Douglass Now Has Kemper Lead

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Dale Douglass, whose only tournament victory came earlier this year right here in North Carolina at the Azalea Open, grabbed the third-round lead of the $150,000 Kemper Open Saturday by sinking a final-hole birdie putt for a 9-under-par 207.

The 33-year-old Douglass, a pro for nearly a decade before getting his first win at Wilmington, N.C., in April, shot a 4-under-par 68 over the sun-baked Quail Hollow course to take a one-stroke lead over Master champion George Archer and New Zealand lefthander Bob Charles, both at 208.

The dark, lanky Douglass, who has won nearly $50,000 already this year and who could move among the top six money winners by grabbing the $30,000 top prize here, started the day locked in an eight-way tie for second place, a stroke behind second-round leader Charles.

A scrambling, seven-birdie, three-bogie round had Douglass in and out of the lead throughout the long, hot afternoon. But he moved into a tie with Archer by sinking a 10-foot birdie putt at No. 16 — then went in front with another 18-footer at 18.

"Even though I made a lot of birdies, I was all over the course today," Douglass said. "I'll try to change that in the final round Sunday."

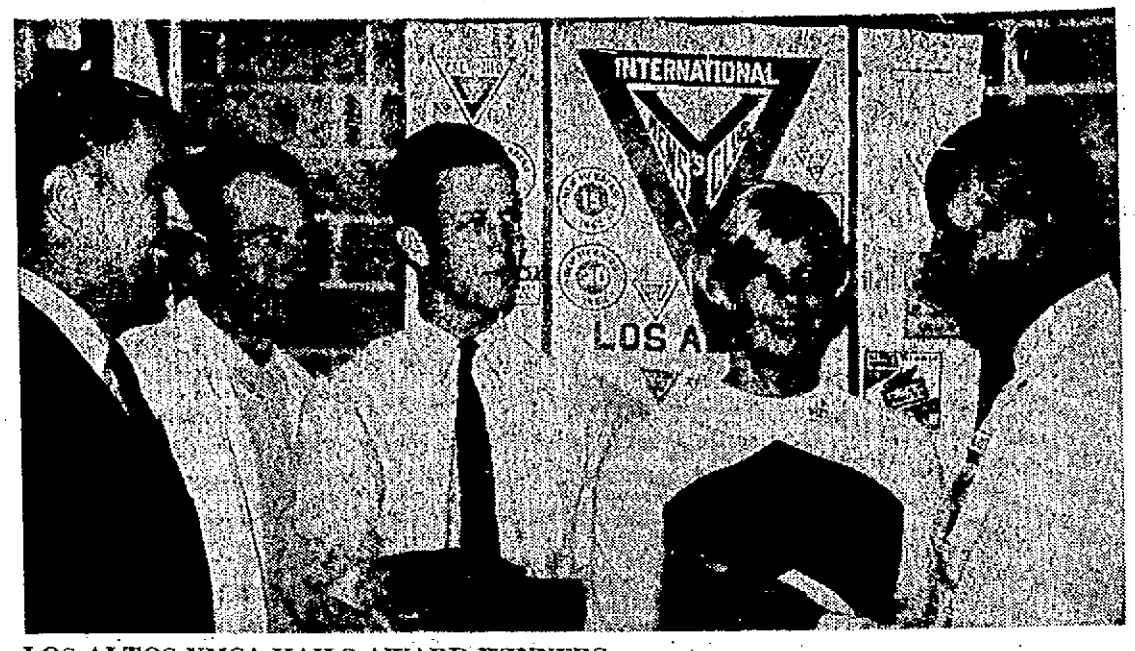

Sam Snead, the 57-year-old wonder who was only a stroke off the pace at the start of Saturday's play, had a 74-213; defending champion Arnold Palmer was 70-214 and U.S. Open champ Orville Moody was 73-216.

The weather was so hot and humid, officials reported, that at least 25 persons collapsed from heat prostration.

Germany, Mexico Clash in Soccer at Coliseum

Professional soccer teams from Germany and Mexico clash this afternoon at the Coliseum when Eintracht Brunswick meets Universidad at 3.

The program will open at noon with 12 to 15-year-old juniors of the Greater L.A. League meeting the rival California Soccer League juniors.

At 1, an amateur team from Germany will meet the Hollywood Stars, major division club of the Greater L.A. circuit.

The international contest between Eintracht and Universidad could develop into a battle of defenses, as both teams have outstanding goalkeepers.

Horst Wolter is Germany's No. 1, while Francisco Castrejon was selected for Mexico. Two weeks ago when world champion England drew 0-0 with Mexico, Castrejon was selected as player of the game.

COMPUTER CORNER

Machine Says Cards Dead

By BUD GOODE

How many games will it take to win the American and National League Eastern and Western Division pennant races?

If the leaders continue to play at or near their current level, then Baltimore could win 110 games this year in the American East, and 86 games should take it in the West.

In the National League, if the Cubs play .600 ball, they will win 100 games, and if Atlanta plays .570 ball, it will win 95 games in the West.

To give you an idea as to which teams still have a chance in the race, Computer Corner poured the current season statistics into our Univac electronic sports analyzer and came up with two important statistics: the percentage of remaining games needed to win and a measure of total team strength, the ratio of Runs to Opponent Runs.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

	% To Win 118	R/OR
East
Baltimore	.950	81%
Boston	.710	10%
Detroit	.724	34%
Washington	.806	—5%
New York	.925	—5%
Cleveland	.548	—34%
West
Oakland	.524	28%
Minnesota	.524	9%
Seattle	.377	—17%
Chicago	.565	—13%
Kansas City	.591	—18%
Angels	.629	—35%

NATIONAL LEAGUE

	% To Win 100	R/OR
East
Chicago	.600	46%
New York	.633	1%
Pittsburgh	.677	2%
St. Louis	.693	4%
Philadelphia	.704	—8%
Montreal	.817	—32%
West
Atlanta	.574	8%
Dodgers	.564	29%
San Francisco	.598	16%
Cincinnati	.613	9%
Houston	.640	—15%
San Diego	.719	—33%

THE RATIO of runs to opponent runs (R/OR) is the one best indicator of team strength, Computer Corner has found over the past 10 years. A pennant winner usually makes 20 per cent more runs than it gives up.

Baltimore is the strongest team in the American League, scoring a fantastic 81 per cent more runs than allowed. Detroit and Boston could be scrapping for second with the Tigers given the edge by the Corner. Oakland has the edge in the West.

The Dodgers have a slight edge in the National League West, but the race is too tight to call. In the East it's the Cubs, the class of the division.

St. Louis' chances of playing .700 ball and catching the Cubs? About 100 to 1 — against.

COMPUTER CORNER
Machine Says Cards Dead

By BUD GOODE

How many games will it take to win the American and National League Eastern and Western Division pennant races?

If the leaders continue to play at or near their current level, then Baltimore could win 110 games this year in the American East, and 86 games should take it in the West.

In the National League, if the Cubs play .600 ball, they will win 100 games, and if Atlanta plays .570 ball, it will win 95 games in the West.

To give you an idea as to which teams still have a chance in the race, Computer Corner poured the current season statistics into our Univac electronic sports analyzer and came up with two important statistics: the percentage of remaining games needed to win and a measure of total team strength, the ratio of Runs to Opponent Runs.

THE RATIO of runs to opponent runs (R/OR) is the one best indicator of team strength, Computer Corner has found over the past 10 years. A pennant winner usually makes 20 per cent more runs than it gives up.

Baltimore is the strongest team in the American League, scoring a fantastic 81 per cent more runs than allowed. Detroit and Boston could be scrapping for second with the Tigers given the edge by the Corner. Oakland has the edge in the West.

The Dodgers have a slight edge in the National League West, but the race is too tight to call. In the East it's the Cubs, the class of the division.

St. Louis' chances of playing .700 ball and catching the Cubs? About 100 to 1 — against.

Germany, Mexico Clash in Soccer at Coliseum

Professional soccer teams from Germany and Mexico clash this afternoon at the Coliseum when Eintracht Brunswick meets Universidad at 3.

The program will open at noon with 12 to 15-year-old juniors of the Greater L.A. League meeting the rival California Soccer League juniors.

At 1, an amateur team from Germany will meet the Hollywood Stars, major division club of the Greater L.A. circuit.

The international contest between Eintracht and Universidad could develop into a battle of defenses, as both teams have outstanding goalkeepers.

Horst Wolter is Germany's No. 1 while Francisco Castrejon was selected for Mexico. Two weeks ago when world champion England drew 0-0 with Mexico, Castrejon was selected as player of the game.

WATER TEMPERATURE HINTS RECORD YEAR

No Albacore Yet, But Time Grows Near

DONNELL CULPEPPER

Hal Clemens and Bill Craig, Department of Fish and Game albacore and tuna specialists, appeared before the Southern California Tuna Club luncheon Thursday, with Clemens doing most of the talking, but both men were besieged with questions from a big turnout of members and guests.

The questions added up to one big one: "When will the longfins arrive and where will we find them?" Try that one on your own computer and see what happens.

Clemens did, however, show what water temperatures meant to albacore and compared the runs of the last few years with the expected migration of albacore from the Central Pacific to Southern California this year. All in all, the picture was bright.

He made it very plain that young albacore prefer water of 60 to 66 degrees, but added that older longfins — the ones above 30 pounds — often go for the warmer belts that occur. The entire explanation was very clear and made the ocean anglers feel that the sound of "ALBACORE!" could occur before the first week in July.

The temperatures readings, taken by ships at sea and radioed to the DFG, definitely showed that Southern California might expect a record albacore year, judging from charts made in other years when the fish were plentiful here, even though far offshore. Craig made it very plain that no longfin had been caught off the Southland to date.

TRY TO IMAGINE HATCHERY CREWS using wet suits such as divers wear to net trout in the Fish Springs hatchery five miles south of Big Pine in Inyo County. It seems almost incredible, but the Owens River, fed by so many roaring tributaries and stemmed by the Tinnemaha Reservoir, which is spilling for the first time in history, has backed up into the hatchery and for a while it appeared that 750,000 rainbow trout might swim out into the river.

All of the rotary screens separating the ponds were raised last week and that backed the upper pond to within a foot of the springs that supply the hatchery.

Normally, the ponds are only hip-deep and the crews, using waders, seine trout for loading into the planting trucks. Now the shallowest water is up to a man's chin and very cold, so the employes donned wet suits to work four days a week, loading out about 10,000 trout per day to stock Mono lakes and streams.

Hatchery officials say that the wet suits may continue in style for the rest of this month and perhaps for most of July. Incidentally, the road to Rock Creek Lake is open and the lake is being stocked for the first time this year.

OTHER NEWS ABOUT TROUT concerned the Santa Ynez River, which became too warm for trout survival and which was dropped from the trout-planting program in Southern California. Holcomb Creek in San Bernardino became accessible for planting trucks and was stocked last week for the first time this year. Ditto for the West Fork of the San Gabriel River.

Russ Cleary reported that catfish were doing everything except jumping into the boats at Irvine Lake. Cheese and stink bait continued to be the best and the fish weighed from 5 to 8 pounds. Ed Wilt, Irvine's dock manager, suggested big balls of cheese or stink bait on Nos. 4 or 6 hooks. Fishing in water eight to 10 feet deep seemed to bring the best results.

Davey's Locker, Newport Beach, has a new boat, the 58-foot Pacific Clipper, capable of 21 knots and soon to be ready for six-person charter parties. It has a cruising range of 1,000 miles, color TV, refrigerated hold for catches, plus all the radar and electronic equipment that is possible for that size of boat. It was christened Saturday.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS — Three triangle-course races are scheduled today for Hobie-Cats inside the Long Beach Breakwater under the sponsorship of Belmont Shore Ski-Mart. The Hobies, smallest of the catamarans, will be visible from Belmont Pier. The first race starts at noon following a skippers' meeting at 10:30 a.m.

Two West Coast yachts are in today's start of the 1969 Transatlantic Race, which gets under way at Brenton Reef Light, Newport, R.I., and which is due to finish at Cork, Ireland. The Pacific Coast yachts are John M.S. Hutchinson's 36-foot sloop Agisymba (Newport Beach Yacht Club) and John B. Kilroy's 73-foot yawl, Kialoa II (Los Angeles YC).

A message from Golden Shores, just off Highway 66 at the Topock, Ariz., turnoff to the Colorado River, states that William E. Treas, Needles, set a record for striped bass when he landed one weighing 35½ pounds just yards away from the Golden Shores Marina.

Yellowtail flashed in a school at San Clemente Island again Thursday and passengers on the Pacific Queen (Pacific Sportsfishing), with Pat Jackson as skipper, picked up 14, the largest going 34½ pounds. One woman angler got a 28¼-pounder.

WATER TEMPERATURE HINTS RECORD YEAR

No Albacore Yet, But Time Grows Near

DONNELL CULPEPPER

Hal Clemens and Bill Craig, Department of Fish and Game albacore and tuna specialists, appeared before the Southern California Tuna Club luncheon Thursday, with Clemens doing most of the talking, but both men were besieged with questions from a big turnout of members and guests.

The questions added up to one big one: "When will the longfins arrive and where will we find them?" Try that one on your own computer and see what happens.

Clemens did, however, show what water temperatures meant to albacore and compared the runs of the last few years with the expected migration of albacore from the Central Pacific to Southern California this year. All in all, the picture was bright.

He made it very plain that young albacore prefer water of 60 to 66 degrees, but added that older longfins — the ones above 30 pounds — often go for the warmer belts that occur. The entire explanation was very clear and made the ocean anglers feel that the sound of "ALBACORE!" could occur before the first week in July.

The temperatures readings, taken by ships at sea and radioed to the DFG, definitely showed that Southern California might expect a record albacore year, judging from charts made in other years when the fish were plentiful here, even though far offshore. Craig made it very plain that no longfin had been caught off the Southland to date.

TRY TO IMAGINE HATCHERY CREWS using wet suits such as divers wear to net trout in the Fish Springs hatchery five miles south of Big Pine in Inyo County. It seems almost incredible, but the Owens River, fed by so many roaring tributaries and stemmed by the Tinnemaha Reservoir, which is spilling for the first time in history, has backed up into the hatchery and for a while it appeared that 750,000 rainbow trout might swim out into the river.

All of the rotary screens separating the ponds were raised last week and that backed the upper pond to within a foot of the springs that supply the hatchery.

Normally, the ponds are only hip-deep and the crews, using waders, seine trout for loading into the planting trucks. Now the shallowest water is up to a man's chin and very cold, so the employes donned wet suits to work four days a week, loading out about 10,000 trout per day to stock Mono lakes and streams.

Hatchery officials say that the wet suits may continue in style for the rest of this month and perhaps for most of July. Incidentally, the road to Rock Creek Lake is open and the lake is being stocked for the first time this year.

OTHER NEWS ABOUT TROUT concerned the Santa Ynez River, which became too warm for trout survival and which was dropped from the trout-planting program in Southern California. Holcomb Creek in San Bernardino became accessible for planting trucks and was stocked last week for the first time this year. Ditto for the West Fork of the San Gabriel River.

Russ Cleary reported that catfish were doing everything except jumping into the boats at Irvine Lake. Cheese and stink bait continued to be the best and the fish weighed from 5 to 8 pounds. Ed Wilt, Irvine's dock manager, suggested big balls of cheese or stink bait on Nos. 4 or 6 hooks. Fishing in water eight to 10 feet deep seemed to bring the best results.

Davey's Locker, Newport Beach, has a new boat, the 58-foot Pacific Clipper, capable of 21 knots and soon to be ready for six-person charter parties. It has a cruising range of 1,000 miles, color TV, refrigerated hold for catches, plus all the radar and electronic equipment that is possible for that size of boat. It was christened Saturday.

WOMEN'S RIGHTS were won—and again, fur trim is a winner for '69. Kicky, swinging two-toned coat is reminiscent of days when women first stood up to be counted.

NEW YORK — At a time when astronauts are about to land on the moon, American Designers are turning back the clock.

Incongruous as it may seem, they're showing styles reminiscent of the 30s, borrowing hairdos from the turn of the century and taking inspiration from Gypsies, and 15th century Venice.

But strongest flashback of all is in a renaissance of "Art Deco" — that period which began in 1912 and ran wild in the Roaring Twenties.

It's a whole mood . . . a feeling about a long-gone era when silent movies, Tin Lizzies, songs like "Margie" and talk patterns like "23-skidoo" and "so's your ole man" were a way of life.

It shapes up in many ways . . . in slinky satins and clingy crepes, in flippy skirts and long pullover sweaters, in trumpet sleeves and long beads, in trailing scarves and crocheted berets, in embroidered patterns and fringy trims.

IN FALL-WINTER collections being previewed for the international press, "Art Deco" is the look designers believe most likely to succeed in '69.

Young, reed-thin Tom Nasarre, designer for Junior Sophisticates, does the best interpretation thus far of the "It" girl look.

"The longest look in the world" is the way he describes his collection of elongated jackets over low-slung dresses and flippy pleated skirts. And he brings back the circle skirt on smart looking dresses with wide, cinchy belts.

His Art Deco showstopper: A low-down coat of red with purple pants and red satin blouse.

Nasarre, like most Seventh Avenue designers, brings black back to the fashion scene. His best: a long patchwork skirt in black satin and velvet topped off with a black chiffon blouse.

He plays black with lots of pearls . . . . the ropey kind that swing low. At Bonwit Teller's nearby on Fifth Avenue the pearl counter is jammed with early fall shoppers stocking up on the new look.

And models on the runway at the posh Pierre Hotel are all but tripping over theirs — when they're not muffled up to the ears in long, trailing scarves, that is.

FRINGE, long and slinky or thick as a pony's mane, brings on thoughts of the vampish 20s . . . piano shawls . . . the fringed chemise.

'Senior citizens' note extra years with parties

By IOLA MASTERSON

JOLLY GOOD fun the other night when attorney Ed Iliff entertained at a party for 50 plus friends. He was honoring himself on "having reached the permanent age of 49."

Assisting him as hostess was friend, Anne Sundstrom. Tickling guests were invitations which read, in part, "Music, spirits and bologna sandwiches to be provided. Anyone who brings a gift over $1 will be forcibly ejected. Sports clothes."

Arriving, as instructed, were such good friends as Capt. Ralph and Jo Maloney, Bob and Cynthia Blakey, Earl and Virginia Milton, Jack and Lucille Hamilton, Tom and Jean Zeiger, Jimmy and Frances Starr, Vic and Suzanne Mingers, Cmdr. George and Susie Powell, Frank and Alice Pickett, Joe and Ann Ratliff, Walter and Evelyn Scott, Dick and Peggy Wilson and Nelva and Bob Lane.

Host Ed reneged, though. Instead of bologna he had a catered buffet with tons of ham, turkey, meat balls and go withs. All I can surmise is that Ed is full of bologna.

SAVE THE date and help Jim celebrate is exactly what 60 friends did when wife, Marilyn Shirley, had a 40th birthday party for him.

Instead of asking for equipment for their sail boat, Calypso — a Coronado 25 — Jim's main request was for a Mickey Mouse watch, which she gave him. Making night especially festive was having his sister, Lenore, her husband, Dr. Don Johnson, and their daughter, Andrea, there. The Johnsons are here from home in Hawaii to spend the summer.

Gag gifts were rampant including a book, "Forty Is" by Jim Everhart and Cliff Notes. Among the things in the photos and gag volume about "Furty Is" are "Adjusting to the fact that the ability to overcome a hangover isn't what it used to be." "Looking in a mirror and beginning to think maybe you aren't prematurely gray." "Opening a door and going through it ahead of your wife." "Bawling out your son for what you got caught doing as a kid."

ON THE guest of honor list this month, add the name Naida (Mrs. Jay) Hansen. The Hansens, with daughter Diane, are moving to Gainsville, Tex., shortly. The movers were due Saturday.

First party was given by Vera Wallin and Maxine Smalley at Vera's home on The Toledo. It was a champagne brunch and, as a pretty keepsake, they gave her a gold charm for her bracelet — with map of California on it. Invited were friends connected with Federation of Republican groups.

Among those present and sorry to see her leave town were Isodine McCall, Anne Bowler, Jerry Smiley, Pat Radcliff, Pat Loftman, Edith Hindley, Vi Domico, Lydia Cannon, Bernice Thompson, Joann Haden and Bernice Powell.

Then her GOP Juniors old board (20 in all) had a surprise for her at Joan Hadens. In addition to some of the aforementioned, there for potluck luncheon of salads and desserts, were Nada Davis, Joanne Ludloff, Dianne Taylor, June Harris, Wanda Sewak and Sally Weber.

WILD WAVES SAY

'Senior citizens' note extra years with parties

By IOLA MASTERSON
Society Editor

JOLLY GOOD fun the other night when attorney Ed Iliff entertained at a party for 50 plus friends. He was honoring himself on "having reached the permanent age of 49."

Assisting him as hostess was friend, Anne Sundstrom. Tickling guests were invitations which read, in part, "Music, spirits and bologna sandwiches to be provided. Anyone who brings a gift over $1 will be forcibly ejected. Sports clothes."

Arriving, as instructed, were such good friends as Capt. Ralph and Jo Maloney, Bob and Cynthia Blakey, Earl and Virginia Milton, Jack and Lucille Hamilton, Tom and Jean Zeiger, Jimmy and Frances Starr, Vic and Suzanne Mingers, Cmdr. George and Susie Powell, Frank and Alice Pickett, Joe and Ann Ratliff, Walter and Evelyn Scott, Dick and Peggy Wilson and Nelva and Bob Lane.

Host Ed reneged, though. Instead of bologna he had a catered buffet with tons of ham, turkey, meat balls and go withs. All I can surmise is that Ed is full of bologna.

SAVE THE date and help Jim celebrate is exactly what 60 friends did when wife, Marilyn Shirley, had a 40th birthday party for him.

Instead of asking for equipment for their sail boat, Calypso — a Coronado 25 — Jim's main request was for a Mickey Mouse watch, which she gave him. Making night especially festive was having his sister, Lenore, her husband, Dr. Don Johnson, and their daughter, Andrea, there. The Johnsons are here from home in Hawaii to spend the summer.

Gag gifts were rampant including a book, "Forty Is" by Jim Everhart and Cliff Notes. Among the things in the photos and gag volume about "Forty Is" are "Adjusting to the fact that the ability to overcome a hangover isn't what it used to be." "Looking in a mirror and beginning to think maybe you aren't prematurely gray." "Opening a door and going through it ahead of your wife." "Bawling out your son for what you got caught doing as a kid."

Invitations for informal affair, which takes place Sept. 6, will be mailed mid-next month which is why committee is digging so hard right now for names and addresses of the more than 800 '54 diploma holders.

Assisting are Mmes. Don (Marilyn) Wells, Robert (Mary) Wells, Ralph (Paula) Irwin, Bob (Cathy) Weaver, Jerry (Sandy) O'Malley, Neville (Lois) Hallinan and Don (Sharon) Hickok.

HAPPY PARTY was hosted this week by Bert and Carolyn Du Mars for Capt. Dick and Virginia Seeley, fresh back from Fairbanks, Alaska, and duty with the USAF. While here with daughters Debbie, 5, and Beth, 4, they're staying with her parents, Fred and Maxine Wright.

Back to party. It was cocktails and buffet for 40 to help renew old ties with the Seeleys, who have been gone for more than two years. Among guests — John and Carolynn Faber, Bill and Dulcie McCracken, Bill and Dorothy Richards, Larry and Shirley Velie and Bill and Camille Naertz, the latter coming from Santa Barbara for the reunion.

ON THE guest of honor list this month, add the name Naida (Mrs. Jay) Hansen. The Hansens, with daughter Diane, are moving to Gainsville, Tex., shortly. The movers were due Saturday.

First party was given by Vera Wallin and Maxine Smalley at Vera's home on The Toledo. It was a champagne brunch and, as a pretty keepsake, they gave her a gold charm for her bracelet — with map of California on it. Invited were friends connected with Federation of Republican groups.

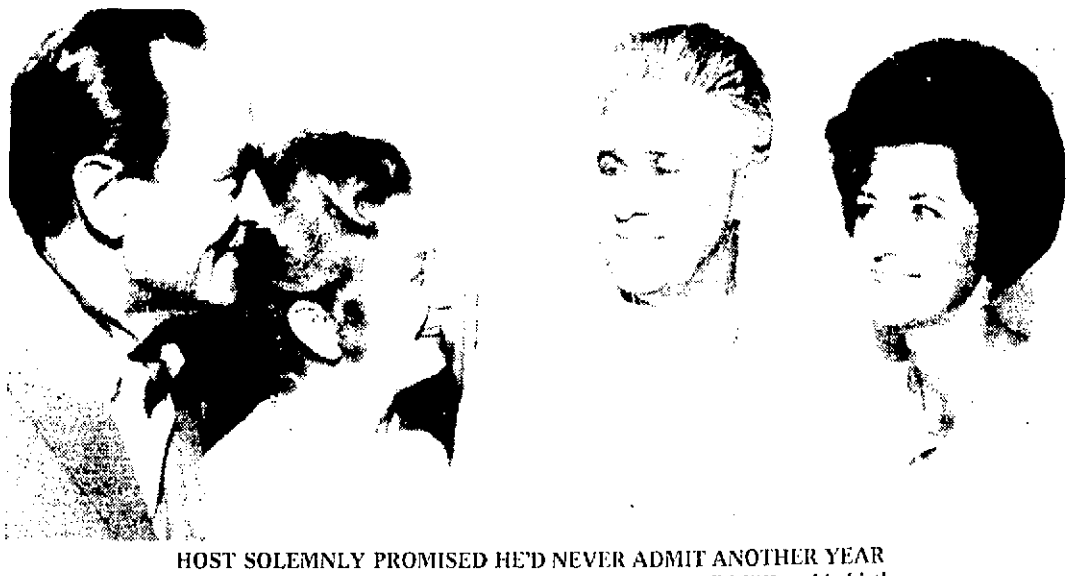

Among those present and sorry to see her leave town were Isodine McCall, Anne Bowler, Jerry Smiley, Pat Radcliff, Pat Loftman, Edith Hindley, Vi Domico, Lydia Cannon, Bernice Thompson, Joann Haden and Bernice Powell.

Then her GOP Juniors old board (20 in all) had a surprise for her at Joan Hadens. In addition to some of the aforementioned there for potluck luncheon of salads and desserts, were Nada Davis, Joanne Ludlott, Dianne Taylor, June Harris, Wanda Sewak and Sally Weber.

ALMOST immediately after Bob and Mary Mote gave Bob and Gay McKernie a black kitten he had to go to St. Mary's Hospital for surgery — on Friday the 13th!

DEAR ABBY

Replace her lies with your trust

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My 15-year-old daughter (I'll call her "Linda") is my problem. She is so boy-crazy she worries me half to death. All she thinks about is boys, boys, boys.

When the doorbell rings, she nearly breaks a leg running to talk to any delivery boy who happens to show up.

Linda also lies a lot. She is not allowed to go in cars with boys, so she walks to a girl friend's house and the boys pick her up there. (I learned this when I happened to glance at her diary.)

When I ask Linda for the truth she tells lies to cover up for her lies. Why does she lie so much and how can I get the truth out of her? LINDA'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Children lie because they haven't the courage to tell the truth. Give Linda that courage by assuring her that no matter what she's done you will "understand" and forgive her.

Perhaps your threats are too frightening and your punishments too severe. Give her plenty of love and expect the best, and she won't let you down. And quit "glancing" at her diary. The way to inspire confidence is to show it.

DEAR ABBY: How long does a person have to live in a place before it's "HOME"?

My husband has been married to me for 16 years, and whenever he goes to see his parents he says, "I'm going home."

Maybe I'm out of line to get so upset over this, Abby, but it just burns me up to hear him say that. Don't you think "home" is where a man's wife and children are? Or do you think maybe my husband actually still feels more at home with his mother and father than he does with me? ALMA

DEAR ALMA: Where one has spent his earlier years is "home" — no matter how long he's been away from it. Many old-timers who have been on this side of the ocean most of their lives still refer to their native lands as "home," so don't take it personally.

DEAR ABBY

Replace her lies with your trust

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My 15-year-old daughter (I'll call her "Linda") is my problem. She is so boy-crazy she worries me half to death. All she thinks about is boys, boys, boys.

When the doorbell rings, she nearly breaks a leg running to talk to any delivery boy who happens to show up.

Linda also lies a lot. She is not allowed to go in cars with boys, so she walks to a girl friend's house and the boys pick her up there. (I learned this when I happened to glance at her diary.)

When I ask Linda for the truth she tells lies to cover up for her lies. Why does she lie so much and how can I get the truth out of her? LINDA'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Children lie because they haven't the courage to tell the truth. Give Linda that courage by assuring her that no matter what she's done you will "understand" and forgive her.

Perhaps your threats are too frightening and your punishments too severe. Give her plenty of love and expect the best, and she won't let you down. And quit "glancing" at her diary. The way to inspire confidence is to show it.

DEAR ABBY: How long does a person have to live in a place before it's "HOME"?

My husband has been married to me for 16 years, and whenever he goes to see his parents he says, "I'm going home."

Maybe I'm out of line to get so upset over this, Abby, but it just burns me up to hear him say that. Don't you think "home" is where a man's wife and children are? Or do you think maybe my husband actually still feels more at home with his mother and father than he does with me? ALMA

DEAR ALMA: Where one has spent his earlier years is "home" — no matter how long he's been away from it. Many old-timers who have been on this side of the ocean most of their lives still refer to their native lands as "home," so don't take it personally.

INDEPENDENT PRESS-TELEGRAM

VERY IMPORTANT VIPS Gertrud Bunzel (left), Mrs. Neil Philips and Frauke Von Der Horst study display of organization's work. Trio was honored for greatest number of service hours given to new program.

School volunteers, program lauded

By JOYCE CHRISTENSEN

Praise from as far away as the Governor's Mansion and as near as the schools they serve was heaped on VIPS (Volunteers In Public Schools; during a lawn party at Rancho Los Cerritos.

In a congratulatory telegram read by VIPS chairman Mrs. Stanley Solomon, Gov. Ronald Reagan said:

"Each day it becomes more evident that we must assert more innovated spirit into the education of our young people . . . If more adults could emulate the VIPS approach, I believe the local schools could become our greatest link in building new horizons for future generations . . . Please extend my warmest congratulations to those being honored and my enthusiastic good wishes for continued successes in your program."

Representing the Board of Education Mrs. Donald C. Wallace Jr., told her audience of volunteers, school officials and civic dignitaries. "During these days when schools are in crises, it's nice to be talking about something positive.

"Good works are necessary and interested people such as you are essential. Young people need to build their own self esteem. You have helped them to believe in themselves and as a result, all have moved foreward."

Certificate of service were presented to each volunteer with special recognition going to Gertrud Bunzel, Frauke Von Der Horst and Mrs. Neil Philips for the greatest number of hours.

The volunteer school aid program which began in March at the suggestion of W. Odie Wright, superintendent of schools, has been functioning in 15 schools in the northwest area of Long Beach.

VIPS numbers among its membership, registered nurses, former teachers, social workers, careerists and housewives with time to spare and an interest in children. Each volunteer serves a minimum of three hours a week, most serve many more.

They tutor, tell stories, handle routine clerical jobs and work as teachers' aides. Some work in the library, school office or nurse's office. Others talk to pupils about their travels; occupations and experiences which relate to what the class is studying.

Requests from teachers and administrators are matched up as far as possible with the skills, experience and desires of the volunteers through the VIPS placement and interviewing committee.

The 108 VIPS honored for their service this week are the first of what eventually will become a vast corps of volunteers interested in helping children to learn and in supplementing the work of the classroom teacher.

This fall the program will expand to an additional 22 schools in the southwest area of Long Beach Unified School District and requests already are on file for an additional 200 volunteers.

Within the year, the Board of Education hopes to have VIPS available in all schools of the district, according to Mrs. Solomon, who adds, "we plan to just grow and grow and grow!"

Recruitment of volunteers will continue through the summer and interested persons are urged to contact the Board of Education, 701 Locust Ave.

Art Deco recalls that by-gone era

LONG TORSO dress—popular silhouette of the '20s and now '69—gives long slender look in sheer black wool from Hannah Troy.

numbers are the cat's meow: white crepe for a long-sleeved dress with fringe from above the knee to the floor (also fringed belt) . . . and a provocative choice in pants—an all-fringe tunic over slim crepe pants or a slim crepe tunic over all-fringe pants.

Designer Bob Bugnard, in the Sam Friedlander collection, does a group of cleverly constructed cocktail fashions that take off on an Art Deco kick, interpreted in grey jerseys and flannel, brushed with red and margined in black velvet . . . with a fling of a scarf around the shoulder.

Vincent Mignon, who once staged a barefoot fashion show of his elegant evening gowns on the ocean's edge in Long Beach, does soft shaping in luscious fabric that makes a gal's clothes seem to melt to the body.

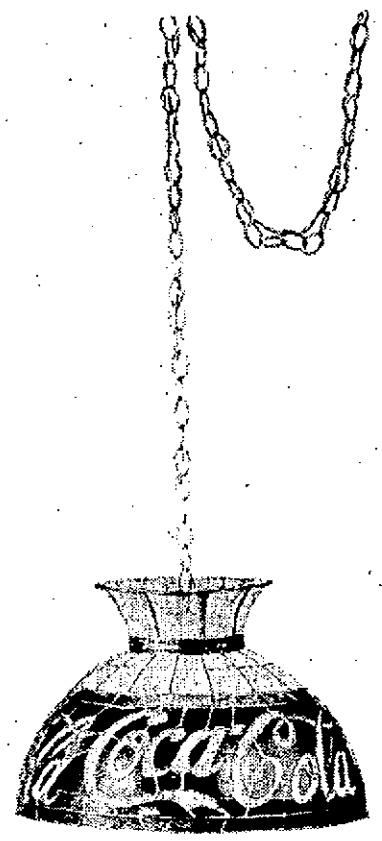

He does black velvet for evening with deep slit neck and side panels of nylon net swiss-embroidered with velvet circles . . . also a short cocktail dress with the same embroidered circle motif on wide kimono sleeves.

MIGNON is a favorite, you know, with the new First Lady — with all the Nixon women, in fact.

To date, he's finished and delivered 22 garments to the White House . . . and there are 11 more in the works. About the accompanying publicity: "Yes, it has done something for us. There's no question about it."

Another New York designer who figures prominently in Mrs. Nixon's wardrobe is Harvey Berin. He and his designer, Karen Stark, made the gold dress with its short jewelled jacket which she wore for the Inaugural Ball.

It will, of course, join the rest of the first ladies' dresses in the Smithsonian Museum.

Unveiling his fall-winter collection during the New York Couture Group's Press Week, Berin had this to say about the First Lady:

"To fit her figure is a delight. It's excellent . . . not standard, more a model's figure.

"I could name a couple other women who have been in the White House who weren't so easy to fit. Mrs. Onassis doesn't have the figure Mrs. Nixon is blessed with."

Meanwhile, showings of the fall-winter collections by New York's top-name designers go on . . . and on . . . and on.

With five more days to go, 250 fashion editors here from the world's major newspapers stumble from show to show, arms full of fashion reports, hair disarranged by gale-like winds, rings under their eyes from last night's nightcap party given by the Denim Council (it began at 1:30 p.m.!!).

Because, despite the parties — which come in multiples — the event is one in which serious collecting of fashion facts occurs.

To do their duties, fashion reporters in the past have even included some with broken arms or legs in casts, some in wheel chairs.

The New York hotels know the fashion reporters as an orderly group. Sometimes they give management something to laugh about.

Take the time one writer, scrubbing in the tub, saw this strange thing with hundreds of legs swimming around in her bath water.

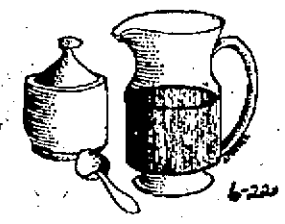

She screamed, hopped out of the tub and called a bellboy to kill the creature.

The "creature" turned out to be one of her false eyelashes!

More Monday.

Paperclip supply might ease situation

By ERMA BOMBECK

My husband's secretary is a wonderful person. (Personally, I have always felt an ugly girl could type as well but . . .). The point is I do get sick and tired hearing how Miss Fitz could run my home better and more efficiently than I from a telephone booth with one arm tied behind her back.

I do the best I can with what I have to work with. I wonder whether Miss Fitz could raise three children with only half of a Dr. Spock paperback. I know it was a stupid thing, but with the first baby we ripped the book in half one night so I could whip through the first half while my husband could read through the second. I lost my half, which explains why I packed diapers with the kids' lunches.

And then there's the household dictionary. What would you say, Miss Fitz, if I told you I go through life using only words from i through z. I sent notes with my children to school for the last 11 years saying they were absent because of an upset stomach because I didn't know how to spell dirarh . . . diahirri . . . see what I mean?

Our encyclopedia stops with World War 1, our World Almanac has a forward written by President McKinley. Our filing cabinet is a stove drawer which contains bottle stoppers, string, marriage license, coaster, will, yo yo's, insurance policies and a mousketeer beanie.

Can you bear to read any more, Miss Fitz? Then let me tell you about what I laughingly call my reference books. There's a first aid manual in the medicine chest which prescribes leeches for everything. There's a cookbook of basic recipes which pictures on the cover a young girl in a finger wave and a headband. I must fill out a requisition everytime I want to use the phone.

I DON'T HAVE paperclips, Miss Fitz, or rubber bands or little bottles of glue . . . or pencils or felt tipped pens, or envelopes or stationery, or rubber stamps with my name on it. I make do with brown paper bags, pieces of yarn, eyebrow pencils and spit.

Lord, you don't know the nights I've envied you your petty cash box. Do you have any idea what it is like to borrow from the children? I would rather float a loan from the Mafia.

Please forgive me for getting emotional, but this morning was particularly devilish. I misfiled one of my husband's children (I know he'll call in), the bank refused to honor a check written on an Ohio-Kentucky road map, and I served my husband coffee in a plastic cream pitcher.

That did it. "Miss Fitz would never serve me coffee in a cream pitcher," he shouted.

I'm curious, Miss Lady Efficient! What would you have done if the sugar bowl was dirty?

Arts

WITH the point of his pen, Charles Bragg pricks pomposity and winnows truth from fact and myth. At left, an etching, "At Ease." At right, a dour "Victory Party," another etching. Also in LBMA's exhibit are oils and drawings. The medium may vary but the subject always is —people.

Charles Bragg's people— bittersweet, even lovable?

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Editor

With assistance of Maurie Symonds, owner of the Upstairs Gallery, Lakewood, Long Beach Museum of Art has organized an exhibit of more than 50 oils, etchings and drawings by Charles Bragg.

The artist will be present for an opening reception today from 2 to 4 p.m. to which the public is invited. Hosts will be Friends of the Museum.

Born in St. Louis, Mo., in 1931, Bragg attended Art Students League in New York. He lectures for UCLA Extension and was featured on the national education television "This Is Art" program subsidized by the Ford Foundation. He is a regular contributor to magazines and is represented by the Upstairs Gallery.

In his catalogue introduction, Arthur Secunda writes, "Bragg's bittersweet people are pompous, voiceless, pious and cruel — completely believable, even lovable. Bragg loves people and his work transcends being merely narrative because it basically expresses conditions and values, not itsy-bitsy genre situations."

Monday, Bragg will be guest artist for the opening program of a new series of lecture-demonstrations being given by UC Extension on the Irvine campus. "Conversations With Artists" are scheduled Mondays and Thursdays at 7:30 p.m. in Physical Sciences Building, Room 101. Coordinator and moderator is Edward Biberman, artist, lecturer and author who was featured in the "Dialogues in Art" series on NBC television.

Each evening in the current series, he will give an introduction which will place the guest in his setting in the art field; then, using slides or actual materials, the artist will illustrate his techniques, philosophy and goals.

WITH APPROPRIATE fanfare Saturday, Laguna Beach officially will open Southern California's first completely new community theater in more than 20 years.

A champagne reception for 1,000 persons will mark the day and the Festival of Arts Chorale, under direction of Marilyn Interlandi, will entertain with show tunes.

The Festival of Arts Forum, designed by architect Don Williamson, is believed to be the first theater paid for entirely by funds earned by a non-profit organization and given as a gift to a city, completely unencumbered. The key to the forum, located in Irvine Bowl Park, will be handed over to Laguna Beach mayor, Glenn E. Vedder.

Built by Festival of Arts funds at a cost of $112,000, the theater will be available year around for concerts, lectures, meetings, small conventions and dance programs.

During the run of the Festival of Arts, July 11 through Aug. 24, the theater will be used by Rene and His Marionettes on the second level. Food concessions, a junior art exhibit and children's art class will be housed at the ground level.

SACRED and secret rituals of the Isleta Pueblo Indians of New Mexico are revealed in 44 paintings now on display at Los Angeles Public Library, 630 W. Fifth St.

Joe B. Lente, self-taught Indian artist, knew that he could be flogged, banned from his tribe — even put to death — if his identity became known to the high priests of his pueblo. The rites which he painted always are guarded from the eyes of those outside the tribe.

Before his death in 1953, Lente had completed about 140 paintings. They depict birth, illness, death, war, scalping, hunting, games, planting and irrigation as well as rituals. The culture shows a mixture of Indian and Catholic religions.

After reading a study of the Pueblo Indians which was written by anthropologist Esther S. Goldfrank and published in the 1920s, Lente wrote the author and offered, for a modest payment, to supply her with drawings and paintings which would correct inaccuracies of the original illustrations. He stipulated that he must remain anonymous until after his death.

Mrs. Goldfrank agreed.

The exhibit also includes the only known self-portrait of Joe B. Lente. In a letter to Dr. Elsie Clews Parsons, a colleague of Mrs. Goldfrank, there was a simple drawing of an Indian with the inscription, "This is me."

Riverside Museum, New York City, organized the exhibition which is being circulated by the Smithsonian Institution. It will remain in Los Angeles through July 9.

ALL THE DAYS of the year worked together to send 10 graphic design students from California State College, Long Beach, to the Aspen International Design Conference at Aspen, Colo., Monday through Friday.

James Van Eimeren, associate professor of art, helped his class design and print a 1969 calendar which raised more than $1,000 to help finance the students' trip. Many local stores sold the calendars.

In addition, several of Van Eimeren's graphic design students have won national awards from the St. Regis Paper Co., for the third consecutive year. Current winners are Dave Schroer, Dal Blohm, Steve Gerow and Reuben Daghestanian. Twelve CSLB students won honorable mentions.

JOSE FERRER, 'MAN OF LA MANCHA'

'Man of La Mancha' to be season 'extra'

When Los Angeles Civic Light Opera chose "Man of La Mancha" as the inaugural production for the Ahmanson Theater in The Music Center April 12 through July 29, 1967, there was little doubt that the show would be a sell-out.

Not only were Southern Californians eager to enter the new theater, third in the Music Center's trio of showplaces, but they also wanted to see the surprise run-away hit of Broadway.

There just weren't tickets enough to go around, so, although many theater-goers have attended other shows since in the Ahmanson, they haven't yet seen "Man of La Mancha."

Los Angeles CLO is opening the prize-winning musical as a season "extra" July 2 for a seven-week run in the Ahmanson with super-star Jose Ferrer in the dual roles of Cervantes-Don Quixote.

DALE WASSERMAN'S musical, derived from the Cervantes' classic, will co-star Maura K. Wedge as the fiery and lusty Aldonza, Tony Martinez as Sancho, George Wallace as the Innkeeper and Norman Kelley as The Padre.

Tom Jones opens at Greek July 7

Artists from Puerto Rico, England, Hawaii and the United States, plus Japan's dramatic spectacle — The Grand Kabuki, will comprise Greek Theater's 17th annual summer season.

Tom Jones, one of today's dynamic stars will open the season July 7. This engagement will be this extraordinary Welshman's first Los Angeles stage appearance. With him will be The Friends of Distinction.

The Fifth Dimension will follow from Monday, July 14 through Sunday, July 20.

Johnny Mathis and Henry Mancini will share billing from Monday, July 21 through Sunday, July 27.

Harry Belafonte will return to the Greek Theater for his ninth appearance from Thursday, July 31 through Saturday, Aug. 23. Belafonte refers to the Greek as "the theater where I was born."

CROSBY, Stills & Nash, a newly formed combination of English stars, will hold the stage from Monday, Aug. 25, through Aug. 31.

Jose Feliciano, guitarist - singer - impersonator, earned such popular acclaim as a guest artist last summer that he has been invited to return to the Greek in his own show from Monday, Sept. 1, through Sunday, Sept. 7.

Don Ho, the star from Hawaii, will bring his own style of performance to The Greek from Monday, Sept. 8, through Sunday, Sept. 14.

THE GRAND KABUKI, one of the world's oldest and most renowned performing companies, will close the season with seven consecutive performances beginning Wednesday, Oct. 1.

Dance Panorama

High lights from "The Puppet Show Man," "Sleeping Beauty" and "Coppelia" will be featured on "A Dance Panorama," directed by Valerie Silver, today at 3 p.m. in Millikan High School Auditorium.

The poetry of dance will be seen in a free style ballet, "Cycle of Life," for which Marvin Cloyd will be narrator. The work is based on "The Prophet" by Kahlil Gibran. Gene Columbus, motion picture and television dancer and choreographer, will show examples of modern jazz and Alex P. Dilts will demonstrate the art of fencing and its relation to ballet.

PLASTIC AS PLASTIC

--joy blast for everyone

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

"Plastic as Plastic," in more than 250 examples, is on display at the galleries at California State College, Long Beach, through July 10. The show is a joy-making blast; persons to whom it would not appeal are impossible to imagine.

Naum Gabo first used celluloid for sculpture 50 years ago, appropriately in the new art form, Cubism. In this last year, the casting of plastic in thick solids was mastered.

THE PRESENT show at CSLB was organized by the Museum of Contemporary Crafts, New York City, sponsored by the Hooker Chemical Corporation, and circulated by the Smithsonian Institution. It is international in scope, and opens up a seemingly limitless horizon in new objects. Besides objects of use, or art, and of fantasy, there are others, like heart valves, that became possible only with plastic.

Italy has made great advances in plastic furniture, both solid and inflatable. Among these are fantastic light sources, and stackable furniture in bright lacquer colors.

The many art objects include sculptures in lucite, both clear and light-reflecting; molded rainbow-hued forms, sprayed plastic; and laminated photo murals.

TOYS, a dune buggy chassis, high-fashion jewelry, "shades" and accessories (even a see-through dress) offer bright promises in the pleasure area.

Perhaps the goal of the German Bauhaus (between the Great Wars) will be realized. That group hoped, through a combination of art and industry, to provide Mr. and Mrs. Average and the kiddies a fuller life.

Arts

WITH the point of his pen, Charles Bragg pricks pomposity and winnows truth from fact and myth. At left, an etching, "At Ease." At right, a dour "Victory Party," another etching. Also in LBMA's exhibit are oils and drawings. The medium may vary but the subject always is —people.

Charles Bragg's people—bittersweet, even lovable?

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Editor

With assistance of Maurie Symonds, owner of the Upstairs Gallery, Lakewood, Long Beach Museum of Art has organized an exhibit of more than 50 oils, etchings and drawings by Charles Bragg.

The artist will be present for an opening reception today from 2 to 4 p.m. to which the public is invited. Hosts will be Friends of the Museum.

Born in St. Louis, Mo., in 1921, Bragg attended Art Students League in New York. He lectures for UCLA Extension and was featured on the national education television "This Is Art" program subsidized by the Ford Foundation. He is a regular contributor to magazines and is represented by the Upstairs Gallery.

In his catalogue introduction, Arthur Secunda writes, "Bragg's bittersweet people are pompous, voiceless, pious and cruel — completely believable, even lovable. Bragg loves people and his work transcends being merely narrative because it basically expresses conditions and values, not itsy-bitsy genre situations."

Monday, Bragg will be guest artist for the opening program of a new series of lecture-demonstrations being given by UC Extension on the Irvine campus. "Conversations With Artists" are scheduled Mondays and Thursdays at 7:30 p.m. in Physical Sciences Building, Room 101. Coordinator and moderator is Edward Biberman, artist, lecturer and author who was featured in the "Dialogues in Art" series on NBC television.

Each evening in the current series, he will give an introduction which will place the guest in his setting in the art field, then, using slides or actual materials, the artist will illustrate his techniques, philosophy and goals.

WITH APPROPRIATE fanfare Saturday, Laguna Beach officially will open Southern California's first completely new community theater in more than 20 years.

A champagne reception for 1,000 persons will mark the day and the Festival of Arts Chorale, under direction of Marilyn Interlandi, will entertain with show tunes.

The Festival of Arts Forum, designed by architect Don Williamson, is believed to be the first theater paid for entirely by funds earned by a non-profit organization and given as a gift to a city, completely unencumbered. The key to the forum, located in Irvine Bowl Park, will be handed over to Laguna Beach mayor, Glenn E. Vedder.

Built by Festival of Arts funds at a cost of $112,000, the theater will be available year around for concerts, lectures, meetings, small conventions and dance programs.

During the run of the Festival of Arts, July 11 through Aug. 24, the theater will be used by Rene and His Marionettes on the second level. Food concessions, a junior art exhibit and children's art class will be housed at the ground level.

SACRED and secret rituals of the Isleta Pueblo Indians of New Mexico are revealed in 44 paintings now on display at Los Angeles Public Library, 630 W. Fifth St.

Joe B. Lente, self-taught Indian artist, knew that he could be flogged, banned from his tribe — even put to death — if his identity became known to the high priests of his pueblo. The rites which he painted always are guarded from the eyes of those outside the tribe.

Before his death in 1953, Lente had completed about 140 paintings. They depict birth, illness, death, war, scalping, hunting, games, planting and irrigation as well as rituals. The culture shows a mixture of Indian and Catholic religions.

After reading a study of the Pueblo Indians which was written by anthropologist Esther S. Goldfrank and published in the 1920s, Lente wrote the author and offered, for a modest payment, to supply her with drawings and paintings which would correct inaccuracies of the original illustrations. He stipulated that he must remain anonymous until after his death.

Mrs. Goldfrank agreed.

The exhibit also includes the only known self-portrait of Joe B. Lente. In a letter to Dr. Elsie Clews Parsons, a colleague of Mrs. Goldfrank, there was a simple drawing of an Indian with the inscription, "This is me."

Riverside Museum, New York City, organized the exhibition which is being circulated by the Smithsonian Institution. It will remain in Los Angeles through July 9.

ALL THE DAYS of the year worked together to send 10 graphic design students from California State College, Long Beach, to the Aspen International Design Conference at Aspen, Colo., Monday through Friday.

James Van Eimeren, associate professor of art, helped his class design and print a 1969 calendar which raised more than $1,000 to help finance the students' trip. Many local stores sold the calendars.

In addition, several of Van Eimeren's graphic design students have won national awards from the St. Regis Paper Co., for the third consecutive year. Current winners are Dave Schroer, Dal Blohm, Steve Gerow and Reuben Daghestanian. Twelve CSLB students won honorable mentions.

JOSE FERRER, 'MAN OF LA MANCHA'

'Man of La Mancha' to be season 'extra'

When Los Angeles Civic Light Opera closes "Man of La Mancha" as the inaugural production for the Academy Theater in the Music Center Aug. 12 through Aug. 29, 1967, Civic Light Opera will be 25 years old.

Not only will Southern Californians open the new theater, third in the Music Center's trio of showplaces, but they also wanted to see the surprise runaway hit of Broadway.

There just weren't tickets enough to go around, so, although many theatergoers have attended other shows since in the Ahmanson, they haven't yet seen "Man of La Mancha."

Los Angeles CLO is opening the prize-winning musical as a season "extra" July 2 for a seven-week run in the Ahmanson with superstar Jose Ferrer in the dual roles of Don Quixote and Cervantes.

DALE WASSERMAN'S musical, derived from the Cervantes' classic, will co-star Maria K. Wedge as the feisty and feisty Aldonza; Jose Martinez as Sancho; George Wallace as the innkeeper and Norman Kelley as the Padre.

Tom Jones opens at Greek July 7

Artists from Puerto Rico, England, Hawaii and the United States, plus Japan's dramatic spectacle — The Grand Kabuki, will comprise Greek Theater's 17th annual summer season.

Tom Jones, one of today's dynamic stars will open the season July 7. This engagement will be this extraordinary Welshman's first Los Angeles stage appearance. With him will be The Friends of Distinction.

The Fifth Dimension will follow from Monday, July 14 through Sunday, July 20.

Johnny Mathis and Henry Mancini will share billing from Monday, July 21 through Sunday, July 27.

Harry Belafonte will return to the Greek Theater for his ninth appearance from Thursday, July 31 through Saturday, Aug. 23. Belafonte refers to the Greek as "the theater where I was born."

CROSBY, Stills & Nash, a newly formed combination of English stars, will hold the stage from Monday, Aug. 25, through Aug. 31.

Jose Feliciano, guitarist - singer - impersonator, earned such popular acclaim as a guest artist last summer that he has been invited to return to the Greek in his own show from Monday, Sept. 1, through Sunday, Sept. 7.

Don Ho, the star from Hawaii, will bring his own style of performance to The Greek from Monday, Sept. 8, through Sunday, Sept. 14.

THE GRAND KABUKI, one of the world's oldest and most renowned performing companies, will close the season with seven consecutive performances beginning Wednesday, Oct. 1.

Dance Panorama

High lights from "The Puppet Show Man," "Sleeping Beauty" and "Coppelia" will be featured on "A Dance Panorama," directed by Valerie Silver, today at 3 p.m. in Millikan High School Auditorium.

The poetry of dance will be seen in a free style ballet, "Cycle of Life," for which Marvin Cloyd will be narrator. The work is based on "The Prophet" by Kahlil Gibran. Gene Columbus, motion picture and television dancer and choreographer, will show examples of modern jazz and Alex P. Dilts will demonstrate the art of touring and its relation to ballet.

Mexico to spend $77 million developing the sea of Cortez

MEXICO CITY — The Sea of Cortez, better known as the Gulf of California and lying only 50 miles from the southwestern U. S. border, may become one of North America's leading recreation and fun areas as plans of the Mexican government reach fulfillment.

The Mexican National Tourist Council has disclosed that 972.7 million pesos ($77,913,270 U. S.) in public and private money have been committed to "transform the gulf coastline into another Riviera during the next five years. The area's warm subtropic climate, unparalleled fishing grounds and clear ocean water ideal for swimming and water sports — plus the fascinating lure of the Land of Manana — has no equal anywhere on the continent.

The northern tip of the gulf begins where the Colorado River meets the ocean, not far from Yuma, Ariz., and extends in a southerly direction for about 650 miles to Cabo San Lucas. The eastern shoreline is the mainland of Mexico; on the west Baja California, the long, finger-like appendage of California extended.

* * * *

TODAY, THE shoreline is dotted with fishing villages and a few resorts most frequented by sportsmen. But for the most part, it is an undeveloped country, expecially Baja California, with long reaches of sandy beaches, spectacular scenery, bays and coves — and isolation.

On these shores, particularly the mainland, the government and private entrepreneurs are committed to the program, and names dropped which will become familiar to many Americans include El Desemboque, Bahia Kino, Hautabampo, Los Mochis and El Dorado.

It will include the construction of airports, roads, development of port facilities, and restoration of pre-Hispanic and colonial monuments. Drinking water facilities will be improved and expanded. Electric power will be brought in and other facilities provided for visitors.

Plans have already been drafted, according to Antonio Ortiz Mena, minister of the treasury and public credit, for private enterprise to build new hotels in the southeast providing 2,315 rooms, and 2,746 rooms in the Pacific area in anticipation of the inflow of visitors.

* * * *

THE GOVERNMENT has allocated 512.7 million pesos for the development program in the states of Sonora, Baja California, Sinaloa, Nayarit, Colima and Jalisco. Private enterprise is committed to 460 million pesos for hunting lodges, inns, restaurants, yacht clubs, spas and handicraft centers. Approximately half of the cost will be financed by loans from the state department of tourism.

Overall financing is to be provided by the World Bank and the Inter-American Development Bank. This is the first time these banks have established new lines of credit for tourist promotion, according to Mena.

As a result of this program, combined with a similar development in the Maya (Yucatan) region on the Gulf of Mexico, the government expects foreign exchange resulting from the increased tourism to exceed the country's annual foreign trade. Mexico now ranks fifth in the world in income from tourism, exceeded only by the United States, Italy, France and Spain.

Government expenditures on both the gulf and in the Maya will total 1,142 million pesos. Private investors will add 929.2 million pesos for a grand total in excess of two billion pesos.

* * * *

GOVERNMENT agencies actively involved in executing the plan are the Mexican National Tourist Council, the Ministries of the Navy, National Patrimony, Public Education, Hydraulic Resources, Communications and Transportation, Public Works and the Presidency, as well as the various state governments affected.

The Sea of Cortez boasts the world's greatest salt water fishing. It is a warm water aquarium that attracts fish in numbers perhaps unequalled anywhere else. There are whales, sea lions, dolphin, black, blue and striped marlin, sailfish, tuna, roosterfish, sharks and barracuda, to name a few of the 650 identified species.

The mild, 80-degree temperatures of the gulf country was long ago discovered by other visitors, the birds, and today, along the shoreline and on the bleak, uninhabited islands in the gulf, can be seen a constant parade of birds, the diving pelican, cormorant, osprey, Canadian geese, duck. On the Sonoran desert, just below the border, quail and dove thrive on the bleak land.

The land is inhabited by the friendly Mestizos, descendants of the original Indian tribesmen and their Spanish conquerors.

NAMES OF STRANGE-SOUNDING MEXICAN VILLAGES will become well known, the Mexican government promises, by the time its vast development program is completed along the coastline of the Sea of Cortez.

France regains lead in tourism

NEW YORK — According to latest passport figures released by the U.S. Department of State, France has once again topped all other European destinations as the country most passport applicants (January thru March 1969) plan to visit.

Followed in order by Germany, Ireland, Italy and the United Kingdom, France headed the list with 23 per cent of total travelers.

The French Government Tourist Office confirms the upswing in interest in France. "We expect 1969 not only to be far ahead of last year, which was not a good one, as you know," said a spokesman, "but present trends indicate that '69 will also be well above the previous high recorded in 1967."

The "thaw" in Franco-American relations is considered partly responsible for the renewed trend to France on the part of U.S. travelers.

TRAVELING WITH DELAPLANE

It's summer now in Finland

By STAN DELAPLANE

HELSINKI, Finland — It's summer now in Finland. The lakes and seas have unfrozen. Even in the heart of Helsinki there's a smell of pine and birch leaves. The nights now are only a few hours of dark.

Still not much Western tourist traffic into Finland — Finnair is trying to step it up with a new New York-Helsinki flight. (It stops at Amsterdam and Copenhagen; buy cigarettes at the Amsterdam free port during the stop. You'll pay 60 cents a package in Finland.)

This flight runs daily except Sunday. Possibly extra good on food and service since it's new. Finnair anxious to get some of the business now going to bigger SAS.

Unable to get into Russia which was too bad because this IS Finnair's cup of vodka. They are right on the edge — you can walk across the frozen sea to Russia in winter.

Tried to get a visa into nearby Estonia for a day. But a pretty girl at the Russian office said: "It usually takes ten days."

Helsinki is less "Western" than other Scandinavian capitals. Finnish language has no relation to the Viking countries — "sounds like Japanese spoken by Italians."

There is little modern or hip culture. A good meeting place for young people is Richard's Pub. Workers. Journalists. Girl students in Marimekko miniskirts. Excellent Finnish beer on tap. (One rock group from Rumania in town. Not so good.)

Dinners are somewhat incendiary if you go for the cold smoked reindeer meat, smoked fish. Russian caviar. Finnish vodka would blow a safe. After dinner drink is mesimarja — it's made from Arctic bramble, a sweetish taste.

Travel and RESORTS

INDEPENDENT, PRESS-TELEGRAM—W-11
Long Beach, Calif., Sun., June 22, 1969

Good hotels at $10 to $15. A sleeper is the lovely lake country outside the capital. Elegant hotel mansions — Haiko Manor near Porvoo. And LOW-PRICED camping sites and cabins. Many rooms for rent in farmhouses.

What's wrong with it? No place for people looking for night life or "action." Helsinki at night is stately — formal dress at Kaivohuana restaurant in the Embassy district.

This is not a destination, rather an extension of a European trip. Something different for travelers in the Scandinavian countries. And a jump-off for Russia. Big Russian train pulls in and out from Moscow each day. Boat excursions go across the gulf to Estonia. And Finnair flies all of Russia that the Russians let you see.

"For two students spending some time (without a car) in Scandinavia, we'd like to meet other young people . . ."

GOOD SPOT in Helsinki is Hisc. A student club with go-go dancing and cheap prices for Finnish wine, Budapest for the gypsy violins.

Copenhagen's the town. The Tivoli. Open-faced sandwiches. Danish beer and Danish girls. I got into Copenhagen late without a reservation which was a piece of luck. The tourist office put me into a school dormitory — turned over to tourists during the summer. Price $2 a day.

There's a Student Club — ask the tourist office. Dancing and beer. Many discotheques — maybe Cafe Royal or Club Vodka a Stay Stay. Stay away from the waterfront pubs. Too rough. Mainly cater to American soldiers on leave from Germany.

Stockholm's another town full of summer students and discotheques. ALL Scandinavia is good for summer student travel. These countries are locked in by snow and darkness all winter. And when the long summer sun comes out — well, it's wild.

"I say I could travel in Europe as a student for $5 a day. But my father . . ."

NOT TO GET into a generation gap beef (I've enough of my own) here's what I've been told: Some young people claim to do it on $2. That's hitchhiking. Eating bread and cheese. I think $10 a day is safer. But $5 is sufficient.

Mexico to spend $77 million developing the sea of Cortez

MEXICO CITY — The Sea of Cortez, better known as the Gulf of California and lying only 50 miles from the southwestern U. S. border, may become one of North America's leading recreation and fun areas as plans of the Mexican government reach fulfillment.

The Mexican National Tourist Council has disclosed that 972.7 million pesos ($77,913,270 U. S.) in public and private money have been committed to transform the gulf coastline into another Riviera during the next five years. The area's warm subtropic climate, unparalleled fishing grounds and clear ocean water ideal for swimming and water sports — plus the fascinating lure of the Land of Manana — has no equal anywhere on the continent.

The northern tip of the gulf begins where the Colorado River meets the ocean, not far from Yuma, Ariz., and extends in a southerly direction for about 650 miles to Cabo San Lucas. The eastern shoreline is the mainland of Mexico; on the west Baja California, the long, finger-like appendage of California extended.

TODAY, THE shoreline is dotted with fishing villages and a few resorts most frequented by sportsmen. But for the most part, it is an undeveloped country, especially Baja California, with long reaches of sandy beaches, spectacular scenery, bays and coves — and isolation.

On these shores, particularly the mainland, the government and private entrepreneurs are committed to the program, and names dropped which will become familiar to many Americans include El Desemboque, Bahia Kino, Hautabampo, Los Mochis and El Dorado.

It will include the construction of airports, roads, development of port facilities, and restoration of pre-Hispanic and colonial monuments. Drinking water facilities will be improved and expanded. Electric power will be brought in and other facilities provided for visitors.

Plans have already been drafted, according to Antonio Ortiz Mena, minister of the treasury and public credit, for private enterprise to build new hotels in the southeast providing 2,315 rooms, and 2,746 rooms in the Pacific area in anticipation of the inflow of visitors.

* * * *

THE GOVERNMENT has allocated 512.7 million pesos for the development program in the states of Sonora, Baja California, Sinaloa, Nayarit, Colima and Jalisco. Private enterprise is committed to 460 million pesos for hunting lodges, inns, restaurants, yacht clubs, spas and handicraft centers. Approximately half of the cost will be financed by loans from the state department of tourism.

Overall financing is to be provided by the World Bank and the Inter-American Development Bank. This is the first time these banks have established new lines of credit for tourist promotion, according to Mena.

As a result of this program, combined with a similar development in the Maya (Yucatan) region on the Gulf of Mexico, the government expects foreign exchange resulting from the increased tourism to exceed the country's annual foreign trade. Mexico now ranks fifth in the world in income from tourism, exceeded only by the United States, Italy, France and Spain.

NAMES OF STRANGE-SOUNDING MEXICAN VILLAGES will become well known, the Mexican government promises, by the time its vast development program is completed along the coastline of the Sea of Cortez.

Government expenditures on both the gulf and in the Maya will total 1,142 million pesos. Private investors will add 929.2 million pesos for a grand total in excess of two billion pesos.

GOVERNMENT agencies actively involved in executing the plan are the Mexican National Tourist Council, the Ministries of the Navy, National Patrimony, Public Education, Hydraulic Resources, Communications and Transportation, Public Works and the Presidency, as well as the various state governments affected.

The Sea of Cortez boasts the world's greatest salt water fishing. It is a warm water aquarium that attracts fish in numbers perhaps unequalled anywhere else. There are whales, sea lions, dolphin, black, blue and striped marlin, sailfish, tuna, roosterfish, sharks and barracuda, to name a few of the 650 identified species.

The mild, 80-degree temperatures of the gulf country was long ago discovered by other visitors, the birds, and today, along the shoreline and on the bleak, uninhabited islands in the gulf, can be seen a constant parade of birds, the diving pelican, cormorant, osprey. Canadian geese, duck. On the Sonoran desert, just below the border, quail and dove thrive on the bleak land.

The land is inhabited by the friendly Mestizos, descendants of the original Indian tribesmen and their Spanish conquerors.

Pacific area book ready

A free copy of the Pacific Area Travel Association's full-color 28-page "Discover the Friendly Pacific" booklet is available on request from the Marketing Department, Pacific Area Travel Association, 228 Grant Ave., San Francisco, Calif. 94108.

The booklet is an invitation to "Discover the Friendly Pacific" from PATA, a non-profit organization which promotes travel to and within the Pacific area. All major government tourist departments, airline and steamship companies in the Pacific are PATA members. Hundreds of PATA-member travel agents are provided with brochures, timetables, schedules, rates and all the information needed to plan a trip.

The booklet is most helpful to the person planning a trip, before contacting his PATA-member travel agent, and discovering the friendly Pacific for himself.

France regains lead in tourism

NEW YORK — According to latest passport figures released by the U.S. Department of State, France has once again topped all other European destinations as the country most passport applicants (January thru March 1969) plan to visit.

Followed in order by Germany, Ireland, Italy and the United Kingdom, France headed the list with 23 per cent of total travelers.

The French Government Tourist Office confirms the upswing in interest in France. "We expect 1969 not only to be far ahead of last year, which was not a good one, as you know," said a spokesman, "but present trends indicate that '69 will also be well above the previous high recorded in 1967."

The "thaw" in Franco-American relations is considered partly responsible for the renewed trend to France on the part of U.S. travelers.

TRAVELING WITH DELAPLANE

It's summer now in Finland

By STAN DELAPLANE

HELSINKI, Finland — It's summer now in Finland. The lakes and seas have unfrozen. Even in the heart of Helsinki there's a smell of pine and birch leaves. The nights now are only a few hours of dark.

Still not much Western tourist traffic into Finland — Finnair is trying to step it up with a new New York-Helsinki flight. (It stops at Amsterdam and Copenhagen; buy cigarettes at the Amsterdam free port during the stop. You'll pay 60 cents a package in Finland.)

This flight runs daily except Sunday. Possibly extra good on food and service since it's new. Finnair anxious to get some of the business now going to bigger SAS.

Unable to get into Russia which was too bad because this IS Finnair's cup of vodka. They are right on the edge — you can walk across the frozen sea to Russia in winter.

Tried to get a visa into nearby Estonia for a day. But a pretty girl at the Russian office said: "It usually takes ten days."

Helsinki is less "Western" than other Scandinavian capitals. Finnish language has no relation to the Viking countries — "sounds like Japanese spoken by Italians."

There is little modern or hip culture. A good meeting place for young people is Richard's Pub. Workers. Journalists. Girl students in Marimekko miniskirts. Excellent Finnish beer on tap. (One rock group from Rumania in town. Not so good.)

Dinners are somewhat incendiary if you go for the cold smoked reindeer meat, smoked fish. Russian caviar. Finnish vodka would blow a safe. After dinner drink is mesimarja — it's made from Arctic bramble, a sweetish taste.

INDEPENDENT, PRESS-TELEGRAM—W-11
Long Beach, Calif., Sun., June 22, 1969

Good hotels at $10 to $15. A sleeper is the lovely lake country outside the capital. Elegant hotel mansions — Haiko Manor near Porvoo. And LOW-PRICED camping sites and cabins. Many rooms for rent in farmhouses.

What's wrong with it? No place for people looking for night life or "action." Helsinki at night is stately — formal dress at Kaivohuana restaurant in the Embassy district.

This is not a destination, rather an extension of a European trip. Something different for travelers in the Scandinavian countries. And a jump-off for Russia. Big Russian train pulls in and out from Moscow each day. Boat excursions go across the gulf to Estonia. And Finnair flies all of Russia that the Russians let you see.

"For two students spending some time (without a car) in Scandinavia, we'd like to meet other young people . . ."

GOOD SPOT in Helsinki is Hisc. A student club with go-go dancing and cheap prices for Finnish wine, Budapest for the gypsy violins.

Copenhagen's the town. The Tivoli. Open-faced sandwiches. Danish beer and Danish girls. I got into Copenhagen late without a reservation which was a piece of luck. The tourist office put me into a school dormitory — turned over to tourists during the summer. Price $2 a day.

There's a Student Club — ask the tourist office. Dancing and beer. Many discotheques — maybe Cafe Royal or Club Vodka a Stay Stay. Stay away from the waterfront pubs. Too rough. Mainly cater to American soldiers on leave from Germany.

Stockholm's another town full of summer students and discotheques. ALL Scandinavia is good for summer student travel. These countries are locked in by snow and darkness all winter. And when the long summer sun comes out — well, it's wild.

"I say I could travel in Europe as a student for $5 a day. But my father . . ."

NOT TO GET into a generation gap beef (I've enough of my own) here's what I've been told: Some young people claim to do it on $2. That's hitchhiking. Eating bread and cheese. I think $10 a day is safer. But $5 is sufficient.

CROOKED SPIRE OF CHESTERFIELD
—(BOAC Photo

Pisa's leaning tower matched by English spire

LONDON — England's answer to the leaning tower of Pisa is a curious spire of a medieval church in the heart of the country's 20th century industrial belt.

Curious because the crooked spire of Chesterfield has stood 228 feet high for more than 600 years and nobody knows how it got bent. It could be that the timber has warped with age — or even that some long-forgotten craftsman built it with a deliberate twist.

The most popular theory to explain the twist? The story goes that the Devil was flying over on his way to a neighboring city when he stopped for a rest on the spire. The Devil, horrified when he realized where he was, flew off in a great hurry but not before his tail had wrenched the spire.

What is certain is that the spire bulges and leans in all directions and is eight feet out of perpendicular — five feet less than the famous tower of Pisa.

* * * *

BECAUSE OF ITS spire, the parish church in the ancient Derbyshire town has brought tourists from all over the world. Recently the Archdeacon of Chesterfield, the Reverend Thomas Cleasby, installed floodlighting for the spire and it has become a landmark at night for travelers on the nearby picturesque Derbyshire Dales.

He said: "All sorts of people coming to England seem to take the opportunity to visit our crooked spire. Apart from the floodlighting, we have lit the interior so visitors can see clearly the amazing intricacies of the incredible woodwork.

"Even distinguished architects have marvelled at it. And because every generation seems to have strengthened the spire, the structure despite its appearance, is quite sound."

Chesterfield is 150 miles north of London and lies off England's main motorway, the M1. The town has many historic associations — it received the royal charter from "Wicked" King John in 1215, the same year as the Magna Charta.

Boom rides Jamaica's north coast

MONTEGO, Jamaica — A boom in tourism is under way on Jamaica's north coast due to the $100 million development of Montego, a new and rapidly growing resort and port city on an island in Montego Bay.

Until recently, the Montego Bay area of Jamaica was not accessible to cruise ship passengers because the only deep-water harbor facility was at Kingston, at the other end of the island.

Now, with the development of Montego and the opening of its deep-water Montego Bay Harbor, cruise ships are able to call and passengers can visit this popular tourism locale on a short-stay basis.

The development of Montego was started in 1966 by Montego Freeport Limited, a melding of U.S., Jamaican and British investors. The project was enabled by an agreement with the Government of Jamaica which gave the company a package of rights and incentives including reclamation and development of 500 acres of land as a resort, port, commercial and industrial city.

* * * *

ELLIS CHINGOS, executive director of Montego Freeport Limited, said the first phase of development of Montego has been completed, with the second phase now under way.

The first phase included creating a 35-ft. deep-water channel and harbor, dredging and filling 343 acres of land, construction of a modern berthing and cargo handling facility and building of the first transit warehouse.

The second phase includes construction of two additional 600-foot berths, to accommodate cruise ships and the Montego Bay Yacht Club, which already has 300 members, as well as basic landscaping and road and utilities installation. The development project, under a master plan, will cost $100 million.

* * * *

IN ADDITION, the first condominium hotel now is being constructed by Montego Towers Limited. This will be a $7 million, 480-unit facility which is the first to be built in Jamaica under a new law which permits individual ownership of units in a multiple-unit housing development. Completion is targeted for next year.

The harbor facility was opened in July, 1968, with the cruise ship Sunward making the inaugural visit. The occasion was marked by a grand opening ceremony which attracted several thousand Jamaicans, including top-level governmental officials.

Since then, the Sunward and the Starward, cruise ships operating in the Caribbean out of Miami, have made Montego a regular port of call, and a number of cruise ships out of New York have added the port to their itinerary.

Need grows for better airports, says ATA

WASHINGTON — Declining airline earnings, coupled with inadequate airports and airways, could roll back progress in the next jet decade, the Air Transport Association reports in its 1969 edition of Facts and Figures.

Net profit for the U. S. scheduled airline industry in 1968, according to the industry report, was $216.108 million, a decline of 48 per cent from the net profit of $415.392 million in 1967. Rate of return on investment in 1968 hit a seven-year low. It was 5 per cent, a decline of 34.2 per cent below 1967 when the rate of return on investment was 7.6 per cent.

ATA President Stuart G. Tipton said a fare increase averaging 3.8 per cent that the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) approved effective in late February was a step in the right direction. "But with earnings still seriously sagging," Tipton said, "it is quite clear that further relief must be considered." Tipton added that in the first quarter of 1969 the airlines reported a net loss of $16.193 million, compared with a net profit of $27.139 million for the same period last year.

* * * *

"THE FIRST Ten Years Of The Jet Age" is the theme of the 1969 report. It cites the growing consumer value of air transportation since 1958 in terms of lower fares and improvements in the quality and quantity of service.

Two major problems confront the industry as it enters the second 10-years of the jet age, Tipton said. He identified the first as attainment of a level of earnings adequate to support investment in new aircraft. Tipton identified the second problem as "a failure by the Federal government and others to face up to the present inadequacy of airports and airways and to get moving on a program to provide facilities required by growing public demand."

The airlines in 1968 took delivery on 478 new aircraft valued at $2.56 billion. They took delivery in the first five months of 1969 on 180 more jets valued at $1.29 billion. During the remainder of the year the airlines expect to take delivery on another 157 aircraft.

* * * *

THE TOTAL equipment program for the years 1969-1972 and beyond now totals $7.42 billion for 628 aircraft. Most of the planes to be added to airline fleets over the next few years will be of the new family of wide-bodied, three-engine and four-engine superjets that will enable the airlines to absorb great increases in traffic with only small increases in the size of their fleets, the report notes. The report adds that the airlines are investing $2.5 billion in passenger and cargo terminals and related facilities and equipment.

The 1968 safety rate for the airlines, the report said, was 0.27 passenger fatalities per 100 million passenger miles. This was the 17th year in a row that the fatality rate was below 1.0. The average for the past five-year period was 0.23, compared with 0.37 for the preceding five-year period.

CROOKED SPIRE OF CHESTERFIELD
—(BOAC Photo

Pisa's leaning tower matched by English spire

LONDON — England's answer to the leaning tower of Pisa is a curious spire of a medieval church in the heart of the country's 20th century industrial belt.

Curious because the crooked spire of Chesterfield has stood 228 feet high for more than 600 years and nobody knows how it got bent. It could be that the timber has warped with age — or even that some long-forgotten craftsman built it with a deliberate twist.

The most popular theory to explain the twist? The story goes that the Devil was flying over on his way to a neighboring city when he stopped for a rest on the spire. The Devil, horrified when he realized where he was, flew off in a great hurry but not before his tail had wrenched the spire.

What is certain is that the spire bulges and leans in all directions and is eight feet out of perpendicular — five feet less than the famous tower of Pisa.

BECAUSE OF ITS spire, the parish church in the ancient Derbyshire town has brought tourists from all over the world. Recently the Archdeacon of Chesterfield, the Reverend Thomas Cleasby, installed floodlighting for the spire and it has become a landmark at night for travelers on the nearby picturesque Derbyshire Dales.

He said: "All sorts of people coming to England seem to take the opportunity to visit our crooked spire. Apart from the floodlighting, we have lit the interior so visitors can see clearly the amazing intricacies of the incredible woodwork.

"Even distinguished architects have marvelled at it. And because every generation seems to have strengthened the spire, the structure despite its appearance, is quite sound."

Chesterfield is 150 miles north of London and lies off England's main motorway, the M1. The town has many historic associations — it received the royal charter from "Wicked" King John in 1215, the same year as the Magna Charta.

Boom rides Jamaica's north coast

MONTEGO, Jamaica — A boom in tourism is under way on Jamaica's north coast due to the $100 million development of Montego, a new and rapidly growing resort and port city on an island in Montego Bay.

Until recently, the Montego Bay area of Jamaica was not accessible to cruise ship passengers because the only deep-water harbor facility was at Kingston, at the other end of the island.

Now, with the development of Montego and the opening of its deep-water Montego Bay Harbor, cruise ships are able to call and passengers can visit this popular tourism locale on a short-stay basis.

The development of Montego was started in 1966 by Montego Freeport Limited, a melding of U.S., Jamaican and British investors. The project was enabled by an agreement with the Government of Jamaica which gave the company a package of rights and incentives including reclamation and development of 500 acres of land as a resort, port, commercial and industrial city.

* * * *

ELLIS CHINGOS, executive director of Montego Freeport Limited, said the first phase of development of Montego has been completed, with the second phase now under way.

The first phase included creating a 35-ft. deep-water channel and harbor, dredging and filling 343 acres of land, construction of a modern berthing and cargo handling facility and building of the first transit warehouse.

The second phase includes construction of two additional 600-foot berths, to accommodate cruise ships and the Montego Bay Yacht Club, which already has 300 members, as well as basic landscaping and road and utilities installation. The development project, under a master plan, will cost $100 million.

IN ADDITION, the first condominium hotel now is being constructed by Montego Towers Limited. This will be a $7 million, 480-unit facility which is the first to be built in Jamaica under a new law which permits individual ownership of units in a multiple-unit housing development. Completion is targeted for next year.

The harbor facility was opened in July, 1968, with the cruise ship Sunward making the inaugural visit. The occasion was marked by a grand opening ceremony which attracted several thousand Jamaicans, including top-level governmental officials.

Since then, the Sunward and the Starward, cruise ships operating in the Caribbean out of Miami, have made Montego a regular port of call, and a number of cruise ships out of New York have added the port to their itinerary.

Need grows for better airports, says ATA

WASHINGTON — Declining airline earnings, coupled with inadequate airports and airways, could roll back progress in the next jet decade, the Air Transport Association reports in its 1969 edition of Facts and Figures.

Net profit for the U.S. scheduled airline industry in 1968, according to the industry report, was $216.108 million, a decline of 48 per cent from the net profit of $415.392 million in 1967. Rate of return on investment in 1968 hit a seven-year low. It was 5 per cent, a decline of 34.2 per cent below 1967 when the rate of return on investment was 7.6 per cent.

ATA President Stuart G. Tipton said a fare increase averaging 3.8 per cent that the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) approved effective in late February was a step in the right direction. "But with earnings still seriously sagging," Tipton said, "it is quite clear that further relief must be considered." Tipton added that in the first quarter of 1969 the airlines reported a net loss of $16.193 million, compared with a net profit of $27.139 million for the same period last year.

* * * *

"THE FIRST Ten Years Of The Jet Age" is the theme of the 1969 report. It cites the growing consumer value of air transportation since 1958 in terms of lower fares and improvements in the quality and quantity of service.

Two major problems confront the industry as it enters the second 10-years of the jet age, Tipton said. He identified the first as attainment of a level of earnings adequate to support investment in new aircraft. Tipton identified the second problem as "a failure by the Federal government and others to face up to the present inadequacy of airports and airways and to get moving on a program to provide facilities required by growing public demand."

The airlines in 1968 took delivery on 478 new aircraft valued at $2.56 billion. They took delivery in the first five months of 1969 on 180 more jets valued at $1.29 billion. During the remainder of the year the airlines expect to take delivery on another 157 aircraft.

* * * *

THE TOTAL equipment program for the years 1969-1972 and beyond now totals $7.42 billion for 628 aircraft. Most of the planes to be added to airline fleets over the next few years will be of the new family of wide-bodied, three-engine and four-engine superjets that will enable the airlines to absorb great increases in traffic with only small increases in the size of their fleets, the report notes. The report adds that the airlines are investing $2.5 billion in passenger and cargo terminals and related facilities and equipment.

The 1968 safety rate for the airlines, the report said, was 0.27 passenger fatalities per 100 million passenger miles. This was the 17th year in a row that the fatality rate was below 1.0. The average for the past five-year period was 0.23, compared with 0.37 for the preceding five-year period.

New castle hotel Don't bet on it!

Another castle hotel has joined the swelling ranks of Germany's historic hostelries. Hotel Schloss Mackenzell (Rhoen Hills) is a moated mansion offering 40 rooms with bath and public rooms decorated in authentic baroque style.

Cheese and watches are Switzerland's best known exports. However, the manufacture of machinery is its major industry. Switzerland's industrial output is so extensive that it holds an annual fair, well attended by industrialists from all over the world, at Basel.

REPORT FROM PARADISE

Tahiti changing, not the Tahitian

By FRED TAYLOR KRAFT
Travel Editor

PAPEETE, Tahiti— Returning from my first visit to this tiny mid-Pacific paradise several years ago I was frequently asked if it warranted the unending praises bestowed upon it by poets, princes and plebians.

KRAFT

I had no words to describe my real feelings so I said truthfully that I was overwhelmed.

When I get home from this, my fifth visit, friends again are going to ask, "How has Tahiti changed?" "Has the old Tahiti been spoiled, like Hawaii, by the tourists?" and "Do you still like Tahiti?"

An acquaintance once told me his first visit to Tahiti was via a flying boat, years before the advent of the jet, even before the island was a gleam in the eyes of passenger boat captains looking for a landfall. He found Papeete a jumble of crude buildings and thatched shacks, chiefly the latter, where tramp steamers made infrequent calls. There was no hot running water, and the only noises to herald the thunderous dawns were the raucous cries of gulls and terns.

He found the Tahitians friendly and happy-go-lucky, and the vahines smiled at men just as they did in Captain Cook's time.

* * * *

TAHITI has changed, as if you are looking for that kind of a Tahiti. Grass shacks still dot Papeete's residential streets and the lush hillsides that march toward the ever-so-green mountains behind them, but they are slowly disappearing. And Tahiti has established itself as "the happy place" because the people cling to the ways of their ancestors and retain their easy-going grace.

But changes have, indeed, swept the island, brought about by travelers who wanted to see for themselves the Tahiti of a thousand legends. First they arrived on occasional steamers, later on luxury liners, and finally on the jets with the completion of Faaa (pronounce all the vowels, please) International Airport.

In 1960, Papeete (population 30,000) said "Iorana" ("Aloha") to 4,087 visitors. Last year there were 28,000, not including cruise passengers, and 45,000 are anticipated this year — an insignificant number when compared with Hawaii's 1.2 million in 1968.

A hotel-building program that has seen three fine caravansaries open within the past few months alone, bringing Papeete's room capacity to 1,200, a figure expected to jump to 4,500 by 1975. Such facilities also are growing on the sister islands of Moorea, Raiatea and Bora Bora.

The cries of gulls in early morning are drowned out on Quai du Commerce, Papeete's main street on the waterfront, by a sea of noisy traffic. It is difficult to believe that Tahiti, only 402 square miles in size, has 15,000 registered autos and 16,000 motorbikes of one kind or another until you encounter that early-morning free-for-all.

* * * *

TRAFFIC, naturally, has brought automatic traffic signals to a few, but not many, of the busiest intersections. A remodeling of the waterfront area is well under way. Supermarkets, the first of which I reported on my last visit two years ago, are beginning to grow in number. And my eyes popped when I saw for myself that Papeete has a drive-in movie theater.

Even Le Truck, an old-style passenger vehicle which for years has been the chief means of transportation around the island (25 miles for 50 francs) is being replaced imperceptibly by Transpolynesia's growing fleet of modern, efficient buses.

(Because Tahiti must import 90 per cent of her needs, living is understandably a little steep, but for the permanent resident this is at least partly compensated for by the fact that there is no income tax. The visitor, in turn, is beseeched not to tip, but he must pay a $4.56 departure tax, the highest in the Pacific.)

Still to come with more new hotels are a convention center and the island's first golf course (next year). They should fit in handsomely with Tahiti's near-perfect year-'round climate, black and white sand beaches, a multitude of water sports and unexcelled fishing. And a go-go nightlife!

There is strong talk that a freeway will be built from downtown Papeete to the airport, two and one-half miles away. It would wipe out some old waterfront landmarks and, in my opinion, do irreparable damage to the city's "natural appearance."

"What we're trying to do," explains Gerald Gilloteaux, manager of the Tahiti Tourist Development Board, "is to make Tahiti an 'in' place that will get some of the heavy Hawaii traffic moving down this way."

* * * *

IN LINE with this idea, UTA French Airlines has commenced once-weekly triangular service between Los Angeles, Hawaii and Tahiti. I am a passenger on the inaugural flight, aboard a nifty, Long Beach-made DC-8-62 jetliner that whistled in at dawn after a silky-smooth 2,416-mile ride in the clouds from Hawaii.

A few minutes later I was registered at the just-opened $7 million UTH Maeva Beach Hotel, set amid verdant tropical gardens and coconut palms. The third ultra-modern hostelry to open within weeks — the Tahara'a (Inter-Continental) and Pomare preceded it — rises seven splendiferous stories in Tahiti's exclusive residential district of Punnauai, only four and a half miles from Quai du Commerce.

The genius of French architect O. Cacoub was used to skirt the sense of the "high rise" by creating a long, rectangular base at beachside and stepping each floor in at the narrow sides of the rectangle, reminiscent of ancient Tahitian outdoor worshipping temples (marae). The result is that surrounding coconut trees still tower above the resort, which is actually difficult to spot from a boat a mile offshore.

But Cacoub went even further by achieving a notable harmony with nature through extensive use of glass, framed in concrete and broken with bands of cedar intricately carved in the lacy Marquesan design. The gardens represent a blend of Japanese styling and the Tahitian concept developed by the Societe Gooding of Tahiti, and all plants were used to retain the expansive green imagery and flash of color accents for which French Polynesia landscapes are famous.

* * * *

IORANA. Civilization has brought some of its ugly amenities to Tahiti, it is true, but only the Almighty can alter its unexcelled climate, its green forests, its waterfalls, its abundant tropical fruits and its millions upon millions of flowers of every hue.

Whether the handsome Tahitian loses his dignity, his grace and his happy ways — abetted by the sophisticated French flair long a part of his race — remains to be seen, but he has come through his first rigid tests with banners flying.

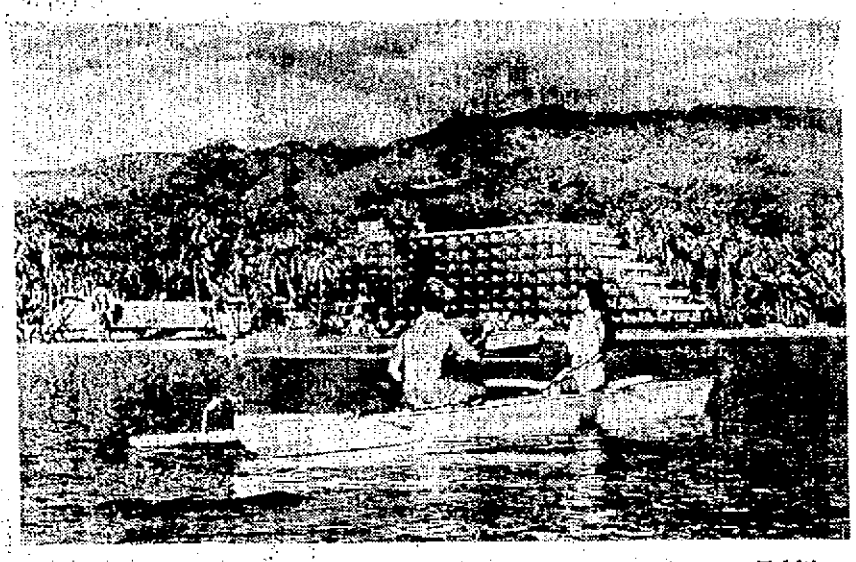

Do I still like Tahiti?

I ponder the question as I gaze at breakers crashing the coral reef a few hundred yards away, and I suddenly realize that — without taking as much as one sweet breath of air from our 50th state, which I adore — one of Mark Twain's declarations of love for Hawaii fits the feeling I have nutured about Tahiti from the time I first set foot on its beaches, heard the thunder of its native drums, and drank deep of its dazzling beauty.

"No other land," Twain wrote, "could so longingly and beseechingly haunt me sleeping and waking . . . For me its balmy airs always blowing, its summer seas flashing in the sun; the pulsing of its surf-beat in my ear; I can see its garlanded crags, its leaping cascades, its plumy palms drowsing by the shore . . . in my nostrils still lives the breath of flowers that perished twenty years ago."

NEXT — A drive around the perimeter of Tahiti.

COMELY TAHITIAN VAHINES DO THE TAMURE, the native dance, to the wild, beautiful and thrilling beat of music from wooden logs, sticks beaten against hollow bamboo, and other types of crude percussion soundmakers. The dancers have amazingly flexible and controlled hip movements resembling the Hawaiian hula slightly, but only from the waist down. On special occasions groups number up to 60.

THE MAEVA BEACH HOTEL, one of three new caravansaries on Tahiti, rises seven stories, but not above towering coconut palms which surround it. (UTA French Airlines photos)

REPORT FROM PARADISE

Tahiti changing, not the Tahitian

By FRED TAYLOR KRAFT
Travel Editor

PAPEETE, Tahiti— Returning from my first visit to this tiny mid-Pacific paradise several years ago I was frequently asked if it warranted the unending praises bestowed upon it by poets, princes and plebians.

KRAFT

I had no words to describe my real feelings so I said truthfully that I was overwhelmed.

When I get home from this, my fifth visit, friends again are going to ask, "How has Tahiti changed?" "Has the old Tahiti been spoiled, like Hawaii, by the tourists?" and "Do you still like Tahiti?"

An acquaintance once told me his first visit to Tahiti was via a flying boat, years before the advent of the jet, even before the island was a gleam in the eyes of passenger boat captains looking for a landfall. He found Papeete a jumble of crude buildings and thatched shacks, chiefly the latter, where tramp steamers made infrequent calls. There was no hot running water, and the only noises to herald the thunderous dawns were the raucus cries of gulls and terns. He found the Tahitians friendly and happy-go-lucky, and the vahines smiled at men just as they did in Captain Cook's time.

TAHITI has changed, yes, if you are looking for that kind of a Tahiti. Grass shacks still dot Papeete's residential streets and the lush hillsides that march toward the ever-so-green mountains behind them, but they are slowly disappearing. And Tahiti has established itself as "the happy place" because the people cling to the ways of their ancestors and retain their easy-going grace.

But changes have, indeed, swept the island, brought about by travelers who wanted to see for themselves the Tahiti of a thousand legends. First they arrived on occasional steamers, later on luxury liners, and finally on the jets with the completion of Faaa (pronounce all the vowels, please) International Airport.

In 1960, Papeete (population 30,000) said "Iorana" ("Aloha") to 4,087 visitors. Last year there were 28,000, not including cruise passengers, and 45,000 are anticipated this year — an insignificant number when compared with Hawaii's 1.2 million in 1968.

A hotel-building program that has seen three fine caravansaries open within the past few months alone, bringing Papeete's room capacity to 1,200, a figure expected to jump to 4,500 by 1975. Such facilities also are growing on the sister islands of Moorea, Raiatea and Bora Bora.

The cries of gulls in early morning are drowned out on Quai du Commerce, Papeete's main street on the waterfront, by a sea of noisy traffic. It is difficult to believe that Tahiti, only 402 square miles in size, has 15,000 registered autos and 16,000 motorbikes of one kind or another until you encounter that early-morning free-for-all.

TRAFFIC, naturally, has brought automatic traffic signals to a few, but not many, of the busiest intersections. A remodeling of the waterfront area is well under way. Supermarkets, the first of which I reported on my last visit two years ago, are beginning to grow in number. And my eyes popped when I saw for myself that Papeete has a drive-in movie theater.

Even Le Truck, an old-style passenger vehicle which for years has been the chief means of transportation around the island (25 miles for 50 francs) is being replaced imperceptibly by Transpolynesia's growing fleet of modern, efficient buses.

(Because Tahiti must import 90 per cent of her needs, living is understandably a little steep, but for the permanent resident this is at least partly compensated for by the fact that there is no income tax. The visitor, in turn, is beseeched not to tip, but he must pay a $4.56 departure tax, the highest in the Pacific.)

Still to come with more new hotels are a convention center and the island's first golf course (next year). They should fit in handsomely with Tahiti's near-perfect year-'round climate, black and white sand beaches, a multitude of water sports and unexcelled fishing. And a go-go nightlife!

There is strong talk that a freeway will be built from downtown Papeete to the airport, two and one-half miles away. It would wipe out some old waterfront landmarks and, in my opinion, do irreparable damage to the city's "natural appearance."

"What we're trying to do," explains Gerald Gillouteaux, manager of the Tahiti Tourist Development Board, "is to make Tahiti an 'in' place that will get some of the heavy Hawaii traffic moving down this way."

IN LINE with this idea, UTA French Airlines has commenced once-weekly triangular service between Los Angeles, Hawaii and Tahiti. I am a passenger on the inaugural flight, aboard a nifty, Long Beach-made DC-8-62 jetliner that whistled in at dawn after a silky-smooth 2,416-mile ride in the clouds from Hawaii.

A few minutes later I was registered at the just-opened $7 million UTH Maeva Beach Hotel, set amid verdant tropical gardens and coconut palms. The third ultra-modern hostelry to open within weeks — the Tahara'a (Inter-Continental) and Pomare preceded it — rises seven splendiferous stories in Tahiti's exclusive residential district of Punnauai, only four and a half miles from Quai du Commerce.

The genius of French architect O. Cacoub was used to skirt the sense of the "high rise" by creating a long, rectangular base at beachside and stepping each floor in at the narrow sides of the rectangle, reminiscent of ancient Tahitian outdoor worshipping temples (marae). The result is that surrounding coconut trees still tower above the resort, which is actually difficult to spot from a boat a mile offshore.

But Cacoub went even further by achieving a notable harmony with nature through extensive use of glass, framed in concrete and broken with bands of cedar intricately carved in the lacy Marquesan design. The gardens represent a blend of Japanese styling and the Tahitian concept developed by the Societe Gooding of Tahiti, and all plants were used to retain the expansive green imagery and flash of color accents for which French Polynesia landscapes are famous.

IORANA. Civilization has brought some of its ugly amenities to Tahiti, it is true, but only the Almighty can alter its unexcelled climate, its green forests, its waterfalls, its abundant tropical fruits and its millions upon millions of flowers of every hue.

Whether the handsome Tahitian loses his dignity, his grace and his happy ways — abetted by the sophistocated French flair long a part of his race — remains to be seen, but he has come through his first rigid tests with banners flying.

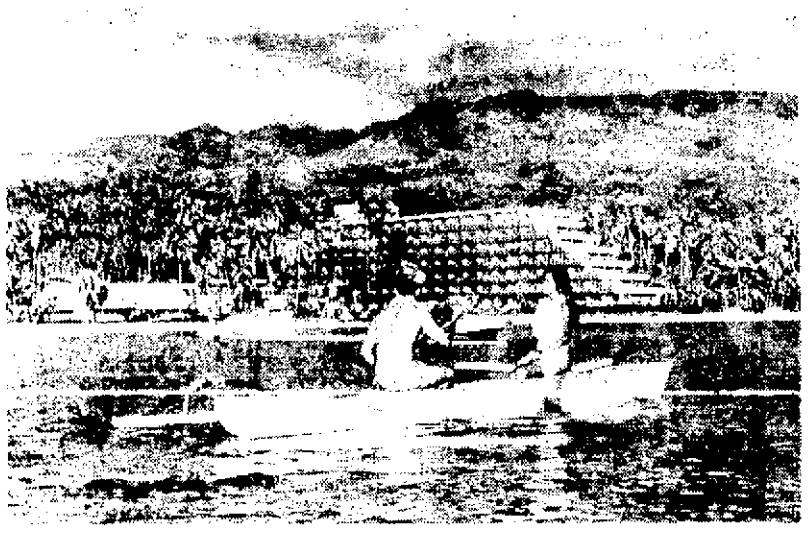

Do I still like Tahiti?

I ponder the question as I gaze at breakers crashing the coral reef a few hundred yards away, and I suddenly realize that — without taking as much as one sweet breath of air from our 50th state, which I adore — one of Mark Twain's declarations of love for Hawaii fits the feeling I have natured about Tahiti from the time I first set foot on its beaches, heard the thunder of its native drums, and drank deep of its dazzling beauty.

"No other land," Twain wrote, "could so longingly and beseechingly haunt me sleeping and waking . . . For me its balmy airs always blowing, its summer seas flashing in the sun; the pulsing of its surf-beat in my ear; I can see its garlanded crags, its leaping cascades, its plumy palms drowsing by the shore . . . in my nostrils still lives the breath of flowers that perished, twenty years ago."

NEXT — A drive around the perimeter of Tahiti.

COMELY TAHITIAN VAHINES DO THE TAMURE, the native dance, to the wild, beautiful and thrilling beat of music from wooden logs, sticks beaten against hollow bamboo, and other types of crude percussion soundmakers. The dancers have amazingly flexible and controlled hip movements resembling the Hawaiian hula slightly, but only from the waist down. On special occasions groups number up to 60.

THE MAEVA BEACH HOTEL, one of three new caravansaries on Tahiti, rises seven stories, but not above towering coconut palms which surround it. (UTA French Airlines photos)

Karpin on bridge

by Fred L. Karpin

A standard bridge expression is "LOL." This is a term used to designate innocent-appearing bridge players in a tournament who unexpectedly bid and play against you as though they were world champions.

The letters originally designated "little old ladies," and were used as a term of reproach.

However, the frequency with which little old ladies secured excellent results by simple common-sense action against experts, has resulted in the former connotation becoming one of amusement and respect rather than of belittlement.

Here is a deal in which a "LOL" was sitting in the South seat.

She would then have made six diamond tricks, five trumps in her own hand, plus the trump in dummy with which she had ruffed the opening heart lead. But it wasn't enough for her. She played for all the tricks—and made them.

She next ruffed a heart with the board's remaining trump. She then came back to the South hand via the diamond nine, and gathered in East's trumps. The rest of the tricks were now hers.

How different it would have been if she had cashed the ace and king of trumps at tricks two and three.

East would then have had a sure trump trick, and South would have incurred a two-trick set, losing a spade, two hearts, and two clubs.

Catalina trip for Howells

St. Matthews' Catholic Church was the setting for Saturday nuptials uniting Marilyn R. Tree and Dean A. Howell.

Parents of the couple are Lt. Cmdr. Merle E. Tree, USN, and Mrs. Tree and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Howell, all of Los Alamitos.

The bride was attired in a Chantilly lace gown adorned with seed pearls, featuring long sleeves and cathedral train.

Patricia A. Tree was her sister's maid of honor. The bride's cousin, Doreen Johnson, Pamela Pomeroy and the bridegroom's sisters, Sherryl, Anita and Sandra Howell, completed the entourage.

The best man was John W. Makevich; James Elstad, Craig Skortman, Terry Crow, Christopher Onick and Steve Mills seated guests.

A champagne reception in the Gaslight Room of Allen Center Officer's Club on Terminal Island honored the newlyweds, who left on a honeymoon trip to Catalina. They will be at home in Long Beach.

The bride is attending California State College at Long Beach where her husband also is a student. He is a graduate of Western High School in Anaheim.

She next ruffed a heart with the board's remaining trump. She then came back to the South hand via the diamond nine, and gathered in East's trumps. The rest of the tricks were now hers.

How different it would have been if she had ruffed the ace and king of trumps at tricks two and three.

East would then have had a sure trump trick, and South would have incurred a two trick set, losing a spade, two hearts, and two clubs.

The beauty of South's first-round finesse against the trump jack was that even if it lost, all the defenders could make from here in would be their club ace. The declarer, incidentally, was a 78-year little old lady.

Catalina trip for Howells

St. Matthews' Catholic Church was the setting for Saturday nuptials uniting Marilyn R. Tree and Dean A. Howell.

Parents of the couple are Lt. Cmdr. Merle E. Tree, USN, and Mrs. Tree and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Howell, all of Los Alamitos.

The bride was attired in a Chantilly lace gown adorned with seed pearls, featuring long sleeves and cathedral train.

Patricia A. Tree was her sister's maid of honor. The bride's cousin, Doreen Johnson, Pamela Pomeroy and the bridegroom's sisters, Sherryl, Anita and Sandra Howell, completed the entourage.

The best man was John W. Makevich; James Elstad, Craig Skortman, Terry Crow, Christopher Onick and Steve Mills seated guests.

A champagne reception in the Gaslight Room of Allen Center Officer's Club on Terminal Island honored the newlyweds, who left on a honeymoon trip to Catalina. They will be at home in Long Beach.

The bride is attending California State College at Long Beach where her husband also is a student. He is a graduate of Western High School in Anaheim.

Cable TV Seen as Revolutionary

By JACK GOULD
N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — The world of television is in orbit on an enticing flight plan; no one knows the point of splashdown. Along on the economics, social and scientific ride are all branches of government, big networks and little stations, Hollywood producers, entrepreneurs of new methods of delivering pictures to the home, hardware manufacturers, academicians and prefabbed answers, owners of neighborhood movie houses, bewildered directors of corporate mammoths, Wall Street brokers and enough lawyers to leave a country defenseless. The cause is cable television.

When television dawned on an unprepared world in the late 1940's, the operation of the medium was deceptively simple. In the manner of radio, a TV station randomly scattered a miscellany of intelligence and diversion to anyone with a receiver in range of its tower of visual enlightenment.

IN DUE COURSE Channels 2 through 13 filled up and, depending on a viewer's location, he might get anywhere from one to seven stations to keep him rooted in the parlor. By design, the stations were geographically separated by cities and a lush time was had by all. Networking of programs, or the interconnecting of cities by relay facilities, came along so that national impact — and revenue — could be realized.

The novelty of pictures in the home and the income they provided invited a state of euphoria. Not much attention was accorded to those sections of the country where TV signals were either nonexistent or overcast with blinding snow. And it also became apparent that a TV receiver in many areas was a largely wasted instrument. Frequently, more channels were dark than lit.

If a cluster of homes was electronically underprivileged in the depths of a valley, with a huge mountain serving as a barrier to seeing Milton Berle, Howdy Doody, and Worthington Miner's dramas, there was a solution: put one antenna on top of the mountain — a master aerial — and then run the signal down lead-in wire to the restless residents of the culture gulch.

This method of extending the range of TV beyond "the line of sight" had companion gains. If you could pick an ideal spot for a master antenna, regardless of where the receivers were, you could have virtually flawless reception. The master antenna, consisting of separate aerials pointing in all directions, could intercept stations not just from one city, but several. So was cable television born. There are now upwards of 5 million receivers connected in this manner. The initial implications of Cable TV spoke almost for themselves. First, the idea conquered the limitation of program choice. A community of under 100,000 population could get as much reception as metropolitan New York.

THE HOWLS OF PAIN began to be heard. If the subscribers to a cable system could enjoy a movie by eavesdropping on a station 50 or 100 miles away, how much could the producer get for the same movie when he tried to lease the film to a station in the community where the subscribers lived? Understandably, the producer wanted some new idea of copyright protection and the local station wanted some protection from competition from afar.

The complications didn't stop there. At the point where distant signals are collected by a master antenna and then fed into a cable system, why not connect a studio replete with cameras and film exhibition appara-

BILL COSBY LEADS CHILDREN ON 'TRIP' IN THEIR WORLD

Cosby, Small Fry Team for Look at Young Dreams

By TOM WILLMAN
Staff Writer

Bill Cosby, who's record albums have made the youthful characters "Fat Albert" and "Wierd Harold" famous, will make another excursion into childhood Monday night at 8 on Channel 4 in "As I See It."

The program, Cosby's second special, will combine his insight and humor with the views of children selected from all over the country — expressed via movie clips shot by the children themselves.

Each young movie-maker will narrate his own film, and Cosby will enhance the child's eye views of the world by interviewing each of the 17 children, chosen from all economic, social and ethnic backgrounds.

Cosby will also be relating many of the children's experiences to those in his own childhood.

To select the youngsters for the program, Producers George A. Heinemann and June Reig traveled throughout the country interviewing youngsters between the ages of six and 12.

The children were given eight-millimeter movie cameras, instructed in their use, and sent out to film their world as they saw it. They were told to look for things that gave them pleasure, perplexed them, made them happy or sad.

The NBC Children's Theatre production will feature original music composed and conducted by Robert Maxwell, interpreting each child's world with a fitting theme.

MISS RULE: Please explain the origin of YORK. — M.B., Long Beach.

YORK, English, was acquired by the ancestors from their home city of York in England. The city name began as a locality term "Eoforwic," meaning "place of the boars." Agnes de York was recorded in Yorkshire, 1379. The York shield fron Devonshire, England, is red, emblazoned with a silver chevron placed between three silver deer heads.

MISS RULE: Kindly inform me on SAN MARCOS. — E.S., Long Beach.

SAN MARCOS, Spanish and Portuguese, represents either an ancestor born on St. Mark's Day, April 25th, or a forefather surnamed for his native town called San Marcos. Marcos or Mark, from the Latin Marcus, means "warlike."

MISS RULE: Please identify ST. AUBIN. — M.S., Lakewood.

ST. AUBIN, French, refers to the town where the ancestor was born, one of several places in France by that name. These towns were named in honor of St. Aubin, a 6th century French bishop. Aubin is from the Latin "albinus" meaning "pale or white complexion." The St. Aubin armorial shield from Picardy, France, is blue, emblazoned with a golden, eight-rayed ornament in the center.

MISS RULE: Would you give brief data on RICHARDSON? — J.G., C.G., Long Beach; H.J., Garden Grove.

RICHARDSON, English, means "son of Richard," taken from the hero name Ric-Hard signifying "powerful ruler." The Richardson armorial shield is black, decorated with three lion heads on a silver stripe across the top. New Hampshire settlers include Rev. Ebenezer Richardson, 1707-1768, whose son was in the New Hampshire Rangers in the Revolutionary War.

MISS RULE: Kindly give information on HUNTER. — W.L., Garden Grove; D.H., Long Beach.

HUNTER, English, is from "huntere," a medieval word for a professional hunter of wild game. Records list Adam Le Huntere in 1268. The Hunter shield is gold, centered with a red rampant lion. John and William Hunter were noted Scottish physicians in the 1700s.

MISS RULE: Please ex-

Glad You Asked That!

By Hy Gardner

Q. Why, at 41, doesn't Eddie Fisher grow up? He married three of the most desirable females in the world—then divorced them. If he keeps that up, where does he think he's going?—E.V. Conklin, Baltimore.

A. I don't know where he's going — but look where he's BEEN!

Eddie with Liz Taylor . . . Debbie Reynolds was 1st. Connie Stevens 3rd.

Q. Is it true that jazz great Ray Charles, even though blind, drives a car? — Albert Pinker, Oakland.

A. "Yes," the extraordinary musician reluctantly admits. "I've been known to drive an automobile on an empty country road. And I had a motorscooter which was given to me by Playboy magazine many years ago. I fly my plane once in a while and if, God forbid, something happened to my pilot I think I could get it down without killing myself. I think a person has to be absolutely insane to do some of the things I do, but I wouldn't recommend it to anybody else. You must have supreme confidence in yourself."

Q. Who holds the non-stop marathon dance record? — Grace Weiss, Miami Beach.

A. Singing star Frankie Laine. He once danced, in an Atlantic City Steel Pier competition, for 145 days — with 15 minutes off every hour to catch a snatch of sleep or gobble up a snack of food.

Q. Does Twiggy wear a ring on every finger of both hands? And are they insurable, considering she could be such a target for jewel thieves? — Arnold Wilson, Chattanooga.

A. You can see for yourself, in this photo, that whoever told you about the rings knew what he or she was talking about. She doesn't worry about insuring the trinkets, however. Says they are almost worthless rings given to her by fans and admirers. She wears them because she likes the feel and glitter of the litter.

Twiggy . . . with rings.

Q. Did someone other than Raymond Burr ever play the role of Perry Mason? I've got two bucks riding on your answer. — Norb Hayden, Glendale.

A. Hedge your bet. Burr was television's only Perry Mason. However, in an early movie, actor Warren William played the role of lawyer Mason and in the mid-40's John Larkin did ditto on radio.

Q. Haven't diplomatic pouches containing secret documents fallen into the hands of Castro via hijacked planes? — Ralph Boudroin, Tampa, Fla.

A. No. Because of a maneuver the government employs to avoid just such a touchy incident. The moment a courier arrives at Kennedy International Airport from Europe on a jet, he's met by a two- or four-passenger Apache or Beechcraft and immediately whisked off to Washington.

Q. We just watched a TV rerun of the Alfred Hitchcock shocker, "The Birds." My youngsters asked me if the children were really hurt when they were attacked by the wild birds. What should I tell them? — Mrs. T. P., Beaufort, S.C.

A. Tell them what Mr. Hitchcock told me. "The 'attack' on the children was faked by double-printing . . . and the birds were trained by a well-known birdman named Ray Berwick."

ABC Series to View Problems of Blacks

ABC News' critically-acclaimed "Summer Focus, 1969" documentary series, which offered the specials "War in the Mideast?" and "Abortion" during June, continues at 10 p.m. Thursday, on channel 7 with "It Can Be Done."

"It Can Be Done" is the first program of the season in the "Time for Americans" series, a subdivision of "Summer Focus, 1969" which addresses itself to race relations and the problems of racial discord. Executive producer for "Time for Americans" is Stephen Fleischman.

The 1968 "Time for Americans" series dealt with the emotionally-charged issue of white racism and its offshoots, one of which is black racism. In 1969, the series looks at the race situation today, after a solid year of confrontation, exposure of the many problems, and the diversity of reactions.

In March the Urban Coalition issued a report stating that white racism still dominates race relations and the the nation is still moving in the direction of two socities, separate and unequal. The report reviewed developments since the issuance of the Kerner Commission report.

This season, "Time for Americans" explores and exposes those areas where the conflict remains most critical and allows the viewers to draw this own conclusions.

PAN AND FAN MAIL

I heartily agree with Sue Broas (Pan and Fan Mail of June 8 Tele Vues) that it is terrible "The Big Valley" has gone off the air. It has been my favorite show too, ever since it came on, and I never missed one show.

I enjoyed all of the cast, and was pleased that the same ones remained throughout the entire series. I felt like I really knew the Barkley family.

The stories relating to early California history were all good, and the color and photography were all excellent. I'll never be able to accept the "Dick Cavett Show" as a replacement. One night of that was enough.

I am writing a letter of protest to Elton Rule, ABC president in New York for what little good it will do, and wish more people who enjoyed the "Big Valley" would do the same.

How the Nielsen ratings are attained mystifies me. Why did the "Big Valley" have to be canceled?

J. C. Ross, Long Beach

(Let us know if ABC responds.)

How can I get tickets to watch the filming of a "Dark Shadows" episode?

Also, who was the character called "Nicholas Blair's Dark Shadows is a great show.

Joe Wood, Long Beach

(The show is filmed in a studio without audience. Sorry. Still running down "Blair" for you.)

Where do you go to sign for Pay TV? I'd like to be among the first. I haven't turned my set on since the Jonathan Win-

THE WELLS REPORT

Grunion, Go Home!

By Bob Wells

THE TROUBLE with living in California is that there are 49 other states, not to mention the District of Columbia. And most of them contain relatives, college chums, old Army buddies, business associates and the practical nurse who looked after poor old Aunt Maude in her last illness. All of these people and their children share the same ambition — they want to see Southern California.

You are the fella that shows it to them.

If you are a Southern Californian, you know all about the New Leisure. The New Leisure is what people in North Dakota, Tennessee, Minnesota, Maine, New Jersey and Texas have — not to mention the District of Columbia. They spend their New Leisure visiting Southern California.

You do not have any New Leisure, or old leisure, for that matter. You are too busy acting as travel agent, motel manager, airport limousine operator, auto club contact and white hunter for visitors.

Sometime I would like to visit Disneyland without having to worry about how many people did we come in with and will they all show up for the 2 p.m. rendezvous at the submarine ride. I find it easier with a large party to split them up and let them wander about various parts of Disneyland alone. But I insist that they all take the submarine ride together.

I LEARNED FROM BAXTER OMOHUNDRO that if you put a party in line for the submarine ride, you just have time to dash up and catch the monorail to the Disneyland Hotel, sprint to the cocktail lounge, drink a martini, catch the monorail back to the park and get there just as your friends or family are emerging from the sub.

That is why I prefer Disneyland over the many other fine tourist attractions we have in this area. Marineland, Knott's Berry Farm, etc., etc., are great and they all have soft drinks for the pause that refreshes. Trouble is — when a fella is acting as tour guide to out-of-town visitors, he doesn't need the pause that refreshes. He needs the pause that anesthetizes.

Of course there is always Busch Gardens in the San Fernando Valley. Somebody told me the other day that Busch Gardens and the adjacent brewery are on the same commercial tour as the Self-Realization Fellowship center.

That's logical but a little confusing. I mean if you're a stranger to the area it may be a little hard afterwards to remember which was which.

I DO NOT REALLY MIND DRIVING visitors up to Universal City to take the studio tour, or up to Mount Wilson, or to the zoo, or down to Palm Springs to see the most marvelous wonder of all — a motel collecting $18 a night for an $8 room. But there is one tourist request that gives me the spavin shakes immediately.

It always starts the same way. Your out-of-state visitor says:

"Say, I read in the paper where the grunion are running tonight. Why don't we go down to the beach for a grunion hunt?"

And his kids say:

"What's a grunion hunt, daddy?"

"Well," he says, "there are these little silver fish about six or seven inches long and right after a full moon they come onto the beach to spawn and you can walk along and pick them up with your hands."

"Gee," the kids shrill, "can we go on a grunion hunt, can we?"

You chuckle indulgently and try to get the situation back under control.

"I'M AFRAID A GRUNION HUNT is the California version of a snipe hunt," you tell the children. "You know about a snipe hunt, don't you?"

"Sure," they say. "You mean where you take somebody out in the woods and tell him to wait while you go scare up the snipe, then you go off and leave him."

"No," the father says. "There actually are grunion. I went on a grunion hunt when I was stationed out here in the Navy."

"Well, I'm afraid you need a fishing license to take grunion," you say desperately. "It hardly seems worth the money, particularly when the grunion fail to show up more often than not, or they show up on another beach."

"The kids don't need licenses," the father says. "And it looks like it is going to be a nice night."

So against your better judgment you find yourself huddled around a firepit on the beach. It is a nice night — most other places. On the beach, however, a cold wind of approximately hurricane force began to blow off the sea about sunset and has continued ever since.

YOUR BASIC COSTUMES are swim suits, but the cold wind has forced the adults to bundle up somewhat. You are padded like Finnish ski troopers. The kids, however, with an innate sense of the fitness of things, are wearing only swim suits.

"Jimmy, put your sweater on. You'll catch pneumonia," Jimmy's mother says between chattering teeth.

"Didn't bring a sweater," Jimmy says sullenly. You take off one of yours and give it to Jimmy. The polar wind hits and chills you and you hastily replace the sweater with a damp beach towel.

Jimmy's sister didn't bring her sweater either, so you swap your second sweater for another damp beach towel. You try to move closer to the fire, which you calculate is consuming six dollars worth of packaged firewood every 15 minutes. No chance. The warm spots are all occupied by your visitors. However, they let you have the smoke.

THE FIREPIT NEXT to you is the center of a swinging beach party of the Vitalis-and-acne set. A portable stereo phonograph is sending forth heavy decibels of folk-rock. The boys in the party seem to divide their time between sensuously combing their long bleached hair and rolling up in a blanket with their dates for some heavy necking.

You pull the damp beach towels closer around yourself and try to warm the inner man with hot coffee. Down on the beach there is a firefly ballet of flashlights as people search for the awaited grunion. The kids in your party dash back and forth between the beach and the fire. You follow their coming and going by the sprays of sand they kick up against the back of your head and neck.

AFTER WHAT SEEMS hours there are shouts of excitement down by the water. What you feared would happen has happened. The grunion have appeared. At the next firepit, the music and fire both had been allowed to die as the blanket bundles grew more numerous. Now there is renewed noise there.

"Hey, you guys," a youthful voice calls, "come on. The grunion are running."

The sportsman is greeted by groans and shouts of "Forget it," "Go away," "Get lost." The blanket rolls grow quiet again except for muffled giggles.

Finally, triumphant children appear at your firepit with buckets of grunion. You are not overjoyed. Everybody keeps saying how good grunion are. You suspect they have never eaten grunion. You have.

As you pick up to leave the beach, you make a silent vow. Next time the grunion run, so will you. In the opposite direction.

CRITICS' CORNER

THE JIMMIE RODGERS SHOW
CBS-TV, June 16, 10-11 p.m.

Summer sub for the "Carol Burnett show," this non-flashy musical-variety hour is remarkable for the manner of its host, Jimmie Rodgers, who appears to be trying for "nice guy" of the year votes. He'll win, too, if the pace of the opening program is maintained through the hot months. The intimacy of television craves a performer who not only is acceptable but appealing on a weekly basis and Rodgers has that spark.

For the premiere, Rodgers was joined by guest stars Wayne Newton and Dana Valery. Their musical highlights included a duet by Jimmie and Wayne to "Dreams of an Everyday Housewife," their voices harmonizing in an eerie but pleasant style. Miss Valery's solo number, "Surround Yourself With Sorrow," was okay but obviously prerecorded. In all the numbers, production values were minimal, not for economy, but to focus proper attention on the performer.

Other segs included a rather too cute "home movie" bit titled "Overground Movies," which smacked of "Laugh-In" antics. Nancy Austin scored in a rousing takeoff on old Hollywood musicals, singing "I'm the Last of the Busby Berkeley Girls," and a sketch pointing to the perils of a future where vending machines dispense weddings came off in fine style. Throughout the show, Rodgers played the perfect host, at ease in all departments.

Joe Hamilton is exec producer, with Robert Wright and Ernest Flatt serving as co-producers. Dave Powers directed, Barry Blitzer and Ray Brenner supervised the writing. Frank Comstock's musical direction was on the mark. Supporting cast included Lyle Waggoner, Vicki Lawrence, Nancy Austin, Bill Fanning, Don Crichton and the appealing Burgundy Street Singers, seven men and three girls from Kansas State U. All are assured summer jobs. — Bob Hull.

DEAN MARTIN PRESENTS THE GOLDDIGGERS
Thurs., 10-11 p.m. NBC-TV)

Lou Rawls and Gail Martin, with a bright assist from Paul Lynde of the specialized humor, were on hand to help a dozen Golddiggers mine for ore and they all struck paydirt. Breezy summer replacement for Dino, though borrowing songs and choreo from past days and sterotyped shows, and lifting blackouts from vaude, had an unusual freshness, particularly in the case of the Rawls-Martin-Lynde combo. Surefire fare is heavy-leaning on comedic abilities of exuberant Lynde and Rawls, with light spots by Albert Brooks and Stanley Myron Handelman.

Les Brown's band is in there all the time giving a big hand to those 12 little ladies. Exec producer Greg Garrison and director Robert Sidney have spent time on priming talent, including song-and-dance men Tommy Tune and Danny Lockin, with Miss Martin being a focal point. Doing their pleasing chores without top-heavy sets, cast tosses one-liners around, makes everything — or almost everything — sound brand new and shining.

Choreographer Jonathan Lucas used black-and-white checkered floor to show off his Golddiggers and their charms, moved entire cast around with chesslike precision, and, abandoning the hopeless problem of attempting to create something "new," i.e., different, worked successfully with what he had. Sifting material from the 1920's, 30's and 40's, Lucas and music producer

Four Coins That May Change California History

By Bill Duncan

IT WAS A LOUSY DAY for scuba diving off Oceanside that July afternoon in 1967. The surf was boiling with rip tides, churning a blinding sandstorm under the water's surface. Two divers, Chuck Tinch of Laguna Beach and Doug Taylor of Long Beach, decided to give it up and go ashore.

As they headed in, Tinch felt something strike his leg. The two divers went down to investigate. It was a Braille search in an underwater sandstorm, but, with their hands, Tinch and Taylor managed to scoop up several metal objects. When they surfaced, the two men had recovered four coins — gold coins centuries old.

Their find may change California history.

Tinch and Taylor, along with four other Southlanders, had been searching that day for a sunken ship off Oceanside which they believed was the Trinidad, a vessel skippered by Spanish explorer Francisco de Ulloa. The coins, they said, strengthened their belief that Ulloa's ship had sunk off Oceanside in 1538.

The six men, including Arthur McCartney, John Moreno, Bob Betz and George Giardina, formed a unique organization called Aztec Six, dedicated to the finding of Ulloa's Trinidad.

Should they succeed, California history will never be the same. The finding of Ulloa's ship would prove that Ulloa (pronounced Oolyo'a) discovered California and that Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo, the man history books credit with the discovery, was a Juan-come-lately.

"I'm already convinced that Cabrillo was a few years late in discovering California," Tinch, Aztec Six president, said. "I think we have some proof of this now, but if our calculations are correct we are going to settle the issue once and for all this summer. We are going to find the Trinidad."

Aztec Six hasn't gone about the search in any amateur way, in fact, the organization that started out with only six members has grown to 450 members — linguists, scientists, divers, electronic specialists, archaeologists, all interested in finding Ulloa's ship.

The search is still largely limited to weekends because all Aztec Six members have weekday jobs. The coins were only a clue, but the biggest boost came when Anthony Guisada, a Spaniard who became interested in Aztec Six's search for Ulloa's ship, found an old diary in the Archives of the Indies in Seville, Spain, which is purported to have been kept by one of the Trinidad's crewmen. The diary, written in a Moodish-Spanish, was translated by Dr. Moreno, a Santa Ana College professor, who literally had to create a new Spanish alphabet to decipher the sailor's log.

"One page in that diary," Tinch said, "tells of the Trinidad's sinking and gives us a pretty good location of where the ship went down."

Dr. W. E. Osborne, a La Habra scientist, joined Aztec Six and designed and made a highly sensitive magnetometer to help plot the ocean floor for metal objects.

The Oceanside City Council, impressed by Aztec Six's scientific approach to locating the Trinidad, gave the organization an exclusive contract to search the city's tidelands from July through September of this year for the ship.

"We are not treasure hunters in that sense of the word," explained McCartney, organization historian. "Our purpose is not to exploit a sunken ship that may or may not have treasure aboard, but rather to uncover buried history."

The time since the first coins were found has been spent in research and in gridding the ocean where Aztec Six feels the ship went down. This year will be spent in diving operations to actually locate the Trinidad.

"We think we've pinpointed the location," Tinch said. "The ship, we know, was loaded with Spanish river rock for ballastic stones. It probably has moved very little from the spot where it originally went down. We believe the ship is buried under sand. The bottom in that particular area is like a desert — hardly a rock in sight — and the bottom is continually shifting. We could find the ship buried under four to six feet of sand."

From the sailor's log, Aztec Six has charted the Trinidad's course from Acapulco, Mexico, and up the California coast as far as the area now known as Oceanside. Ulloa's mission, the diary revealed, was to find a sea route to the mythical Seven Cities of Cibola — the cities described by Alva Cabeza de Vaca as having streets paved with gold. The Trinidad, it is believed, sank in a storm off the California coast in 1538.

Cabrillo didn't come along until 1542.

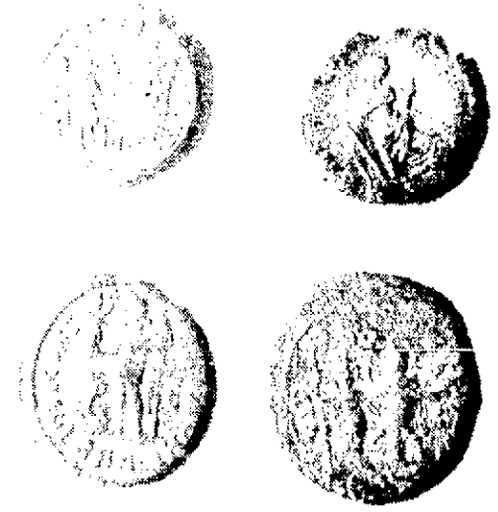

Aztec Six may not find a pot of gold buried off Oceanside, but the organization could rewrite history and put Francisco de Ulloa's discovery on the map.

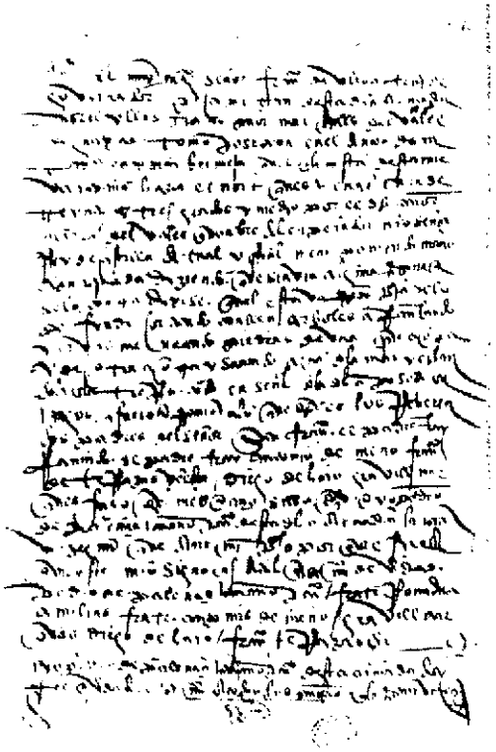

Doug Taylor, left, of Long Beach and Chuck Tinch of Laguna Beach view coins they believe may lead to proof that California was discovered by Francisco de Ulloa in 1538, rather than by Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo four years later.

PICASSO'S EROTIC ENGRAVINGS

On March 16, 1968, Pablo Picasso, the pre-eminent artist of our time, commenced work on a series of engravings that he predicted would become "my most sought after and possibly scandalous—work." They were to be a series of pictures portraying every aspect of sexual pleasure. Picasso had wanted to create such a series for over 65 years, he confided to Aldo Crommelynck, his engraving-press printer, and he intended it to stand as "an abiding celebration of life itself."

For nearly seven months Picasso worked in a creative frenzy at his studio in Mougins, France, turning out as many as four engravings in a single day, often with as many as six variations of each. "Olé!", "Bravo!", "Magnifico!", he would exclaim as each new engraving was pulled from the press, and so ecstatic was he over the quality of the work that on several occasions he summoned friends from as far off as London and New York to view the work in progress. Finally, on October 5th, he bundled the engravings together, inscribed them with the title "347 Gravures," and announced "Ya!" ("It is finished!").

The engravings Picasso had created are, collectively, his masterwork, a fitting climax to the career of a man whose dedication, both in personal life and work, has been to the sensual. "Without the awakening of ardent love, no life and therefore no art has any meaning," Picasso is quoted by his biographer, Roland Penrose, as saying. And nowhere in the prodigious, 20,000-piece oeuvre of this fertile genius has ardent love been more beautifully or joyfully portrayed. Throughout the engravings voluptuous majas surrender themselves, lustful satyrs disport, and troupes of swooning acrobats perform in a circus of love. Picasso's irrepressible love of mischief is in evidence, too, in scenes of grandees cuckolded, harems invaded, and models seduced by lecherous painters. The last theme is the one most often repeated in the series, with the painters puckishly made to resemble Rembrandt, Raphael, and, of course, Picasso himself. (Picasso's life-long friend, Max Jacob, has said, "Picasso would much rather be remembered as a famous Don Juan than an artist.") All in all, Picasso's "347 Gravures" reflect such consummate craftsmanship, timeless subject matter, and sublime inspiration as to ensure their place as the greatest art treasure of the 20th Century.

If the artistic value of "347 Gravures" is considerable, its commercial value is perhaps even greater. The engravings, which have been printed in a limited edition of 50 sets, have fetched a price of approximately ten million dollars! This is more than has ever been paid for a work of art. Moreover, because of rumors that circulated throughout the art world concerning the superexcellence of the engravings, all 50 sets were subscribed to even before Picasso had finished making them!

Art critics who have seen the engravings have been positively apostolic in their praise. "These etchings reach the zenith of man's creative power. They rank with 'Hamlet,' Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, and Michelangelo's 'Last Judgment.' That is to say, they are classic," says Robert Glauber, of Skyline. LIFE: "Picasso's most trenchant exploration of sex and sexuality...As never before, the master seems bent on describing that idyllic state wherein the spirit and flesh are one." Herald-Tribune (Paris): "A major undertaking...amazing...extraordinary...staggering...incredible. Picasso's brilliance conquers all." TIME: "A virtuoso performance." Armand St. Clair, Revue de Paris: "Mesmerizing...If I had a choice among all the works Picasso has produced, I would take this one without hesitation." Franz Schulze, Chicago Daily News: "What a difference between Picasso's view of sex and the sniggering, guilt-ridden American pornography of today." Brian Fitzherbert, Nova: "Once again, Picasso demonstrates his astounding power of regeneration." Harold Joachim, Curator of Prints, Art Institute of Chicago: "Astonishing...A compelling testimony of Picasso's amazing energy and power of invention at the age of 87." Harold Haydon, Chicago Sun Times: "A great surprise package...Unparalleled for sustained interest and quality." Pierre Cabanne, Plexus: "The Last Will and Testament of the father of modern art."

It is with great pride, therefore, and humility, that the editors of Avant-Garde announce that their magazine has been chosen as the medium through which Picasso's monumental new work will be shown to the world. Picasso's Paris representative, the Societe de la Propriete Artistique, has appointed Avant-Garde as the sole proscenium for presentation of the quintessence of "347 Gravures." Mindful of the awesome responsibility that this singular honor imposes, the editors of Avant-Garde have spared neither expense nor effort to ensure that "347 Gravures" receives the premiere it deserves.

To begin with, an entire issue of Avant-Garde—64 pages—will be devoted exclusively to this one subject. The issue will carry no advertising. The world's foremost graphic designer, Herb Lubalin, has been retained to design this special issue. Costly antique paper stocks and flame-set colored inks will be used throughout. The issue will be printed by time-consuming duotone offset lithography and will be bound in 12 point Frankote boards, for permanent preservation. All in all, this lavishly produced issue of Avant-Garde will more closely resemble an expensive art folio than a magazine. The editors of Avant-Garde are determined that their presentation of the quintessence of Picasso's "347 Gravures" will be a landmark not only in the history of art, but in publishing, as well.

Copies of this special collector's edition of Avant-Garde will not be offered for sale to the general public. They are being given away—free—as a gift to all new subscribers to Avant-Garde.

In case you've never heard of Avant-Garde, let us explain that it is the most beautiful and daring magazine in America today. Although launched only two years ago, already it has earned a reputation as the outstanding showcase for the exhibition of creative talent. This reputation stems from Avant-Garde's editorial policy of complete and absolute freedom of creative expression. Avant-Garde steadfastly refuses to sacrifice creative genius on the altar of "morality" (the motto of the magazine is "Down with blueNoses, blue laws, and blue pencils"). Thus, the world's most gifted artists, writers, and photographers continually bring to Avant-Garde their most uninhibited and inspired works. Avant-Garde serves consistently as a haven for the painting that is "too daring," the novella that is "too outrageous," the poem that is "too satirical," the reportage that is "too graphic," the opinion that is "too candid," the photograph that is "too explicit." Avant-Garde is proud of its reputation as the wild game sanctuary of American arts and letters.

In addition to Picasso, contributors to Avant-Garde include such renowned figures as Norman Mailer, Andrew Wyeth, Kenneth Tynan, Dan Greenburg, Phil Ochs, Allen Ginsberg, Dr. Karl Menninger, Carl Fischer, Paul Krassner, Andy Warhol, Eliot Elisofon, Warren Boroson, Peter Max, Richard Avedon, John Updike, Roald Dahl, Art Kane, Charles Schulz, Bert Stern, Richard Lindner, Yevgeny Yevtushenko, S.J. Perelman, James Baldwin, Alan Watts, Salvador Dali, Terry Southern, Ashley Montagu, Isaac Bashevis Singer, William Burroughs, Paul Goodman, Kenneth Rexroth, Harper Lee, Jean Genet, and Marshall McLuhan.

Critics everywhere have spent themselves in a veritable orgy of praise over Avant-Garde. "Reality freaks, unite! Weird buffs, rejoice! Avant-Garde has arrived bearing mind-treasures of major proportions," says the San Francisco Chronicle. "Avant-Garde is guaranteed to shake the cobwebs out of the mind," says the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner. "An exotic literary menu...A wild new thing on the New York scene," says Encounter. "Avant-Garde is aimed at readers of superior intelligence and cultivated taste who are interested in the arts, politics, science and sex," says the New York Times. "[Its editor] deserves considerable credit for having risked printing this...," says LIFE. "The fantastic artwork alone, is worth the price of the magazine," says the News Project. "A field manual by the avant garde, for the avant-garde," says New York critic Robert Reisner. "Avant-Garde's articles on cinema, rock, and the New Scene are a stoned groove," says the Last Village Other. "It's the sawn-off shotgun of American critical writing," says the New Statesman. "Its graphics are stylish," says TIME. "Avant-Garde is MAGAZINE POWER!" says poet Harold Seldes. "Wow! What a ferris wheel! I was high for a week after reading it," says the pop critic of Cavalier.

Georgia, a full-grown mountain lion, plays happily with Ch. Ray-Mor's Fleet O'Way at the home of Mike and Audrey St. John Ortega.

Even the best of playmates have disagreements once in a while. Georgia exchanges snarls with Fleet O'Way, nation's top German shepherd dog.

CHAMPION DOG IS PAL OF MOUNTAIN LION

The Beauty and the Beast

By Eleanor Avery Price

Ortega gets his pets to take a rest together on the back porch.

—Staff Photos by CURT JOHNSON

SOME NOTED trainers of animals say that "domesticated" wild animals are strictly one-man beasts and love and respect only their trainer. Georgia, a full-grown puma, apparently hasn't heard this, for she gets along famously not only with her owners, Mike and Audrey St. John Ortega, but with other Ortega pets, including America's top-winning German shepherd dog, Ch. Ray-Mor's Fleet O'Way.

Georgia and Fleet frolic happily together in open fields when they get the chance, and on the large, roofed back porch of the Ortega home or in a big circular cage beyond the porch. They even nap together.

(Pumas, or mountain lions, have great strength and agility, but they are not vicious killers of men or dogs. They like to stalk anything that moves, usually out of curiosity.)

Visitors to the home of the Ortegas and their well-known Ray-Mor Kennels, both near Orange County Airport, are not at all startled to see pets other than a number of beautiful German shepherd dogs of all ages. In fact, there is scarcely a batted eye even over the sight of Georgia cavorting and wrestling with Fleet O'Way, one of the top German shepherd dogs of our time. (Fleet, who is black and red-gold, has, according to Mrs. Ortega, 99 Best of Breeds at dog shows at this writing and has been rated as foremost in the German Shepherd Dog Review.)

The Ortegas, including daughter Kim, age 6, don't operate a zoo, nor are they eccentric. There are good reasons for the presence of the puma, a number of falcons trained in falconry, a tawny eagle from India, several household cats including a Manx named Bear Cat, an Arabian stallion named Altair's Rascal, an Arabian mare named Saigon, the recently sold Angela (the tiger rippling through snow country in Enco's commercial) and Kimba, an ocelot. For a number of years the Ortegas have been providing animal actors and models for TV, motion pictures and advertisements. The Ortegas know that when animals are rented for theatrical purposes, the performers should not only act normal and frisky but also should be trustworthy. So they are home-trained.

Fleet himself occasionally has enacted the role of a wolf after his coat is sprayed to cover his gorgeous coloring. His problem is that he is not gunshy, and, when movie-makers want the "wolves" to scatter at the sound of a shot, Fleet is all for tracking down the source of the racket.

Whenever possible, the Ortegas get their exotics when they are babies, preferably not even weaned, for baby wild animals have no fear of humans who feed them. It might be added that Fleet from necessity had to be bottle-fed, which really makes him "one of the gang."

Although taken to fields to romp, the Ortega jungle cats of course can't be turned loose to roam in the house unwatched after they grow large. They are too curiously nosy, and they purr like outboard motors. Since the Ortegas have walls and walls of dog show trophies accumulated over the past 25 years, big cats could sniff and purr the attractive rooms into a shambles.

There was one time when the home was turned into great disarray. But it was due to, of all things, a tiny field mouse, of which Mrs. Ortega is terribly afraid! A door was accidentally left open a wee crack, and a mouse was kooky enough to bypass the assorted outdoor runs filled with animals and scamper indoors to hide among the trophies. After a frantic time of dismantling shelves, a visitor was inspired with the thought of a dime store trap baited with chewed chewing gum.

Mrs. Ortega is not a stereotype animal trainer. She is dainty, feminine and pretty. She's also a whiz in the kitchen making batches and batches of cottage cheese and preparing other special food for the entire animal family. Little Kim assists her like a pro. Everyone helps in the conditioning of the animals. Ortega works the falcons in falconry, and handles the business end of the whole interesting "shebang."

The Ortegas can tell you that bravery alone won't get you anyplace in keeping wild animals as

Hawaii's 'Drive-in' Volcanoes

Lava spewed from eruptions in late February blocks the popular Chain of Craters Road in Hawaii Volcanoes National Park. Two new eruptions in the last few weeks have sent lava flowing across the road.

By Bob Martin

EVERYONE IS familiar with drive-in movies, but what about drive-in volcanoes? Well, Hawaii has them, and they're more interesting than anything you can see on the screen. What is more, you don't have the feeling you've seen the same thing before.

If a volcano is erupting when you're in Hawaii Volcanoes National Park, you get to see a "spectacular" that makes that word seem inappropriate when applied to mere movies, but at any time the park provides a show worthy of an Oscar.

The entire chain of islands making up the state of Hawaii is of volcanic origin, but only the "Big Island" of Hawaii, the youngest and southernmost in the archipelago, has active volcanoes. This "baby" of the islands, already almost twice as large as all the others combined, is still growing.

Hawaii Volcanoes National Park, like the island of Hawaii on which it is found, is an area of great contrasts: lush jungles and barren wastelands; snowclad mountains, rain forests and deserts; violent volcanoes and peaceful vistas. And, incidentally, it has been a national park much longer than the 10 years that Hawaii has been a state — it was established as a national park Aug. 1, 1916, as the 11th in the U.S. system.

You can drive through miles of volcano country in the park — and you can get out and walk on top of lava "lakes" and through a lava tube, if you like. At times you'll wonder if you got dumped on an eerie set for a science-fiction movie about other planets.

My wife, 4-year-old son Larry and I visited the "drive-in volcanoes" last month. We didn't see any eruptions, but we did get close enough to touch the lava that had flowed across a park road just last February, and, since our return to California, we have read of two recent eruptions that spewed lava across the same road.

It is understandable if a park visitor feels as uneasy as a child at a Boris Karloff film. However, the danger is said to be slight. For one reason, the volcanoes usually give notice before erupting; scientists at the Hawaii Volcanic Observatory keep an eye on seismographs and, when they detect tremors that are a prelude to fireworks, they send out warnings. Also, unlike certain steep, symmetrical-cone volcanoes that produce explosive eruptions, the Hawaii ones are "shield" volcanoes shaped like inverted saucers, with broad, rounded domes, and their lava usually is liberated comparatively gently in an eruption. Many of the eruptions aren't destructive at all, being confined to calderas or craters, without a bit of lava overflowing.

Eruptions don't panic island residents or tourists; instead, many of them rush to the site like movie-goers hurrying to see "I Am Curious." Scores of others outside the island immediately start making plans to get there as fast as possible. And inter-island airlines set up special volcano flights to take passengers over the eruptions for breath-taking views.

Lava shoreline adds to picturesqueness of Naniloa Hotel on Hilo Bay in Hilo.

THE ISLAND of Hawaii consists of five volcanic mountains and its skyline is dominated by two of them: 13,796-foot Mauna Kea in the northern half of the island (31,784 feet from its base on the ocean floor) and 13,680-foot Mauna Loa in the southern half. Mauna Kea is dormant; it hasn't erupted since the ice age. Mauna Loa and its little neighbor, the 4,000-foot Kilauea, are the island's two active volcanoes and both are within the 344-square-mile national park.

Of the two, Kilauea has been by far the most active in recent years. Whereas Mauna Loa's last upheaval was in 1950, Kilauea has had 15 eruptions since 1960.

The Mauna Loa eruption in June of 1950 produced one of the most voluminous flows ever recorded — about 600 million cubic yards of lava from a 13-mile fissure, or enough lava to pave a four-lane highway four times around the earth. A 1926 Mauna Loa flow destroyed the village of Hoopuloa. In 1935 and 1942 lava from Mauna Loa swept almost to Hilo, the island's largest city and the place where we stayed during our three-day visit to the "Big Island." (Part of Hilo is built on a lava flow less than 100 years old.) A 1949 Mauna Loa eruption continued for almost five months.

Less than 10 years ago — in November 1959 — the most spectacular eruption in Hawaii's recorded history occurred when Kilauea Iki spewed molten lava 1,900 feet into the air — by far the greatest fountain of lava ever seen in Hawaii and probably in the world. Lava poured into Kilauea Iki crater to a depth of 414 feet; today you can walk on it, although the interior will be hot for many years.

In early 1960, less than a month after the Kilauea Iki fireworks ended, lava broke out near the village of Kapoho 28 miles away and buried that village, after it had been evacuated; 70 homes in the area were covered up. This flow entered the ocean and added 500 acres to the island.

Kilauea Crater, about 4,000 feet above sea level, is the center of the "drive-in" volcanoes park. On the rim of this crater is perched Volcano House, a small hotel operated privately under a franchise from the U.S. Department of the Interior. Its dining room, open to the public as well as to overnight guests, is especially popular; while dining — or having a drink in the cocktail lounge — you can have a grandstand seat overlooking the crater. The summit caldera is 2 miles across and contains Halemaumau, the volcano's main fire pit or lava vent, which in 1968 boiled constantly for 251 days.

Kilauea Iki Crater, scene of the spectacular 1959 eruption, is a couple of miles away and there are numerous smaller craters within the park. The summit of giant Mauna Loa is not part of the "drive-in," but if you have the energy — and two or three days — you can climb the Mauna Loa Trail to the top. There are cabins at 10,000 feet and at the 13,680-foot summit, though I don't claim to have seen them. There also are camper cabins in more easily reached parts of the park.

WE SPENT a morning and an afternoon visiting the volcanoes park and the Kalapana Black Sands Beach area, driving the 30 miles from Hilo to the park in a rented car. Park headquarters, which is near Volcano House (there's also a volcano museum nearby), is where the 11.1-mile Crater Rim Drive loop begins — and ends. This takes you around Kilauea Iki and Kilauea craters, and there are a number of places where you can park for scenic views or to take short walks in the volcano country. (There's a foot trail around the craters, if you happen to want more exercise.)

One of the most fascinating side trips is a walk through a fern jungle to Thurston Lava Tube and the walk through the tube itself. This fairly dark (there are some lights in it) and damp tunnel extends nearly 500 feet and is hardly more than 6 feet high in some places. My wife, Larry and I were the only persons in it at the time, and I must admit I felt relieved to reach the end, though I wouldn't have wanted to miss it. The tube was formed eons ago when the outer crust of a lava flow

Lee Hale brushed up the past and unashamedly presented it with new paint but solid inside. Rawls came up with two outstanding numbers, "My Buddy" and "St. Louis Blues." Gail Martin's "He Loves Me" held sentiment within tasteful bounds, and here teaming with Rawls on some oldies was a high point.

Top comedy by Tune, Rawls and Lynde was a military school bit. Lynde's answering-service routine sagged, but when Brooks led viewers into ventriloquist vignette without warning, it was great for yocks. Celebrities as children stunt was just okay, but speakeasy bit was on line.

Writers were Stan Daniels, Ray Jessel, George Bloom, Norm Liebmann, Ed Scharlach, Tom Tenowich, Gene Moss, Jim Thurman and Rich Eustis and Al Rogers.

First show in summer sub series had excellent audio by Bill Levitsk and video by Ed Huston. Tone.

60 MINUTES
(Tuesday, 10 p.m., CBS-TV)

CBS sent two of its top reporters to Africa to search the background and events of the war between Nigeria and Biafra. The useful and interesting "60 Minutes" Tuesday night told of their findings.

Harry Reasoner explained the Biafran situation, partly on the scene. Mike Wallace went to Nigeria. In addition to an unbiased report, the program's long segment was commendably unemotional.

It comprised a cram course on the three-year-old conflict in which an estimated million persons have lost their lives. Reasoner and Wallace sketched — quickly, clearly and effectively — the causes of the trouble. In 1967, the Ibo tribe seceded from young Nigeria and ever since has been fighting to remain independent.

The brutal facts of starvation in Biafra were not glossed over, but at the program's end, the viewer saw Nigeria's determination to pull Biafra back into its national fold and was aware of another important element in the conflict: Nigeria's and Biafra's background mineral wealth, notably oil. The former, Wallace said, received $300,000 last year in oil royalties.

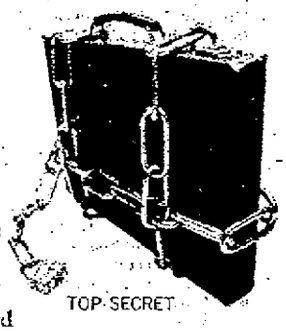

The statistics, the grim facts of life, were all included in the lively, informative report. There were descriptions of Biafra's rag-tag army and it showed recruits, fresh from the bush, learning to march to the strains of "Margie."

On the Nigerian side, Wallace reported that its army of 6,000 crack British-trained troops has expanded to 85,000-cared for by 11 doctors; that Britain and the Soviet Union are supplying fire power; that the United States is avoiding involvement.

The feature was followed by a short and charming segment showing a group of school children in a New York slum putting on a play, the musical "Fiddler on the Roof." A memorable bit was a 13-year-old Negro boy made up with beard and steel-rimmed spectacles to look like a Jewish elder living in a foreign ghetto.

Finally there was a report on the research and experimentation which has led to the development of a vaccine expected to be as effective a weapon against German measles.

hardened while the molten center part flowed on.

Another "must" side jaunt is the walk across Devastation Trail, a boardwalk extending a half-mile over lava cinders and amid the bleached skeletons of ohia trees, an out-of-this-world scene created by the 1959 Kilauea Iki fireworks. Here, too, the three of us felt very much to ourselves, as there was not another person on the boardwalk trail.

You also can take a mile-long walk across the steaming Kilauea Iki floor to check the thermometer in a hole drilled through the lava crust to fluid magma. And you can peer into Halemaumau's fire pit from an observation platform; visit the nation's only permanent volcano observatory; and marvel at billows of steam and sulfurous vapors rising near you through deep fissures or vents.

If you wish, you can turn off Crater Rim Drive to Mauna Loa Strip Road and go to Bird Park, 100 acres of lush vegetation, and then drive from Bird Park up 10 miles of unpaved road to an overlook at 6,662 feet on Mauna Loa, where an 18-mile hiking trail starts to Mokuaweoweo fire pit atop the mountain.

Branching south off Crater Rim Drive is the Chain of Craters Road, which is the route we would have taken to Kalapana had the road not been blocked by last February's lava flow from Alae Crater of Kilauea volcano. We did drive as far as permitted, to a roadblock about a mile from the lava flow, then walked the rest of the distance to the flow, feeling like explorers. Two eruptions since we left Hawaii have sent more lava across the same road.

Kaimu (Kalapana) Black Sands Beach is one of the island of Hawaii's most famous spots, and it was well worth going out of our way to see. The black beach was formed as lava flowing into the ocean exploded into bits and then was ground finer by wave action. Rows of coconut palms line the beach, and coconuts are often to be found on the beach.

Akaka Falls State Park, featuring a falls that plunges 420 feet in a sheer drop over a volcanic cliff, a picturesque stream, a second falls and a hilly trail through jungle country, is another major attraction in the Hilo area. It is 16 miles north of the city through sugar cane country.

HILO ITSELF is a city of considerable interest, with an annual rainfall of about 150 inches and a variety of large trees, plants and flowers. We had flown to Hilo from Honolulu on a 60-minute trip that included a 20-minute stopover at the airport in Kahului on the island of Maui. The flight affords good views of several of the Hawaiian islands and costs only $5 when arranged with your round trip from California (we returned to the mainland from Hilo, rather than Honolulu).

It is quickly apparent that Hilo is quite different from Honolulu. It is a quiet seashore town of about 25,000, and the pace is slower. (There are only about 65,000 residents on the island of Hawaii, compared with about 600,000 on the much smaller Oahu.) Downtown Hilo doesn't look like a tourist town at all; most of the city's hotels are bunched on a picturesque peninsula jutting into Hilo Bay, and they are much smaller than the major ones in Honolulu. We stayed at the largest, the new Naniloa Hotel on the tip of the peninsula, which has 207 air-conditioned rooms in a 12-story and a six-story wing. From our eighth-floor room we could look across the bay toward the Pacific or inland to see the snow-capped Mauna Kea and the Mauna Loa.

In Hilo, as in Honolulu, there is considerable evidence that an ever-increasing flow of tourists is expected. Under construction at the Naniloa is another wing of 184 rooms, while the Hilo Bay Hotel, next door, also is expanding, and nearby a Travelodge Hotel is nearing completion.

Hawaii is known not only as the "Big Island" but also as the "Orchid Island," and for good reason. You can visit several orchid nurseries and tropical gardens in the city of Hilo. Orchids were even left on our bed pillows each night by the hotel's night maids.

With such treatment as that, and with so much to see in and near Hilo, our three days on the "Big Island" passed much too quickly. I've been to some double-feature movies that seemed to last longer.

Investment in Happiness

By Ellen Krec

OVERBUILDING is always a serious consideration, but to Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Moreno adding two bedrooms, bath and family room in a two-story growth not only increased the liveability but also the value.

With the decision the Morenos re-established their preference for the Lakewood area where Carl, 6, attends school. The section is comfortably established with well-cared-for homes and fine neighbors.

Another consideration was the fully paid mortgage which allowed the Morenos to consider the remodeling a comfortable financial burden.

"We looked at the new homes before we decided," says Mrs. Moreno, "but the payments seemed so high. Then, too, we thought it would be fun to do something with our own home instead of working with someone else's."

"I love my home," says Mrs. Moreno, "and most of my activities are geared toward homemaking with the exception of church work."

Moreno finds the piano in the den just right for an at-home hobby when he isn't gardening.

The family tried to live in the dwelling while the remodeling was in process, but discovered it was too dirty and inconvenient, so they moved in with friends for the three months it took to complete.

"We did everything together," Mrs. Moreno says. "To date each room is complete with the exception of the accessories, which take time."

Among the more serious decisions was the carpeting and the final selection in rose, pink and lime Victorian bouquet was installed throughout the home and "we never have been sorry."

Originally the 20-year-old home contained two bedrooms and one bath. The expansion provided a wide-enough-for-a-stereo cabinet foyer complete with a trio of ornamental iron arches dividing the living room.

A formal living room was remodeled, incorporating a small dining alcove; a balcony kitchen above the spacious family and dining room includes an appliance enclosure at one wall.

The many changes in the living room include an arched brick fireplace with slender obscure glass panels at each side. The former front porch also was incorporated into the living room and it ends with a wide bay window now draped with lime velvet and creamy antique satin.

Mrs. Robert L. Moreno visits with Carl in living room.

French and Italian classic furnishings include a pair of violet velvet wing chairs and a semi-circular brocade sofa curved at the wall and entrance. The graceful arches expose two chandeliers at the entry and a mirrored guest closet.

"All of the living room walls were cut up," according to Mrs. Moreno, "making it difficult for furniture placement. We changed the kitchen entrance from the center of the wall to the end, and that gave us a large enough expanse for the sofa."

"We had to make a fast decision on the window seat," Mrs. Moreno admits. "So far we haven't decided how to use it, but it may be just the place for plants."

The functional kitchen combines stained walnut cabinets and white tile, but unusual decorator touches include a band of red stained glass in the luminous ceiling and an arched cook center that opens to the family room.

The so-small bath downstairs took an L-turn in the remodeling and now boasts an extended marble counter in place of the diminutive sink.

The two downstairs bedrooms have been carpeted and repainted to serve, one as a guest room, where Mrs. Moreno also keeps her at-home work, and the other as a growing playroom for Carl.

The playroom also includes a blue and green plaid capped bed, shelved units around the window and "Sugar," the Persian cat, makes her home in the sometimes "disaster room."

The family room supplies dining space near the patio exit, and former living room furniture was shifted to add a colorful touch in blue and green cut velvet sofa and wedge chairs.

The pecky cedar stair wall shields a full-length under-stair closet and the electric water heater was

Family room combines dining space with entertainment.

Viet Critic Fulbright Airs Views

Senator William Fulbright, persistent critic of the Vietnam policies of Presidents Johnson and Nixon, will be interviewed on ABC News' "Issues and Answers" at 1:30 p.m., Sunday, on Channel 7.

The Democrat from Arkansas, who chairs the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, will be interviewed by ABC News State Department correspondent John Scali and Capitol Hill correspondent Bob Clark.

Senator Fulbright has expressed sharp disagreement with President Nixon on Vietnam, on the ABM system and, most recently, on the President's attitude toward the critics of the military.

In a speech at the United States Air Force Academy, the President told the graduating class, "You are under attack from those who question the need for a strong national defense and who, indeed, see a danger in the power of the defenders." Mr. Nixon also accused opponents of the military of exhibiting a "new isolationism."

In a rebuttal, the senator called the President's address "a form of demagoguery that was very fashionable in the time of his own colleague, Joe McCarthy."

THE SOUTHLAND AT HOME

Carl finds parents' bedroom place to inspect shoe.

encased in walnut to blend with the kitchen cabinets.

Open-weave linen draperies were hung on wrought iron poles.

Floral carpeting covers the iron-railed stairs leading to the second story where Carl enjoys a bright bedroom and deck.

Blond oak furniture increases the spacious quality of Carl's sleeping room where a fixed desk forms schoolwork space.

Agile Carl likes baseball, bicycles and bees with some time for ice skating.

The railed balcony is off limits for a few years because the typical little boy found the jump a delight. When his mother discovered he had a trial jump from a neighbor's garage then "forgot" and jumped from the deck, the "off limits" sign went up.

Carl appreciates the newly renovated home as much as his parents and likes nothing better than taking his friends on a tour, including the storage.

Great - great - grandfather's portrait in a military uniform accents the compact hall leading to the master bedroom.

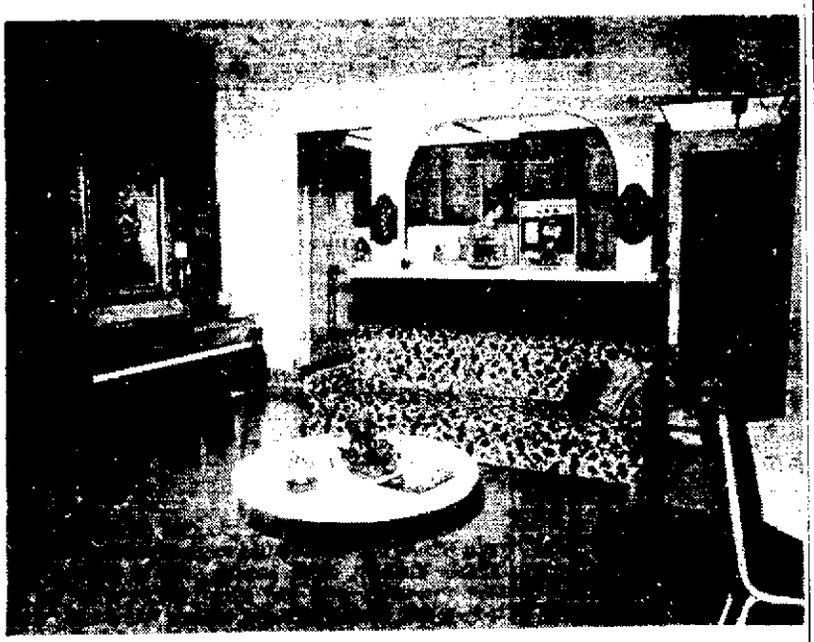

Antique avocado headboard and night chests are contrasted by pink and white in the master bedroom where Carl's baby photograph is the sentimental touch.

A mirrored dressing room leads to the two-way bath where a generous shower and dual pullman are enclosed with antique white cabinets and accessorized with bright red.

A tri-level roof tops the white - stucco - chocolate - trim home. A raised red brick planter lines the bay window with azaleas.

The wedge rose garden borders the walk between the garage and the entrance where deeply carved double doors set the decorative pace.

The $20,000 plus remodeling cost and the more than $10,000 invested in home furnishings have enhanced the small tract home dramatically but, first and foremost, the Morenos insist it is home for the family.

Alcove cook center provides see-through space.

Peach Dessert

By Mildred Flanary

Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

Really peachy.

YOUR FAMILY WILL love this one — fresh ripe peaches in a flaky pie shell, topped with a rich crumb mixture and baked until golden brown. Serve while still slightly warm with fluffy whipped cream and a dash of nutmeg, or with a scoop of vanilla ice cream. Spiced tea, served hot or iced, makes a nice accompaniment with an alternate choice of milk for the young set.

FRESH PEACH PIE

Crumb Topping.
½ cup soft butter or margarine
1 cup cereal crumbs or crushed cornflakes
1 tsp. cinnamon
¼ tsp. nutmeg
½ cup brown sugar
1 pastry stick
4 cups sliced fresh California Peaches (4-6 medium)
½ cup sugar (¼ cup brown sugar may be used if desired)
¼ tsp. salt
1 tbsp. lemon juice
3 tbsp. tapioca

Prepare unbaked 9-inch pie shell according to package directions, with ruffled edge. Blend ingredients for Crumb Topping. Start heating oven to 425 deg. F. In the meantime, peel and slice peaches; combine with sugar, salt, lemon juice and tapioca. Turn into unbaked pie shell and sprinkle with Crumb Topping. Cover with a loose sheet of aluminum foil and bake at 425 deg. F. for 20 minutes. Remove foil; bake 20 minutes longer, or until fruit is tender and topping is golden brown.

STAR-STUDDED SHOWCASE

Mama Cass Does Her Thing

Cass Elliot, who gained fame as a member of a crowd — the Mamas and the Papas group — likes the idea of being on her own. And she likes television even more.

"Records can be a bad trip," she explained while taping her ABC-TV special. "The audience can play your mistakes over and over. In a television special, they see you once and you work hard to make sure they're seeing you at your best.

"Of course, live audiences are the greatest of all," she continued. "You have the audience right there communicating with you."

"The Mama Cass Television Program," which will air at 9 p.m., on Channel 7, is the longest time she has worked in front of a TV camera. "When the Mamas and the Papas were on TV," she recalled, "I'd just come out, do my thing and that would be it.

"This," she added, "is hard work." The wilt was real, but she is pleased with her special. "It's low key. It would be pretentious for me to do a show that wasn't."

Her guests June 26 include Buddy Hackett and Martin Landau and Barbara Bain.

That's not really performing alone, but for someone used to working with a group, it's truly solo. And Mama Cass hedged even more — to the extent of having several of her folk-singing friends with her — Mary Travers, Joni Mitchell and John Sebastian.

"I'm grateful to them for appearing. After nine years as a member of a mob scene, I don't want to be too alone."

THE NOT HOT HOT DOG AND BEYOND

Given one package of Hormel Wieners, you can serve them as is, or jazz them up.

Hot Dog Canoes

10 slices bread, crust removed, buttered
5 slices Cheddar cheese
2 tbsp. prepared mustard

For each canoe: Top bread with half slice of cheese, spread with mustard, and center with a hot dog. Bring up 2 opposite corners of bread to almost meet atop hot dog. Fasten with toothpicks. Bake in 350° oven 8 to 10 minutes. Makes 10 canoes.

Teen Wiener Toast

6 slices day-old bread
2 beaten eggs
½ cup milk
4 to 6 Hormel Wieners

Mix eggs and milk. Dip each slice of bread into egg mixture. Brown in both sides in bacon fat. Split wieners almost in half lengthwise. Brown in same skillet with French toast. Serve atop toast with orange marmalade or honey. 2 to 3 servings.

THE SUNDAY BACON DAY AND NIGHT

Bacon as irresistible as Hormel's Black Label deserves some special treatment.

Bacon Roll-ups

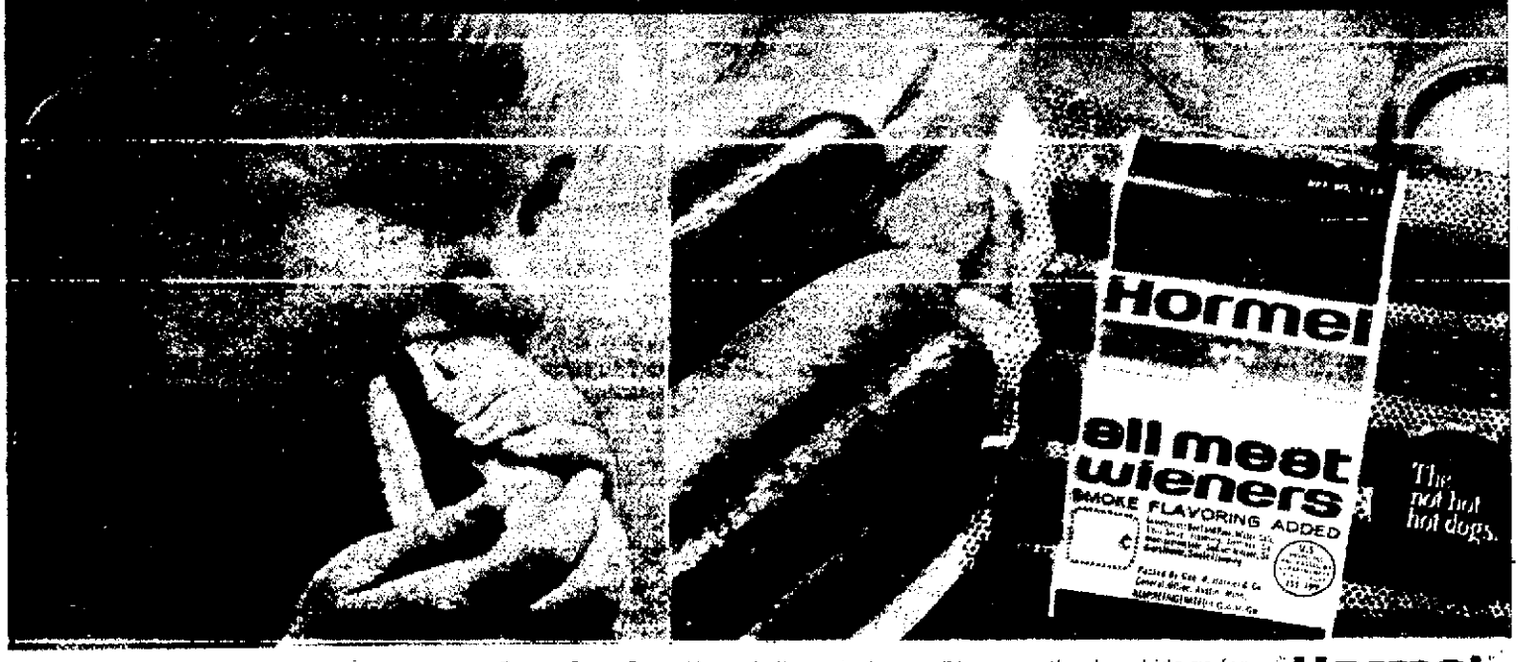

Wrap ½ slice of Hormel Black Label Bacon around your choice or assortment of: stuffed green olives, pickles, onions, pineapple chunks, cubes of raw liver. Fasten with toothpick. Arrange on rack; bake in 350° oven 25 minutes or until bacon is crisp.

Potato Egg Scramble

12 slices Hormel Black Label Bacon
1 med. onion, chopped
4-5 cooked potatoes, diced
6 eggs
Salt and pepper

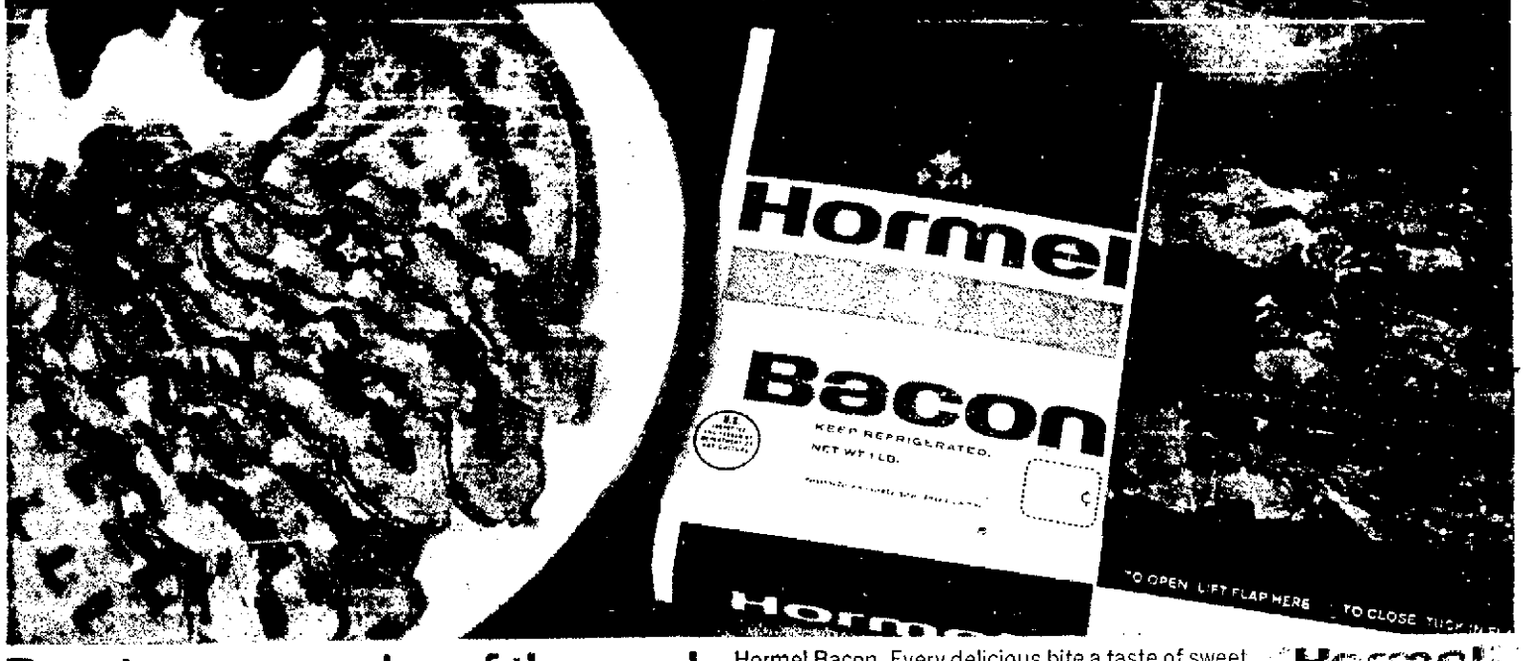

Cut up Black Label Bacon, fry until crisp. Pour off ¼ of fat, add potatoes and onion. Fry until light brown. Add eggs, scramble. Salt and pepper to taste. Makes 4 servings.

The not hot hot dogs.

They're not too spicy for kids. Hormel all-meat wieners. These are the dogs kids go for. Just a pinch of spice in every pound of good, red meat. Hormel

The Sunday Bacon.

Best bacon any day of the week. Hormel Bacon. Every delicious bite a taste of sweet, wood-smoked flavor. It's bacon at its Sunday best. Hormel

Herculon Effort

Interior BOUTIQUE

By Ellen Krec

Bold and beautiful floral print emphasizes luxurious as well as practical qualities of Herculon.

WHAT ARE LITTLE dreams made of? For that matter, let's think big . . . what are big dreams made of?

So relative is the answer that I shall take one portion of mankind, the housewife, and attempt a collection of dreams I share with the average overworked, generally underpaid and hopefully much loved wife and mother.

Take for granted blessings such as your 17-year-old son walking away from an accident, scholarships to a university you otherwise couldn't afford, salary increases, husband's promotion and a new car.

Little blessings are welcome, too, such as not having to ask your husband to paint a room, mow the lawn or take you out to dinner.

And then comes the really unexpected, such as discovering your new wallpaper really washes, and your carpeting is all it was advertised to be, so your 12-hour workday isn't shortened by much, but at least it is satisfying.

Thanks to a new fabric, you might check off a few more minutes of your time spent warning the children to "get those shoes off the sofa," chasing the dog from his comfortable spot on the corner of the newly upholstered chair and hoping your friends haven't polished their black shoes before they visit you — and your new sofa.

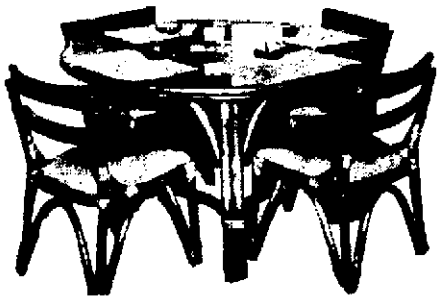

Herculon is the latest dream home furnishing fiber. It was developed originally for those easy care carpets, but the producers of the polypropylene olefin fiber were in an expansive move and have extended it (or extruded it) to include socks, diapers and, finally, upholstery fabric.

What a joy to be able to wipe up spilled drinks, sponge off marks with detergent suds and discover the same fabric is mildew-proof (great for boats and seaside living) and insect-proof.

The bold black and white hound's tooth fabric is woven to fit the most avant furniture while a gentle Victorian bouquet

PAN AND FAN MAIL

ters and Glen Campbell shows went off, I'd enjoy watching a few musicals, operas, soccer or any program not interrupted so many times with so many commercials that you forget what it was you were watching.

Please continue to tell it like it is and the public — including myself — might get back the investment they've made in their TV sets. After all, mine is sitting dark and I'd much rather pay for something I want to see.

Jeff Wilkins,
Long Beach

(The theater owners don't figure you deserve the opportunity to pay for the kind of TV you want, Jeff. Besides, you might stay away from the movies if you could get them first run at home less expensively than at the neighborhood theater.)

Would it be possible to get a copy of "The Pledge of Allegiance" given by Red Skelton on June 14?

It is wonderful. This would be great to pass down to my nine grandchildren.

Mrs. L. Hunter,
Long Beach

(Write CBS Television, Television City, Fairfax and Beverly, Hollywood, Calif. They'll tell you how to get a copy.)

There is one category in which the Emmy Awards continually blunder and it is the best musical composition.

This year was no exception. The background music for most TV series is generally vile but when a good job of scoring does come along, the Emmy people shun it.

Morton Stevens' superb music for "Hawaii Five-O" shouldn't have been placed in competition with John Williams' "Heidi" score. Williams wrote only the score for "Heidi" while Stevens has written consistently fine music for "Hawaii Five-O" all season.

I think nominating both works is fine, but when the award is handed out, I think the composer who writes continually excellent music should get the nod.

Surely no one would have nominated Paul Schofield against Don Adams for best actor!

Steve Harris,
Anaheim.

Interior BOUTIQUE

would not suffer at all under the cozy roof of the provincial lovers.

Colorful printed fabrics have been designed carefully to blend with each home furnishings fashion in a unique printing process that penetrates the thickness of the fabric from front to back rather than a topside design.

Since we live in California, we can be adequately assured of the colorfast qualities. The tests were made in the much hotter Florida sun and, if they were successful, surely our balmy weather will prove ideal.

Good to know that people at Hercules Incorporated are interested in the harried housewife!

Other uses for this fabric can stretch as far as your imagination or your budget.

Consider a wallcovering that really is washable, colorfast and beautiful as well.

Draperies might be ideal in Herculon . . . no lining necessary, since it doesn't fade and needs only an occasional good brushing and infrequent cleaning.

Your outdoor furniture could be topped admirably with a matching or compatible indoor fabric . . . it behaves the same in doors or outdoors.

If your smoking friends are incautious, the only damage is melting but your furniture won't go up in flames!

While I paused to look at and feel the array of fashion fabrics, I thought of other uses that might increase our visual pleasure.

I am afraid I had a bit of a tendency to pontificate about the wider range of uses, but the one nearest to my color-loving heart is automobiles.

Generally speaking, car owners are divided into hedonists and utilitarians. The hedonists lean toward the fully equipped, lavish, long and luxurious, chrome and leather transportation. The utilitarians thrive on stick shifts, compacts and no nonsense.

Both accomplish the same thing, but the sensual pleasures are either stimulated or ignored.

I fall somewhere in between since I like functional cars but I wish I had air conditioning!

But why can't we have something more than mortuary upholstery? Does it always have to be gray or beige? Every year the auto designers tell us they have a new interior designer, but in all the years I have been driving the only change I have noted has been from leather to vinyl.

Is there any reason we can't have print, check or plaid seats, especially since we have fabrics such as Herculon to depend on? I mean seatcovers that come with the car, not custom made to add to the expense. Those seats are in and out in an instant, so why can't they be changed quickly if you wish to be cheered by a bower of flowers?

Can't you just visualize the freeway on a gloomy day with each car distinctively cheered from the inside as masses of flowers or pert checks drive by, giving you something to see instead of grim gray or boring beige?

Nabokov's Greatest

BY VIRTUALLY complete critical agreement, Vladimir Nabokov is the greatest of living prose writers in the English language.

As was the case with another such "finest" writer, Joseph Conrad, who was, of course born a Pole, English is not Nabokov's natural tongue. He was, in fact, 40 when his first work written in English was published. Had he not chosen to change to the new language, Nabokov would certainly have become the greatest living writer in Russian—a writer not without honor save in his own country, for his works are forbidden in the Soviet Union.

As an exile who wrote, in Europe, under the name of Sirin, he was the author of such novels in Russian as "The Defense," "King, Queen, Knave," "Invitation to a Beheading," and "The Gift" (all of which have been translated into English), gems of the purest ray. (In a typical Nabokovian switch, he has translated "Lolita" from the English in which it was written, into Russian).

Nabokov's newest novel "Ada" has been published by McGraw-Hill ($7.95). Like all Nabokov's works, it is not a book you gallop through. It is (and this has become a Nabokov hallmark), a many-layered masterpiece.

It may not be as "simple" as "The Valley of the Dolls" (may we survive the curse we deserve for mentioning the two in the same breath) or even "Portnoy's Complaint," but neither does it need exegetical keys to unlock its secrets, like "Ulysses." It is not the inextricable maze of puzzles some critics have been wont to make of a Nabokov book, as Mary McCarthy, for instance, did with "Pale Fire." Critics are sometimes inclined to take all the joy out of Nabokov by seeing meanings which are not there, and which Nabokov himself keeps protesting are not there.

"Ada" proves once again that Nabokov, above all, knows exceedingly well how to tell an entertaining tale.

In "Ada" he has created a world of his own, Antiterra, in which he has rewritten both geography and history, and where, in uninhibited style (which will please "Lolita" readers) the story of a long, happy love affair unfolds. Ada's protagonist, Van Veen, puts it thus:

" Ada" is a simple and delightful chronicle whose principal part is staged in dream-bright America. On the fabulous country estate of his art-collecting uncle . . . an ardent childhood romance develops between Van and pretty Ada, a truly unusual gamin . . . That the relationship is not simply dangerous cousinage, but possesses an aspect prohibited by law, is hinted in the very first pages."

In "Ada," America (for history had taken this strange turn) is a land of Russian-Americans, who speak an Anglo-Russian-French. Counterposed to it is Terra, as bad a place as Antiterra is good.

The intricacies of plot (far from impossible to understand), the Nabokov wit and puns, the imaginative genius, make "Ada" the author's finest work.

And Try Not to Miss . . .

TIME AND THE RIVER FLOWING: Grand Canyon. By Francois Ledet. Edited By David Brower. Sierra Club-Ballantine Books, $3.95.

A paperbound, only slightly abridged edition of the lavish Sierra Club book singing the glories and splendors of the Grand Canyon. There are 95 full color photographs.

THE CANNIBALS. By Keefe Braselle. Bartholomew House, $6.95.

A savagely outspoken novel about some of television's big shots, in particular Jonathan J. Bingham, president of BCA Television Network who played with the lives of people as he did with Nielsen ratings, and made it pay handsomely, and also about his arranger and paramour, Joey Bertell.

Israel's Armor

THE TANKS OF TAMMUZ. By Shabtai Teveth. Viking. $6.95.

Victory by Israel in the Six Day War on the ground can be credited to the Armored Corps which smashed Egyptian defenses on the Sinai peninsula, swept to the Suez Canal and won the battle for the Syrian heights and the west bank of the Jordan.

This book is a dramatic eyewitness account of this tank warfare from the earliest border incidents to one of the biggest armored battles of all times.

It is the story of a classic battle, of men and their machines, of citizen soldiers forced by circumstances to depart from the traditions of their own army.

In the words of Gen. Moshe Dayan, " The Tanks of Tammuz" is "an outstanding book, the best I have read about our wars . . . written with love, pain and profound insight."

The author is considered one of the most distinguished journalists in Israel. He served with the armored corps during the 1967 war. — Bill Shelton.

Race and Games

THE BLACK ATHLETE. By Jack Olsen. Time-Life Books. $4.95.

Life for the average black professional athlete is much better than that of his counterpart elsewhere in the society.

But is it true — as the myth has it — that the field of sports has been good to the Negro?

Black athletes would say no, according to what Olsen learned when he queried them.

They are dissatisfied, disgruntled and disillusioned.

They say they are dehumanized, exploited and discarded.

Professional sports offer them opportunity for financial gain, they admit, but not equality of treatment.

One example: in pro football, quarterback is a position banned to Negroes.

Another: the Negro college-scholarship athlete, while lionized on the field, confronts ostracism on campus.

Olsen sees the "shameful story" of the black athlete as a microcosm of the total racial problem in the U.S.

His is a view that will be challenged — but the facts are there to support him.—Jim Goodrich.

Seawoman

WOMAN ABOARD. By Janet Stevenson. Crown. $5.95.

This is another of those sagas of the sea, the story of a woman and three men who sailed a small yacht 10,000 miles to the South Seas and back.

The voyage brought them harrowing challenges and the special comradeship of adventure—not limited to the sea itself.

As the Aikane set out from California, (Playa del Rey Harbor) the narrator demanded to be treated as a full member of the crew, with no special treatment because of her sex. She hauled sail, stood watch and shared all the suspenses of the journey.—Bill Shelton.

TV—It Helps Few to Movie Stardom

By RICK DU BROW
United Press International

It used to be that performers who appeared regularly in television series were considered very poor bets for movie stardom.

The reasoning was that the public wouldn't pay at the boxoffice to see actors they could get for free every week in their homes.

Although there is still a basic truth in this view, more and more movie stars are emerging from television. And the film industry, which long has wondered where newcomers would get training, now realizes video is a valuable place.

In addition, it gives performers the much-sought-after pre-sold name value that boxoffice-conscious producers seek.

Probably the most sensible appraisal is that a performer who has made a name on television can indeed become a movie star — but generally has the best chance at film fame if he then sticks strictly to motion pictures and gets out of video except for guest shots.

There are a few exceptions such as Dean Martin and Fred MacMurray, who have it both ways.

But Steve McQueen would surely not be as big a movie star today if he had remained in the CBS-TV western series that first brought him to public attention, "Wanted — Dead or Alive," in which he played a bounty hunter.

And Lee Marvin would certainly have jeopardized his skyrocketing movie career if he had gone back to a television series like the one that gave him great exposure, "M Squad," in which he played a tough Chicago detective.

And James Garner would absolutely have made a disastrous decision, in terms of his motion picture success, if he had returned to television regularly, a place he had established himself in ABC-TV's comedy-western series, "Maverick."

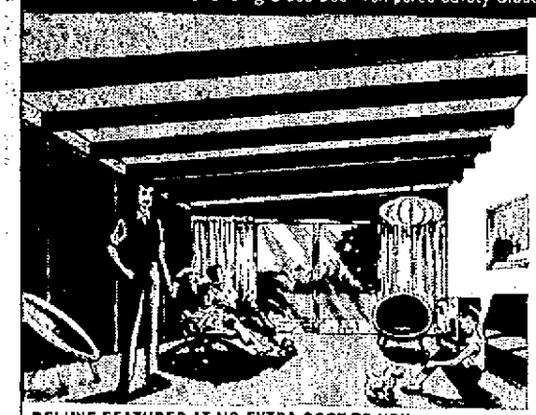

As you can see, some pretty big names indeed have come out of the home medium weekly series.

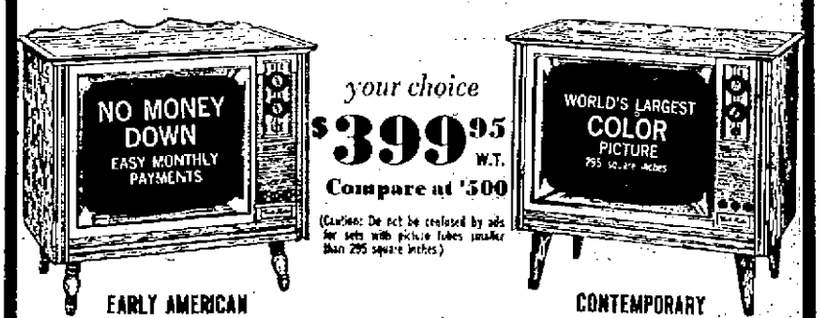

There was, of course, Mia Farrow in ABC-TV's "Peyton Place," and Glenn Campbell, who has his own series now on CBS-TV, is definitely expected to emerge as a major film name. Marlo Thomas, of ABC-TV's "That Girl," also has a movie in the works.

Entertainers, as opposed to pure actors, seem to have the best results in working in both media — perhaps because they can be themselves on the home tube in contrast to the parts they play in movies. The pure actor, in other words, is always doing a role, and offers audiences no real change.

Dean Martin is typical of the two-way entertainer, and so is Jackie Gleason, and so is Lucille Ball. Barbra Streisand, it should be noted, is basically an entertainer — as she proved in her television specials — who then went on to an Academy Award in her first movie, "Funny Girl."

The Gift of a Bookmark

By Ruth C. Ikerman

ONE OF THE easiest souvenirs to make for a group meeting is the simple bookmark which is useful in any home. Sometimes if a child has his very own bookmark it will encourage an interest in reading. Making bookmarks can be an interesting pastime for old or young, as this craft results in attractive gifts.

A good place to start is with a yard of ribbon which can be cut into six bookmarks of six inches each—or they can be made smaller if you choose. Using hobby paints and a small water color brush, apply gold shading to the edges, or tiny dots in modernistic geometric patterns, or write the name of the recipient.

If painting is not to your liking, fall back on paste and cut-out pictures, which may be flowers from a seed catalogue, or a favorite snapshot from a summer vacation. Pictures of children delight grandparents when these snapshots are cut into circles and pasted on a length of ribbon.

Personalizing the ribbon with initials cut from construction paper is another way of making this a very special gift. This is true in organizations as well as families. Apply a large English block letter, one for each last name in the membership list.

With curiosity aroused, new members will ask, "What does the R stand for?" and conversation is started at meetings. Have someone stationed at the table near the door to make such bookmarks for new arrivals at a general meeting.

If these are not used every time, try the special favor of a bookmark at seasonal meetings by pasting a flower or fruit seal onto a green or brown ribbon to suggest the decoration colors.

A plastic flower with a long stem makes a lovely bookmark for a woman's study course. Let the flower stand out at the top of the page as the book rests on the living room table, and it is a helpful reminder to pick up the book and study the next chapter.

Felt emblems for bookmarks make gifts of lasting pleasure. Just attach the cut out emblem, either by a few sewing stitches or by securing it with paste, to a crocheted length of green yarn made in chain stitch the desired length.

Such emblems can be the familiar red apple or golden orange of the Southern California orchards. Cut the colored felt into circles so that two can be pasted together with the crocheted link in between. Put such emblems at each end of the crocheted marker. When they are firmly in place, add tiny green leaves cut from felt, and a white circle of felt to represent the blossom.

Flower patterns may be substituted for the fruit, and these are not difficult to make if they are cut from heavy outing flannel with flower designs imprinted. Or crochet a circle and add a scalloped edging finish with contrasting color yarn to the green which forms the long marking part of the bookmark, slim enough to insert between pages.

Golden or silver metallic thread can be used to crochet effective bookmarks for religious reading. Those experienced in such handwork sometimes fashion these in the shape of a cross or a crown, but even children can learn to make a straight slim line of the gold or silver. Crocheted in single or double stitch, a simple line marker makes a dignified and reverent gift for devotional books.

Nobody ever has too many bookmarks, and a nice gift from children is an assortment of such markers. Take old gift wrapping paper and cut it in proper lengths. If it is too thin to be used as it is, paste the design on a piece of cardboard from the back of a writing tablet, or cut from a packing box.

Remember the hobby interests of the one who is to receive the gift, and find items which remind of this sport in looking through old catalogues for golf sticks, footballs or baseballs. Bookmarks can be masculine in theme and thus appeal to uncles and cousins as well as father and grandfather.

Cut pictures of kittens and puppies from old coloring books and put on ribbon or cloth strips for markers for children's books. The insertion of such a gift by a grandmother may be the extra push a child needs to spend more time in reading his very own books.

Essentially the bookmark souvenir shows that the one who made it cares for the individual or the group, and wishes continued happiness in reading about the organization or following personal interests.

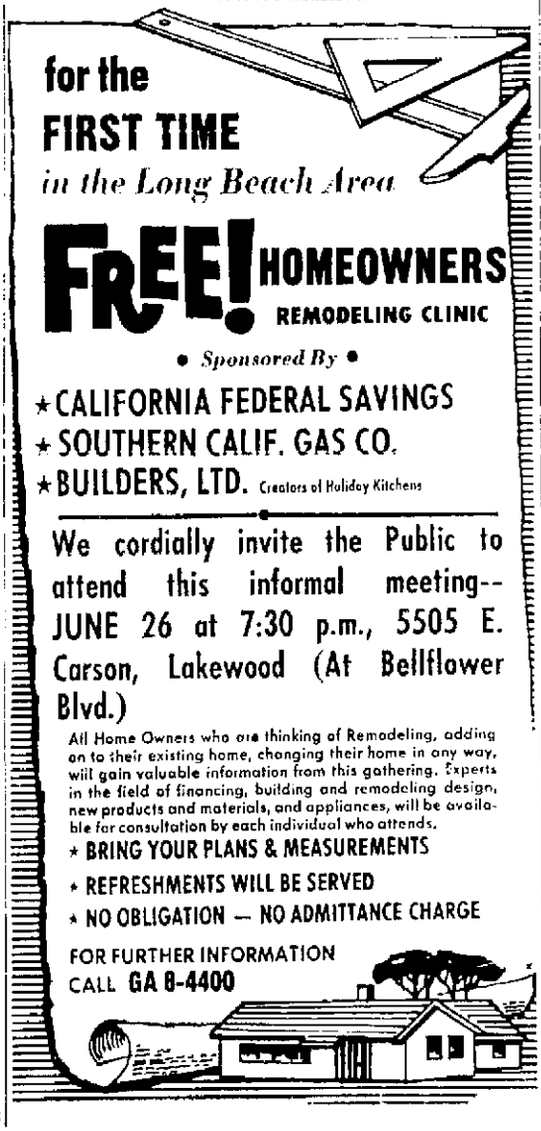

'Golden Words for Every Day'

RUTH C. IKERMAN, a frequent contributor to Southland Magazine, is the author of a book published this month by Abingdon Press entitled "Golden Words for Every Day."

Mrs. Ikerman, a Redlands homemaker and author, has written extensively on religious subjects. In her latest book she presents brief devotions, one for each day of the year, using verses of Scripture, short devotional messages and prayers to help readers meet the challenges of day-to-day living.

The book is priced at $2.95.

Festival of Gardens, Lights and Fountains Under Way

THE SIXTH biennial Festival of Gardens, Lights and Fountains opened Saturday and will continue through Aug. 10 at Descanso Gardens in La Canada. The exhibit features the work of landscape architects and designers, plus new creations of fountain and lighting manufacturers in a 10-acre display of beauty.

Sponsored by the Descanso Gardens Guild, Inc., the festival presents 25 individually created garden areas planned to demonstrate new approaches in garden designs that combine practical applications with imaginative use of lighting and water displays.

The festival borrows its theme from California's bicentennial anniversary and features early California gardens that stress the Spanish influence in patios, adobe walls and ornate tile pools and fountains.

Located at 1418 Descanso Drive in La Canada, the Gardens will remain open during the festival from 8 a.m. until 10 p.m. The Oriental Tea House, a favorite of garden visitors and a gift of the Descanso Gardens Guild, is open from 11 a.m. until 10 p.m. There is no admission charge to the festival, and ample room for visitor parking.

plain OMOHUNDRO. — R.T., Seal Beach.

OMOHUNDRO, French and Spanish, is a dialect form of the medieval French surname Moindrot, meaning "young, small man."

MISS RULE: Have you the source of DE BLOIS? — J.D., Lakewood.

DE BLOIS, French, represents a forefather from the old French province of Blois, a place name meaning "land cleared of trees." The Blois shield is red, crossed by two silver stripes with crenelated edges like gear teeth.

MISS RULE: Please identify YOUMANS. — G.Y., Long Beach.

YOUMANS, English, represents "son of the yeoman," describing a knight's attendant. The Youmans shield is black, emblazoned with a silver chevron between three spear heads.

MISS RULE: Would like data on HODSON. — D.H., Long Beach.

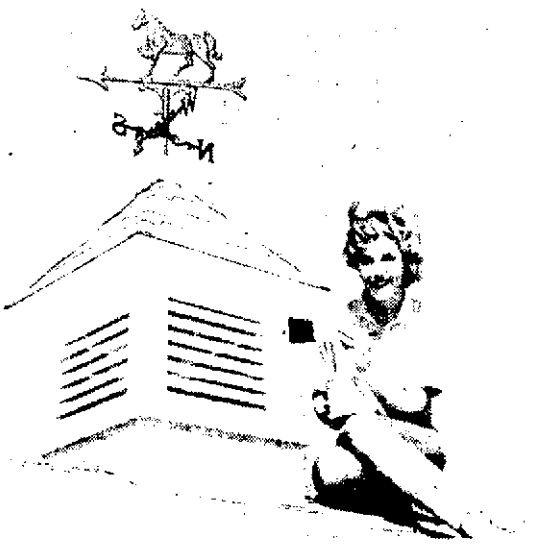

HODSON, English, was formed from Hod or Hodge, an ancient nickname for Roger. The warrior title Roger means "famous spearman." William Hodson was a Yorkshire land owner in 1379. The Hodson armorial shield, granted at Cambridge, 1590, is black, crossed by a gold chevron placed between three flying gold falcons or hawks.

WORKSHOP

Cool Cupola

By Steve Ellingson

Decorative, useful.

THE CUPOLA has an illustrious history. Its origin predates Christianity. Originally it was a simple dome, much smaller, of course, but of the type that can be seen on the Capitol building in Washington, D.C. However, as with all things that endure, evolution has taken place and the original has been modified and embellished to satisfy our present-day needs. Builders include a cupola with most of today's finer homes.

There are two main reasons why people desire a cupola on their home or garage. First, they are very decorative and add much to the appearance of all buildings upon which they are used. Secondly, they offer an excellent means for ventilating an attic. By permitting hot air to escape, they keep a house much cooler in hot summer weather. It's easy to cut a small vent in the roof before installing the cupola, however, this is not necessary if it's to be purely ornamental.

The weather vane on the cupola shown here with Sue Wheeler was handed down to us by our Yankee forebears who always wanted to know which way the wind was blowing. We think it's still a good idea to have included a weather vane in the pattern.

The full-size pattern for building the cupola pictured shows how to make it fit all roofs regardless of their pitch. It's an easy project, and not at all expensive when you build-it-yourself.

To obtain the full-size cupola pattern number 348, send $1 (add 25c per pattern for airmail delivery) by currency, check or money order to:

CABLE TV IMPACT

tus? Instead of only filching programs off the air, create your own programs on the spot and use the cable system for distribution.

The bigger chips were beginning to fall. The innocuous phrase "Cable TV" contains an economic time-bomb. While over the air only one channel can deliver one program at a time to the home, a modern cable system going into homes can offer a variety of 20 programs and services, and the number could rise to 50 or better.

Instead of a scarcity of channels, which is inherent in the process of sending programs over the air, a cable system could carry ABC, CBS, NBC, the Hughes sports network and public broadcasting and still have 15 more channels with which to tinker. The Thursday specials at the local supermarket could be posted for leisurely reading, a facsimile newspaper could be transmitted in several editions a day, a brand new movie could be presented for a run of one or two weeks or longer. The curriculum of a school or college could be offered, all at the flick of a channel selector in a subscriber's home. Or there could be TV designed solely for one neighborhood, an escape from the tyranny of TV for the mass.

That's one over-all measure of the revolution in the offing, but there is yet another: an undergraduate electronics technician could hook together dozens of regional and cable television systems so that in the next decade, for instance, perhaps two or three national cable networks could come into existence, challenging the prominence of NBC, CBS and ABC. Again, technically speaking, there is no reason to believe that these supplementary networks could not be rented on demand to a theatrical film producer or to a politician only for as long as he wanted. Theater owners, of course, tremble at such a vision. they could be by-passed.

BUT, AS THE AMERICAN CIVIL Liberties Union suggested this week, why not open at least some of these cable TV channels to any and all comers? So long as there are enough channels, why not make the television screen as accessible as long-distance telephone service?

Echoing the alarms of today's existing broadcasters, the F.C.C. is worried that if Cable TV ever goes where it could go, technically, the best attractions of so-called free TV would be siphoned off to a system in which the rewards for producers or artists would be infinitely greater. The consequence could be a serious burden on lower income groups.

The F.C.C.'s thoughts in this direction are reflected in another argument which further confuses the future. A vision of Pay TV over Cable TV actually lags by many years, behind the concept of Pay TV over the air. The Zenith Radio Corporation has been fighting for a system that would scramble pictures and sound on a regular TV transmitter and then, upon the consumer paying a becoming charge, unscramble the program in his home. The theater owners have taken the F.C.C. to court for proposing to authorize this service under guarded conditions. Actually, though it isn't openly discussed, the Zenith design could be dovetailed into a cable system.

The bruised viewer, who naturally is not a party to the wheeling and dealing over his destiny, might reasonably adopt the view, as this writer does, that the home screens desperately needs competition in types of systems. The more the merrier, and let the public, through the withholding of its largesse, have one small voice in the process of program selection.

THE PRESENT CONTENTION that the public has a genuine element of choice is unmitigated hogwash; it has a choice between what others choose to let him see. Competition in the cultural and informational arena may have its drawbacks; the pursuit of the buck is omnipresent. But the solution to that is not in passive resignation and accommodations of convenience. The promise of the next generation in electronics is that the wooing of the masses will reach a saturation point, that the road to challenge, difference — and even a comfortable living — lies in having enough channels to offer the have-nots of the present, young and old alike, a crack at specialization, according to their own lights.

More people look at television than read books, but who would suggest that all books be placed under the scrutiny of a narrow cabal of retailers dedicated to maximum sales, or charitably released by a few universities and philanthropic organizations?

Electronics has come to the same point. Its door must be open to the variety of society itself, to competition with dissimilarity, rather than banal likeness. Cable TV holds that potential.

Teens in Action

Future in the Deep

IN TODAY'S SPACE age, many young men want to explore the heavens, but 16-year-old Chris Croissant's goal points in the other direction — he plans to be an oceanographer.

A sophomore at Millikan High School, Chris was enrolled in an experimental oceanography class at Marshall Junior High. The special class compiled one of the first student studies of California's harbors. Chris' photographs of the harbors have been sent to the Scripps Institute of Oceanography in La Jolla.

In September, Chris will be enrolled in Millikan's new oceanography program which he helped establish. He plans to attend the University of Washington and then do graduate work at the Scripps Institute.

In addition to his oceanographic interests, Chris manages to find time to be an Eagle Scout (the highest rank in the Boy Scouts), a den chief for a Cub Scout pack, and a member of the Long Beach Police Junior Rifle Club. Last summer, he also tutored a young Cuban refugee. He resides with his parents at 3224 Petaluma Ave., Long Beach.

His views:

—If there is money available for space exploration, there should be an equal amount of funds for sea research because the ocean is on our own planet and it can help solve some of the world's problems, such as starvation.

—We could feed the world's population with products from the sea without making a dent in the ocean's resources. And in addition to the foods available in the sea, there are many useful metals.

—However, as sea research increases there must be a system of checks and balances so that proper conservation steps are taken to protect the sea.

—There is an immediate need for conservation legislation to stop the dumping of nuclear wastes, firearms and chemicals into the sea. In a recent grunion run in Santa Barbara, the grunion were found dead on the shore because chemical fertilizers had been dumped into the ocean and the grunions' gills were damaged. When a large number of any species is killed, an imbalance in nature results.

—The legislators will not enact conservation laws until the public becomes more aware of the problem and demands immediate action. The public is generally uninformed about conservation. They seem to think that the United States has unlimited resources. They need to learn the resource capabilities of the land and sea.

—The recent oil slick in Santa Barbara did a great job of bringing the people together to learn about the conservation of the ocean. It is unfortunate that it takes such an event to bring the public around.

—The way to prevent future oil slick disasters is not to eliminate ocean drilling because man must have fuel and the land's oil resources could be depleted in another 100 years. The slick was not caused by the drilling itself, but an unplugged hole. Instead of eliminating ocean drilling, better equipment should be devised. It will be more expensive, but in the long run the extra expense will be balanced by the wealth gained from the sea.

—If the steam car is ever accepted, man will not need as much fuel so the drilling problems will lessen as well as the smog problem. Theoretically a steam car has unlimited power and speed and is very safe. It is probably safer than the average car today. If people will listen to reason, I think there is a great future for the steam car.

—The acceptance of the steam car will be slow, but it will eventually come about. The public accepted the internal combustion engine over the horse, and it will accept steam over fuel. Steam could be vital to conservation.

—Many people are not concerned about conservation because they have never spent any time with nature. My scouting excursions have enabled me to see the beauty of nature and I want to conserve it. — Carolyn Hayes.

Preserve baby's wiggles, giggles and adventure with movie camera.

Home Movies Preserve Baby's Priceless Moments

THE movie camera hasn't quite replaced the romper suit as a gift item at baby showers. But it is coming close.

Young mothers in increasing numbers are finding movie records of their offspring valued treasures, not only because they love their babies, but also because the modern camera is no more complicated than an egg beater. So mothers who've enjoyed their babies on the screen are passing the word -- and sometimes the necessary hardware -- on to their friends who are mothers-to-be.

Some of the drudgeriousness of home movie making. Most of the know-how once needed to get good footage now is built into even the most inexpensive equipment. Preserving baby's wiggles, giggles and cut-ups is no more of a chore today than mixing a batch of formula. Super 8 film and equipment have not only improved picture quality far beyond the old 8mm format, they have also enabled the casual amateur for the first time to make fine color movies with ease.

This combination of quality and convenience at reasonable cost -- the lowest-priced Super 8 movie cameras sell for less than $30 -- puts good color movies within both the ken and the budget of casual amateurs with a limited pocketbook. This combination has led a sharply increasing number of young parents into home movie making, partly for the benefit of grandparents and aunts -- but mostly for their own.

THE MOST appealing movie scenes of small fry are so commonplace that their picture possibilities are often overlooked even when there is a loaded camera on the shelf. Eating, bathing, playing, creeping and trying out inexperienced legs are among the messy, harrowing, wonderful things a baby does so well, and which he'll never again do the same way. These fleeting moments of originality can be brought back to life only in remembrance — or on film.

Since most of a tot's early days are spent in the house, movie techniques to record them must be geared to indoor conditions. Unlike the human eye, photographic color film cannot perform at full capacity inside the house unless there is bright auxiliary illumination even in the daytime. Modern movie lights do the job with a minimum of bother — plug them into the wall, and you're ready to go at the flick of a switch.

With the film cartridge and the light popped into place, you can concentrate on making your baby movie scenes interesting. The central character will need no coaching on this score.

Borrow a leaf from the Hollywood professionals to make your movie more interesting — vary the distance between subject and camera. The zoom lens, now available even on every - day - price cameras, lets you get this effect without having to move. But you can do the same with an ordinary lens simply by shooting from close in, at middle distance or at long range.

Reading all film and camera instructions is, of course, essential for good results. Beyond that, chances are your photo dealer has literature with many valuable pointers, either free of charge or at a very modest price.

THE BEAUTY AND THE BEAST

pets. You have to have a real affection for them. You have to talk to these "children" and expect unusual responses. You must handle them with respect, kindness, understanding and ingenuity. If you don't build up their trust as they grow from cuddly babies to maturity, you lose control. Even then, there can be oddballs, just as there are among domestic pets.

Wild animal pets need daily exercising, cleanliness of body and quarters, and correct diet, which can include pounds and pounds of raw meat daily. And how the big cats like to have their backs scratched!

So they are not for everyone. Unless you qualify, a wild animal pet is designed to give you gray hair, plus possible permanent tattoos and other troubles.

Fair Housing Is Our Goal

By Patrice Horn

I WEAR A little button on my lapel . . . brown and black, with a white house on it . . . the symbol of fair housing. Whenever someone notices it, the question comes: "What do you people in fair housing do?" Or if the questioner is hostile: "What right do you have forcing someone to sell or rent to people they don't want to sell or rent to?"

As a member of the Orange County Fair Housing Council, I'll try to answer these questions and others often asked about the organization.

—WHAT DO YOU DO? We try to uphold and implement the housing laws of our state and county. For instance, there are two California and two federal laws that relate to discrimination by apartment house owners and managers. These laws place the burden of proof on the buyer or lessee. He must prove discrimination. This is one way we help.

— WHO ARE YOU? First of all, just people . . . people who care about individual dignity. We are of all races and colors, economic levels and educational backgrounds. We belong to one of the eight neighborhood fair housing councils in Orange County: Garden Grove, Orange, Harbor area, Fullerton, Tustin, Anaheim, La Habra and Seal Beach - Huntington Beach. We work in our neighborhood areas and belong to a central group (the Orange County Fair Housing Council) for the county. We are volunteers. Through contributions and fund-raising events, we support an office at 1405 W. Fourth St. in Santa Ana.

— WHAT DOES BEING A MEMBER INVOLVE? Mostly time, energy . . . and caring. Specifically, we may be asked to help a minority family find a house or apartment in our area. Or to help prove that discrimination is the reason the family hasn't been able to find housing.

We also try to change the attitude of people toward fair housing. We give programs on housing to interested groups. We supply information on housing attitudes and cases to the press and public. In summary, we do all we can to eliminate discrimination in housing.

— HOW DO YOU HELP? Ideally, we help a minority family find the house or apartment of its choice. We list friendly realtors and apartment house managers. We enlist the aid of the California Real Estate Association. We appeal to the managers and owners of apartment houses to help our clients. We help employers find homes for their minority employes.

— CAN YOU GIVE A SPECIFIC EXAMPLE OF THIS HELP? A school principal called the Orange County Fair Housing Council and reported the hiring of a black teacher. She was from out-of-state, single, had taught six years and had high personal and academic credentials. She wanted an apartment near her school.

Before she arrived, a member of the Fair Housing Council called 18 apartment houses in the desired area and explained she was looking for an apartment for a new teacher in the school. Specifications as to size, price, etc., had been determined beforehand. Fourteen of the apartment house managers told her they had or would have a vacancy and would be glad to show it to the teacher when she arrived.

The Fair Housing Council member invited the teacher to stay with her while she looked at the apartments. First, however, she called the managers of the 14 available apartments, at the request of the teacher, and told them the applicant was black. In every case, she was told the apartment was no longer available. After four days of looking elsewhere, the teacher moved to an apartment in the black ghetto area in southwest Santa Ana. She had to drive much farther to work than she wished and the apartment was not at all what she wanted.

The principal of the school was shocked at this treatment of one of his teachers in his school district. He and the Fair Housing Council member continued to look for another apartment. Eventually one was found where their appeals were heeded. The teacher now lives in this apartment. She has not had problems with the neighbors. She is happy. The neighbors have not suffered. The situation is well in hand.

— DO YOU TAKE MORE DIRECT ACTION? The Orange County Fair Housing Council also works to get proof of discrimination. For example, a young black man and his wife found an apartment they wanted. On applying, they were told it had just been rented. A member of the Fair Housing Council went immediately to the apartment house and asked to see one of the units. He was shown one without delay and told it was available. He told this to the black couple and they again applied. Again, they were told there was nothing available.

Another white member of the council went to the apartment house and was told, yes, an apartment was available. Obviously the black couple was being discriminated against. An appeal was made to the apartment owner. He refused to discuss the situation. The case then, with the permission of the black couple, was turned over to the Fair Employment Practice Commission, the state agency designated to handle cases of housing discrimination.

The FEPC examiner studied the facts, then spoke to the applicants and apartment house owner. A conciliatory offer was made and accepted by both parties. The black couple is now living in the desired apartment. The man and woman have been accepted by their neighbors without incident.

However, the indignities suffered by this couple occur over and over again in cases handled by fair housing groups. They are happening right now.

— WHAT ARE THE AIMS OF THE OCFHC? Simply, to restore the dignity of individuals. And, at longer range, to disband the organization because discrimination no longer exists.

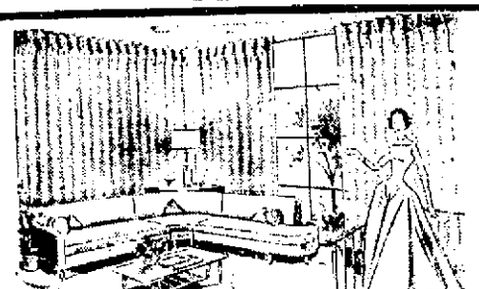

Anyone who needs our help or who would like to assist us in our aims is asked to contact the Or-

MISS RULE: Please explain the origin of YORK. — M.B., Long Beach.

YORK, English, was acquired by the ancestors from their home city of York in England. The city name began as a locality term "Eoforwic," meaning "place of the boars." Agnes de York was recorded in Yorkshire, 1379. The York shield from Devonshire, England, is red, emblazoned with a silver chevron placed between three silver deer heads.

MISS RULE: Kindly inform me on SAN MARCOS. — E.S., Long Beach.

SAN MARCOS, Spanish and Portuguese, represents either an ancestor born on St. Mark's Day, April 25th, or a forefather surnamed for his native town called San Marcos. "Marcos" or Mark, from the Latin Marcus, means "warlike."

MISS RULE: Please identify ST. AUBIN. — M.S., Lakewood.

ST. AUBIN, French, refers to the town where the ancestor was born, one of several places in France by that name. These towns were named in honor of St. Aubin, a 6th century French bishop. Aubin is from the Latin "albinus" meaning "pale or white complexion." The St. Aubin armorial shield from Picardy, France, is blue, emblazoned with a golden, eight-rayed ornament in the center.

MISS RULE: Would you give brief data on RICHARDSON? — J.G., C.G., Long Beach; H.J., Garden Grove.

RICHARDSON, English, means "son of Richard," taken from the hero name Ric-Hard signifying "powerful ruler." The Richardson armorial shield is black, decorated with three lion heads on a silver stripe across the top. New Hampshire settlers include Rev. Ebenezer Richardson, 1707-1768, whose son was in the New Hampshire Rangers in the Revolutionary War.

MISS RULE: Kindly give information on HUNTER. — W.L., Garden Grove; D.H., Long Beach.

HUNTER, English, is from "huntere," a medieval word for a professional hunter of wild game. Records list Adam Le Huntere in 1268. The Hunter shield is gold, centered with a red rampant lion. John and William Hunter were noted Scottish physicians in the 1700s.

Glad You Asked That!

By Hy Gardner

Q. Why, at 41, doesn't Eddie Fisher grow up? He married three of the most desirable females in the world—then divorced them. If he keeps that up, where does he think he's going?—E.V. Conklin, Baltimore.

A. I don't know where he's going — but look where he's BEEN!

Q. Is it true that jazz great Ray Charles, even though blind, drives a car? — Albert Pinker, Oakland.

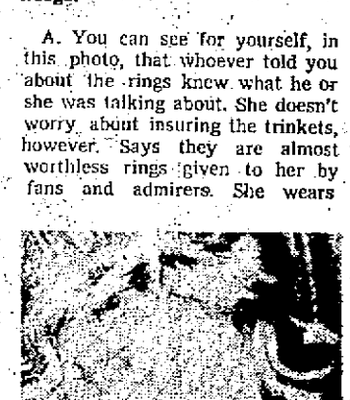

A. "Yes," the extraordinary musician reluctantly admits. "I've been known to drive an automobile on an empty country road. And I had a motorscooter which was given to me by Playboy magazine many years ago. I fly my plane once in a while and if, God forbid, something happened to my pilot I think I could get it down without killing myself. I think a person has to be absolutely insane to do some of the things I do, but I wouldn't recommend it to anybody else. You must have supreme confidence in yourself."

Q. Who holds the non-stop marathon dance record? — Grace Weiss, Miami Beach.

A. Singing star Frankie Laine. He once danced, in an Atlantic City Steel Pier competition, for 145 days — with 15 minutes off every hour to catch a snatch of sleep or gobble up a snack of food.

Q. Does Twiggy wear a ring on every finger of both hands? And are they insurable, considering she could be such a target for jewel thieves? — Arnold Wilson, Chattanooga.

A. You can see for yourself, in this photo, that whoever told you about the rings knew what he or she was talking about. She doesn't worry about insuring the trinkets, however. Says they are almost worthless rings given to her by fans and admirers. She wears them because she likes the feel and glitter of the litter.

Twiggy . . . with rings.

Eddie with Liz Taylor . . . Debbie Reynolds was 1st, Connie Stevens 3rd.

Q. Did someone other than Raymond Burr ever play the role of Perry Mason? I've got two bucks riding on your answer. — Norb Hayden, Glendale.

A. Hedge your bet. Burr was television's only Perry Mason. However, in an early movie, actor Warren William played the role of lawyer Mason, and in the mid-40's John Larkin did ditto on radio.

Q. Haven't diplomatic pouches containing secret documents fallen into the hands of Castro via hijacked planes? — Ralph Boudroin, Tampa, Fla.

A. No. Because of a maneuver the government employs to avoid just such a touchy incident. The moment a courier arrives at Kennedy International Airport from Europe on a jet, he's met by a two- or four-passenger Apache or Beechcraft and immediately whisked off to Washington.

Q. We just watched a TV rerun of the Alfred Hitchcock shocker, "The Birds." My youngsters asked me if the children were really hurt when they were attacked by the wild birds. What should I tell them? — Mrs. T. P., Beaufort, S.C.

A. Tell them what Mr. Hitchcock told me. "The 'attack' on the children was faked by double-printing . . . and the birds were trained by a well-known birdman named Ray Berwick."

OUR COVER

A full-grown mountain lion might seem like an unusual companion for America's top prize-winning German shepherd, but Georgia, the puma, and Ch. Ray-Mor's Fleet O'Way, the dog, like to play—and nap—together. In our cover photo they are shown with owner Mike Ortega on the porch of his home near the Orange County Airport. Ortega and his wife, Audrey, run the Ray-Mor Kennels, and they keep a number of pets besides dogs. Turn to Page 7 for Eleanor Avery Price's story about Georgia and Fleet O'Way and other Ray-Mor animals.

Outside House Painting Eliminated for 15 Years

LONG BEACH, CALIF. (CT)—Painting is a thing of the past. Let us show you how Fiberglas TEX-COTE insulates, waterproofs and beautifies and is factory guaranteed for a full 15 years.

BEST IN NATION

Homeowners are requested not to spend a single penny on painting their residences until they hear the TEX-COTE story. This remarkable material insulates, waterproofs and beautifies, and every fiberglas TEX-COTE job is factory guaranteed for 15 full years against chipping, flaking or peeling.

Fiberglas, a product of Owens-Corning, brings to TEX-COTE its great strength, its wonderful insulating properties, its resistance to time, weather and chemical attack.

PROVEN OVER THE YEARS

TEX-COTE is one of the oldest coatings now marketed and has been applied on thousands of homes and commercial buildings since 1946. These buildings have remained in perfect condition after more than 15 years exposure in all types of weather.

SHOT FROM A GUN

TEX-COTE is applied with heavy-duty spray equipment and is actually "shot from a gun" without muss, fuss or odor. TEX-COTE fuses itself to the walls and fills holes, cracks and covers building defects. TEX-COTE may be applied over stucco, wood, brick, block or shingles.

THE WELLS REPORT

Grunion, Go Home!

By Bob Wells

THE TROUBLE with living in California is that there are 49 other states, not to mention the District of Columbia. And most of them contain relatives, college chums, old Army buddies, business associates and the practical nurse who looked after poor old Aunt Maude in her last illness. All of these people and their children share the same ambition — they want to see Southern California.

You are the fella that shows it to them.

If you are a Southern Californian, you know all about the New Leisure. The New Leisure is what people in North Dakota, Tennessee, Minnesota, Maine, New Jersey and Texas have — not to mention the District of Columbia. They spend their New Leisure visiting Southern California.

You do not have any New Leisure, or old leisure, for that matter. You are too busy acting as travel agent, motel manager, airport limousine operator, auto club contact and white hunter for visitors.

Sometime I would like to visit Disneyland without having to worry about how many people did we come in with and will they all show up for the 2 p.m. rendezvous at the submarine ride. I find it easier with a large party to split them up and let them wander about various parts of Disneyland alone. But I insist that they all take the submarine ride together.

I LEARNED FROM BAXTER OMOHUNDRO that if you put a party in line for the submarine ride, you just have time to dash up and catch the monorail to the Disneyland Hotel, sprint to the cocktail lounge, drink a martini, catch the monorail back to the park and get there just as your friends or family are emerging from the sub.

That is why I prefer Disneyland over the many other fine tourist attractions we have in this area. Marineland, Knott's Berry Farm, etc., etc., are great and they all have soft drinks for the pause that refreshes. Trouble is — when a fella is acting as tour guide to out-of-town visitors, he doesn't need the pause that refreshes. He needs the pause that anesthetizes.

Of course there is always Busch Gardens in the San Fernando Valley. Somebody told me the other day that Busch Gardens and the adjacent brewery are on the same commercial tour as the Self-Realization Fellowship center.

That's logical but a little confusing. I mean, if you're a stranger to the area it may be a little hard afterwards to remember which was which.

I DO NOT REALLY MIND DRIVING visitors up to Universal City to take the studio tour, or up to Mount Wilson, or to the zoo, or down to Palm Springs to see the most marvelous wonder of all — a motel collecting $18 a night for an $8 room. But there is one tourist request that gives me the spavin shakes immediately.

It always starts the same way. Your out-of-state visitor says:

"Say, I read in the paper where the grunion are running tonight. Why don't we go down to the beach for a grunion hunt?"

And his kids say:

"What's a grunion hunt, daddy?"

"Well," he says, "there are these little silver fish about six or seven inches long and right after a full moon they come onto the beach to spawn and you can walk along and pick them up with your hands."

"Gee," the kids shrill, "can we go on a grunion hunt, can we?"

You chuckle indulgently and try to get the situation back under control.

"I'M AFRAID A GRUNION HUNT is the California version of a snipe hunt," you tell the children. "You know about a snipe hunt, don't you?"

"Sure," they say. "You mean where you take somebody out in the woods and tell him to wait while you go scare up the snipe, then you go off and leave him."

"No," the father says. "There actually are grunion. I went on a grunion hunt when I was stationed out here in the Navy."

"Well, I'm afraid you need a fishing license to take grunion," you say desperately. "It hardly seems worth the money, particularly when the grunion fail to show up more often than not, or they show up on another beach."

"The kids don't need licenses," the father says. "And it looks like it is going to be a nice night."

So against your better judgment you find yourself huddled around a firepit on the beach. It is a nice night — most other places. On the beach, however, a cold wind of approximately hurricane force began to blow off the sea about sunset and has continued ever since.

YOUR BASIC COSTUMES are swim suits, but the cold wind has forced the adults to bundle up somewhat. You are padded like Finnish ski troopers. The kids, however, with an innate sense of the fitness of things, are wearing only swim suits.

"Jimmy, put your sweater on. You'll catch pneumonia," Jimmy's mother says between chattering teeth.

"Didn't bring a sweater," Jimmy says sullenly. You take off one of yours and give it to Jimmy. The polar wind hits and chills you and you hastily replace the sweater with a damp beach towel.

Jimmy's sister didn't bring her sweater either, so you swap your second sweater for another damp beach towel. You try to move closer to the fire, which you calculate is consuming six dollars worth of packaged firewood every 15 minutes. No chance. The warm spots are all occupied by your visitors. However, they let you have the smoke.

THE FIREPIT NEXT to you is the center of a swinging beach party of the Vitalis-and-acne set. A portable stereo phonograph is sending forth heavy decibels of folk-rock. The boys in the party seem to divide their time between sensuously combing their long bleached hair and rolling up in a blanket with their dates for some heavy necking.

You pull the damp beach towels closer around yourself and try to warm the inner man with hot coffee. Down on the beach there is a firefly ballet of flashlights as people search for the awaited grunion. The kids in your party dash back and forth between the beach and the fire. You follow their coming and going by the sprays of sand they kick up against the back of your head and neck.

AFTER WHAT SEEMS hours there are shouts of excitement down by the water. What you feared would happen has happened. The grunion have appeared. At the next firepit, the music and fire both had been allowed to die as the blanket bundles grew more numerous. Now there is renewed noise there.

"Hey, you guys," a youthful voice calls, "come on. The grunion are running."

The sportsman is greeted by groans and shouts of "Forget it," "Go away," "Get lost." The blanket rolls grow quiet again except for muffled giggles.

Finally, triumphant children appear at your firepit with buckets of grunion. You are not overjoyed. Everybody keeps saying how good grunion are. You suspect they have never eaten grunion. You have.

As you pick up to leave the beach, you make a silent vow. Next time the grunion run, so will you. In the opposite direction.

PSSSSST! Want to get in on something good? Would you believe there's a restaurant in Long Beach that serves a lobster dinner for $2.95? It isn't a small, shrunken lobster of doubtful quality either. It's a beautiful, nice-sized Australian lobster tail, tender and sweet, served with drawn butter.

The place for that delicacy is Nik's Restaurant, a cheerful, attractive place at Cherry Avenue and Wardlow Road. If you've priced Australian lobster in the markets lately, you know it's gone sky high, ranking up there with platinum, rubies, emeralds and other precious items.

How can owners Nick Nickoloff and his son Carl serve it for so little at Nik's? It beats me. Either they're miracle workers or their adding machine is on the blink. I do know this much, however. "We don't make a penny on our lobsters," Carl told me the other day. "In fact, I think we're losing money." Meanwhile, patrons are packing the place, because Carl and Nik serve their lobster with choice of tomato juice, soup du jour or a beautiful salad; fresh, steaming baked potato; colorful carrot and pickle garnish, hot rolls and butter. The lobster dinner in the Viking Room lounge is $3.10 except on Friday when there's a price change. Would you believe that every Friday the price in the lounge goes DOWN to $2.95 and the dinner also includes a glass of sparkling wine?

As you can see, Nik's is a very unusual, very popular and very successful restaurant. Manager Bob Mariano, the chefs and the energetic, nimble waitresses all do exceptional work. Furthermore, every item on the menu is fresh, tempting and moderately priced, such as: beautiful Louisiana jumbo fried shrimp, $1.85; grilled northern halibut steak, $1.80; choice top sirloin or N.Y. cut steak, $2.95; top quality ground round steak with onion rings, $1.70; breaded veal cutlet, $1.70; fried spring chicken with French fries, $1.85; deep sea eastern scallops, $1.75, and the spaghetti special with old country sauce and French roll, $1.45.

The gourmet steak and lobster combination in the coffee shop is $3.95. In the Viking Room, it's $4.10. The coffee shop is open every day; the Viking Room is closed Sundays.

Four Coins That May Change California History

By Bill Duncan

IT WAS A LOUSY DAY for scuba diving off Oceanside that July afternoon in 1967. The surf was boiling with rip tides, churning a blinding sandstorm under the water's surface. Two divers, Chuck Tinch of Laguna Beach and Doug Taylor of Long Beach, decided to give it up and go ashore.

As they headed in, Tinch felt something strike his leg. The two divers went down to investigate. It was a Braille search in an underwater sandstorm, but, with their hands, Tinch and Taylor managed to scoop up several metal objects. When they surfaced, the two men had recovered four coins — gold coins centuries old.

Their find may change California history.

Tinch and Taylor, along with four other Southlanders, had been searching that day for a sunken ship off Oceanside which they believed was the Trinidad, a vessel skippered by Spanish explorer Francisco de Ulloa. The coins, they said, strengthened their belief that Ulloa's ship had sunk off Oceanside in 1538.

The six men, including Arthur McCartney, John Moreno, Bob Betz and George Giardina, formed a unique organization called Aztec Six, dedicated to the finding of Ulloa's Trinidad.

Should they succeed, California history will never be the same. The finding of Ulloa's ship would prove that Ulloa (pronounced Oolyo'a) discovered California and that Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo, the man history books credit with the discovery, was a Juan-come-lately.

"I'm already convinced that Cabrillo was a few years late in discovering California," Tinch, Aztec Six president, said. "I think we have some proof of this now, but if our calculations are correct we are going to settle the issue once and for all this summer. We are going to find the Trinidad."

Aztec Six hasn't gone about the search in any amateur way. In fact, the organization that started out with only six members has grown to 450 members — linguists, scientists, divers, electronic specialists, archaeologists, all interested in finding Ulloa's ship.

The search is still largely limited to weekends because all Aztec Six members have weekday jobs. The coins were only a clue, but the biggest boost came when Anthony Guisada, a Spaniard who became interested in Aztec Six's search for Ulloa's ship, found an old diary in the Archives of the Indies in Seville, Spain, which is purported to have been kept by one of the Trinidad's crewmen. The diary, written in a Moorish-Spanish, was translated by Dr. Moreno, a Santa Ana College professor, who literally had to create a new Spanish alphabet to decipher the sailor's log.

"One page in that diary," Tinch said, "tells of the Trinidad's sinking and gives us a pretty good location of where the ship went down."

Dr. W. E. Osborne, a La Habra scientist, joined Aztec Six and designed and made a highly sensitive magnetometer to help plot the ocean floor for metal objects.

The Oceanside City Council, impressed by Aztec Six's scientific approach to locating the Trinidad, gave the organization an exclusive contract to search the city's tidelands from July through September of this year for the ship.

"We are not treasure hunters in that sense of the word," explained McCartney, organization historian. "Our purpose is not to exploit a sunken ship that may or may not have treasure aboard, but rather to uncover buried history."

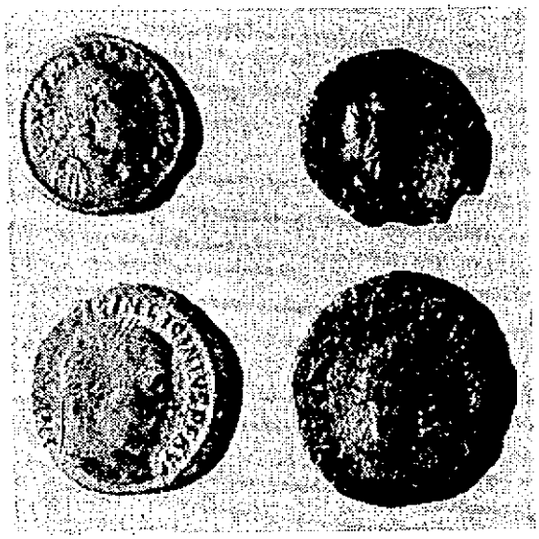

The time since the first coins were found has been spent in research and in gridding the ocean where Aztec Six feels the ship went down. This year will be spent in diving operations to actually locate the Trinidad.

"We think we've pinpointed the location," Tinch said. "The ship, we know, was loaded with Spanish river rock for ballastic stones. It probably has moved very little from the spot where it originally went down. We believe the ship is buried under sand. The bottom in that particular area is like a desert — hardly a rock in sight — and the bottom is continually shifting. We could find the ship buried under four to six feet of sand."

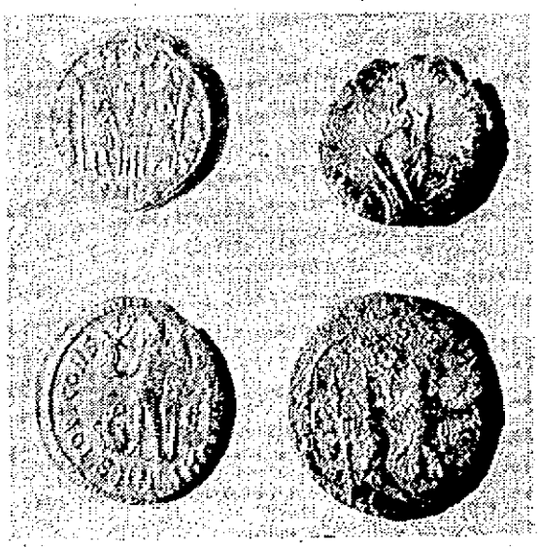

From the sailor's log, Aztec Six has charted the Trinidad's course from Acapulco, Mexico, and up the California coast as far as the area now known as Oceanside. Ulloa's mission, the diary revealed, was to find a sea route to the mythical Seven Cities of Cibola — the cities described by Alva Cabeza de Vaca as having streets paved with gold. The Trinidad, it is believed, sank in a storm off the California coast in 1538.

Cabrillo didn't come along until 1542.

Aztec Six may not find a pot of gold buried off Oceanside, but the organization could rewrite history and put Francisco de Ulloa's discovery on the map.

Backside of coins in same position.

Doug Taylor, left, of Long Beach and Chuck Tinch of Laguna Beach view coins they believe may lead to proof that California was discovered by Francisco de Ulloa in 1538, rather than by Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo four years later.

Copy of page from a diary purportedly kept by a crewman on Ulloa's Trinidad. This bolsters divers' opinion the ship sank off Oceanside.

Cable TV Seen as Revolutionary

By JACK GOULD
N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — The world of television is in orbit on an enticing flight plan; no one knows the point of splashdown. Along on the economics, social and scientific ride are all branches of government, big networks and little stations, Hollywood producers, entrepreneurs of new methods of delivering pictures to the home, hardware manufacturers, academicians and prefabbed answers, owners of neighborhood movie houses, bewildered directors of corporate mammoths, Wall Street brokers and enough lawyers to leave a country defenseless. The cause is cable television.

When television dawned on an unprepared world in the late 1940's, the operation of the medium was deceptively simple. In the manner of radio, a TV station randomly scattered a miscellany of intelligence and diversion to anyone with a receiver in range of its tower of visual enlightenment.

IN DUE COURSE Channels 2 through 13 filled up and, depending on a viewer's location, he might get anywhere from one to seven stations to keep him rooted in the parlor. By design, the stations were geographically separated by cities and a lush time was had by all. Networking of programs, or the interconnecting of cities by relay facilities, came along so that national impact — and revenue — could be realized.

The novelty of pictures in the home and the income they provided invited a state of euphoria. Not much attention was accorded to those sections of the country where TV signals were either nonexistent or overcast with blinding snow. And it also became apparent that a TV receiver in many areas was a largely wasted instrument. Frequently, more channels were dark than lit.

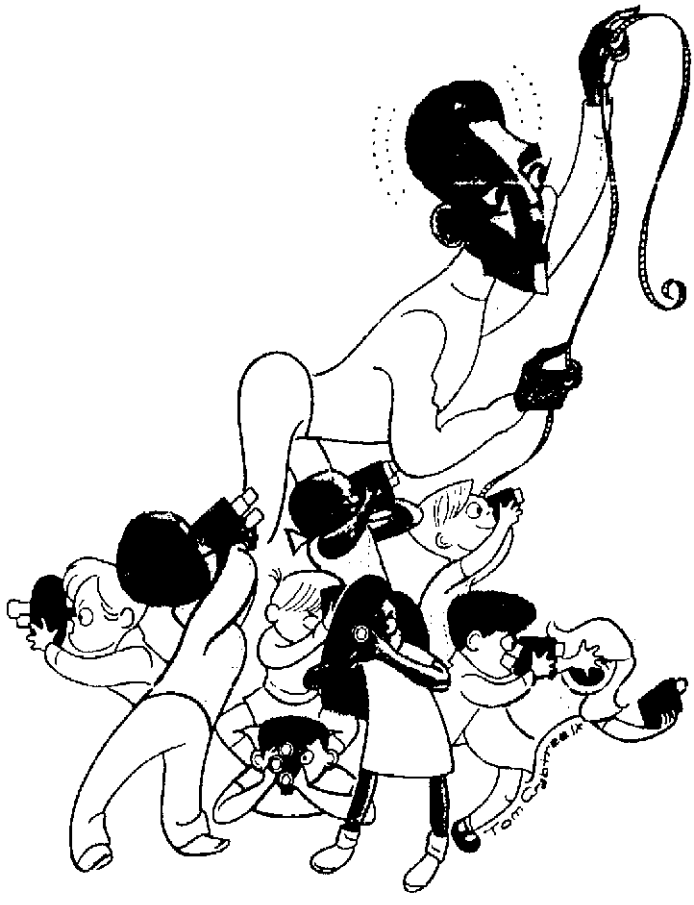

If a cluster of homes was electronically underprivileged in the depths of a valley, with a huge mountain serving as a barrier to seeing Milton Berle, Howdy Doody, and Worthington Miner's dramas, there was a solution: put one antenna on top of the mountain -- a master aerial — and then run the signal down lead-in wire to the restless residents of the culture gulch.

This method of extending the range of TV beyond "the line of sight" had companion gains. If you could pick an ideal spot for a master antenna, regardless of where the receivers were, you could have virtually flawless reception. The master antenna, consisting of separate aerials pointing in all directions, could intercept stations not just from one city, but several. So was cable television born. There are now upwards of 5 million receivers connected in this manner. The initial implications of Cable TV spoke almost for themselves. First, the idea conquered the limitation of program choice. A community of under 100,000 population could get as much reception as metropolitan New York.

THE HOWLS OF PAIN began to be heard. If the subscribers to a cable system could enjoy a movie by eavesdropping on a station 50 or 100 miles away, how much could the producer get for the same movie when he tried to lease the film to a station in the community where the subscribers lived? Understandably, the producer wanted some new idea of copyright protection and the local station wanted some protection from competition from afar.

The complications didn't stop there. At the point where distant signals are collected by a master antenna and then fed into a cable system, why not connect a studio replete with cameras and film exhibition appara-

BILL COSBY LEADS CHILDREN ON 'TRIP' IN THEIR WORLD

Cosby, Small Fry Team for Look at Young Dreams

By TOM WILLMAN
Staff Writer

Bill Cosby, who's record albums have made the youthful characters "Fat Albert" and "Wierd Harold" famous, will make another excursion into childhood Monday night at 8 on Channel 4 in "As I See It."

The program, Cosby's second special, will combine his insight and humor with the views of children selected from all over the country -- expressed via movie clips shot by the children themselves.

Each young movie-maker will narrate his own film, and Cosby will enhance the child's eye views of the world by interviewing each of the 17 children, chosen from all economic, social and ethnic backgrounds.

Cosby will also be relating many of the children's experiences to those in his own childhood.

To select the youngsters for the program, Producers George A. Heinemann and June Reig traveled throughout the country interviewing youngsters between the ages of six and 12.

The children were given eight-millimeter movie cameras, instructed in their use, and sent out to film their world as they saw it. They were told to look for things that gave them pleasure, perplexed them, made them happy or sad.

The NBC Children's Theatre production will feature original music composed and conducted by Robert Maxwell interpreting each child's world with a fitting theme.

PICASSO'S EROTIC ENGRAVINGS

On March 16, 1968, Pablo Picasso, the pre-eminent artist of our time, commenced work on a series of engravings that he predicted would become "my most sought after—and possibly scandalous—work." They were to be a series of pictures portraying every aspect of sexual pleasure. Picasso had wanted to create such a series for over 65 years, he confided to Aldo Crommelynck, his engraving-press printer, and he intended it to stand as "an abiding celebration of life itself."

For nearly seven months Picasso worked in a creative frenzy at his studio in Mougins, France, turning out as many as four engravings in a single day, often with as many as six variations of each. "Ole!", "Bravo!", "Magnifico!", he would exclaim as each new engraving was pulled from the press, and so ecstatic was he over the quality of the work that on several occasions he summoned friends from as far off as London and New York to view the work in progress. Finally, on October 5th, he bundled the engravings together, inscribed them with the title "347 Gravures," and announced "Ya!" ("It is finished!").

The engravings Picasso had created are, collectively, his masterwork, a fitting climax to the career of a man whose dedication, both in personal life and work, has been to the sensual. "Without the awakening of ardent love, no life—and therefore no art—has any meaning," Picasso is quoted by his biographer, Roland Penrose, as saying. And nowhere in the prodigious, 20,000-piece oeuvre of this fertile genius has ardent love been more beautifully—or joyfully—portrayed. Throughout the engravings voluptuous majas surrender themselves, lustful satyrs disport, and troupes of swooning acrobats perform in a circus of love. Picasso's irrepressible love of mischief is in evidence, too, in scenes of grandees cuckolded, harems invaded, and models seduced by lecherous painters. The last theme is the one most often repeated in the series, with the painters puckishly made to resemble Rembrandt, Raphael, and, of course, Picasso himself. (Picasso's life-long friend, Max Jacob, has said, "Picasso would much rather be remembered as a famous Don Juan than an artist.") All in all, Picasso's "347 Gravures" reflect such consummate craftsmanship, timeless subject matter, and sublime inspiration as to ensure their place as the greatest art treasure of the 20th Century.

If the artistic value of "347 Gravures" is considerable, its commercial value is perhaps even greater. The engravings, which have been printed in a limited edition of 50 sets, have fetched a price of approximately ten million dollars! This is more than has ever been paid for a work of art. Moreover, because of rumors that circulated throughout the art world concerning the superexcellence of the engravings, all 50 sets were subscribed to even before Picasso had finished making them!

Art critics who have seen the engravings have been positively apostolic in their praise. "These etchings reach the zenith of man's creative power. They rank with 'Hamlet,' Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, and Michelangelo's 'Last Judgment.' That is to say, they are classic," says Robert Glauber, of Skyline. LIFE: "Picasso's most trenchant exploration of sex and sexuality...As never before, the master seems bent on describing that idyllic state wherein the spirit and flesh are one." Herald-Tribune (Paris): "A major undertaking—amazing...extraordinary...staggering...incredible. Picasso's brilliance conquers all." TIME: "A virtuoso performance." Armand St. Clair, Revue de Paris: "Mesmerizing...If I had a choice among all the works Picasso has produced, I would take this one without hesitation." Franz Schulze, Chicago Daily News: "What a difference between Picasso's view of sex and the sniggering, guilt-ridden American pornography of today." Brian Fitzherbert, Nova: "Once again, Picasso demonstrates his astounding power of regeneration." Harold Joachim, Curator of Prints, Art Institute of Chicago: "Astonishing...A compelling testimony of Picasso's amazing energy and power of invention at the age of 87." Harold Haydon, Chicago Sun Times: "A great surprise package...Unparalleled for sustained interest and quality." Pierre Cabanne, Plexus: "The Last Will and Testament of the father of modern art."

It is with great pride, therefore, and humility, that the editors of Avant-Garde announce that their magazine has been chosen as the medium through which Picasso's monumental new work will be shown to the world. Picasso's Paris representative, the Societe de la Propriete Artistique, has appointed Avant-Garde as the sole proscenium for presentation of the quintessence of "347 Gravures." Mindful of the awesome responsibility that this singular honor imposes, the editors of Avant-Garde have spared neither expense nor effort to ensure that "347 Gravures" receives the premiere it deserves.

To begin with, an entire issue of Avant-Garde—64 pages—will be devoted exclusively to this one subject. The issue will carry no advertising. The world's foremost graphic designer, Herb Lubalin, has been retained to design this special issue. Costly antique paper stocks and flame-set colored inks will be used throughout. The issue will be printed by time-consuming duotone offset lithography and will be bound in 12-point Frankote boards, for permanent preservation. All in all, this lavishly produced issue of Avant-Garde will more closely resemble an expensive art folio than a magazine. The editors of Avant-Garde are determined that their presentation of the quintessence of Picasso's "347 Gravures" will be a landmark not only in the history of art, but in publishing, as well.

Copies of this special collector's edition of Avant-Garde will not be offered for sale to the general public. They are being given away—free—as a gift to all new subscribers to Avant-Garde.

In case you've never heard of Avant-Garde, let us explain that it is the most beautiful—and daring—magazine in America today. Although launched only two years ago, already it has earned a reputation as the outstanding showcase for the exhibition of creative talent. This reputation stems from Avant-Garde's editorial policy of complete and absolute freedom of creative expression. Avant-Garde steadfastly refuses to sacrifice creative genius on the altar of "morality" (the motto of the magazine is "Down with bluenoses, blue laws, and blue pencils"). Thus, the world's most gifted artists, writers, and photographers continually bring to Avant-Garde their most uninhibited—and inspired—works. Avant-Garde serves—consistently—as a haven for the painting that is "too daring," the novella that is "too outrageous," the poem that is "too satirical," the reportage that is "too graphic," the opinion that is "too candid," the photograph that is "too explicit." Avant-Garde is proud of its reputation as the wild game sanctuary of American arts and letters.

In addition to Picasso, contributors to Avant-Garde include such renowned figures as Norman Mailer, Andrew Wyeth, Kenneth Tynan, Dan Greenburg, Phil Ochs, Allen Ginsberg, Dr. Karl Menninger, Carl Fischer, Paul Krassner, Andy Warhol, Eliot Elisofon, Warren Boroson, Peter Max, Richard Avedon, John Updike, Roald Dahl, Art Kane, Charles Schulz, Bert Stern, Richard Lindner, Yevgeny Yevtushenko, S.J. Perelman, James Baldwin, Alan Watts, Salvador Dali, Terry Southern, Ashley Montagu, Isaac Bashevis Singer, William Burroughs, Paul Goodman, Kenneth Rexroth, Harper Lee, Jean Genet, and Marshall McLuhan.

Critics everywhere have spent themselves in a veritable orgy of praise over Avant-Garde. "Reality freaks, unite! Weird buffs, rejoice! Avant-Garde has arrived bearing mind-treasures of major proportions," says the San Francisco Chronicle. "Avant-Garde is guaranteed to shake the cobwebs out of the mind," says the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner. "An exotic literary menu...A wild new thing on the New York scene," says Encounter. "Avant-Garde is aimed at readers of superior intelligence and cultivated taste who are interested in the arts, politics, science—and sex," says the New York Times. "[Its editor] deserves considerable credit for having risked printing this...," says LIFE. "The fantastic artwork, alone, is worth the price of the magazine," says the News Project. "A field manual by the avant-garde, for the avant-garde," says New York critic Robert Reisner. "Avant-Garde's articles on cinema, rock, and the New Scene are a stoned groove," says the East Village Other. "It's the sawn-off shotgun of American critical writing," says the New Statesman. "Its graphics are stylish," says TIME. "Avant-Garde is MAGAZINE POWER!" says poet Harold Seldes. "Wow! What a ferris wheel! I was high for a week after reading it," says the pop critic of Cavalier.

Subscriptions to Avant-Garde ordinarily cost $10 per year. In conjunction with this special Picasso erotic engravings offer, however, we are offering ten-month introductory subscriptions for ONLY $5! This is virtually HALF PRICE!! To enter your subscription (five issues)—and obtain a copy of the Picasso erotic engravings folio ABSOLUTELY FREE—simply fill out the coupon below and mail it with $5 to: Avant-Garde, 110 W. 40th St., New York, N.Y. 10018.

Georgia, a full-grown mountain lion, plays happily with Ch. Ray-Mor's Fleet O'Way at the home of Mike and Audrey St. John Ortega.

Even the best of playmates have disagreements once in a while. Georgia exchanges snarls with Fleet O'Way, nation's top German shepherd dog.

CHAMPION DOG IS PAL OF MOUNTAIN LION

The Beauty and the Beast

By Eleanor Avery Price

Ortega gets his pets to take a rest together on the back porch.

—Staff Photos by CURT JOHNSON

SOME NOTED trainers of animals say that "domesticated" wild animals are strictly one-man beasts and love and respect only their trainer. Georgia, a full-grown puma, apparently hasn't heard this, for she gets along famously not only with her owners, Mike and Audrey St. John Ortega, but with other Ortega pets, including America's top-winning German shepherd dog, Ch. Ray-Mor's Fleet O'Way.

Georgia and Fleet frolic happily together in open fields when they get the chance, and on the large, roofed back porch of the Ortega home or in a big circular cage beyond the porch. They even nap together.

(Pumas, or mountain lions, have great strength and agility, but they are not vicious killers of men or dogs. They like to stalk anything that moves, usually out of curiosity.)

Visitors to the home of the Ortegas and their well-known Ray-Mor Kennels, both near Orange County Airport, are not at all startled to see pets other than a number of beautiful German shepherd dogs of all ages. In fact, there is scarcely a batted eye even over the sight of Georgia cavorting and wrestling with Fleet O'Way, one of the top German shepherd dogs of our time. (Fleet, who is black and red-gold, has, according to Mrs. Ortega, 99 Best of Breeds at dog shows at this writing and has been rated as foremost in the German Shepherd Dog Review.)

The Ortegas, including daughter Kim, age 6, don't operate a zoo, nor are they eccentric. There are good reasons for the presence of the puma, a number of falcons trained in falconry, a tawny eagle from India, several household cats including a Manx named Bear Cat, an Arabian stallion named Altair's Rascal, an Arabian mare named Saigon, the recently sold Angela (the tiger rippling through snow country in Enco's commercial) and Kimba, an ocelot. For a number of years the Ortegas have been providing animal actors and models for TV, motion pictures and advertisements. The Ortegas know that when animals are rented for theatrical purposes, the performers should not only act normal and frisky but also should be trustworthy. So they are home-trained.

Fleet himself occasionally has enacted the role of a wolf after his coat is sprayed to cover his gorgeous coloring. His problem is that he is not gun-shy, and, when movie-makers want the "wolves" to scatter at the sound of a shot, Fleet is all for tracking down the source of the racket.

Whenever possible, the Ortegas get their exotics when they are babies, preferably not even weaned, for baby wild animals have no fear of humans who feed them. It might be added that Fleet from necessity had to be bottle-fed, which really makes him "one of the gang."

Although taken to fields to romp, the Ortega jungle cats of course can't be turned loose to roam in the house unwatched after they grow large. They are too curiously nosy, and they purr like outboard motors. Since the Ortegas have walls and walls of dog show trophies accumulated over the past 25 years, big cats could sniff and purr the attractive rooms into a shambles.

There was one time when the home was turned into great disarray. But it was due to, of all things, a tiny field mouse, of which Mrs. Ortega is terribly afraid! A door was accidentally left open a wee crack, and a mouse was kooky enough to bypass the assorted outdoor runs filled with animals and scamper indoors to hide among the trophies. After a frantic time of dismantling shelves, a visitor was inspired with the thought of a dime store trap baited with chewed chewing gum.

Mrs. Ortega is not a stereotype animal trainer. She is dainty, feminine and pretty. She's also a whiz in the kitchen making batches and batches of cottage cheese and preparing other special food for the entire animal family. Little Kim assists her like a pro. Everyone helps in the conditioning of the animals. Ortega works the falcons in falconry, and handles the business end of the whole interesting "shebang."

The Ortegas can tell you that bravery alone won't get you anyplace in keeping wild animals as

Hawaii's 'Drive-in' Volcanoes

By Bob Martin

Lava spewed from eruptions in late February blocks the popular Chain of Craters Road in Hawaii Volcanoes National Park. Two new eruptions in the last few weeks have sent lava flowing across the road.

EVERYONE IS familiar with drive-in movies, but what about drive-in volcanoes? Well, Hawaii has them, and they're more interesting than anything you can see on the screen. What is more, you don't have the feeling you've seen the same thing before.

If a volcano is erupting when you're in Hawaii Volcanoes National Park, you get to see a "spectacular" that makes that word seem inappropriate when applied to mere movies, but at any time the park provides a show worthy of an Oscar.

The entire chain of islands making up the state of Hawaii is of volcanic origin, but only the "Big Island" of Hawaii, the youngest and southernmost in the archipelago, has active volcanoes. This "baby" of the islands, already almost twice as large as all the others combined, is still growing.

Hawaii Volcanoes National Park, like the island of Hawaii on which it is found, is an area of great contrasts: lush jungles and barren wastelands; snowclad mountains, rain forests and deserts; violent volcanoes and peaceful vistas. And, incidentally, it has been a national park much longer than the 10 years that Hawaii has been a state — it was established as a national park Aug. 1, 1916, as the 11th in the U.S. system.

You can drive through miles of volcano country in the park — and you can get out and walk on top of lava "lakes" and through a lava tube, if you like. At times you'll wonder if you got dumped on an eerie set for a science-fiction movie about other planets.

My wife, 4-year-old son Larry and I visited the "drive-in volcanoes" last month. We didn't see any eruptions, but we did get close enough to touch the lava that had flowed across a park road just last February, and, since our return to California, we have read of two recent eruptions that spewed lava across the same road.

It is understandable if a park visitor feels as uneasy as a child at a Boris Karloff film. However, the danger is said to be slight. For one reason, the volcanoes usually give notice before erupting; scientists at the Hawaii Volcanic Observatory keep an eye on seismographs and, when they detect tremors that are a prelude to fireworks, they send out warnings. Also, unlike certain steep, symmetrical-cone volcanoes that produce explosive eruptions, the Hawaii ones are "shield" volcanoes shaped like inverted saucers, with broad, rounded domes, and their lava usually is liberated comparatively gently in an eruption. Many of the eruptions aren't destructive at all, being confined to calderas or craters, without a bit of lava overflowing.

Eruptions don't panic island residents or tourists; instead, many of them rush to the site like movie-goers hurrying to see "I Am Curious." Scores of others outside the island immediately start making plans to get there as fast as possible. And inter-island airlines set up special volcano flights to take passengers over the eruptions for breath-taking views.

Lava shoreline adds to picturesqueness of Naniloa Hotel on Hilo Bay in Hilo.

THE ISLAND of Hawaii consists of five volcanic mountains and its skyline is dominated by two of them: 13,796-foot Mauna Kea in the northern half of the island (31,784 feet from its base on the ocean floor) and 13,680-foot Mauna Loa in the southern half. Mauna Kea is dormant; it hasn't erupted since the ice age. Mauna Loa and its little neighbor, the 4,000-foot Kilauea, are the island's two active volcanoes and both are within the 344-square-mile national park.

Of the two, Kilauea has been by far the most active in recent years. Whereas Mauna Loa's last upheaval was in 1950, Kilauea has had 15 eruptions since 1960.

The Mauna Loa eruption in June of 1950 produced one of the most voluminous flows ever recorded — about 600 million cubic yards of lava from a 13-mile fissure, or enough lava to pave a four-lane highway four times around the earth. A 1926 Mauna Loa flow destroyed the village of Hoopuloa. In 1935 and 1942 lava from Mauna Loa swept almost to Hilo, the island's largest city and the place where we stayed during our three-day visit to the "Big Island." (Part of Hilo is built on a lava flow less than 100 years old.) A 1949 Mauna Loa eruption continued for almost five months.

Less than 10 years ago — in November 1959 — the most spectacular eruption in Hawaii's recorded history occurred when Kilauea Iki spewed molten lava 1,900 feet into the air — by far the greatest fountain of lava ever seen in Hawaii and probably in the world. Lava poured into Kilauea Iki crater to a depth of 414 feet; today you can walk on it, although the interior will be hot for many years.

In early 1960, less than a month after the Kilauea Iki fireworks ended, lava broke out near the village of Kapoho 28 miles away and buried that village, after it had been evacuated; 70 homes in the area were covered up. This flow entered the ocean and added 500 acres to the island.

Kilauea Crater, about 4,000 feet above sea level, is the center of the "drive-in" volcanoes park. On the rim of this crater is perched Volcano House, a small hotel operated privately under a franchise from the U.S. Department of the Interior. Its dining room, open to the public as well as to overnight guests, is especially popular; while dining — or having a drink in the cocktail lounge — you can have a grandstand seat overlooking the crater. The summit caldera is 2 miles across and contains Halemaumau, the volcano's main fire pit or lava vent, which in 1968 boiled constantly for 251 days.

Kilauea Iki Crater, scene of the spectacular 1959 eruption, is a couple of miles away and there are numerous smaller craters within the park. The summit of giant Mauna Loa is not part of the "drive-in," but if you have the energy — and two or three days — you can climb the Mauna Loa Trail to the top. There are cabins at 10,000 feet and at the 13,680-foot summit, though I don't claim to have seen them. There also are camper cabins in more easily reached parts of the park.

WE SPENT a morning and an afternoon visiting the volcanoes park and the Kalapana Black Sands Beach area, driving the 30 miles from Hilo to the park in a rented car. Park headquarters, which is near Volcano House (there's also a volcano museum nearby), is where the 11.1-mile Crater Rim Drive loop begins — and ends. This takes you around Kilauea Iki and Kilauea craters, and there are a number of places where you can park for scenic views or to take short walks in the volcano country. (There's a foot trail around the craters, if you happen to want more exercise.)

One of the most fascinating side trips is a walk through a fern jungle to Thurston Lava Tube and the walk through the tube itself. This fairly dark (there are some lights in it) and damp tunnel extends nearly 500 feet and is hardly more than 6 feet high in some places. My wife, Larry and I were the only persons in it at the time, and I must admit I felt relieved to reach the end, though I wouldn't have wanted to miss it. The tube was formed eons ago when the outer crust of a lava flow

ABC Series to View Problems of Blacks

ABC News' critically-acclaimed "Summer Focus, 1969" documentary series, which offered the specials "War in the Mideast?" and "Abortion" during June, continues at 10 p.m. Thursday, on channel 7 with "It Can Be Done."

"It Can Be Done" is the first program of the season in the "Time for Americans" series, a subdivision of "Summer Focus, 1969" which addresses itself to race relations and the problems of racial discord. Executive producer for "Time for Americans" is Stephen Fleischman.

The 1968 "Time for Americans" series dealt with the emotionally-charged issue of white racism and its offshoots, one of which is black racism. In 1969, the series looks at the race situation today, after a solid year of confrontation, exposure of the many problems, and the diversity of reactions.

In March the Urban Coalition issued a report stating that white racism still dominates race relations and the the nation is still moving in the direction of two socities, separate and unequal. The report reviewed developments since the issuance of the Kerner Commission report.

This season, "Time for Americans" explores and exposes those areas where the conflict remains most critical and allows the viewers to draw this own conclusions.

PAN AND FAN MAIL

I heartily agree with Sue Broas (Pan and Fan Mail of June 8 Tele Vues) that it is terrible "The Big Valley" has gone off the air. It has been my favorite show too, ever since it came on, and I never missed one show.

I enjoyed all of the cast, and was pleased that the same ones remained throughout the entire series. I felt like I really knew the Barkley family.

The stories relating to early California history were all good, and the color and photography were all excellent. I'll never be able to accept the "Dick Cavett Show" as a replacement. One night of that was enough.

I am writing a letter of protest to Elton Rule, ABC president in New York for what little good it will do, and wish more people who enjoyed the "Big Valley" would do the same.

How the Nielsen ratings are attained mystifies me. Why did the "Big Valley" have to be canceled?
J. C. Ross, Long Beach

(Let us know if ABC responds.)

How can I get tickets to watch the filming of a Dark Shadows" episode?

Also, who was the character called "Nicholas Blair's Dark Shadows is a great show.
Joe Wood, Long Beach

(The show is filmed in a studio without audience. Sorry. Still running down "Blair" for you.)

Where do you go to sign for Pay TV? I'd like to be among the first. I haven't turned my set on since the Jonathan Win-hardened while the molten center part flowed on.

Another "must" side jaunt is the walk across Devastation Trail, a boardwalk extending a half-mile over lava cinders and amid the bleached skeletons of ohia trees, an out-of-this-world scene created by the 1959 Kilauea Iki fireworks. Here, too, the three of us felt very much to ourselves, as there was not another person on the boardwalk trail.

You also can take a mile-long walk across the steaming Kilauea Iki floor to check the thermometer in a hole drilled through the lava crust to fluid magma. And you can peer into Halemaumau's fire pit from an observation platform; visit the nation's only permanent volcano observatory; and marvel at billows of steam and sulfurous vapors rising near you through deep fissures or vents.

If you wish, you can turn off Crater Rim Drive to Mauna Loa Strip Road and go to Bird Park, 100 acres of lush vegetation, and then drive from Bird Park up 10 miles of unpaved road to an overlook at 6,662 feet on Mauna Loa, where an 18-mile hiking trail starts to Mokuaweoweo fire pit atop the mountain.

Branching south off Crater Rim Drive is the Chain of Craters Road, which is the route we would have taken to Kalapana had the road not been blocked by last February's lava flow from Alae Crater of Kilauea volcano. We did drive as far as permitted, to a roadblock about a mile from the lava flow, then walked the rest of the distance to the flow, feeling like explorers. Two eruptions since we left Hawaii have sent more lava across the same road.

Kaimu (Kalapana) Black Sands Beach is one of the island of Hawaii's most famous spots, and it was well worth going out of our way to see. The black beach was formed as lava flowing into the ocean exploded into bits and then was ground finer by wave action. Rows of coconut palms line the beach, and coconuts are often to be found on the beach.

Akaka Falls State Park, featuring a falls that plunges 420 feet in a sheer drop over a volcanic cliff, a picturesque stream, a second falls and a hilly trail through jungle country, is another major attraction in the Hilo area. It is 16 miles north of the city through sugar cane country.

HILO ITSELF is a city of considerable interest, with an annual rainfall of about 150 inches and a variety of large trees, plants and flowers. We had flown to Hilo from Honolulu on a 60-minute trip that included a 20-minute stopover at the airport in Kahului on the island of Maui. The flight affords good views of several of the Hawaiian islands and costs only $5 when arranged with your round trip from California (we returned to the mainland from Hilo, rather than Honolulu).

It is quickly apparent that Hilo is quite different from Honolulu. It is a quiet seashore town of about 25,000, and the pace is slower. (There are only about 65,000 residents on the island of Hawaii, compared with about 600,000 on the much smaller Oahu.) Downtown Hilo doesn't look like a tourist town at all; most of the city's hotels are bunched on a picturesque peninsula jutting into Hilo Bay, and they are much smaller than the major ones in Honolulu. We stayed at the largest, the new Naniloa Hotel on the tip of the peninsula, which has 207 air-conditioned rooms in a 12-story and a six-story wing. From our eighth-floor room we could look across the bay toward the Pacific or inland to see the snow-capped Mauna Kea and the Mauna Loa.

In Hilo, as in Honolulu, there is considerable evidence that an ever-increasing flow of tourists is expected. Under construction at the Naniloa is another wing of 184 rooms, while the Hilo Bay Hotel, next door, also is expanding, and nearby a Travelodge Hotel is nearing completion.

Hawaii is known not only as the "Big Island" but also as the "Orchid Island," and for good reason. You can visit several orchid nurseries and tropical gardens in the city of Hilo. Orchids were even left on our bed pillows each night by the hotel's night maids.

With such treatment as that, and with so much to see in and near Hilo, our three days on the "Big Island" passed much too quickly. I've been to some double-feature movies that seemed to last longer.

THE JIMMIE RODGERS SHOW
CBS-TV, June 16, 10-11 p.m.

Summer sub for the "Carol Burnett show," this non-flashy musical-variety hour is remarkable for the manner of its host, Jimmie Rodgers, who appears to be trying for "nice guy" of the year votes. He'll win, too, if the pace of the opening program is maintained through the hot months. The intimacy of television craves a performer who not only is acceptable but appealing on a weekly basis and Rodgers has that spark.

For the premiere, Rodgers was joined by guest stars Wayne Newton and Dana Valery. Their musical highlights included a duet by Jimmie and Wayne to "Dreams of an Everyday Housewife," their voices harmonizing in an eerie but pleasant style. Miss Valery's solo number, "Surround Yourself With Sorrow," was okay but obviously prerecorded. In all the numbers, production values were minimal, not for economy, but to focus proper attention on the performer.

Other segs included a rather too cute "home movie" bit titled "Overground Movies," which smacked of "Laugh-In" antics. Nancy Austin soored in a rousing takeoff on old Hollywood musicals, singing "I'm the Last of the Bushy Berkeley Girls," and a sketch pointing to the perils of a future where vending machines dispense weddings came off in fine style. Throughout the show, Rodgers played the perfect host, at ease in all departments.

Joe Hamilton is exec producer, with Robert Wright and Ernest Flatt serving as co-producers. Dave Powers directed, Barry Blitzer and Ray Brenner supervised the writing. Frank Comstock's musical direction was on the mark. Supporting cast included Lyle Waggoner, Vicki Lawrence, Nancy Austin, Bill Fanning, Don Crichton and the appealing Burgundy Street Singers, seven men and three girls from Kansas State U. All are assured summer jobs. — Bob Hull.

DEAN MARTIN PRESENTS THE GOLDDIGGERS
Thurs., 10-11 p.m. NBC-TV)

Lou Rawls and Gail Martin, with a bright assist from Paul Lynde of the specialized humor, were on hand to help a dozen Golddiggers mine for ore and they all struck paydirt. Breezy summer replacement for Dino, though borrowing songs and choreo from past days and stereotyped shows, and lifting blackouts from vaude, had an unusual freshness, particularly in the case of the Rawls-Martin-Lynde combo. Surefire fare is heavy-leaning on comedic abilities of exuberant Lynde and Rawls, with light spots by Albert Brooks and Stanley Myron Handelman.

Les Brown's band is in there all the time giving a big hand to those 12 little ladies. Exec producer Greg Garrison and director Robert Sidney have spent time on priming talent, including song-and-dance men Tommy Tune and Danny Lockin, with Miss Martin being a focal point. Doing their pleasing chores without top-heavy sets, cast tosses one-liners around, makes everything — or almost everything — sound brand new and shining.

Choreographer Jonathan Lucas used black-and-white checkered floor to show off his Golddiggers and their charms, moved entire cast around with chesslike precision, and, abandoning the hopeless problem of attempting to create something "new," i.e., different, worked successfully with what he had. Sifting material from the 1920's, 30's and 40's, Lucas and music producer

Investment in Happiness

By Ellen Krec

OVERBUILDING is always a serious consideration, but to Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Moreno adding two bedrooms, bath and family room in a two-story growth not only increased the liveability but also the value.

With the decision the Morenos re-established their preference for the Lakewood area where Carl, 6, attends school. The section is comfortably established with well-cared-for homes and fine neighbors.

Another consideration was the fully paid mortgage which allowed the Morenos to consider the remodeling a comfortable financial burden.

"We looked at the new homes before we decided," says Mrs. Moreno, "but the payments seemed so high. Then, too, we thought it would be fun to do something with our own home instead of working with someone else's."

"I love my home," says Mrs. Moreno, "and most of my activities are geared toward homemaking with the exception of church work."

Moreno finds the piano in the den just right for an at-home hobby when he isn't gardening.

The family tried to live in the dwelling while the remodeling was in process, but discovered it was too dirty and inconvenient, so they moved in with friends for the three months it took to complete.

"We did everything together," Mrs. Moreno says. "To date each room is complete with the exception of the accessories, which take time."

Among the more serious decisions was the carpeting and the final selection in rose, pink and lime Victorian bouquet was installed throughout the home and "we never have been sorry."

Originally the 20-year-old home contained two bedrooms and one bath. The expansion provided a wide-enough-for-a-stereo cabinet foyer complete with a trio of ornamental iron arches dividing the living room.

A formal living room was remodeled, incorporating a small dining alcove; a balcony kitchen above the spacious family and dining room includes an appliance enclosure at one wall.

The many changes in the living room include an arched brick fireplace with slender obscure glass panels at each side. The former front porch also was incorporated into the living room and it ends with a wide bay window now draped with lime velvet and creamy antique satin.

Mrs. Robert L. Moreno visits with Carl in living room.

French and Italian classic furnishings include a pair of violet velvet wing chairs and a semi-circular brocade sofa curved at the wall and entrance. The graceful arches expose two chandeliers at the entry and a mirrored guest closet.

"All of the living room walls were cut up," according to Mrs. Moreno, "making it difficult for furniture placement. We changed the kitchen entrance from the center of the wall to the end, and that gave us a large enough expanse for the sofa."

"We had to make a fast decision on the window seat," Mrs. Moreno admits. "So far we haven't decided how to use it, but it may be just the place for plants."

The functional kitchen combines stained walnut cabinets and white tile, but unusual decorator touches include a band of red stained glass in the luminous ceiling and an arched cook center that opens to the family room.

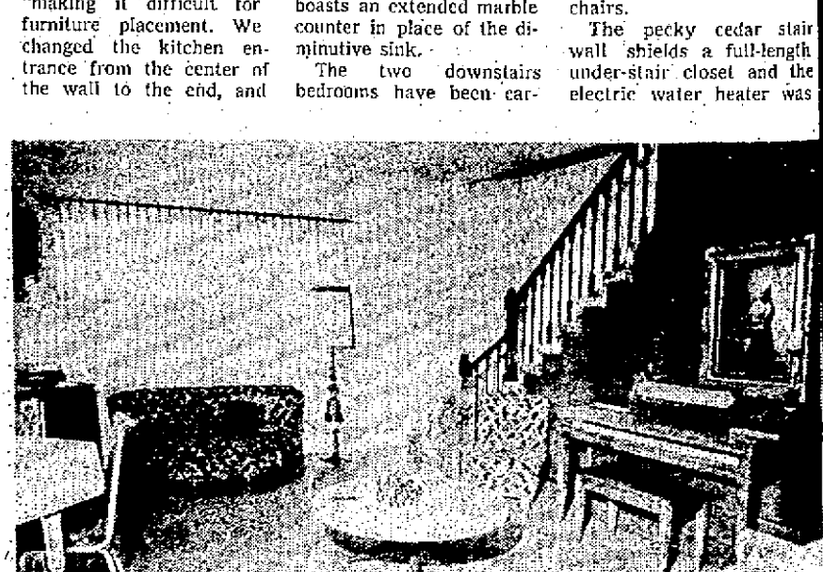

The so-small bath downstairs took an L-turn in the remodeling and now boasts an extended marble counter in place of the diminutive sink.

The two downstairs bedrooms have been carpeted and repainted to serve, one as a guest room, where Mrs. Moreno also keeps her at-home work, and the other as a growing playroom for Carl.

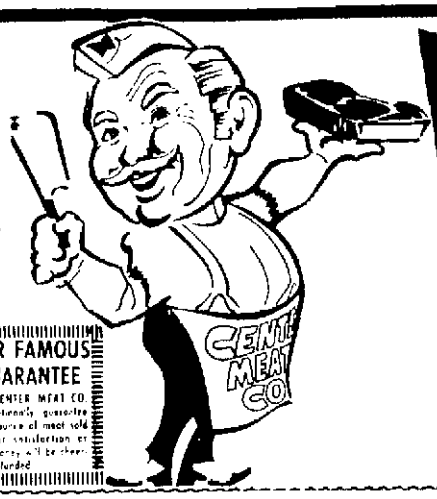

The playroom also includes a blue and green plaid capped bed, shelved units around the window and "Sugar," the Persian cat, makes her home in the sometimes "disaster room."

The family room supplies dining space near the patio exit, and former living room furniture was shifted to add a colorful touch in blue and green cut velvet sofa and wedge chairs.

The pecky cedar stair wall shields a full-length under-stair closet and the electric water heater was

AIR OF DISASTER, 6 p.m. (4) discusses candidly what the prospects are for survival in cities already choked by air pollution. Sander Vanocur takes viewers on a visit to 11 urban areas — including the Los Angeles metropolitan region — for first hand inspections of potential disaster scenes.

BACKSTAGE WITH THE KING FAMILY, 7 p.m. (11) gives viewers a relaxed, behind-the-scenes look at this musical clan. they deliver 18 selections in the color show, focusing on different family members.

THE SOUTHLAND AT HOME

Carl finds parents' bedroom place to inspect shoe.

encased in walnut to blend with the kitchen cabinets.

Open-weave linen draperies were hung on wrought iron poles.

Floral carpeting covers the iron-railed stairs leading to the second story where Carl enjoys a bright bedroom and deck.

Blond oak furniture increases the spacious quality of Carl's sleeping room where a fixed desk forms schoolwork space.

Agile Carl likes baseball, bicycles and bees with some time for ice skating.

The railed balcony is off limits for a few years because the typical little boy found the jump a delight. When his mother discovered he had a trial jump from a neighbor's garage then "forgot" and jumped from the deck, the "off limits" sign went up.

Carl appreciates the newly renovated home as much as his parents and likes nothing better than taking his friends on a tour, including the storage.

Great - great - grandfather's portrait in a military uniform accents the compact hall leading to the master bedroom.

Antique avocado headboard and night chests are contrasted by pink and white in the master bedroom where Carl's baby photograph is the sentimental touch.

A mirrored dressing room leads to the two-way bath where a generous shower and dual pullman are enclosed with antique white cabinets and accessorized with bright red.

A tri-level roof tops the white - stucco - chocolate - trim home. A raised red brick planter lines the bay window with azaleas.

The wedge rose garden borders the walk between the garage and the entrance where deeply carved double doors set the decorative pace.

The $20,000 plus remodeling cost and the more than $10,000 invested in home furnishings have enhanced the small tract home dramatically but, first and foremost, the Morenos insist it is home for the family.

Alcove cook center provides see-through space.

Peach Dessert

By Mildred Flanary

Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

Really peachy.

YOUR FAMILY WILL love this one — fresh juicy peaches in a flaky pie shell, topped with a rich crumb mixture and baked until golden brown. Serve while still slightly warm with fluffy whipped cream and a dash of nutmeg, or with a scoop of vanilla ice cream. Spiced tea, served hot or iced, makes a nice accompaniment with an alternate choice of milk for the young set.

FRESH PEACH PIE

Crumb Topping.
- ½ cup soft butter or margarine
- 1 cup cereal crumbs or crushed cornflakes
- 1 tsp. cinnamon
- ¼ tsp. nutmeg
- ½ cup brown sugar
- 1 pastry stick
- 4 cups sliced fresh California Peaches (4-6 medium)
- ½ cup sugar (¼ cup brown sugar may be used if desired)
- ¼ tsp. salt
- 1 tbsp. lemon juice
- 3 tbsp. tapioca

Prepare unbaked 9-inch pie shell according to package directions, with ruffled edge. Blend ingredients for Crumb Topping. Start heating oven to 425 deg. F. In the meantime, peel and slice peaches; combine with sugar, salt, lemon juice and tapioca. Turn into unbaked pie shell and sprinkle with Crumb Topping. Cover with a loose sheet of aluminum foil and bake at 425 deg. F. for 20 minutes. Remove foil; bake 20 minutes longer, or until fruit is tender and topping is golden-brown.

THE NOT HOT HOT DOG AND BEYOND

Given one package of Hormel Wieners, you can serve them as is, or jazz them up.

Hot Dog Canoes

10 slices bread, crust removed, buttered
5 slices Cheddar cheese
2 tbsp. prepared mustard

For each canoe: Top bread with half slice of cheese, spread with mustard, and center with a hot dog. Bring two 2 opposite corners of bread to almost meet atop hot dogs. Fasten with toothpicks. Bake in 350° oven 8 to 10 minutes. Makes 10 canoes.

Teen Wiener Toast

6 slices day-old bread
2 beaten eggs
½ cup milk
4 to 6 Hormel Wieners

Mix eggs and milk. Dip each slice of bread into egg mixture. Brown on both sides in bacon fat. Split wieners almost in half lengthwise. Brown in same skillet with French toast. Serve atop toast with orange marmalade or honey. 2 to 3 servings.

THE SUNDAY BACON DAY AND NIGHT

Bacon as irresistible as Hormel's Black Label deserves some special treatment.

Bacon Roll-ups

Wrap ½ slice of Hormel Black Label Bacon around your choice or assortment of: stuffed green olives, pickles, onions, pineapple chunks, cubes of raw liver. Fasten with toothpick. Arrange on rack; bake in 400° oven 25 minutes or until bacon is crisp.

Potato Egg Scramble

12 slices Hormel Black Label Bacon
1 med. onion, chopped
4-5 cooked potatoes, diced
6 eggs
Salt and pepper

Cut up Black Label Bacon, fry until crisp. Pour off ¾ of fat, add potatoes and onion. Fry until light brown. Add eggs, scramble. Salt and pepper to taste. Makes 4 servings.

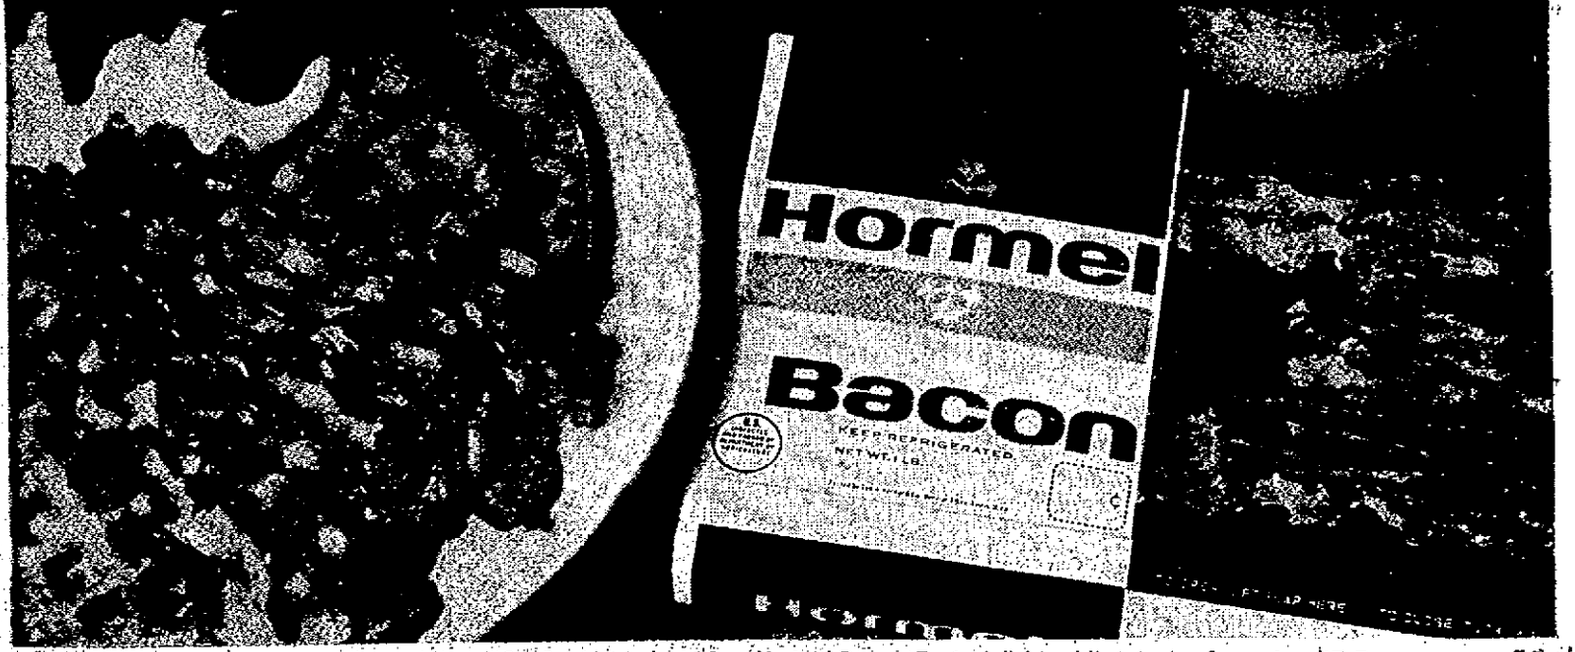

The not hot hot dogs.

They're not too spicy for kids. Hormel all-meat wieners. These are the dogs kids go for. Just a pinch of spice in every pound of good, red meat.

CRITICS' CORNER

Lee Hale brushed up the past and unashamedly presented it with new paint but solid inside. Rawls came up with two outstanding numbers, "My Buddy" and "St. Louis Blues." Gail Martin's "He Loves Me" held sentiment within tasteful bounds, and here teaming with Rawls on some oldies was a high point.

Top comedy by Tune, Rawls and Lynde was a military school bit. Lynde's answering-service routine sagged, but when Brooks led viewers into ventriloquist vignette without warning, it was great for yocks. Celebrities as children stunt was just okay, but speakeasy bit was on line.

Writers were Stan Daniels, Ray Jessel, George Bloom, Norm Liebmann, Ed Scharlach, Tom Tenowich, Gene Moss, Jim Thurman and Rich Eustis and Al Rogers.

First show in summer sub series had excellent audio by Bill Levitsk and video by Ed Huston. Tune.

60 MINUTES

(Tuesday, 10 p.m., CBS-TV)

CBS sent two of its top reporters to Africa to search the background and events of the war between Nigeria and Biafra. The useful and interesting "60 Minutes" Tuesday night told of their findings.

Harry Reasoner explained the Biafran situation, partly on the scene. Mike Wallace went to Nigeria. In addition to an unbiased report, the program's long segment was commendably unemotional.

It comprised a cram course on the three-year-old conflict in which an estimated million persons have lost their lives. Reasoner and Wallace sketched — quickly, clearly and effectively — the causes of the trouble. In 1967, the Ibo tribe seceded from young Nigeria and ever since has been fighting to remain independent.

The brutal facts of starvation in Biafra were not glossed over, but at the program's end, the viewer saw Nigeria's determination to pull Biafra back into its national fold and was aware of another important element in the conflict: Nigeria's and Biafra's background mineral wealth, notably oil. The former, Wallace said, received $300,000 last year in oil royalties.

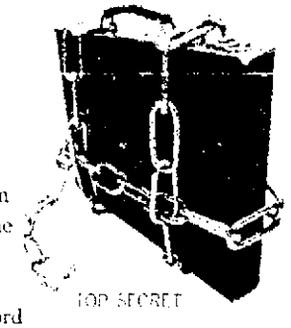

The statistics, the grim facts of life, were all included in the lively, informative report. There were descriptions of Biafra's rag-tag army and it showed recruits, fresh from the bush, learning to march to the strains of "Margie."

On the Nigerian side, Wallace reported that its army of 6,000 crack British-trained troops has expanded to 85,000-cared for by 11 doctors; that Britain and the Soviet Union are supplying fire power; that the United States is avoiding involvement.

The feature was followed by a short and charming segment showing a group of school children in a New York slum putting on a play, the musical "Fiddler on the Roof." A memorable bit was a 13-year-old Negro boy made up with beard and steel-rimmed spectacles to look like a Jewish elder living in a foreign ghetto.

Finally there was a report on the research and experimentation which has led to the development of a vaccine expected to be as effective a weapon against German measles.

Herculon Effort

Interior BOUTIQUE

By Ellen Krec

Bold and beautiful floral print emphasizes luxurious as well as practical qualities of Herculon.

WHAT ARE LITTLE dreams made of? For that matter, let's think big . . . what are big dreams made of?

So relative is the answer that I shall take one portion of mankind, the housewife, and attempt a collection of dreams I share with the average overworked, generally underpaid and hopefully much loved wife and mother.

Take for granted blessings such as your 17-year-old son walking away from an accident, scholarships to a university you otherwise couldn't afford, salary increases, husband's promotion and a new car.

Little blessings are welcome, too, such as not having to ask your husband to paint a room, mow the lawn or take you out to dinner.

And then comes the really unexpected, such as discovering your new wallpaper really washes, and your carpeting is all it was advertised to be, so your 12-hour workday isn't shortened by much, but at least it is satisfying.

Thanks to a new fabric, you might check off a few more minutes of your time spent warning the children to "get those shoes off the sofa," chasing the dog from his comfortable spot on the corner of the newly upholstered chair and hoping your friends haven't polished their black shoes before they visit you — and your new sofa.

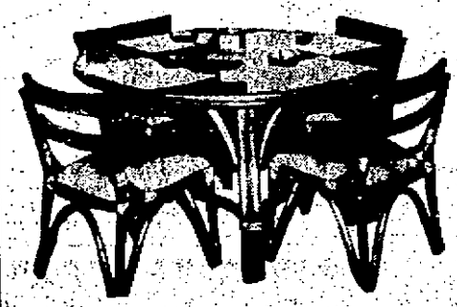

Herculon is the latest dream home furnishing fiber. It was developed originally for those easy care carpets, but the producers of the polypropylene olefin fiber were in an expansive move and have extended it (or extruded it) to include socks, diapers and, finally, upholstery fabric.

What a joy to be able to wipe up spilled drinks, sponge off marks with detergent suds, and discover the same fabric is mildew-proof (great for boats and seaside living) and insect-proof.

The bold black and white hound's tooth fabric is woven to fit the most avant furniture while a gentle Victorian bouquet would not suffer at all under the cozy roof of the provincial lovers.

Interior BOUTIQUE

Colorful printed fabrics have been designed carefully to blend with each home furnishings fashion in a unique printing process that penetrates the thickness of the fabric from front to back rather than a topside design.

Since we live in California, we can be adequately assured of the colorfast qualities. The tests were made in the much hotter Florida sun and, if they were successful, surely our balmy weather will prove ideal.

Good to know that people at Hercules Incorporated are interested in the harried housewife!

Other uses for this fabric can stretch as far as your imagination or your budget.

Consider a wallcovering that really is washable, colorfast and beautiful as well.

Draperies might be ideal in Herculon . . . no lining necessary, since it doesn't fade and needs only an occasional good brushing and infrequent cleaning.

Your outdoor furniture could be topped admirably with a matching or compatible indoor fabric . . . it behaves the same indoors or outdoors.

If your smoking friends are incautious, the only damage is melting but your furniture won't go up in flames!

While I passed to look at and feel the array of fashion fabrics, I thought of other uses that might increase our visual pleasure.

I am afraid I had a bit of a tendency to pontificate about the wider range of uses, but the one nearest to my color-loving heart is automobiles.

Generally speaking, car owners are divided into hedonists and utilitarians. The hedonists lean toward the fully equipped, lavish, long and luxurious, chrome and leather transportation. The utilitarians thrive on stick shifts, compacts and no nonsense.

Both accomplish the same thing, but the sensual pleasures are either stimulated or ignored.

I fall somewhere in between since I like functional cars but I wish I had air conditioning!

But why can't we have something more than mortuary upholstery? Does it always have to be gray or beige? Every year the auto designers tell us they have a new interior designer, but in all the years I have been driving the only change I have noted has been from leather to vinyl.

Is there any reason we can't have print, check or plaid seats, especially since we have fabrics such as Herculon to depend on? I mean seatcovers that come with the car, not custom made to add to the expense. Those seats are in and out in an instant, so why can't they be changed quickly if you wish to be cheered by a bower of flowers?

Can't you just visualize the freeway on a gloomy day with each car distinctively cheered from the inside as masses of flowers or pert checks drive by, giving you something to see instead of grim gray or boring beige?

Viet Critic Fulbright Airs Views

Senator William Fulbright, persistent critic of the Vietnam policies of Presidents Johnson and Nixon, will be interviewed on ABC News' "Issues and Answers" at 1:30 p.m., Sunday, on Channel 7.

The Democrat from Arkansas, who chairs the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, will be interviewed by ABC News State Department correspondent John Scali and Capitol Hill correspondent Bob Clark.

Senator Fulbright has expressed sharp disagreement with President Nixon on Vietnam, on the ABM system and, most recently, on the President's attitude toward the critics of the military.

In a speech at the United States Air Force Academy, the President told the graduating class, "You are under attack from those who question the need for a strong national defense and who, indeed, see a danger in the power of the defenders." Mr. Nixon also accused opponents of the military of exhibiting a "new isolationism."

In a rebuttal, the senator called the President's address "a form of demagoguery that was very fashionable in the time of his own colleague, Joe McCarthy."

Nabokov's Greatest

BY VIRTUALLY complete critical agreement, Vladimir Nabokov is the greatest of living prose writers in the English language.

As was the case with another such "finest" writer, Joseph Conrad, who was, of course, born a Pole, English is not Nabokov's natural tongue. He was, in fact, 40 when his first work written in English was published. Had he not chosen to change to the new language, Nabokov would certainly have become the greatest living writer in Russian—a writer not without honor save in his own country, for his works are forbidden in the Soviet Union.

As an exile who wrote, in Europe, under the name of Sirin, he was the author of such novels in Russian as "The Defense," "King, Queen, Knave," "Invitation to a Beheading," and "The Gift" (all of which have been translated into English), gems of the purest ray. (In a typical Nabokovian switch, he has translated "Lolita" from the English in which it was written, into Russian).

Nabokov's newest novel "Ada" has been published by McGraw-Hill ($7.95). Like all Nabokov's works, it is not a book you gallop through. It is (and this has become a Nabokov hallmark), a many-layered masterpiece.

It may not be as "simple" as "The Valley of the Dolls" (may we survive the curse we deserve for mentioning the two in the same breath) or even "Portnoy's Complaint," but neither does it need exegetical keys to unlock its secrets, like "Ulysses." It is not the inextricable maze of puzzles some critics have been wont to make of a Nabokov book, as Mary McCarthy, for instance, did with "Pale Fire." Critics are sometimes inclined to take all the joy out of Nabokov by seeing meanings which are not there, and which Nabokov himself keeps protesting are not there.

"Ada" proves once again that Nabokov, above all, knows exceedingly well how to tell an entertaining tale.

In "Ada" he has created a world of his own, Antiterra, in which he has rewritten both geography and history, and where, in uninhibited style (which will please "Lolita" readers) the story of a long, happy love affair unfolds. Ada's protagonist, Van Veen, puts it thus:

"Ada" is a simple and delightful chronicle whose principal part is staged in dream-bright America. On the fabulous country estate of his art-collecting uncle . . . an ardent childhood romance develops between Van and pretty Ada, a truly unusual gamin . . . That the relationship is not simply dangerous cousinage, but possesses an aspect prohibited by law, is hinted in the very first pages."

In "Ada," America (for history had taken this strange turn) is a land of Russian-Americans, who speak an Anglo-Russian-French. Counterposed to it is Terra, as bad a place as Antiterra is good.

The intricacies of plot (far from impossible to understand), the Nabokov wit and puns, the imaginative genius, make "Ada" the author's finest work.

Israel's Armor

THE TANKS OF TAMMUZ. By Shabtai Teveth. Viking, $6.95.

Victory by Israel in the Six Day War on the ground can be credited to the Armored Corps which smashed Egyptian defenses on the Sinai peninsula, swept to the Suez Canal and won the battle for the Syrian heights and the west bank of the Jordan.

This book is a dramatic eyewitness account of this tank warfare from the earliest border incidents to one of the biggest armored battles of all times.

It is the story of a classic battle, of men and their machines, of citizen soldiers forced by circumstances to depart from the traditions of their own army.

In the words of Gen. Moshe Dayan, " The Tanks of Tammuz" is "an outstanding book, the best I have read about our wars . . . written with love, pain and profound insight."

The author is considered one of the most distinguished journalists in Israel. He served with the armored corps during the 1967 war. — Bill Shelton.

Race and Games

THE BLACK ATHLETE. By Jack Olsen. Time-Life Books, $4.95.

Life for the average black professional athlete is much better than that of his counterpart elsewhere in the society.

But is it true — as the myth has it — that the field of sports has been good to the Negro?

Black athletes would say no, according to what Olsen learned when he queried them.

They are dissatisfied, disgruntled and disillusioned.

They say they are dehumanized, exploited and discarded.

Professional sports offer them opportunity for financial gain, they admit, but not equality of treatment.

One example: in pro football, quarterback is a position banned to Negroes.

Another: the Negro college-scholarship athlete, while lionized on the field, confronts ostracism on campus.

Olsen sees the "shameful story" of the black athlete as a microcosm of the total racial problem in the U.S.

His is a view that will be challenged — but the facts are there to support him.—Jim Goodrich.

Seawoman

WOMAN ABOARD. By Janet Stevenson. Crown, $5.95.

This is another of those sagas of the sea, the story of a woman and three men who sailed a small yacht 10,000 miles to the South Seas and back.

The voyage brought them harrowing challenges and the special comradeship of adventure—not limited to the sea itself.

As the Aikane set out from California, (Playa del Rey Harbor) the narrator demanded to be treated as a full member of the crew, with no special treatment because of her sex. She hauled sail, stood watch and shared all the suspenses of the journey.—Bill Shelton.

And Try Not to Miss . . .

TIME AND THE RIVER FLOWING: Grand Canyon. By Francois Ledet. Edited By David Brower. Sierra Club-Ballantine Books, $3.95.

A paperbound, only slightly abridged edition of the lavish Sierra Club book singing the glories and splendors of the Grand Canyon. There are 95 full color photographs.

THE CANNIBALS. By Keefe Braselle. Bartholomew House, $6.95.

A savagely outspoken novel about some of television's big shots, in particular Jonathan J. Bingham, president of BCA Television Network who played with the lives of people as he did with Nielsen ratings, and made it pay handsomely, and also about his arranger and enforcer, Joey Bertell.

The Gift of a Bookmark

By Ruth C. Ikerman

ONE OF THE easiest souvenirs to make for a group meeting is the simple bookmark which is useful in any home. Sometimes if a child has his very own bookmark it will encourage an interest in reading. Making bookmarks can be an interesting pastime for old or young, as this craft results in attractive gifts.

A good place to start is with a yard of ribbon which can be cut into six bookmarks of six inches each—or they can be made smaller if you choose. Using hobby paints and a small water color brush, apply gold shading to the edges, or tiny dots in modernistic geometric patterns, or write the name of the recipient.

If painting is not to your liking, fall back on paste and cut-out pictures, which may be flowers from a seed catalogue, or a favorite snapshot from a summer vacation. Pictures of children delight grandparents when these snapshots are cut into circles and pasted on a length of ribbon.

Personalizing the ribbon with initials cut from construction paper is another way of making this a very special gift. This is true in organizations as well as families. Apply a large English block letter, one for each last name in the membership list.

With curiosity aroused, new members will ask, "What does the R stand for?" and conversation is started at meetings. Have someone stationed at the table near the door to make such bookmarks for new arrivals at a general meeting.

If these are not used every time, try the special favor of a bookmark at seasonal meetings by pasting a flower or fruit seal onto a green or brown ribbon to suggest the decoration colors.

A plastic flower with a long stem makes a lovely bookmark for a woman's study course. Let the flower stand out at the top of the page as the book rests on the living room table, and it is a helpful reminder to pick up the book and study the next chapter.

Felt emblems for bookmarks make gifts of lasting pleasure. Just attach the cut out emblem, either by a few sewing stitches or by securing it with paste, to a crocheted length of green yarn made in chain stitch the desired length.

Such emblems can be the familiar red apple or golden orange of the Southern California orchards. Cut the colored felt into circles so that two can be pasted together with the crocheted link in between. Put such emblems at each end of the crocheted marker. When they are firmly in place, add tiny green leaves cut from felt, and a white circle of felt to represent the blossom.

Flower patterns may be substituted for the fruit, and these are not difficult to make if they are cut from heavy outing flannel with flower designs imprinted. Or crochet a circle and add a scalloped edging finish with contrasting color yarn to the green which forms the long marking part of the bookmark, slim enough to insert between pages.

Golden or silver metallic thread can be used to crochet effective bookmarks for religious reading. Those experienced in such handwork sometimes fashion these in the shape of a cross or a crown, but even children can learn to make a straight slim line of the gold or silver. Crocheted in single or double stitch, a simple line marker makes a dignified and reverent gift for devotional books.

Nobody ever has too many bookmarks, and a nice gift from children is an assortment of such markers. Take old gift wrapping paper and cut it in proper lengths. If it is too thin to be used as it is, paste the design on a piece of cardboard from the back of a writing tablet, or cut from a packing box.

Remember the hobby interests of the one who is to receive the gift, and find items which remind of this sport in looking through old catalogues for golf sticks, footballs or baseballs. Bookmarks can be masculine in theme and thus appeal to uncles and cousins as well as father and grandfather.

Cut pictures of kittens and puppies from old coloring books and put on ribbon or cloth strips for markers for children's books. The insertion of such a gift by a grandmother may be the extra push a child needs to spend more time in reading his very own books.

Essentially the bookmark souvenir shows that the one who made it cares for the individual or the group, and wishes continued happiness in reading about the organization or following personal interests.

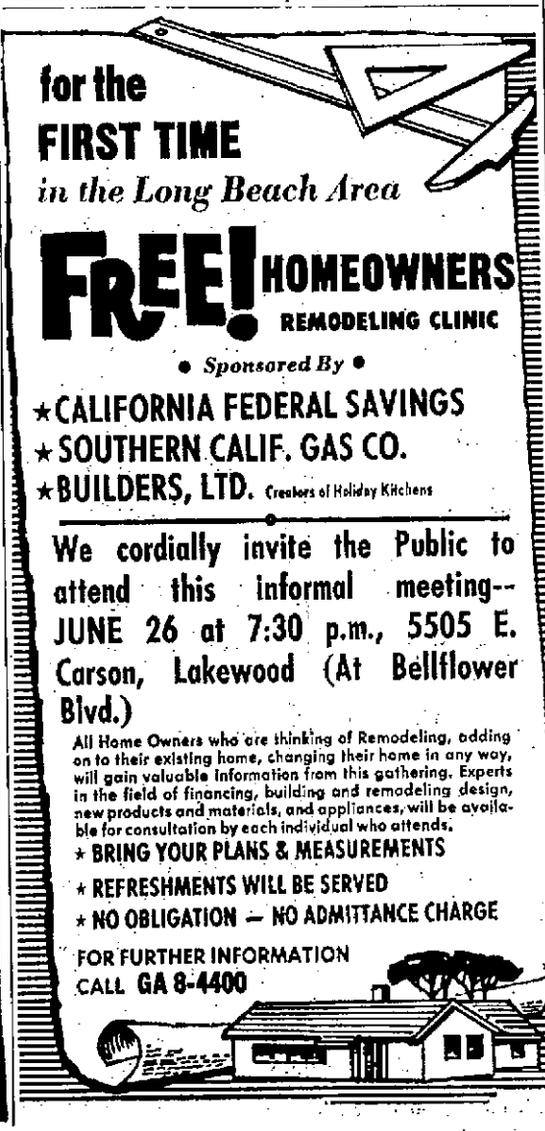

'Golden Words for Every Day'

RUTH C. IKERMAN, a frequent contributor to Southland Magazine, is the author of a book published this month by Abingdon Press entitled "Golden Words for Every Day."

Mrs. Ikerman, a Redlands homemaker and author, has written extensively on religious subjects. In her latest book she presents brief devotions, one for each day of the year, using verses of Scripture, short devotional messages and prayers to help readers meet the challenges of day-to-day living.

The book is priced at $2.95.

STAR-STUDDED SHOWCASE

Mama Cass Does Her Thing

Cass Elliot, who gained fame as a member of a crowd — the Mamas and the Papas group — likes the idea of being on her own. And she likes television even more.

"Records can be a bad trip," she explained while taping her ABC-TV special. "The audience can play your mistakes over and over. In a television special, they see you once and you work hard to make sure they're seeing you at your best.

"Of course, live audiences are the greatest of all," she continued. "You have the audience right there communicating with you."

"The Mama Cass Television Program," which will air at 9 p.m., on Channel 7, is the longest time she has worked in front of a TV camera. "When the Mamas and the Papas were on TV," she recalled, "I'd just come out, do my thing and that would be it.

"This," she added, "is hard work." The wilt was real, but she is pleased with her special. "It's low key. It would be pretentious for me to do a show that wasn't."

Her guests June 26 include Buddy Hackett and Martin Landau and Barbara Bain.

That's not really performing alone, but for someone used to working with a group, it's truly solo. And Mama Cass hedged even more — to the extent of having several of her folk-singing friends with her — Mary Travers, Joni Mitchell and John Sebastian.

"I'm grateful to them for appearing. After nine years as a member of a mob scene, I don't want to be too alone."

Festival of Gardens, Lights and Fountains Under Way

THE SIXTH biennial Festival of Gardens, Lights and Fountains opened Saturday and will continue through Aug. 10 at Descanso Gardens in La Canada. The exhibit features the work of landscape architects and designers, plus new creations of fountain and lighting manufacturers in a 10-acre display of beauty.

Sponsored by the Descanso Gardens Guild, Inc., the festival presents 25 individually created garden areas planned to demonstrate new approaches in garden designs that combine practical applications with imaginative use of lighting and water displays.

The festival borrows its theme from California's bicentennial anniversary and features early California gardens that stress the Spanish influence in patios, adobe walls and ornate tile pools and fountains.

Located at 1418 Descanso Drive in La Canada, the Gardens will remain open during the festival from 8 a.m. until 10 p.m. The Oriental Tea House, a favorite of garden visitors and a gift of the Descanso Gardens Guild, is open from 11 a.m. until 10 p.m. There is no admission charge to the festival, and ample room for visitor parking.

What Your Name Means

plain OMOHUNDRO. — R.T., Seal Beach.

OMOHUNDRO, French and Spanish, is a dialect form of the medieval French surname Moindrot, meaning "young, small man."

MISS RULE: Have you the source of DE BLOIS? — J.D., Lakewood.

DE BLOIS, French, represents a forefather from the old French province of Blois, a place name meaning "land cleared of trees." The Blois shield is red, crossed by two silver stripes with crenelated edges like gear teeth.

MISS RULE: Please identify YOUMANS. — G.Y., Long Beach.

YOUMANS, English, represents "son of the yeoman," describing a knight's attendant. The Youmans shield is black, emblazoned with a silver chevron between three spear heads.

MISS RULE: Would like data on HODSON. — D.H., Long Beach.

HODSON, English, was formed from Hod or Hodge, an ancient nickname for Roger. The warrior title Roger means "famous spearman." William Hodson was a Yorkshire land owner in 1379. The Hodson armorial shield, granted at Cambridge, 1590, is black, crossed by a gold chevron placed between three flying gold falcons or hawks.

WORKSHOP

Cool Cupola

By Steve Ellingson

Decorative, useful.

THE CUPOLA has an illustrious history. Its origin predates Christianity. Originally it was a simple dome, much smaller, of course, but of the type that can be seen on the Capitol building in Washington, D.C. However, as with all things that endure, evolution has taken place and the original has been modified and embellished to satisfy our present-day needs. Builders include a cupola with most of today's finer homes.

There are two main reasons why people desire a cupola on their home or garage. First, they are very decorative and add much to the appearance of all buildings upon which they are used. Secondly, they offer an excellent means for ventilating an attic. By permitting hot air to escape, they keep a house much cooler in hot summer weather. It's easy to cut a small vent in the roof before installing the cupola, however, this is not necessary if it's to be purely ornamental.

The weather vane on the cupola shown here with Sue Wheeler was handed down to us by our Yankee forebears who always wanted to know which way the wind was blowing. We think it's still a good idea to have included a weather vane in the pattern.

The full-size pattern for building the cupola pictured shows how to make it fit all roofs regardless of their pitch. It's an easy project, and not at all expensive when you build-it-yourself.

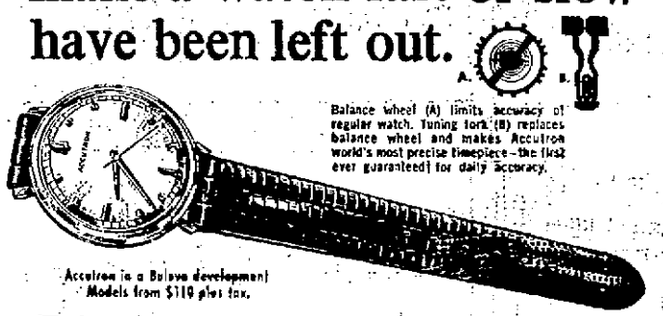

To obtain the full-size cupola pattern number 348, send $1 (add 25c per pattern for airmail delivery) by currency, check or money order to:

Future in the Deep

IN TODAY'S SPACE age, many young men want to explore the heavens, but 16-year-old Chris Croissant's goal points in the other direction — he plans to be an oceanographer.

A sophomore at Millikan High School, Chris was enrolled in an experimental oceanography class at Marshall Junior High. The special class compiled one of the first student studies of California's harbors. Chris' photographs of the harbors have been sent to the Scripps Institute of Oceanography in La Jolla.

In September, Chris will be enrolled in Millikan's new oceanography program which he helped establish. He plans to attend the University of Washington and then do graduate work at the Scripps Institute.

In addition to his oceanographic interests, Chris manages to find time to be an Eagle Scout (the highest rank in the Boy Scouts), a den chief for a Cub Scout pack, and a member of the Long Beach Police Junior Rifle Club. Last summer, he also tutored a young Cuban refugee. He resides with his parents at 3224 Petaluma Ave., Long Beach.

His views:

—If there is money available for space exploration, there should be an equal amount of funds for sea research because the ocean is on our own planet and it can help solve some of the world's problems, such as starvation.

—We could feed the world's population with products from the sea without making a dent in the ocean's resources. And in addition to the foods available in the sea, there are many useful metals.

—However, as sea research increases there must be a system of checks and balances so that proper conservation steps are taken to protect the sea.

—There is an immediate need for conservation legislation to stop the dumping of nuclear wastes, firearms and chemicals into the sea. In a recent grunion run in Santa Barbara, the grunion were found dead on the shore because chemical fertilizers had been dumped into the ocean and the grunions' gills were damaged. When a large number of any species is killed, an imbalance in nature results.

—The legislators will not enact conservation laws until the public becomes more aware of the problem and demands immediate action. The public is generally uninformed about conservation. They seem to think that the United States has unlimited resources. They need to learn the resource capabilities of the land and sea.

—The recent oil slick in Santa Barbara did a great job of bringing the people together to learn about the conservation of the ocean. It is unfortunate that it takes such an event to bring the public around.

—The way to prevent future oil slick disasters is not to eliminate ocean drilling because man must have fuel and the land's oil resources could be depleted in another 100 years. The slick was not caused by the drilling itself, but an unplugged hole. Instead of eliminating ocean drilling, better equipment should be devised. It will be more expensive, but in the long run the extra expense will be balanced by the wealth gained from the sea.

—If the steam car is ever accepted, man will not need as much fuel so the drilling problems will lessen as well as the smog problem. Theoretically a steam car has unlimited power and speed and is very safe. It is probably safer than the average car today. If people will listen to reason, I think there is a great future for the steam car.

—The acceptance of the steam car will be slow, but it will eventually come about. The public accepted the internal combustion engine over the horse, and it will accept steam over fuel. Steam could be vital to conservation.

—Many people are not concerned about conservation because they have never spent any time with nature. My scouting excursions have enabled me to see the beauty of nature and I want to conserve it. — Carolyn Hayes.

iers and Glen Campbell shows went off. I'd enjoy watching a few musicals, operas, soccer or any program not interrupted so many times with so many commercials that you forget what it was you were watching.

Please continue to tell it like it is and the public — including myself — might get back the investment they've made in their TV sets. After all, mine is sitting dark and I'd much rather pay for something I want to see.

Jeff Wilkins,
Long Beach

(The theater owners don't figure you deserve the opportunity to pay for the kind of TV you want, Jeff. Besides, you might stay away from the movies if you could get them first run at home less expensively than at the neighborhood theater.)

Would it be possible to get a copy of "The Pledge of Allegiance" given by Red Skelton on June 14?

It is wonderful. This would be great to pass down to my nine grandchildren.

Mrs. L. Hunter,
Long Beach

(Write CBS Television, Television City, Fairfax and Beverly, Hollywood, Calif. They'll tell you how to get a copy.)

There is one category in which the Emmy Awards continually blunder and it is the best musical composition.

This year was no exception. The background music for most TV series is generally vile but when a good job of scoring does come along, the Emmy people shun it.

Morton Stevens' superb music for "Hawaii Five-O" shouldn't have been placed in competition with John Williams' "Heidi" score. Williams wrote only the score for "Heidi" while Stevens has written consistently fine music for "Hawaii Five-O" all season.

I think nominating both works is fine, but when the award is handed out, I think the composer who writes continually excellent music should get the nod.

Surely no one would have nominated Paul Schofield against Don Adams for best actor!

Steve Harris,
Anaheim.

Preserve baby's wiggles, giggles and adventure with movie camera.

Home Movies Preserve Baby's Priceless Moments

THE movie camera hasn't quite replaced the romper suit as a gift item at baby showers. But it is coming close.

Young mothers in increasing numbers are finding movie records of their offspring valued treasures, not only because they love their babies, but also because the modern camera is no more complicated than an egg beater. So mothers who've enjoyed their babies on the screen are passing the word — and sometimes the necessary hardware — on to their friends who are mothers-to-be.

Gone is the cumbersomeness of home movie-making. Most of the know-how once needed to get good footage now is built into even the most inexpensive equipment. Preserving baby's wiggles, giggles and cut-ups is no more of a chore today than mixing a batch of formula. Super 8 film and equipment have not only improved picture quality far beyond the old 8mm format, they have also enabled the casual amateur for the first time to make fine color movies with ease.

This combination of quality and convenience at reasonable cost — the lowest-priced Super 8 movie cameras sell for less than $30 — puts good color movies within both the ken and the budget of casual amateurs with a limited pocketbook. This combination has led a sharply increasing number of young parents into home movie-making, partly for the benefit of grandparents and aunts — but mostly for their own.

THE MOST appealing movie scenes of small fry are so commonplace that their picture possibilities are often overlooked, even when there is a loaded camera on the shelf. Eating, bathing, playing, creeping and trying out inexperienced legs are among the messy, harrowing, wonderful things a baby does so well, and which he'll never again do the same way. These fleeting moments of originality can be brought back to life only in remembrance — or on film.

Since most of a tot's early days are spent in the house, movie techniques to record them must be geared to indoor conditions. Unlike the human eye, photographic color film cannot perform at full capacity inside the house unless there is bright auxiliary illumination even in the daytime. Modern movie lights do the job with a minimum of bother — plug them into the wall, and you're ready to go at the flick of a switch.

With the film cartridge and the light popped into place, you can concentrate on making your baby movie scenes interesting. The central character will need no coaching on this score.

Borrow a leaf from the Hollywood professionals to make your movie more interesting — vary the distance between subject and camera. The zoom lens, now available even on every - day - price cameras, lets you get this effect without having to move. But you can do the same with an ordinary lens simply by shooting from close in, at middle distance or at long range.

Reading all film and camera instructions is, of course, essential for good results. Beyond that, chances are your photo dealer has literature with many valuable pointers, either free of charge or at a very modest price.

THE BEAUTY AND THE BEAST

pets. You have to have a real affection for them. You have to talk to these "children" and expect unusual responses. You must handle them with respect, kindness, understanding and ingenuity. If you don't build up their trust as they grow from cuddly babies to maturity, you lose control. Even then, there can be oddballs, just as there are among domestic pets.

Wild animal pets need daily exercising, cleanliness of body and quarters, and correct diet, which can include pounds and pounds of raw meat daily. And how the big cats like to have their backs scratched!

So they are not for everyone. Unless you qualify, a wild animal pet is designed to give you gray hair, plus possible permanent tattoos and other troubles.

Fair Housing Is Our Goal

By Patrice Horn

I WEAR A little button on my lapel . . . brown and black, with a white house on it . . . the symbol of fair housing. Whenever someone notices it, the question comes: "What do you people in fair housing do?" Or if the questioner is hostile: "What right do you have forcing someone to sell or rent to people they don't want to sell or rent to?"

As a member of the Orange County Fair Housing Council, I'll try to answer these questions and others often asked about the organization.

—WHAT DO YOU DO? We try to uphold and implement the housing laws of our state and county. For instance, there are two California and two federal laws that relate to discrimination by apartment house owners and managers. These laws place the burden of proof on the buyer or lessee. He must prove discrimination. This is one way we help.

— WHO ARE YOU? First of all, just people . . . people who care about individual dignity. We are of all races and colors, economic levels and educational backgrounds. We belong to one of the eight neighborhood fair housing councils in Orange County: Garden Grove, Orange, Harbor area, Fullerton, Tustin, Anaheim, La Habra and Seal Beach - Huntington Beach. We work in our neighborhood areas and belong to a central group (the Orange County Fair Housing Council) for the county. We are volunteers. Through contributions and fund-raising events, we support an office at 1405 W. Fourth St. in Santa Ana.

— WHAT DOES BEING A MEMBER INVOLVE? Mostly time, energy . . . and caring. Specifically, we may be asked to help a minority family find a house or apartment in our area. Or to help prove that discrimination is the reason the family hasn't been able to find housing.

We also try to change the attitude of people toward fair housing. We give programs on housing to interested groups. We supply information on housing attitudes and cases to the press and public. In summary, we do all we can to eliminate discrimination in housing.

— HOW DO YOU HELP? Ideally, we help a minority family find the house or apartment of its choice. We list friendly realtors and apartment house managers. We enlist the aid of the California Real Estate Association. We appeal to the managers and owners of apartment houses to help our clients. We help employers find homes for their minority employes.

— CAN YOU GIVE A SPECIFIC EXAMPLE OF THIS HELP? A school principal called the Orange County Fair Housing Council and reported the hiring of a black teacher. She was from out-of-state, single, had taught six years and had high personal and academic credentials. She wanted an apartment near her school.

Before she arrived, a member of the Fair Housing Council called 18 apartment houses in the desired area and explained she was looking for an apartment for a new teacher in the school. Specifications as to size, price, etc., had been determined beforehand. Fourteen of the apartment house managers told her they had or would have a vacancy and would be glad to show it to the teacher when she arrived.

The Fair Housing Council member invited the teacher to stay with her while she looked at the apartments. First, however, she called the managers of the 14 available apartments, at the request of the teacher, and told them the applicant was black. In every case, she was told the apartment was no longer available. After four days of looking elsewhere, the teacher moved to an apartment in the black ghetto area in southwest Santa Ana. She had to drive much farther to work than she wished and the apartment was not at all what she wanted.

The principal of the school was shocked at this treatment of one of his teachers in his school district. He and the Fair Housing Council member continued to look for another apartment. Eventually one was found where their appeals were heeded. The teacher now lives in this apartment. She has not had problems with the neighbors. She is happy. The neighbors have not suffered. The situation is well in hand.

— DO YOU TAKE MORE DIRECT ACTION? The Orange County Fair Housing Council also works to get proof of discrimination. For example, a young black man and his wife found an apartment they wanted. On applying, they were told it had just been rented. A member of the Fair Housing Council went immediately to the apartment house and asked to see one of the units. He was shown one without delay and told it was available. He told this to the black couple and they again applied. Again they were told there was nothing available.

Another white member of the council went to the apartment house and was told, yes, an apartment was available. Obviously the black couple was being discriminated against. An appeal was made to the apartment owner. He refused to discuss the situation. The case then, with the permission of the black couple, was turned over to the Fair Employment Practice Commission, the state agency designated to handle cases of housing discrimination.

The FEPC examiner studied the facts, then spoke to the applicants and apartment house owner. A conciliatory offer was made and accepted by both parties. The black couple is now living in the desired apartment. The man and woman have been accepted by their neighbors without incident.

However, the indignities suffered by this couple occur over and over again in cases handled by fair housing groups. They are happening right now.

— WHAT ARE THE AIMS OF THE OCFHC? Simply, to restore the dignity of individuals. And, at longer range, to disband the organization because discrimination no longer exists.

Anyone who needs our help or who would like to assist us in our aims is asked to contact the Or-

TV—It Helps Few to Movie Stardom

By RICK DU BROW
United Press International

It used to be that performers who appeared regularly in television series were considered very poor bets for movie stardom.

The reasoning was that the public wouldn't pay at the boxoffice to see actors they could get for free every week in their homes.

Although there is still a basic truth in this view, more and more movie stars are emerging from television. And the film industry, which long has wondered where newcomers would get training, now realizes video is a valuable place.

In addition, it gives performers the much-sought-after pre-sold name value that boxoffice-conscious producers seek.

Probably the most sensible appraisal is that a performer who has made a name on television can indeed become a movie star — but generally has the best chance at film fame if he then sticks strictly to motion pictures and gets out of video except for guest shots.

There are a few exceptions such as Dean Martin and Fred MacMurray, who have it both ways.

But Steve McQueen would surely not be as big a movie star today if he had remained in the CBS-TV western series that first brought him to public attention, "Wanted — Dead or Alive," in which he played a bounty hunter.

And Lee Marvin would certainly have jeopardized his skyrocketing movie career if he had gone back to a television series like the one that gave him great exposure, "M Squad," in which he played a tough Chicago detective.

And James Garner would absolutely have made a disastrous decision, in terms of his motion picture success, if he had returned to television regularly, a place he had established himself in ABC-TV's comedy-western series, "Maverick."

As you can see, some pretty big names indeed have come out of the boxoffice medium weekly series.

There was, of course, Mia Farrow in ABC-TV's "Peyton Place," and Glenn Campbell, who has his own series now on CBS-TV, is definitely expected to emerge as a major film name. Marlo Thomas, of ABC-TV's "That Girl," also has a movie in the works.

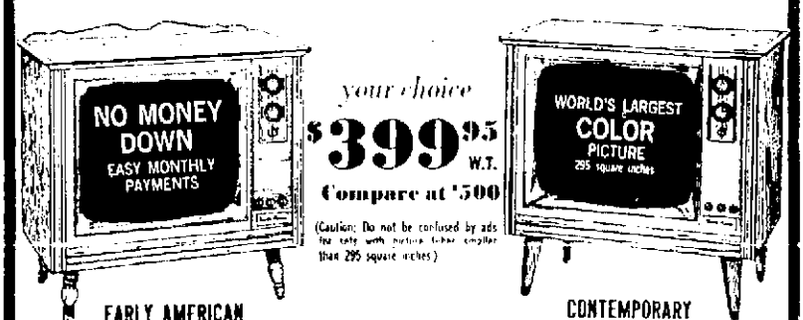

Entertainers, as opposed to pure actors, seem to have the best results in working in both media — perhaps because they can be themselves on the home tube in contrast to the parts they play in movies. The pure actor, in other words, is always doing a role, and offers audiences no real change.

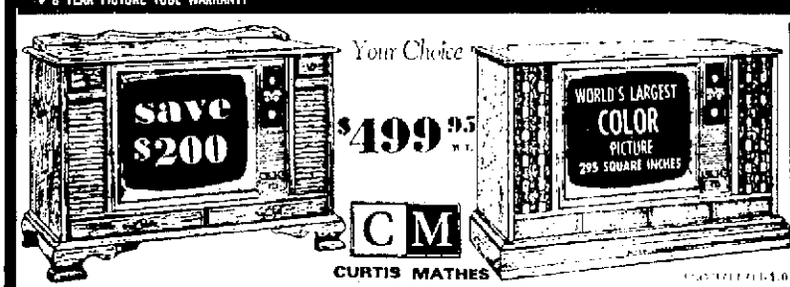

Dean Martin is typical of the two-way entertainer, and so is Jackie Gleason, and so is Lucille Ball. Barbra Streisand, it should be noted, is basically an entertainer — as she proved in her television specials — who then went on to an Academy Award in her first movie, "Funny Girl."

CABLE TV IMPACT

tus? Instead of only filching programs off the air, create your own programs on the spot and use the cable system for distribution.

The bigger chips were beginning to fall. The innocuous phrase "Cable TV" contains an economic time-bomb. While over the air only one channel can deliver one program at a time to the home, a modern cable system going into homes can offer a variety of 20 programs and services, and the number could rise to 50 or better.

Instead of a scarcity of channels, which is inherent in the process of sending programs over the air, a cable system could carry ABC, CBS, NBC, the Hughes sports network and public broadcasting and still have 15 more channels with which to tinker. The Thursday specials at the local supermarket could be posted for leisureiy reading, a facsimile newspaper could be transmitted in several editions a day, a brand new movie could be presented for a run of one or two weeks or longer. The curriculum of a school or college could be offered, all at the flick of a channel selector in a subscriber's home. Or there could be TV designed solely for one neighborhood, an escape from the tyranny of TV for the mass.

That's one over-all measure of the revolution in the offing, but there is yet another: an undergraduate electronics technician could hook together dozens of regional and cable television systems so that in the next decade, for instance, perhaps two or three national cable networks could come into existence, challenging the prominence of NBC, CBS and ABC. Again, technically speaking, there is no reason to believe that these supplementary networks could not be rented on demand to a theatrical film producer or to a politician only for as long as he wanted. Theater owners, of course, tremble at such a vision, they could be by-passed.

BUT, AS THE AMERICAN CIVIL Liberties Union suggested this week, why not open at least some of these cable TV channels to any and all comers? So long as there are enough channels, why not make the television screen as accessible as long-distance telephone service?

Echoing the alarms of today's existing broadcasters, the F.C.C. is worried that if Cable TV ever goes where it could go, technically, the best attractions of so-called free TV would be siphoned off to a system in which the rewards for producers or artists would be infinitely greater. The consequence could b a serious burden on lower income groups.

The F.C.C.'s thoughts in this direction are reflected in another argument which further confuses the future. A vision of Pay TV over Cable TV actually lags by many years, behind the concept of Pay TV over the air. The Zenith Radio Corporation has been fighting for a system that would scramble pictures and sound on a regular TV transmitter and then, upon the consumer paying a becoming charge, unscramble the program in his home. The theater owners have taken the F.C.C. to court for proposing to authorize this service under guarded conditions. Actually, though it isn't openly discussed, the Zenith design could be dovetailed into a cable system.

The bruised viewer, who naturally is not a party to the wheeling and dealing over his destiny, might reasonably adopt the view, as this writer does, that the home screens desperately needs competition in types of systems. The more the merrier, and let the public, through the withholding of its largesse, have one small voice in the process of program selection.

THE PRESENT CONTENTION that the public has a genuine element of choice is unmitigated hogwash; it has a choice between what others choose to let him see. Competition in the cultural and informational arena may have its drawbacks; the pursuit of the buck is omnipresent. But the solution to that is not in passive resignation and accommodations of convenience. The promise of the next generation in electronics is that the wooing of the masses will reach a saturation point, that the road to challenge, difference — and even a comfortable living — lies in having enough channels to offer the have-nots of the present, young and old alike, a crack at specialization, according to their own lights.

More people look at television than read books, but who would suggest that all books be placed under the scrutiny of a narrow cabal of retailers dedicated to maximum sales, or charitably released by a few universities and philanthropic organizations?

Electronics has come to the same point. Its door must be open to the variety of society itself, to competition with dissimilarity, rather than banal likeness. Cable TV holds that potential.

DINE OUT TONIGHT

PSSSSSST! Want to get in on something good? Would you believe there's a restaurant in Long Beach that serves a lobster dinner for $2.95? It isn't a small, shrunken lobster of doubtful quality either. It's a beautiful, nice-sized Australian lobster tail, tender and sweet, served with drawn butter.

The place for that delicacy is Nik's Restaurant, a cheerful, attractive place at Cherry Avenue and Wardlow Road. If you've priced Australian lobster in the markets lately, you know it's gone sky high, ranking up there with platinum, rubies, emeralds and other precious items.

How can owners Nick Nickoloff and his son Carl serve it for so little at Nik's? It beats me. Either they're miracle workers or their adding machine is on the blink. I do know this much, however. "We don't make a penny on our lobsters," Carl told me the other day. "In fact, I think we're losing money." Meanwhile, patrons are packing the place, because Carl and Nik serve their lobster with choice of tomato juice, soup du jour or a beautiful salad; fresh, steaming baked potato; colorful carrot and pickle garnish, hot rolls and butter. The lobster dinner in the Viking Room lounge is $3.10 except on Friday when there's a price change. Would you believe that every Friday the price in the lounge goes DOWN to $2.95 and the dinner also includes a glass of sparkling wine?

As you can see, Nik's is a very unusual, very popular and very successful restaurant. Manager Bob Madrano, the chefs and the energetic, nimble waitresses all do exceptional work. Furthermore, every item on the menu is fresh, tempting and moderately priced, such as: beautiful Louisiana jumbo fried shrimp, $1.85; grilled northern halibut steak, $1.80; choice top sirloin or N.Y. cut steak, $2.95; top quality ground round steak with onion rings, $1.70; breaded veal cutlet, $1.70; fried spring chicken with French fries, $1.85; deep sea eastern scallops, $1.75, and the spaghetti special with old country sauce and French roll, $1.45.

The gourmet steak and lobster combination in the coffee shop is $3.95. In the Viking Room, it's $4.10. The coffee shop is open every day; the Viking Room is closed Sundays.

Rep. Richard McCarthy and wife. He spearheads campaign to rip "shroud of secrecy" off U.S. CBW activities.

Chemical-Biological Warfare (CBW)
WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT IT

by Derek Norcross

WASHINGTON, D.C.

One evening several months ago Congressman Richard McCarthy, 42, a Democrat from Buffalo, N.Y., was sitting with his attractive, honey-blonde wife Gail in the living room of their suburban Maryland home.

They had just succeeded in putting to bed the last of their five children and were intently watching an NBC television program on chemical and biological warfare.

Gail McCarthy was horrified to learn that the U.S. was manufacturing poison gas and breeding germs that could annihilate entire populations.

After the program, Gail fixed her husband with an accusative look and said, "You're a Congressman. What do you know about all this?"

"Nothing," admitted McCarthy, a five-year veteran of Capitol Hill. "But I'll see what I can find out."

Next morning Dick McCarthy phoned two colleagues from New York—Reps. Otis Pike and Samuel Stratton, both members of the House Armed Services Committee—but they, too, admitted somewhat sheepishly that they didn't know very much about CBW (the official terminology for Chemical and Biological Warfare). They suggested that he check with the Army.

"I pursued the matter," McCarthy says, "because I represent half a million Americans, and I believe they're entitled to know how the Army is spending their money, what the Army is developing in the way of new weapons, especially germs and gas."

Nowhere in the annual posture statement by the Secretary of Defense is CBW mentioned. Pentagon policy, in recent years, has been one largely of silence and secrecy.

Last summer, however, University of Colorado scientists complained that hundreds of tanks, filled with enough nerve gas to destroy the world, were stored dangerously above ground at the Rocky Mountain Arsenal near Denver. Supported by Denverites and their Congressman, they pressured the Army into moving the tanks. Most of the gas was shipped to Utah, whose Rep. Sherman Lloyd is "personally satisfied" that whatever dangers there may be are "remote dangers."

In October the CBS network telecast a two-parter on chemical and biological warfare. NBC then followed with a similar program. In April, The New York Times reported that the U.S. was spending hundreds of millions of dollars annually on the chemical and biological weapons program and keeping it a closely guarded secret.

'Changing public's mind'

In response to the public's growing concern with CBW—the concern is particularly evident on university campuses—the Pentagon has embarked on carefully arranged disclosures designed to curb potential anti-CBW feeling.

"We're in the process of changing the public's mind," one Pentagon spokesman informed a reporter. "We're trying to acculturate the public to deal with reality. This is the government's responsibility."

In line with this new policy, the Army responded to McCarthy's inquiry by arranging for Brig. Gen. James A. Hebbeler, chief of CBW operations, to speak with interested Congressmen. On March 4th, Gen. Hebbeler briefed 19 members of the House.

"Frankly," says McCarthy, who served with the Navy in World War II and with the Army in the Korean War, "I didn't find the briefing very helpful. It didn't answer the questions of public policy."

McCarthy thereupon sent a list of questions to Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird, Secretary of State William Rogers, Director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency Gerard Smith, Ambassador to the UN Charles Yost, and Dr. Henry Kissinger, Presidential Assistant for National Security Affairs.

He then made a speech about CBW on the floor of the House.

"I believe," he states, "that chemical and biological warfare activities are shrouded in unnecessary secrecy. I get the impression that the security curtain is parted only when it serves the advocates of the programs. I found the replies to my letters heartening in some respects but deeply disturbing in most others."

First, it is important to know that "the U.S. is not a party to any treaty, now in force, that prohibits or restricts the use in warfare of toxic or non-toxic gases, or smoke or incendiary materials or of bacteriological warfare."

In 1925 at a Geneva Disarmament Conference we suggested that the nations of the world join us in signing the Geneva Protocol outlawing the use in war of poison gas and death-dealing bacteria.

Most Americans, however, don't realize that the U.S., because of Senate obstruction, never signed the treaty. Nevertheless, American Presidents have repeatedly declared that the U.S. would not be the first to use poison gas and bacteriological warheads.

There is controversy over the use of various non-lethal gases in Vietnam such as CS, a powerful tear gas; CN, a milder tear gas, and DM, an irritant known as Adamsite gas. Some contend these are no more dangerous than the tear gases used for mob control and to rout out criminals by American police.

Soviet Russia, China, France, Germany, Great Britain — all signed and ratified the Geneva Protocol of 1925. By signing the treaty, however, none of these nations abdicated its right to establish research and development programs.

Pentagon explains

Pentagon spokesmen point out that the military has the mission of protecting the U.S. against chemical and germ warfare. In order to develop antidotes to these lethal gases, the spokesmen said, they must keep up with Russians in researching CBW. They also claim there's nothing sinister in the secrecy, that CBW preparations are no more classified than nuclear and other military developments.

There is no doubt that Russia and China are both well equipped with CBW arsenals, although each country has declared it will never use such weapons offensively.

As for the U.S.—information is hard to come by. Reportedly the Pentagon has entered into CBW research arrangements with at least 40 universities in this country as well as with universities and laboratories in West Germany, Great Britain, Japan, and Belgium.

The London Times reported recently that the Pentagon had established 27 contracts with universities in Japan.

Le Tribune des Nations in France claimed that the Pentagon is working closely with German scientists in secret laboratories at Marburg, Oberpfaffenhofen and Hamburg.

The U.S. has a joint research agreement with Canada and Great Britain on the testing of poisonous gas and deadly bacteria, supposedly in the vicinity of Suffield, Canada.

Our Army is known to be field-testing CBW agents in Panama, Hawaii, Greenland and Alaska. Chemical defoliation agents are field-tested in Thailand before use in South Vietnam.

There is controversy over the use of various non-lethal gases in Vietnam such as CS, a powerful tear gas; CN, a milder tear gas, and DM, an irritant known as Adamsite gas. Some contend these are no more dangerous than the tear gases used for mob control and to rout out criminals by American police.

Soviet Russia, China, France, Germany, Great Britain — all signed and ratified the Geneva Protocol of 1925. By signing the treaty, however, none of these nations abdicated its right to establish research and development programs.

Pentagon explains

Pentagon spokesmen point out that the military has the mission of protecting the U.S. against chemical and germ warfare. In order to develop antidotes to these lethal gases, the spokesmen said, they must keep up with Russians in researching CBW. They also claim there's nothing sinister in the secrecy, that CBW preparations are no more classified than nuclear and other military developments.

There is no doubt that Russia and China are both well equipped with CBW arsenals, although each country has declared it will never use such weapons offensively.

As for the U.S.—information is hard to come by. Reportedly the Pentagon has entered into CBW research arrangements with at least 40 universities in this country as well as with universities and laboratories in West Germany, Great Britain, Japan, and Belgium.

The London Times reported recently that the Pentagon had established 27 contracts with universities in Japan.

Le Tribune des Nations in France claimed that the Pentagon is working closely with German scientists in secret laboratories at Marburg, Oberpfaffenhofen and Hamburg.

The U.S. has a joint research agreement with Canada and Great Britain on the testing of poisonous gas and deadly bacteria, supposedly in the vicinity of Suffield, Canada.

Our Army is known to be field-testing CBW agents in Panama, Hawaii, Greenland and Alaska. Chemical defoliation agents are field-tested in Thailand before use in South Vietnam.

Seymour Hersh, a former Pentagon reporter for the Associated Press, provides an up-to-date report on CBW installations in the U.S. in his book, Chemical and Biological Warfare: America's Hidden Arsenal.

The major CBW bases in the U.S. are:

FT. DETRICK, MD. Located 50 miles northwest of Washington, D.C., this base is headquarters for the nation's biological war research program. The fort was set up here during World War II, cultivated brucellosis bacteria which causes undulant fever in man, gradually expanded to the point where it now reportedly employs some 500 researchers who experiment with viruses and various bacteria on animals. A large share of the nation's military experimentation on anti-crop agents and defoliants is conducted in a corner of the base where, behind high-wire fences, groups of scientists work industriously in a cluster of greenhouses.

PINE BLUFF, ARK. Opened in 1942, the base serves as packager and producer of smoke bombs, incendiary munitions, and riot-control agents. It is also the main center for the massive production and processing of biological agents. Germs are brewed, then loaded into bombs, shells, and other munitions, then stored in more than 250 earth-covered vaults called "igloos." A few of these germs which are developed through mutations could wipe out the population over a wide area if they ever got loose. Yet there have been more than 720 accidents at Pine Bluff, at least half of them involving infectious organisms.

DUGWAY PROVING GROUND, UTAH. This base serves as a testing ground for nerve gas, other gases, many CBW agents. In March 1968, 6000 sheep perished on ranges near the Dugway test area. Until last month, the Army had never admitted that its nerve gas killed the animals, though it had paid hundreds of thousands of dollars in claims.

EDGEWOOD ARSENAL, MD. Oldest of the CBW bases, it dates back to World War I. Formerly used for the production of gas munitions, it changed over to a research and development center after World War II. Its scientists performed outstanding work on a German-developed nerve gas called Sarin, but are now hard at work on a variety of chemical weapons. These, according to The Detroit News, are "tested on mice, animals and eventually human volunteers." Edgewood is now the final inspection center for all chemicals and chemical weapons, including such psycho-chemical incapacitants as LSD and others of similar nature.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN ARSENAL. This 17,750-acre base ten miles from Denver served as the main production facility for Sarin until 1957, when production was halted. The arsenal stays busy, however, filling rockets and bombs with the deadly nerve gas.

NEWPORT CHEMICAL PLANT, IND. This installation in peaceful farm country on the western edge of Indiana near Danville, Ill., is the Army's main production plant for VX, an imported nerve gas more effective than Sarin.

How much do these installations cost the American taxpayer? The Pentagon says $350 million for fiscal year 1969; Congressional sources indicate the figure is closer to $700 million.

A few questions posed by Sen. Gaylord Nelson (D., Wis.):

1. What are the official policies for the use of CBW weapons in the event that they are used by a foreign aggressor against us?
2. Who makes the decision to deploy anthrax, the plague, or a lethal nerve gas?
3. What are the ground rules?
4. What have they been in the case of Vietnam?
5. What are the deterrent factors in a program of chemical and biological preparedness?
6. How do we militarily defend against a CBW attack?
7. If the purpose of our preparedness is to prevent surprise, what specific steps have been taken to detect a surprise?
8. What commitments have we taken toward a resolution of the chemical and biological arms race?

At the start of World War II, President Franklin D. Roosevelt delineated the American policy on chemical and biological warfare.

"Use of such weapons," he declared, "has been outlawed by the general opinion of civilized mankind. This country has not used them, and I hope we will never be compelled to use them. I state categorically that we shall under no circumstances resort to the use of such weapons unless they are first used by our enemies."

During World War II, in preparation for a possible threat by Nazi Germany, the U.S. began a research program on biological agents. In the atmosphere of the Cold War that followed, CBW research and stockpiling were accelerated.

In 1967 Cyrus Vance, then Assistant Secretary of Defense, told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee: "As long as other nations such as the Soviet Union maintain large chemical and biological warfare programs, we believe we must maintain our defensive and retaliatory capacities."

One of Senator Nelson's vital questions, unanswered by the government, is whether CBW agents are actual deterrents.

Aren't nuclear weapons a sufficient deterrent to prevent any nation from attacking the U.S. with chemical and biological weapons? Moreover, if the U.S. maintains CBW only in "defensive and retaliatory capacities," what is the explanation for the use of gas and chemicals in Vietnam?

"Although we state that we adhere to the principles of the Geneva Protocol," says Congressman McCarthy, "we are using tear gas to help in killing the enemy in Vietnam, and we are using chemicals as an anti-food weapon and in such a way that they may well have a long-term destructive effect on the Vietnamese countryside. This latter policy seems unlikely to win the battle for the minds of the uncommitted in Vietnam.

"I ask: who is responsible for this change in our chemical and biological warfare policy? Did the President of the United States decide to use tear gas and defoliants? Did the military decide? Has Congress agreed to this change of policy? Do the American people accept this new policy as one in keeping with the principles and moral precepts of our Republic?"

A quart of death

The truth is that the American people know precious little about chemical and biological warfare. They do not know, for example, that the gas from a single bomb at the Rocky Mountain Arsenal, the size of a quart fruit jar, could kill, as one chemical warfare colonel explains, "every living thing in a cubic mile."

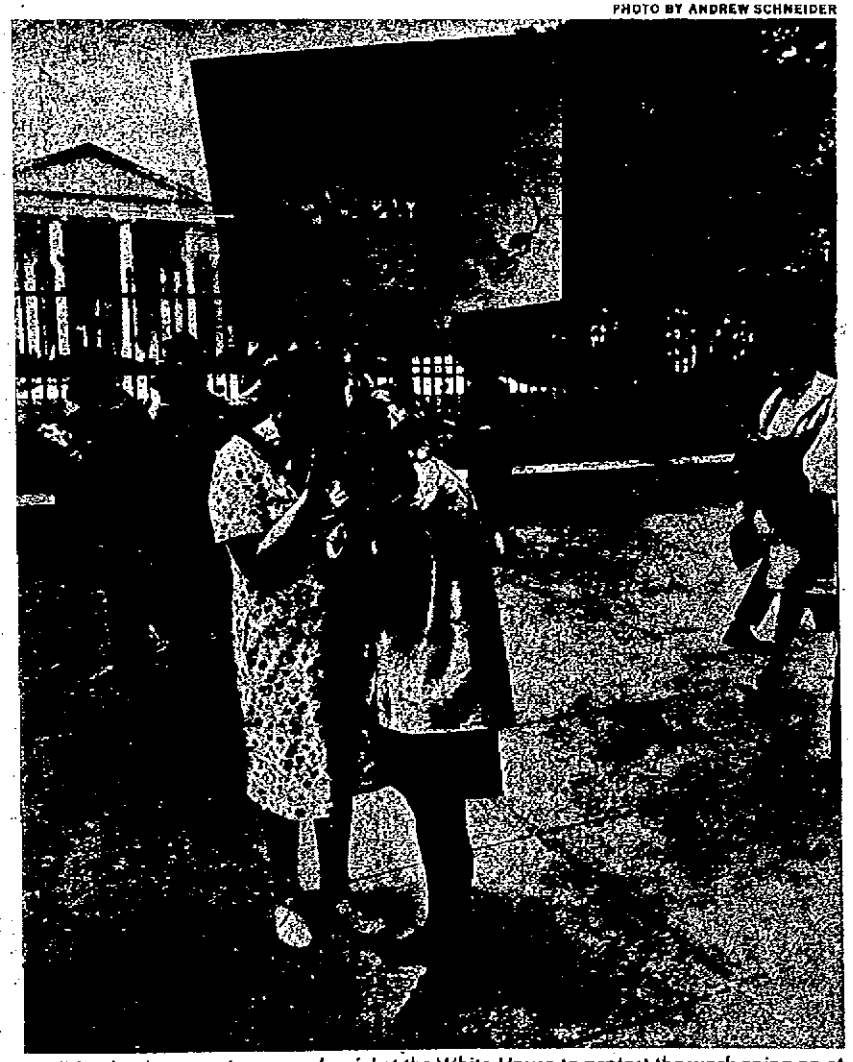

They do not know that between 1954 and 1962 there were more than 3300 accidents, minor and major, at Ft. Detrick. About 400 men were infected as a result. In one instance a worker caught pneumonic plague, a highly infectious disease. He also happened to work as a lifeguard at a swimming pool.

The public is woefully ignorant, and the Congress has been alarmingly negligent about CBW. Thanks to Rep. Richard McCarthy, however, and Sen. Gaylord Nelson, the Congress seems to be coming alive on the subject.

Says Nelson: "We . . . need to review the entire scope of chemical and biological warfare. What is significant is the cloak of secrecy which has surrounded our actions in CBW work. This cloak of secrecy must be removed."

If such efforts to clarify American policy on chemical and biological warfare prove successful, the nation will owe a debt of gratitude to Gail McCarthy, who said to her husband one night, "You're a Congressman. What do you know about all this?"

My Favorite Jokes

by Pat McCormick

EDITOR'S NOTE: Pat McCormick, originally from Lakewood, Ohio, has several distinctions as a comic. First, he is the biggest, that is literally. He is 6 feet 6, weighs 245. Second, he is the only professional comedian to have graduated from Harvard, where he won four varsity letters in track.

Third, as joke-writer for Phyllis Diller, Jonathan Winters, Jack Paar, Danny Kaye, Lucille Ball, Andy Griffith, Johnny Carson, Mike Douglas, and Merv Griffin, he has probably written for more TV comedians than any other humorist in the business.

Several years ago McCormick decided to become a comedy performer, because (1) "it pays better" and (2) "you get a feeling for what will work and what won't when you're out in front of an audience, and I don't think you can get it any other way."

Pat has appeared on the Don Rickles TV program as a regular, also as a guest on the Johnny Carson, Joey Bishop, and Merv Griffin TV shows as well as working many nightclubs.

Herewith some of his favorite one-liners.

I remember when "pot" was something you got after 40—and never quite got rid of.

Hijacking planes to Cuba has become so frequent that nowadays couples going to Florida on their honeymoon are pelted by their wedding guests with Spanish rice.

With women wearing so many artificial beauty aids today, it's becoming more and more difficult for men to determine where the truth lies.

I saw a movie the other night that was so bad it should be missed from the beginning.

One of the worst things about the Hong Kong flu is that you spend more time in bed —and enjoy it less.

I'd love to do a musical version of Webster's Dictionary, only words fail me.

You'd think I'd learn, but I don't. I keep making the same mistake every day: I get out of bed.

I have a friend whose take-home pay is so small it's embarrassing to take it anyplace else.

With hippie skirts going up and hair going down, all the kids really need to wear nowadays is a wide belt.

There's so much nudity on stage and screen that it's nice for a man and wife to stay at home these days and just stare at each other while fully clothed.

I have a friend who takes so many pills that when he walks he sounds like a beanbag.

NIXON, MAN OF DISTINCTION

Richard Nixon may end his first term as President of the U.S. with a very special distinction. He may become the first U.S. President to appoint five justices to the U.S. Supreme Court during his first term of office.

In addition to appointing successors to Chief Justice Earl Warren (an Eisenhower appointee) and resigned Justice Abe Fortas (a Johnson appointee), he may well have to appoint successors to Justice Hugo Black, 83 (a Franklin D. Roosevelt appointee), Justice William Douglas, 70 (another Roosevelt appointee), and Justice John Marshall Harlan (an Eisenhower appointee). Justice Black is ready for retirement. Justice Douglas, who at 40 was the youngest man ever appointed to the court, suffers from an arrhythmic heart, and Justice Harlan suffers severe eye trouble.

Of all U.S. Presidents, it was Franklin D. Roosevelt who appointed the most Supreme Court justices.

In his first term, March 4, 1933 to Jan. 20, 1937, a frustrated Roosevelt was shut out. He appointed no justices to the Supreme Court.

In his second term, however, he filled five vacancies, appointing Hugo Black, Stanley Reed, Felix Frankfurter, William Douglas, and Frank Murphy.

In his third term, which ran from January 1941 to January 1945, Roosevelt appointed to the bench Robert Jackson and James Byrnes, the only justice in U.S. history without a record of formal legal education. Roosevelt's last appointee to the nation's highest court was Justice Wiley Rutledge.

President Nixon believes in a strict interpretation of the Constitution, and his appointees may well reflect his legal philosophy.

ODDBALLS ON AIRLINES

Prior to World War II, air travel in this country was a luxury indulged in by the wealthy, which made it relatively easy for the airline hostess. Generally the passengers she encountered were considerate, educated, well-bred, or at least, decently mannered.

Since World War II, air travel has become the most popular means of long-haul transportation. Almost everyone flies nowadays, including the crackpots, the hijackers, the hippies, and the nuts. Which frequently makes the job of stewardess a composite in which she acts the role of mother-nurse-psychiatrist-cook-and-social-directress.

At a recent symposium on medicine and airline safety held in San Francisco, stewardess Mary Ellen Dailey of United Airlines pointed up some of the problems encountered by airline hostesses.

She told, for example, of the male passenger who emerged from a plane lavatory stark naked one afternoon, then proceeded calmly to walk up and down the aisle, reading aloud from his Bible.

"Another stewardess," Miss Dailey explained, "being of sound mind, called the captain, related the details, and requested that the Fasten Seat Belt sign be turned on.

"She then asked the man to sit down and fasten his seat belt for his own safety. He complied, but her repeated attempts to cover him with a blanket were violently thwarted..."

Stewardess Dailey, pointing out other examples of weird and emergency behavior, asked the conference whether persons ordered to or just released from mental hospitals should be allowed to fly on planes.

She also raised the question of whether airlines should equip their aircraft with at least one straitjacket, a sufficient supply of tranquilizers, and a thermometer. Some airlines refuse even to provide their passengers with simple headache remedies on the grounds that passengers may sue should some illness develop.

In the early days of commercial transport, stewardesses were required to be registered nurses. Th nursing requirement has long since been dropped. Nowadays one of the leading requirements is that the girls look well in a mini-dress.

HE'LL FIND AN OPEN DOOR IN SAN FRANCISCO.

RUNAWAYS Last year 129,000 teenagers were arrested as runaways in this country. Approximately another 350,000 ran away without ever getting caught or arrested. Where do these kids go?

In San Francisco about 60 a month knock on the door of a Victorian building which houses the "Huckleberry" organization. Inside, they are given food, shelter, human contact, advice if they seek it.

Huckleberry's is run by Rev. Larry Beggs and his staff. Beggs talks with the kids and talks with their parents, helping to establish communication between the two. The only condition for obtaining lodging at Huckleberry's is that the runaway call his parents.

Like many of those who run off to the Haight-Ashbury district in San Francisco where Huckleberry's is located, the youngsters are in conflict with the ways and values of their parents.

In the past two years more than 1000 kids have shown up at Beggs' establishment. Their average age is a little over 15. They are referred there or have heard about it somewhere. About 75 percent of the youngsters have been gone from home only five days or less. Some of the kids have gone straight to Huckleberry's from home. Rev. Beggs links this direct use of Huckleberry's to the fact that runaways are running toward something as much as running away from something. Most runaways do not intend to stay away from home any longer than it takes to re-establish some dialogue with their parents. At Huckleberry's they are helped to start such dialogue.

Rev. Larry Beggs in his book Huckleberry's for Runaways, recently published in paperback by Ballantine, offers valid insight into the motivation of runaways.

Huckleberry's, named after the Mark Twain character, exists solely on charitable contributions.

VIETNAM CASUALTIES As of May 10, 1969, there was a total of 40,711 U.S. deaths in the Vietnamese War: 34,835 killed in action and 5876 killed in accidents and non-hostile incidents.

As of May 10, 1969, there was a total of 223,525 U.S. wounded; 113,474 hospitalized and 110,051 non-hospitalized.

The Defense Department does not break down by states the number of Americans wounded. Its computer, however, does offer a state-by-state statistical breakdown of men killed in action.

Here is such a breakdown as of March 31, 1969, when 33,733 of our men had been killed in action:

THINK ABOUT DEATH and START TO LIVE!

It is human nature to put off thoughts of death as long as we can.

This is especially true when our years are young, our health is good, and we're having a wonderful time.

But even in this life, the true values and real joys of living come into clear focus only when we face up to the facts of death and ask ourselves: "What does it mean?"

Once we do this, the terrifying specter of death becomes less fearsome. We see it as a teacher, cautioning us to shape our lives in a manner pleasing to God. We see it not as a Grim Reaper, robbing us of our worldly pleasures, but as the golden gateway to God's greatest of all gifts—eternal life.

There are some people, of course, who believe that after this life there is no more. The pure and the sinful, they contend, all meet the same gloomy end of eternal nothingness; there is no judgment, no punishment, no reward. But if our reason did not tell us this is wrong, we have the clearer assurance of God Himself that man shall live on earth, shall eventually meet death, that he shall be judged and, upon that judgment, shall live eternally either in joy — or misery.

This has been the teaching of the age-old Catholic Church since the time of the Apostles. It is a doctrine that compels a Catholic to think of his life in terms of his death. It sounds like a gloomy doctrine to those who dislike to face up to the facts of death and the certainty of divine judgment, but Catholics are inspired rather than depressed by it.

However gloomy the prospect of death may be, Catholics are constantly reminded by the Church of the importance of facing up to it instead of trying to ignore it. In the month of November each year, the thoughts of the faithful are especially directed to the special considerations of that occasion when every human being must take off on that final "flight" to God's vast unknown.

If you would like to know how to think about death, what happens after death, how to think about Heaven, how the Church helps its people at death, what's the right attitude toward death as Catholics see it, write today for our free pamphlet. It will be mailed promptly, and nobody will call on you. Ask for Pamphlet No. PR-53.

All play and no work. Condominium can mean gracious living plus good investment. It's jointly owned by apartment purchasers who pay maintenance.

THE CONDOMINIUM BOOM

How to own a home free of chores

BY JOHN QUIRT

In St. Thomas early this year, a vacationing Denver businessman paid $58,000 for a new luxurious two-bedroom, two-bath condominium apartment overlooking the beach. Last month he asked prospective buyers for offers. Within hours he had three—all over $70,000.

In Miami, where each Sunday Herald real estate section now includes around a dozen full-page condominium advertisements, eager buyers have snapped up thousands of apartments, paying $20,000 and up for them, and pushing prices steadily higher. At the Galen Breakers, near President Nixon's winter retreat on Key Biscayne, even low-floor two-bedrooms go for more than $25,000; on the top floor, overlooking the Miami skyline, prices are around $40,000. Farther north, in the Westinghouse-built Regency Tower along Fort Lauderdale's Galt Ocean Drive, three-bedroom, two-and-a-half-bath apartments sell for $55,500 and up; one-bedrooms from $22,000; and there is no shortage of buyers.

From Florida and the Caribbean to the West Coast and Hawaii, in fact, condominium buying is fast turning into a craze. Ten years ago, the idea of purchasing instead of renting an apartment was not widely accepted. It was something a few rich doctors or show business people did on Manhattan's East Side, along Chicago's Lake Shore Drive, or on Wilshire Boulevard in Beverly Hills.

Today, condominium blocks in all price ranges are popping up nearly everywhere—in Texas and Colorado, Minneapolis and Atlanta, Honolulu and Nassau. And they are being bought, says one Eastern realtor, "mainly by middle-income people who have come to accept them as a sensible way of living, a good investment, or both."

Good investment?

How sensible, though, are they, and how good an investment? Good enough so that you should consider one? And—to begin with a more basic question—what, exactly, is a condominium?

The term has its origin in old Roman law, and means simply joint ownership. What you buy is part of a building—the part containing your apartment. Operation of the rest of the building—including the elevators, laundry, waste disposal facilities and exterior grounds, is left to a professional management.

To cover the cost of these services, you pay a maintenance fee which can range from $40 to $1000 a month, depending on the extensiveness of the services. A thousand is not uncommon in fancy New York buildings offering swimming pools, valets and babysitters; $40-$100 is the more usual range of monthly fees elsewhere.

The fee, of course, is in addition to your interest, principal and tax payments, which are paid approximately the same way as on an ordinary house. Mortgages are available from banks and other lending institutions the same as with a home, which currently means 7½-8½ percent for 20 to 30 years. Down payments often run to 25 percent of the purchase price.

The beauty of condominiums is thus twofold. If you are the kind who dislikes yard work and roof-fixing, it is all done for you, and usually fairly cheaply since maintenance costs are spread over a large number of apartment owners.

At the same time, your taxes and interest on principal are tax-deductible; that affords you a sizable advantage over the apartment dweller who lays out roughly the same sum each month for rent, with no tax deductions.

Unlike the renter, you are building up an equity with each monthly payment on principal. You are not simply pouring $150 or $300 down the drain as rent each month; a small portion is coming back into your pocket—you are buying property.

Resale values climb

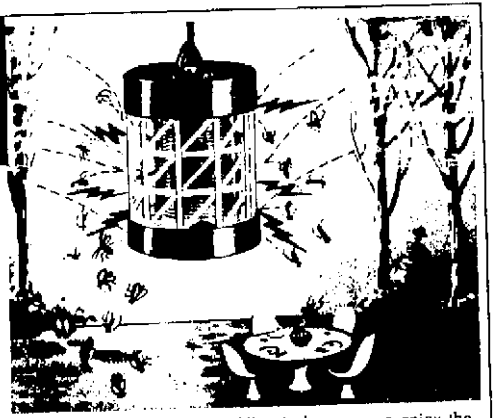

All the while, moreover, chances are fairly good that the market value of your apartment is going up. Resale values have been climbing 15 percent and more a year in some areas; and 10 percent annual increases have become fairly commonplace since inflationary pressures in the building industry began intensifying in 1967.

The arguments, then, for condominium ownership are indeed compelling. But there can be drawbacks. For one thing, warns one apartment rental agency executive, "if you are the kind who enjoys puttering around the yard and fixing things, you may find condominium life a trifle boring, a bit like being cooped up in a hotel suite."

Condominiums are going up everywhere. This one is situated on Marco Island, Fla.

over, are largely out of your hands. That means the monthly fee can fluctuate; and when it does, the fluctuation is usually upward. Group ownership can, in addition, present problems when it comes to reselling. Some condominiums impose various resale restrictions, which should be checked carefully in advance.

The business of making your initial purchase is not entirely problem-free either. Outright fraud is rare, but a distinct possibility, especially on new buildings. Recently, several crooked operators in the South and Far West have accepted down payments and then disappeared before completing their buildings, leaving the swindled buyers with no recourse but to hire attorneys and hope for at least part of their money back.

Occasionally, maintenance fees have been partly siphoned off by shady managements that have failed to get all the repair work done. When that happens, the property deteriorates and often goes down in market value instead of up.

Know the management

Thus it is extremely helpful when buying to know the management and selling organization. Unfortunately, this isn't always easy with large buildings in the bigger cities. Even then, however, a buyer can at least try to check on the management and selling organization's reputations through a reputable banker, business bureau or some other local authority.

In sum, it is possible to get stuck with a bad condominium apartment, one that fails to appreciate in value, or becomes hard to resell. But if you choose wisely, odds are that this is not likely to happen.

In fact, even if you are perfectly content living where you are, it may make sense to consider buying an apartment strictly as an investment, perhaps with an eye toward your retirement. In the Caribbean, Florida, Arizona, Hawaii and other vacation areas, they frequently can be rented out to winter visitors month to month or even year round to local residents until you are ready to occupy the premises yourselves. Local realtors often handle this type of sub-rental on a contract basis, charging you anywhere from 6 to 14 percent of the monthly rent for the service.

Routine arrangement

Occasionally, apartments can be bought under an arrangement where a sub-rental is supervised routinely by the building management, and perhaps even guaranteed for a certain number of months during the year. Entire hotels are being built on this basis in a few places, notably the Bahamas, Virgin Islands and Hawaii.

The way it works, you agree to rent your apartment out for, say, 11 months of the year, and select one month to occupy it yourselves. The apartment-hotel management handles the rental and upkeep, sending you monthly or quarterly checks. There can be, however, a clause in your purchase contract saddling you with at least part of the monthly principal and interest payments in the event the apartment is not rented. This varies from one condominium apartment-hotel to another, and should be looked into carefully.

Generally speaking, however, demand for this type of dwelling is outpacing supply today. And whether your apartment happens to be in Florida or California, Phoenix or Pittsburgh, unless it is overpriced or suffers from some other serious drawback, renting it is usually not terribly difficult.

Real estate experts believe the situation is likely to stay this way—favoring the condominium owner—until the supply of apartments begins catching up with demand. And that, says one, "may not happen until interest rates to builders decline and building activity begins really mushrooming again."

Next time you have the girls over to lunch serve them something different like this hot sandwich loaf drenched in a luscious cheese sauce.* They will love it, and it's so easy to do.

Just cut a white loaf into lengthwise slices, put together with two delicious fillings*, then toast in the oven until golden brown. To serve, slice loaf crosswise, garnish with pitted ripe olives and let guests pour their own saucy cheese topping.

To fill out your menu start with chilled consommé madrilene, garnished with mint sprigs or lime slices. Add a small green salad and for dessert angel food cake or raspberry sundae. Iced tea or coffee makes a fine accompaniment throughout the luncheon.

SAUCY SANDWICH LOAF

1 large unsliced loaf white bread
Soft butter or margarine
Ripe Olive-Ham Filling*
Chopped Egg Filling*

Assemble spread slices alternating olive-ham and egg layers. Top with unspread slice of bread. Place on baking sheet; lightly brush top and sides of loaf with soft butter. Toast at 400° about 10 minutes. Slice crosswise into 6 pieces. Serve with Cheese Sauce. Garnish with whole pitted ripe olives. Makes 6 servings.

*CHOPPED EGG FILLING: Mix 3 chopped hard-cooked eggs with 1 teaspoon prepared mustard, 1/4 teaspoon salt and 3 tablespoons mayonnaise.

*CHEESE SAUCE: Melt 1/4 cup butter or margarine; blend in 1/4 cup flour and 3/4 teaspoon salt. Add 1 1/2 cups milk. Cook, stirring, until mixture boils and thickens. Try to buy a fiberglass-belted wide oval for $33.95 at a major tire store and get a laugh. Try at Douglas and get a tire.

Safety at high speeds. Tested for 24 hours at 110 m.p.h. across the scorching desert.

Reversible. White stripe on one side. Racing red on the other.

Mean, racy look. Like tires on competition cars.

Double the mileage of ordinary wide oval tires. Two plies or belts of fiberglass hold the tread steady. Keep it from rubbing away like an eraser on the road.

Plus two bias plies of polyester cord in the structure assure a comfortable, no-thump ride.

40% wider tread than conventional tires. Puts more tire between you and the road for fastest starts, safest stops, best handling around corner.

The sight of a sexy, wide-oval polyglas tire is enough to "turn on" any red-blooded American. It's the price that usually turns people off.

Fame comes to a sleepy little village

BY JOHN G. ROGERS

Typical farm family: Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Parker and family on their 163-acre dairy and poultry spread. They drive to nearby Hecker to do shopping.

HECKER, ILL.

This sleepy village which has no police, no doctors and no ulcers, sits placidly among the cornfields here in southern Illinois awaiting a rendezvous with history. When next year's federal census is taken, it looks as though little old Hecker with its some 300 residents may emerge as the next officially designated population center of the United States including Hawaii and Alaska. According to one Heckerite, that would be the most exciting event for the village since a flour mill burned down in November of 1887.

"Great news," said genial Mayor Virgil Gregson when PARADE recently informed him of the likely honor. "We'll make a sign and put it up at the main intersection."

Gregson, a 37-year-old oil dealer whose salary as mayor is $10 a month, could have said the only intersection because the corner of Main and Jefferson, site of Ray's Barber Shop (closed Mondays), has no real competition.

Hecker figures not only to be the center of U.S. population for the next decade, it also will be the last one east of the Mississippi River. The steady tug of increasing population in the West has caused the center to jump about 45 miles in that direction the last several times the U.S. tallied up its people. At that rate the 1980 census will carry it across the Mississippi into Missouri.

Meantime, though, Hecker looks like the next champion—the 19th since the first national head count in 1790. And what kind of place is this village of distinction? PARADE looked it over the other day and talked to its people to compile a profile.

Hecker is just a flat crossroads 25 miles southeast of St. Louis, made up of fewer than 100 houses, a few stores, two taverns, two churches, a feed mill and the post office. It has some commuters to the city but its main reason for existence is to serve the farmers whose lush green croplands spread away in all directions. They come in for groceries, feed and gossip in the taverns. Otherwise, except when a truck pounds through on Route 159, quiet is the word for Hecker. You can hear a corncob drop. And if you want to get away from crime, this is the place.

How they feel

"We don't need any police," says Mayor Gregson, "because about the worst thing that happens around here is a little hot-rodding. Oh, maybe about once every two years something gets stolen. Last time I think it was a case of soda pop. But I don't believe anybody from Hecker took it. It was outsiders."

Strolling about under Hecker's maples and elms, we asked some of the villagers how they felt about becoming the exact center of the people of the vast U.S. Their comments:

Mrs. Bea Gibbar, sitting in an old-fashioned swing on the front porch of her tavern: "I always knew this town would amount to something someday."

Charles W. Wagner, 88, the man who remembers the flour mill fire: "It was quite a fire. I just stood there and watched her burn. Of course, Hecker was a very small place in those days. It may still be too small to be famous."

Mrs. Edward J. Parker, who lives with her husband and five children on a 163-acre farm just to the north: "Nothing ever happens around here except on television—we get all four channels from St. Louis. Now it's nice to know that Hecker will have something to call its own, though I can't see what good it'll do us."

David Harbison, 10, third baseman for the Hecker Bantams: "Population center? What's that? If it means a lot more people to make this town all crowded, I don't want it. We don't want all the vacant lots filled up."

Hecker wasn't always Hecker. Hilda Mertz, the postmaster's wife and dabbler in local history, reports that after its founding about 1815, it was named Freedom. "After the Civil War," she relates, "they discovered that Illinois had another Freedom and the mail was beginning to get all mixed up. At the time a war veteran named Col. Hecker was living in a hotel here. So, somebody said, 'Col. Hecker is such a nice man, let's name the town for him.'"

"And that's how we lost our Freedom"—so goes a quip they still use from time to time in Hecker. Now, however, the whole village is gripped with anticipation over the 1970 census and Postmaster Leonard D. Mertz says, "Who knows? We may even have to organize a Chamber of Commerce."

Main Street in Hecker, Ill. This little village of some 300 residents appears likely to turn up in next census as the country's population center.

HE'LL FIND AN OPEN DOOR IN SAN FRANCISCO.

RUNAWAYS Last year 129,000 teenagers were arrested as runaways in this country. Approximately another 350,000 ran away without ever getting caught or arrested. Where do these kids go?

In San Francisco about 60 a month knock on the door of a Victorian building which houses the "Huckleberry" organization. Inside, they are given food, shelter, human contact, advice if they seek it.

Huckleberry's is run by Rev. Larry Beggs and his staff. Beggs talks with the kids and talks with their parents, helping to establish communication between the two. The only condition for obtaining lodging at Huckleberry's is that the runaway call his parents.

Like many of those who run off to the Haight-Ashbury district in San Francisco where Huckleberry's is located, the youngsters are in conflict with the ways and values of their parents.

In the past two years more than 1000 kids have shown up at Beggs' establishment. Their average age is a little over 15. They are referred there or have heard about it somewhere. About 75 percent of the youngsters have been gone from home only five days or less. Some of the kids have gone straight to Huckleberry's from home. Rev. Beggs links this direct use of Huckleberry's to the fact that runaways are running toward something as much as running away from something. Most runaways do not intend to stay away from home any longer than it takes to re-establish some dialogue with their parents. At Huckleberry's they are helped to start such dialogue.

Rev. Larry Beggs in his book Huckleberry's for Runaways, recently published in paperback by Ballantine, offers valid insight into the motivation of runaways.

Huckleberry's, named after the Mark Twain character, exists solely on charitable contributions.

VIETNAM CASUALTIES As of May 10, 1969, there was a total of 40,711 U.S. deaths in the Vietnamese War: 34,835 killed in action and 5876 killed in accidents and non-hostile incidents.

As of May 10, 1969, there was a total of 223,525 U.S. wounded; 113,474 hospitalized and 110,051 non-hospitalized.

The Defense Department does not break down by states the number of Americans wounded. Its computer, however, does offer a state-by-state statistical breakdown of men killed in action.

Here is such a breakdown as of March 31, 1969, when 33,733 of our men had been killed in action:

THINK ABOUT DEATH and START TO LIVE!

It is human nature to put off thoughts of death as long as we can.

This is especially true when our years are young, our health is good, and we're having a wonderful time.

But even in this life, the true values and real joys of living come into clear focus only when we face up to the facts of death and ask ourselves: "What does it mean?"

Once we do this, the terrifying specter of death becomes less fearsome. We see it as a teacher, cautioning us to shape our lives in a manner pleasing to God. We see it not as a Grim Reaper, robbing us of our worldly pleasures, but as the golden gateway to God's greatest of all gifts—eternal life.

There are some people, of course, who believe that after this life there is no more. The pure and the sinful, they contend, all meet the same gloomy end of eternal nothingness; there is no judgment, no punishment, no reward. But if our reason did not tell us this is wrong, we have the clearer assurance of God Himself that man shall live on earth, shall eventually meet death, that he shall be judged and, upon that judgment, shall live eternally either in joy—or misery.

This has been the teaching of the age-old Catholic Church since the time of the Apostles. It is a doctrine that compels a Catholic to think of his life in terms of his death. It sounds like a gloomy doctrine to those who dislike to face up to the facts of death and the certainty of divine judgment, but Catholics are inspired rather than depressed by it.

However gloomy the prospect of death may be, Catholics are constantly reminded by the Church of the importance of facing up to it instead of trying to ignore it. In the month of November each year, the thoughts of the faithful are especially directed to the special considerations of that occasion when every human being must take off on that final "flight" to God's vast unknown.

If you would like to know how to think about death, what happens after death, how to think about Heaven, how the Church helps its people at death, what's the right attitude toward death as Catholics see it, write today for our free pamphlet. It will be mailed promptly, and nobody will call on you. Ask for Pamphlet No. PR-53.

All play and no work. Condominium can mean gracious living plus good investment. It's jointly owned by apartment purchasers who pay maintenance.

THE CONDOMINIUM BOOM

How to own a home free of chores

BY JOHN QUIRT

In St. Thomas early this year, a vacationing Denver businessman paid $58,000 for a new luxurious two-bedroom, two-bath condominium apartment overlooking the beach. Last month he asked prospective buyers for offers. Within hours he had three—all over $70,000.

In Miami, where each Sunday Herald real estate section now includes around a dozen full-page condominium advertisements, eager buyers have snapped up thousands of apartments, paying $20,000 and up for them, and pushing prices steadily higher. At the Galen Breakers, near President Nixon's winter retreat on Key Biscayne, even low-floor two-bedrooms go for more than $25,000; on the top floor, overlooking the Miami skyline, prices are around $40,000. Farther north, in the Westinghouse-built Regency Tower along Fort Lauderdale's Galt Ocean Drive, three-bedroom, two-and-a-half-bath apartments sell for $55,500 and up; one-bedrooms from $22,000; and there is no shortage of buyers.

From Florida and the Caribbean to the West Coast and Hawaii, in fact, condominium buying is fast turning into a craze. Ten years ago, the idea of purchasing instead of renting an apartment was not widely accepted. It was something a few rich doctors or show business people did on Manhattan's East Side, along Chicago's Lake Shore Drive, or on Wilshire Boulevard in Beverly Hills.

Today, condominium blocks in all price ranges are popping up nearly everywhere—in Texas and Colorado, Minneapolis and Atlanta, Honolulu and Nassau. And they are being bought, says one Eastern realtor, "mainly by middle-income people who have come to accept them as a sensible way of living, a good investment, or both."

Good investment?

How sensible, though, are they, and how good an investment? Good enough so that you should consider one? And—to begin with a more basic question—what, exactly, is a condominium?

The term has its origin in old Roman law, and means simply joint ownership. What you buy is part of a building—the part containing your apartment. Operation of the rest of the building—including the elevators, laundry, waste disposal facilities and exterior grounds, is left to a professional management.

To cover the cost of these services, you pay a maintenance fee which can range from $40 to $1000 a month, depending on the extensiveness of the services. A thousand is not uncommon in fancy New York buildings offering swimming pools, valets and babysitters; $40-$100 is the more usual range of monthly fees elsewhere.

The fee, of course, is in addition to your interest, principal and tax payments, which are paid approximately the same way as on an ordinary house. Mortgages are available from banks and other lending institutions the same as with a home, which currently means 7½-8½ percent for 20 to 30 years. Down payments often run to 25 percent of the purchase price.

The beauty of condominiums is thus twofold. If you are the kind who dislikes yard work and roof-fixing, it is all done for you, and usually fairly cheaply since maintenance costs are spread over a large number of apartment owners.

At the same time, your taxes and interest on principal are tax-deductible; that affords you a sizable advantage over the apartment dweller who lays out roughly the same sum each month for rent, with no tax deductions.

Unlike the renter, you are building up an equity with each monthly payment on principal. You are not simply pouring $150 or $300 down the drain as rent each month; a small portion is coming back into your pocket—you are buying property.

Resale values climb

All the while, moreover, chances are fairly good that the market value of your apartment is going up. Resale values have been climbing 15 percent and more a year in some areas; and 10 percent annual increases have become fairly commonplace since inflationary pressures in the building industry began intensifying in 1967.

The arguments, then, for condominium ownership are indeed compelling. But there can be drawbacks. For one thing, warns one apartment rental agency executive, "if you are the kind who enjoys puttering around the yard and fixing things, you may find condominium life a trifle boring, a bit like being cooped up in a hotel suite."

over, are largely out of your hands. That means the monthly fee can fluctuate, and when it does, the fluctuation is usually upward. Group ownership can, in addition, present problems when it comes to reselling. Some condominiums impose various resale restrictions, which should be checked carefully in advance.

The business of making your initial purchase is not entirely problem-free either. Outright fraud is rare, but a distinct possibility, especially on new buildings. Recently, several crooked operators in the South and Far West have accepted down payments and then disappeared before completing their buildings, leaving the swindled buyers with no recourse but to hire attorneys and hope for at least part of their money back.

Occasionally, maintenance fees have been partly siphoned off by shady managements that have failed to get all the repair work done. When that happens, the property deteriorates and often goes down in market value instead of up.

Know the management

Thus it is extremely helpful when buying to know the management and selling organization. Unfortunately, this isn't always easy with large buildings in the bigger cities. Even then, however, a buyer can at least try to check on the management and selling organization's reputations through a reputable banker, business bureau or some other local authority.

In sum, it is possible to get stuck with a bad condominium apartment, one that fails to appreciate in value, or becomes hard to resell. But if you choose wisely, odds are that this is not likely to happen.

In fact, even if you are perfectly content living where you are, it may make sense to consider buying an apartment strictly as an investment, perhaps with an eye toward your retirement. In the Caribbean, Florida, Arizona, Hawaii and other vacation areas, they frequently can be rented out to winter visitors month to month or even year round to local residents until you are ready to occupy the premises yourselves. Local realtors often handle this type of sub-rental on a contract basis, charging you anywhere from 6 to 14 percent of the monthly rent for the service.

Routine arrangement

Occasionally, apartments can be bought under an arrangement where a sub-rental is supervised routinely by the building management, and perhaps even guaranteed for a certain number of months during the year. Entire hotels are being built on this basis in a few places, notably the Bahamas, Virgin Islands and Hawaii.

The way it works, you agree to rent your apartment out for, say, 11 months of the year, and select one month to occupy it yourselves. The apartment-hotel management handles the rental and upkeep, sending you monthly or quarterly checks. There can be, however, a clause in your purchase contract saddling you with at least part of the monthly principal and interest payments in the event the apartment is not rented. This varies from one condominium apartment-hotel to another, and should be looked into carefully.

Generally speaking, however, demand for this type of dwelling is outpacing supply today. And whether your apartment happens to be in Florida or California, Phoenix or Pittsburgh, unless it is overpriced or suffers from some other serious drawback, renting it is usually not terribly difficult.

Real estate experts believe the situation is likely to stay this way—favoring the condominium owner—until the supply of apartments begins catching up with demand. And that, says one, "may not happen until interest rates to builders decline and building activity begins really mushrooming again."

A Saucy Club Sandwich

PARADE FOOD EDITOR

Next time you have the girls over to lunch serve them something different like this hot sandwich loaf drenched in a luscious cheese sauce.* They will love it, and it's so easy to do.

Just cut a white loaf into lengthwise slices, put together with two delicious fillings*, then toast in the oven until golden brown. To serve, slice loaf crosswise, garnish with pitted ripe olives and let guests pour their own saucy cheese topping.

To fill out your menu start with chilled consommé madrilene, garnished with mint sprigs or lime slices. Add a small green salad and for dessert angel food cake or raspberry sundae. Iced tea or coffee makes a fine accompaniment throughout the luncheon.

SAUCY SANDWICH LOAF

1 large unsliced loaf white bread
Soft butter or margarine
Ripe Olive-Ham Filling*
Chopped Egg Filling*
Cheese Sauce*
Whole pitted ripe olives

Trim crusts from bread; cut loaf into 4 lengthwise slices. Spread 2 slices with butter and Ripe Olive-Ham Filling. Spread third slice with butter and Chopped Egg Filling. Assemble spread slices alternating olive-ham and egg layers. Top with unspread slice of bread. Place on baking sheet; lightly brush top and sides of loaf with soft butter. Toast at 400° about 10 minutes. Slice crosswise into 6 pieces. Serve with Cheese Sauce. Garnish with whole pitted ripe olives. Makes 6 servings.

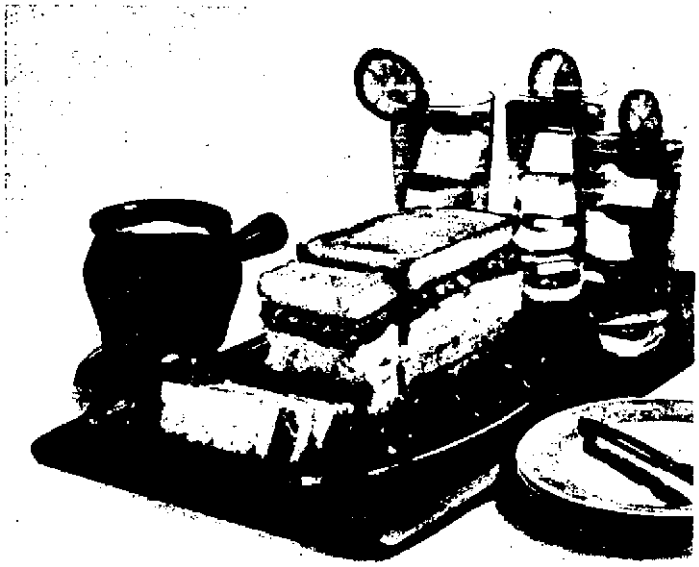

*RIPE OLIVE-HAM FILLING: Mix 2 cups ground cooked ham and ½ cup mayonnaise with ⅔ cup canned pitted ripe olives, coarsely chopped.

*CHOPPED EGG FILLING: Mix 3 chopped hard-cooked eggs with 1 teaspoon prepared mustard, ¼ teaspoon salt and 3 tablespoons mayonnaise.

*CHEESE SAUCE: Melt ¼ cup butter or margarine; blend in ¼ cup flour and ¾ teaspoon salt. Add 1½ cups milk. Cook, stirring, until mixture boils and thickens. Add ½ teaspoon prepared mustard, 1¼ cups grated sharp cheddar cheese and 2 tablespoons white wine. Stir over low heat until cheese melts. Makes 6 servings.

Mayor Gregson is elated over the chance of fame for village.

Hilda Mertz, town historian, says it was founded in 1815.

Hecker is tops to oldtimers Charles Wagner, 88, and wife.

Fame comes to a sleepy little village

BY JOHN G. ROGERS

Typical farm family: Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Parker and family on their 163-acre dairy and poultry spread. They drive to nearby Hecker to do shopping.

HECKER, ILL.

This sleepy village which has no police, no doctors and no ulcers, sits placidly among the cornfields here in southern Illinois awaiting a rendezvous with history. When next year's federal census is taken, it looks as though little old Hecker with its some 300 residents may emerge as the next officially designated population center of the United States including Hawaii and Alaska. According to one Heckerite, that would be the most exciting event for the village since a flour mill burned down in November of 1887.

"Great news," said genial Mayor Virgil Gregson when PARADE recently informed him of the likely honor. "We'll make a sign and put it up at the main intersection."

Gregson, a 37-year-old oil dealer whose salary as mayor is $10 a month, could have said the only intersection because the corner of Main and Jefferson, site of Ray's Barber Shop (closed Mondays), has no real competition.

Hecker figures not only to be the center of U.S. population for the next decade, it also will be the last one east of the Mississippi River. The steady tug of increasing population in the West has caused the center to jump about 45 miles in that direction the last several times the U.S. tallied up its people. At that rate the 1980 census will carry it across the Mississippi into Missouri.

Meantime, though, Hecker looks like the next champion—the 19th since the first national head count in 1790. And what kind of place is this village of distinction? PARADE looked it over the other day and talked to its people to compile a profile.

Hecker is just a flat crossroads 25 miles southeast of St. Louis, made up of fewer than 100 houses, a few stores, two taverns, two churches, a feed mill and the post office. It has some commuters to the city but its main reason for existence is to serve the farmers whose lush green croplands spread away in all directions. They come in for groceries, feed and gossip in the taverns. Otherwise, except when a truck pounds through on Route 159, quiet is the word for Hecker. You can hear a corncob drop. And if you want to get away from crime, this is the place.

How they feel

"We don't need any police," says Mayor Gregson, "because about the worst thing that happens around here is a little hot-rodding. Oh, maybe about once every two years something gets stolen. Last time I think it was a case of soda pop. But I don't believe anybody from Hecker took it. It was outsiders."

Strolling about under Hecker's maples and elms, we asked some of the villagers how they felt about becoming the exact center of the people of the vast U.S. Their comments:

Mrs. Bea Gibbar, sitting in an old-fashioned swing on the front porch of her tavern: "I always knew this town would amount to something someday."

Charles W. Wagner, 88, the man who remembers the flour mill fire: "It was quite a fire. I just stood there and watched her burn. Of course, Hecker was a very small place in those days. It may still be too small to be famous."

Mrs. Edward J. Parker, who lives with her husband and five children on a 163-acre farm just to the north: "Nothing ever happens around here except on television—we get all four channels from St. Louis. Now it's nice to know that Hecker will have something to call its own, though I can't see what good it'll do us."

David Harbison, 10, third baseman for the Hecker Bantams: "Population center? What's that? If it means a lot more people to make this town all crowded, I don't want it. We don't want all the vacant lots filled up."

Hecker wasn't always Hecker. Hilda Mertz, the postmaster's wife and dabbler in local history, reports that after its founding about 1815, it was named Freedom. "After the Civil War," she relates, "they discovered that Illinois had another Freedom and the mail was beginning to get all mixed up. At the time a war veteran named Col. Hecker was living in a hotel here. So, somebody said, 'Col. Hecker is such a nice man, let's name the town for him.'"

"And that's how we lost our Freedom"—so goes a quip they still use from time to time in Hecker. Now, however, the whole village is gripped with anticipation over the 1970 census and Postmaster Leonard D. Mertz says, "Who knows? We may even have to organize a Chamber of Commerce."

Main Street in Hecker, Ill. This little village of some 300 residents appears likely to turn up in next census as the country's population center.
